The Choice of Mr. Wilkes to be Sheriff, makes a great Noiſe in England. We are informed that it is of no ſubſtantial Importance, the moſt valuable Part of the Oppoſition having ſeparated from him, and it is ſaid that Adminiſtration never ſtood more firm ſince Lord North has been at the head of the Treaſury than it does at preſent.

That Sir Francis Bernard was returned from Lincolnſhire, and was in great Credit by the principal nobility in England, particularly Lord North and Lord Hillſborough.

Lord Hillſborough was to embark for Ireland the 24th July, and intended to return in about two Months.

NEW-HAVEN, September 20.

Laſt Sunday, the Dwelling Houſe of Mr. Caleb Stone, of Guilford, took Fire, (while the Family were attending divine Service) and was entirely conſumed, with chief of the Furniture, &c. the loſs is very conſiderable.

Laſt Wedneſday the Rev. Mr. Daniel Brewer, was ordained Paſtor of that Church and Congregation, in Guilford, which was lately under the Paſtoral Care of the Rev. Mr. Sprout, now of Philadelphia.

The Reverend Corporation of Yale College, in this Place laſt Week, made Choice of the Rev. Mr. Salter, of Mansfield to be one of their Body, in the Room of the Rev. Mr. Ruggles, deceaſed.——They alſo appointed Capt. Daniel Starr, of Danbury, Steward of the College, in the Room of Jonathan Fitch, Eſq; and Mr. John Trumble, a Tutor, in the Room of Mr. St. John, deceaſed.

HARTFORD, September 24.

Laſt Friday as Mr. Jedediah Spencer of Eaſt-Hartford, was riding in an empty cart down a hill, the cart overſet, when the hind rave fell upon his head and kill'd him inſtantly.

The Freemen of this town, at their annual meeting on Tueſday laſt, made choice of JOHN PITKIN, & BENJAMIN PAYNE, Eſqr's, to repreſent them at the General Aſſembly at New Haven in October next.

Weathersfield, 20th Sept. 1771.

ON Wedneſday the 11th Inſtant ſuddenly departed this Life, the Hon. JOHN CHESTER, Eſq; of this Town. He appear'd in the Morning quite well, and in high Health. About 9 o'Clock he rode near three Miles into the Meadow, with Capt. Fiſk of Farmington, where he found ſome of his Hay that needed opening. After having opened a few Cocks, as he was walking from one of them to another, converſing with a young Man who was there concerned in and about the Hay, he ſuddenly ſet his Fork into the Ground, laid his Hand on his Breaſt, and cried out, O dear! and inſtantly ſunk down. Capt. Fiſk and the young Man ran to his Aſſiſtance; but no Symptoms of Life appeared. The Doctors, as ſoon as poſſible were with him, let him Blood, and uſed other Means to recover him, but all to no purpoſe. His Death appears to have been as ſudden as can well be conceived of.

He was a Gentleman, in many Views, highly diſtinguiſhed—was deſcended from a Train of honorable Anceſtors——liberally educated at Cambridge, and excellently furniſhed by the God of Life, with a Genius, and ſuperior Accompliſhments, for public Uſefulneſs and Service. In the earlier Part of his Life, he was conſtantly a Member of the General Aſſembly; for many Years was Colonel of the ſixth Regiment of Militia; and one of the Aſſiſtants of the Colony, and employed in various other Stations of Truſt and Importance in the Government; in which he acquitted himſelf to his own Honour, and the Acceptation of the Public. He was a Gentleman of great Penetration and a ſettled Judgment; of inflexible Uprightneſs, Truth and Fidelity in his Adminiſtration; ſagacious to diſcern what was juſt and right to be done; ſteady and firm in purſuing the Dictates of his own Mind, and the Welfare of the Community. As a Member of the General Aſſembly, and as one of the Hon. Council, he was ever diſtinguiſhed for his upright and independant Conduct. His inclination and Genius, equally with his affluent Circumſtances in Life conſpiring to render him, in the Departments he ſuſtained, unbias'd either by popular Applauſe, or Diſapprobation, to act contrary to his Sentiments, which, though uncommonly modeſt in delivering, yet he ever gave them when call'd on, with a Freedom and Firmneſs, which demonſtrated to his Honour, that he had firſt weigh'd them, and convinced himſelf of their juſtneſs. He was a Friend to, and Promoter of Order and Peace; a ſteady and exemplary Attendant on the Worſhip of God's Houſe and the Ordinances of the Goſpel, and a Friend to its Miniſters. He was highly eſteem'd and valued by the People in this Place, whoſe Peace and Proſperity he wiſely and ſteadily purſued. In a Word, Wiſdom and a ſound Mind, Steadineſs, Impartiality and Integrity; an uncommon Spirit of Government, and Skill and Ability to promote the comman Good; Virtue and a ſolemn Profeſſion of the Religion of the Son of God; the Virtues and Duties of the ſocial Life: and in the ſmaller Circle of his own Family, Prudence and Fidelity, Kindneſs and Oeconomy; with a Veil of Humility and Modeſty caſt over the whole, mark and diſtinguiſh his Character.

A ſtrong Pillar fell, when CHESTER died. The Exertion of his great Abilities, for a Courſe of Years for the Welfare of the Colony, and the Peace and Happineſs of this Place juſtly demand and call forth a tributary Tear. So great was our Regard for him; ſo great our Dependance upon him, in this Place, that we very ſenſibly and tenderly feel the impoveriſhing Stroke—the awful Frown of a Sovereign Holy God. The Tears of Weathersfield are plentifully wept over the Duſt of the dear and Honorable deceaſed. May God who liveth forever, and with whom is the Reſidue of the Spirit, be a Repairer of our Breaches—a Father to the Fatherleſs, and a God to the Widow.

I have ſaid ye are Gods—but ye ſhall die like Men, Pſalm lxxxii. 6, 7.

He deceaſed in the 69th Year of his Age, and left a mournful Widow and ſix Children—four Sons and Two Daughters.

Charleſtown (S. Carolina) Auguſt 26.

Laſt week a Chief of the Oneida Indians arrived here from the Cherokee country, attended by five or ſix of his own countrymen, and about 20 Cherokees. He has been on an embaſſy to the ſeveral tribes on the Ohio, and ſays he has made a general peace between the Engliſh and Indians, as far as the Chickeſaws. He has had ſeveral conferences with his honour the Governor in Council, and propoſes to embark in the firſt veſſel for Philadelphia, in order to return to his own country.

On the 11th inſtant a large ſhip was ſeen on fire a few leagues off Cape Florida, thought to be from Jamaica with rum, &c. and continued burning till next morning, when the maſter of the veſſel, who brings us the intelligence, conjectures ſhe muſt have gone down, as he could ſee no more of her. Several other ſhips were in company with, or in ſight of her.

POET'S CORNER.

SHORT is the Date, and narrow is the Span,
Which bounds the little Life of fooliſh Man,
Gay Scenes of Bliſs the raviſh'd Soul ſurpriſe,
Raiſe his vain Hopes, and glitter in his Eyes,
Of ſwelling Titles he ſupinely dreams,
Vaſt are his Projects, and refin'd his Schemes:
But when the Morning Views of Joy are paſt,
The melancholy Evening comes at laſt,
The Tyrant Death, a haſty Summons ſends,
And all his momentary Glory ends.

There are letters in town from Bengal, which adviſe that Heyder Ally's army is more numerous than ever, and that they are ſo properly poſted as to be ready to join at twenty four hours notice.

They write from Jerſey, that ſcarce one third of the Fiſhermen have gone out this ſeaſon to the Banks of Newfoundland as did laſt year: on the other hand, the number of French ſhips ſailed for that place is near double to that of laſt year.

July 20. Yeſterday a Board of Trade, on colony affairs, was held at the Plantation office, at which the Earl of Hillſbourgh preſided.

Notwithſtanding the young King of Sweden has made the warmeſt profeſſions of friendſhip to our Court, we are well aſſured, that ſome underhand negociation is now carrying on between him and the Court of France.

During Lord Halifax's reſidence in Ireland, the ſalary of the Lord Lieutenant was (by his intereſt) raiſed from 12 000l. to 17 000l. per annum; which however, he would not accept for himſelf, but politely thanked government for their attention to his ſucceſſors.

Several Councils have been held at Paris on the benefit and advantage of their conqueſt of Corſica, which has coſt, in ſoldiers and ſailors, 32,000 men, 29 070 600 livres in money; it coſts ſince the departure of Paoli, all accounts balanced, 3000 000 livers a year. The iſland does not bring more than 1800,000 livers, excluſive of the woods: it was thought that this article would have proved very advantageous, but as it is under the management of the King's undertakers for ſhip building, the timber is bro't to the docks 18 per cent. leſs than that bro't and imported from the North.

July 20. Admiral Montague now Commander in North America, is appointed Rear Admiral of England, in the room of Admiral Holbourne, deceaſed.

Arrived, The London Ca'ef; the Argo, Bryant; and the Thames, Darby, from Boſton; and the Providence, Gilbert, from Rhode Iſland.

Orders were on Tueſday laſt ſent from the Admiralty Office, to the Commiſſioners of Chatham, Sheerneſs, and Portſmouth, for an immediate account to be tranſmitted of the number frigates which are fit to be employed as cruizers, with their names, number of guns, &c.

Newcaſtle, July 6. Thurday, on the arrival of the poſt with the account of Meſſrs. Wilkes and Bull being elected Sheriffs of London, their friends here ſet the bells a ringing; and, in the evening, a painted canvas fixed on a gibbet, on one ſide of which were painted the portraits of the Lords M——d and B—e chained together, and on the other ſide, Townſ—d, H—ne, and Judas, with their names at length, was carried in proceſſion about the town, & torn to pieces in the fleſh market, under the ſign of Mr. Wilkes amidſt the acclamations of a great number of perſons.

From TUESDAY, September 24, to TUESDAY, October 1, 1771.

[The Remainder of the peice begun in our laſt.]

A Proteſt againſt the application for a Biſhop.

Dissentient,

Firſt. BECAUSE the Advertiſement for the convention of the clergy, being greatly defective both in language and grammar, afforded a violent preſumption that the ſaid advertiſement was ſpurious illegitimate, and by no means the * offspring of a perſon of ſo much learning and eminence as the Commiſſary. And this preſumption, inſtead of being weakened, received a great acceſſion of probability from a certain pretence to openneſs and candour that was obſervable in the ſaid advertiſement, inaſmuch as ſuch a pretence, by evidencing a duplicity and variableneſs of conduct, has been affected to derogate very highly from the honour and reputation of the Commiſſary. It being manifeſtly his intention, as will appear from a † former advertiſement, not only to conceal the buſineſs of this preſent convention from the laity, but even alſo from the clergy themſelves, until the very time it was to be propoſed to their conſideration. To this preſumption, therefore, muſt be aſcribed the non attendance of a very great § Majority of the clergy; —— and as the meaſure that has now been adopted muſt undoubtedly, be thought not only greatly to affect this dominion in particular, but alſo all his Majeſty's colonies and plantations in America; we humbly conceive that the well grounded ſuſpicions concerning the legitimacy of the convening advertiſement ought to have been removed, and as full a convention of the clergy obtained, as the importance of the deliberation demanded.

Secondly. Becauſe the ſolicitation of the Clergy of Virginia for the appointment of an American Biſhop, without either applying for the concurrence, or knowing the objections of the other colonies in America which are equally concerned in ſuch an eſtabliſhment, muſt be deemed a rude encroachment upon, and a direct violation of, the rights of the ſaid colonies. An uſurpation that deſerves the greater oppugnation and reſentment, as the clergy of Virginia have not the leaſt ſhadow of excuſe for ſo precipitate a proceeding, and as the rights that have been invaded by this haſty reſolution are thoſe that merit to be the moſt carefully protected,— the rights of conſcience in matters of religion.

Thirdly. Becauſe their Lordſhips the Biſhops of London having hitherto poſſeſſed and excerciſed all epiſcopal rights in his Majeſty's colonies and Plantations in America, this new attempt to introduce an American Biſhop muſt be conſidered by the world as an indecent and unprovoked attack upon his preſent Lordſhip's juriſdiction and ſufficiency. And as no legal cauſe of complaint has, in this convention been aduced againſt the conduct of his Lordſhip, we cannot think ourſelves juſtifiable not only in not co operating, but alſo in not endeavouring to contravene a meaſure by which his Lordſhip is to be diveſted of a conſiderable part of the power intruſted to him by the laws; and which, as it does not appear, he has either abuſed or neglected, it cannot be thought conſiſtent with reaſon or common juſtice to deprive him of.

Fourthly. Becauſe the arguments that have been employed and inſiſted on, in this convention, to impreſs a conviction of the neceſſity and expediency of this American Biſhop, have not only appeared extremely inconcluſive, and nugatory, but alſo moſt extravagantly abſurd and chimerical. —— And this latter property they poſſeſs in ſo eminent a degree, that we may, with equal confidence, expect to ſee the fables of Ovid become true ſtories, as to ſee thoſe fears and apprehenſions realized on this ſubject.

Fifthly. Becauſe even granting the ſeveral advantages that have been ſuppoſed will reſult from the Succeſs of this intended application, yet as it has a manifeſt tendency to raiſe jealouſies and to excite diviſions in his Majeſty's Colonies in America (an evil much more than ſufficient to counter balance the greateſt good it can poſſibly be productive of) we ſhould ſtill think it our duty, without the influence of any other motive, to employ every effect in our power to oppoſe it. For ſhould this American biſhop not be appointed, yet ſtill our religious rights would not be injured. But ſhould we deſtroy the union among the Colonies, our civil rights will, from that moment, become acceſſible to the baſe deſigns of corrupt Stateſmen and abandoned Miniſters.

Sixthly. Becauſe laſtly, and principally, as the right of appointing this American Biſhop, is veſted in the Crown, and will, at preſent, be delegated to a Miniſtry whoſe ſentiments have ever appeared extremely hoſtile and inimical to, the common rights of mankind, it can never be thought for the intereſts of religion, in the preſent ſituation of political affairs, to extend the power of the crown, and the influence of * ſuch miniſters. In all deliberations, the liberty of the people ought to be the operating motive. Nor will this aſſertion, when examined, be found leſs true when applied to eccleſiaſtical than to civil diſcuſſions. For as the end of true religion is the happineſs of man, and as God has ordained that liberty and human happineſs ſhould be eſſentially connected, religion can never dictate a meaſure by which the civil rights of mankind can poſſibly be endangered. For when civil freedom is gone true religion alſo muſt neceſſarily be loſt with it; and in its place will ſucceed the religion of the tyrant that is, any ſuperſtition that he thinks the beſt adapted to keep him in poſſeſſion of the tyranny he has gotten.

Influenced by theſe conſiderations, and diſclaiming every motive that malice or ill nature may aſſign for this Proteſt,—— we ſubſcribe it, without expectation of favour or fear of reſentment:

RICHARD HEWITT,
WILLIAM BLAND.

Extract from the Journal of the Honourable House of Burgesses of Virginia, Friday July, 12

Reſolved nemine contradicente, that the thanks of this houſe be given to the Rev. Mr. Henley, the Rev. Mr. Hewitt, and the Rev. Mr. Bland, for the wiſe and well timed oppoſition they have made to the pernicious project of a few miſtaken clergymen, for introducing an American Bishop; a meaſure by which much diſturbance, great anxiety, and apprehenſion would certainly take place among his Majeſty's faithful American ſubjects; and that Mr. Richard Henry Lee, and Mr. Bland, do acquaint them therewith.

LONDON.

To his Grace the Duke of GRAFTON.

My Lord,

THE profound reſpect I bear to the gracious Prince, who governs this country with no leſs honour to himſelf than ſatisfaction to his ſubjects, and who reſtores you to your rank under his ſtandard, will ſave you from a multitude of reproaches. The attention I ſhould have paid to your failings is involuntarily attracted to the hand that rewards them, and though I am not ſo partial to the royal judgment as to affirm, that the favour of a King can remove mountains of infamy, it ſerves to leſſen at leaſt, for undoubtedly it divides the burthen. While I remember how much is due to his ſacred character, I cannot, with any decent appearance of propriety, call you the meaneſt and baſeſt fellow in the kingdom. I proteſt, my Lord, I do not think you ſo. You will have a dangerous rival, in that kind of fame to which you have hitherto ſo happily directed your ambition, as long as there is one man living, who thinks you worthy of his confidence, and fit to be truſted with any ſhare in his government. I confeſs you have great intrinſic merit; but take care you do not value it too highly. Conſider how much of it would have been loſt to the world, if the King had not graciouſly affixed his ſtamp, and given it currency among his ſubjects. If it be true that a virtuous man, ſtruggling with adverſity, be a ſcene worthy of the Gods, the glorious contention between you and the beſt of Princes deſerves an audience equally reſpectable. I think I already ſee other Gods riſing from the earth to behold it.

But this language is too mild for the occaſion. The King is determined, that our abilities ſhall not be loſt to ſociety. The perpetration and deſcription of new crimes will find employment for us both. My Lord, if the perſons, who have been loudeſt in their profeſſions of patriotiſm, had done their duty to the public with the ſame zeal and perſeverance that I did I will not aſſert that government would have recovered its dignity, but at leaſt our gracious Sovereign muſt have ſpared his ſubjects this laſt inſult, which, if there be any feeling left among us, they will reſent more than even the real injuries they received from every meaſure of your Grace's adminiſtration. In vain would we have looked round him for another character ſo conſummate as yours. Lord Mansfield ſhrinks from his principles;——his ideas of government perhaps go farther than your own, but his heart diſgraces the theory of his underſtanding.—— Charles Fox is yet in bloſſom; and as for Mr. Wedderburne, there is ſomething about him, which even treachery cannot truſt. For the preſent therefore, the beſt of Princes muſt have contented himſelf with Lord Sandwich.—— You would long ſince have received your final diſmiſſion and reward; and I, my Lord, who do not eſteem you the more for the high office you poſſeſs, would willingly have followed you to your retirement. There is ſurely ſomething ſingularly benevolent in the character of our Sovereign. From the moment he aſcended the Throne, there is no crime, of which human nature is capable, (and I call upon the Recorder to witneſs it) that has not appeared venal in his ſight. With any other Prince, the ſhameful deſertion of him, in the midſt of that diſtreſs, which you alone had created,—in the very criſis of danger, when he fancied he ſaw the Throne already ſurrounded by men of virtue and abilities would have outweighed the memory of all your former ſervices. But his Majeſty is full of juſtice, and underſtands the doctrine of compenſations. He remembers with gratitude how ſoon you had accommodated your morals to the neceſſities of his ſervice;—how chearfully you had abandoned the engagements of private friendſhip and renounced the moſt ſolemn profeſſions to the public. The ſacrifice of Lord Chatham was not loſt upon him. Even the cowardice and perfidy of deſerting him may have done you no diſſervice in his eſteem. The inſtance was painful, but the principle might pleaſe.

You did not neglect the Magiſtrate, while you flattered the Man. The expulſion of Mr. Wilkes predetermined in the Cabinet;—the power of depriving the ſubject of his birthright attributed to a reſolution of one branch of the Legiſlature;—The Conſtitution impudently invaded by the Houſe of Commons;—Theſe are the ſtrokes, my Lord which in the preſent reign, recommend to office, and conſtitute a Miniſter. They would have determined your Sovereign's judgment, if they had made no impreſſion upon his heart. We need not look for any other ſpecies of merit to account for his taking the earlieſt opportunity to recall you to his Councils. Yet you have other merit in abundance, —Mr. Hine, — the Duke of Portland.— and Mr Yorke.— Breach of truſt R y, and M r. You would think it a compliment to your gallantry, if I added Rape to the catalogue;—but the ſtile of your amours ſecures you from reſiſtance. I know how well theſe ſeveral charges have been defended. In the firſt inſtance, the Breach of Truſt is ſuppoſed to have been its own reward. Mr. Bradſhaw affirms upon his honour (and ſo may the gift of ſmiling never depart from him!) that you reſerved no part of Mr. Hine's purchaſe money for your own uſe, but that every ſhilling of it was ſcrupulouſly paid to Governor Burgoyne.—Make haſte, my Lord; another patent, applied in time, may keep the oaks in the family.— If not, Birnham Wood, I fear, muſt come to the Macaroni.

The Duke of Portland was in life your earlieſt friend. In defence of his property he had nothing to plead, but equity againſt Sir James Lowther, and preſcription againſt the Crown. You felt for your friend; but the law muſt take its courſe. Poſterity will ſcarce believe that Lord Bute's ſon in-law had barely intereſt enough at the Treaſury to get his grant compleated before the General Election.

Enough has been ſaid of that deteſtable tranſaction, which ended in the death of Mr Yorke. I cannot ſpeak of it without horror and compaſſion.— To excuſe yourſelf, you publicly impeach your accomplice, and to his mind perhaps the accuſation may be flattery. But in murder you are both principals. It was once a queſtion of emulation, and if the event had not diſappointed the immediate ſchemes of the cloſet, it might ſtill have been a hopeful ſubject of jeſt and merriment between you.

This letter, my Lord, is only a preface to my future correſpondence. The remainder of the ſummer ſhall be dedicated to your amuſement. I mean now and then to relieve the ſeverity of your morning ſtudies, and to prepare you for the buſineſs of the day. Without pretending to more than Mr. Bradſhaw's ſincerity, you may rely upon my attachment, as long as you are in office.

Will your Grace forgive me, if I venture to expreſs ſome anxiety for a man, whom I know you do not love? My Lord Weymouth has cowardice to plead, and a deſertion of a later date than your own. You know the Privy Seal was intended for him; and if you conſider the dignity of the poſt he deſerted, you will heardly think it decent to quarter him upon Mr. Rigby. Yet he muſt have bread, my Lord, or rather, he muſt have wine. If you deny him the cup, there will be no keeping him within the pale of the Miniſtry.

JUNIUS.

† The Words of the Advertiſement alluded to are as follows:

"William and Mary College, April 2 1771:

"The annual Meeting of the Clergy for the ſupport of the Fund for the Relief of Clergymens Widows and Orphans being appointed to be at this place the 4th of May the Commiſſary begs leave to add his Requeſt that there may be a general Attendance of the Clergy at that Time, and the Meeting may be as full as poſſible."

Neither Clergy nor Laity, I preſume, could have immagined from this Advertiſement that the full Meeting requeſted was to make application for an American Biſhop. But I am rather inclined to think that if any of them ſhould have had Leiſure enough to form any Conjectures concerning the Buſineſs of it they muſt have ſuppoſed it related only to the Fund for the ſupport of Widows and Orphans.

§ There were only Twelve Clergymen preſent at this Convention.

* Such Miniſters, in the Appointment of an American Biſhop could never think of chuſing a man the moſt proper and fitting to diſcharge the Functions of ſo important an Office. They would only be ſolicitous to meet with a perſon of blind Submiſſion and unlimited Obedience who ſhould never feel any Remorſe in executing what they, in their Omnipotence, ſhould command him.

By the Boſton Poſt.

BOSTON, September 26.

Since our laſt arrived here Capt. Brace from Falmouth in 40 Days, by the public Prints we have the following Articles, viz.

LONDON, Auguſt 6.

They write from Plymouth, that the Regiment lying in the barracks at the Dock there, has orders to hold itſelf in readineſs to embark for N. America.

Another Remonſtrance to the King is in contemplation, wherein it is ſaid the Lord Chamberlain's letter to the Citizens, with their conſequential reception at St. James's, will have a capital place.

The Earl of Rochford, one of his Majeſty's principal Secretaries of State, ſuperintends the American department during the Earl of Hillſborough's reſidence in Ireland, ſo that the execution of the buſineſs of the colonies is in no degree obſtructed by his Lordſhip's abſence.

Letters from Paris mention that to ſuch a height are the public diſputes in that metropolis arrived, that the King has doubled his body guard; for there is great reaſon to ſuſpect that there are Damiens yet left in France.

It was reported this morning that very ſatisfactory anſwers have been received by our Miniſtry from the Courts of Verſailles and Madrid regarding certain caſes now upon the point of being happily terminated.

Miſs Jones, who was lately murdered in Glouceſterſhire, was a great benefactor to the Wretch who committed the horrid deed. She put him apprentice. This poor young lady was to have been married in a fortnight to an amiable gentleman of large fortune, who has ſince the dreadful event kept his bed in a high fever, and is delirious.

The late Miſs Jones, of Naſs in Glouceſterſhire, who was unfortunately murdered was about 23 years of age, and very beautiful, tho' rather ſhort, and of the moſt mild and benevolent diſpoſition; at the death of an old aunt, now upwards of 80 ſhe would have come to a fortune of 80 000 l.

By advices received from Lidney in Glouceſterſhire, we are informed, that Miſs Gough, who was cruelly beaten and robbed by the ſawyer on Thurſday ſe'nnight, on her return from Naſs, in company with the late Miſs Jones, is now in a fair way of recovery.

At the Inſtallation on the 25th of July.

Two thouſand beds were made in the Caſtle at Windſor, & two thouſand tables were ſpread on Thurſday. There were ſeventeen kitchens, and fifty cooks in each kitchen beſides other attendants.

After dinner on thurſday, at Windſor, the new regulation of the Lord Steward took place about the ſcramble; as it was thought a better plan of œconomy to carry the victuals to the mob, than to let the mob come to the victuals. Accordingly the windows of the Caſtle were thrown open, and the proviſion toſſed out to the gaping croud below. A cloud of hams, chickens, paſties haunches, and delicates of every kind with knives, forks, plates, table cloths, and napkins, their companions darkened the air. This was ſucceeded by ſhowers of liquor; ſome conveyed in bottles, properly corked, but the greater part in rain. The ſcramble was more diverting than any other part of the preceding farce. You would ſee one ſtooping for the fowl; and a great ham falling plump upon his back; another having a fork ſtuck in his ſhoulder, and looking up to ſecure himſelf from more of the arrows thus flying by day, received a creamed apple pye full in his face. A beef eater having loſt his cap in the ſcuffle had his loſs repaired by a veniſon paſty falling inverted upon his head. A bargeman, who had juſt ſecured a noble haunch of veniſon, was retiring as faſt as he could with his booty, and ran with it full againſt the back of Lord ———, and made an impreſſion on it ſo like a gridiron, that all the mob, after they ceaſed their laughter, cried out, ſmoak the Merry Andrew.

AUGUST 1. It is ſaid that the late diſpute between the French Ambaſſador's ſervants and the conſtables, at a public houſe in Crown Court, Weſtminſter, cannot be ſettled, and in all probability will be the foundation for a war, a meſſenger having been ſent to Paris for inſtructions how the Ambaſſador is to proceed further in the affair, who returned from thence yeſterday.

It is the opinion of the politicians at the weſt end of the town, that England will be at war with both France and Spain before the expiration of eight months. [LONDON PACKET]

Some propoſitions of a very ſingular nature relative to the Miniſtry, will ſhortly be preſented to a great Perſonage by ſome leading men in the Minority. [IBID]

A ſquadron of ſix men of war and two frigates, is now fitting out at Chatham.

King James the Second had a great number of remonſtrances preſented to him by his aggrieved ſubjects, all of which were received with as little concern and attention as thoſe of their deſcendants are by ——— ———

Auguſt 3. Advice is received that the Empreſs of Ruſſia has rejected ſeven of the articles of peace drawn up for ratification between Ruſſia and the Porte.

It is ſaid ſome very unpleaſing accounts were received on Saturday night, in an expreſs from the Britiſh Ambaſſador at Conſtantinople.

We hear it is in contemplation at the Admiralty Board to advance the pay of Midſhipmen and Petty Officers on board the Royal Navy.

The young King of Sweden is to be crowned at Upſal on the 3d of September next.

October 23 1770.

"On our arrival here, we found the river full of dead human carcaſes floating up & down, and the ſtreets crouded with the dead and dying, without any one attempting to give them relief; ſo horribly has the famine raged here, that they who were able to walk and procure food for themſelves were ſo accuſtomed to ſee their fellow creatures periſhing before them that it did not even create a painful emotion. The numbers that have periſhed in Calcutta only, amounted (while they found it poſſible to keep an account) to 10 or 11.000 a week, but afterwards they became ſo numerous, that they were every morning juſt gathered together in an heap, and thrown into the river without any poſſibility of numbering them. I have myſelf paſſed by and ſeen 20 or 30 lain down to die in the length of one ſtreet. I have beheld the hapleſs infant tugging at the empty breaſt of its mother juſt expiring without being capable of affording them the ſmalleſt aid. The dying mothers have frequently been delivered of the fruit of their wombs in the ſtreets, and both have immediately been ſwept up amongſt the dead. It was no uncommon ſight to ſee dogs running about with human limbs in their jaws, and I am told that many of the expiring wretches were ſeen gorging on the bodies of thoſe, who periſhed within their reach. The third part of this once populous country is at the ſmalleſt computation entirely cut off. The famine is now at an end, though the effects of it are too viſible. Thoſe who have withſtood the calamity (many of them), are not able to procure for themſelves, and are ſo numerous, that charity, of which much has been extended, cannot relieve them all. There are many therefore ſtill dying daily in our ſight. The ſtench of the mortality has made the laſt ſickly ſeaſon very fatal to the Europeans, but that occaſions no complaints, as it makes room for ſome of the others, who were waiting to ſucceed them, and are very numerous in proportion to the buſineſs."

BOSTON, September 26.

On Thurſday Morning came on for Trial before the Superior Court at Worceſter, the Action of Treſpaſs brought by Ebenezer Cutler of Oxford, Plaintiff, againſt Robert Peirpont & Caleb Davis, Defendants:—The Damages he demanded were 5000 l. Lawful Money.——We hear the Cauſe was cloſed by Mr. Joſiah Quincy for the Defendants, and by the Attorney General for the Plaintiff, the Day following: when it was committed to the Jury, who agreed in about 8 hours, and brought in their Verdict on Saturday, in Favour of the Defendants.

Extract of a letter from London, July 29.

"You will perhaps have heard before this arrives, that Wilkes is choſen one of the Sheriffs for Middleſex, by a great majority. A fortunate accident gained him his election, which was the following letter or note, wrote by J. Robinſon to Benj. Smith, Eſq; a tool of Lord N—h, that was delivered into the hands of another perſon of the ſame name, a friend to Wilkes, who immediately made it public, which ſo rouſed the indignation of the Livery at the dictatorial ſtile thereof, that it is thought 500 of them gave their ſuffrages in favour of him and Bull;——Mr Robinſon is under ſecretary to the Treaſury.——The note is as follows,

"Mr. Robinſon preſents his compliments to Mr. Smith. Mr. Harley meets his Ward publicly to day, to ſupport Aldermen Plumbe and Kirkman. The friends of Government will be very active and it is deſired that you will be ſo good as to exert yourſelf to the utmoſt of your power to ſupport thoſe Aldermen. It is thought it will be advantageous to puſh the poll to day with as many friends as poſſible, therefore it is deſired that you will purſue that conduct. Mr. Harley will be early in the city to day and to be heard of at his compting houſe in Barge yard, Bucklerbury, and if you or ſuch perſon as you intruſt in this matter, could ſee him to conſult thereon it might be beneficial to the cauſe."

"There has alſo appeared in one of the papers of to day, the following humourous thing called Wilkes's Will. In which he is made to leave Lord Rockingham "ſpirit to ſuppport a good cauſe." His Lordſhip may ſmile at the wit of the piece, tho' at the ſame time he heartily deſpiſes both Wilkes and his party.

IN the name of Common Senſe. Amen. I John Wilkes of the pariſh of St. Margaret, Weſtminſter, Eſq; being apprehenſive that my political exiſtance is drawing near to its end, think proper, as a prudent man, to make this my laſt will and teſtament; and as my being renders no good to any one, and my worldly goods of ſmall value: Firſt, what nature, education and experience have furniſhed me with, I bequeath in the manner and form following, according to the ſeveral wants of my after named friends, whom I hope will be ſatisfied with my cordial remembrance, and the juſtice I have attended to in the diſtribution of my effects; and as I have been at great pains in collecting and diſpoſing of the ſeveral articles, I do hereby ſtrictly enjoin my undermentioned executors to be careful in the diſcharge of the truſt I have repoſed in them, any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithſtanding as the wiſdom of our legiſlature often expreſſes it.

London, July 25. 1771. J. W.

Fairfield, in Connecticut, Sept. 1771.

ON Monday the 2d Inſtant, September, in the Morning came on ſome dark Clouds, the Wind ſprung up from the Eaſtern Quarter, and threatened a ſpeedy and heavy Rain; but a ſmall Quantity only fell till about Three of the Clock in the Afternoon, when there aroſe a very black Cloud in the South Eaſt, from which iſſued a Flaſh of Lightning followed with a conſiderable Clap of Thunder accompanied with a heavy Shower of Rain; and then it moderated and rained but a little till about Eight of the Clock in the Afternoon, when the wind ſhifted to about South weſt; and then came on the ſevereſt Storm of Lightning, Thunder and Rain ever known in the memory of any one living; the oldeſt Perſon among us can recollect none in any Meaſure equal to, or even to be compared with it. The whole Atmoſphere ſeemed to be filled with Electrical Fire, which kept almoſt continually (for the ſpace of two or three hours) burſting in the moſt fearful Blazes of Lightning and terrible Peals of Thunder, as if the laſt and dreadful Day had commenced; ſo great was the Concuſſion, that our Houſes rock'd & ſhook over our Heads as if they would tumble in heaps upon us; the Tremor was ſo great as to throw the Pewter in ſome Houſes from the Shelves, the ſhocking Effects of which ſtill remains in a great many Inſtances upon the Bodies & Subſtances of many: The Dwelling Houſe of Mr. Abel Wheeler, Inn keeper, near Black-Rock Harbour was ſtruck in ſuch a manner as that the Marks of it are to be ſeen more or leſs in every Room in the Houſe; he himſelf and ſundry of his Family were ſtruck down, tho' happily no lives were deſtroyed; the Top of the Chimney was intirely thrown down, the Poſt on which his Sign hung was ſhivered from Top to Bottom. At the Weſt End of the Town-Plot, a large Barn belonging to Mr David Barlow, well filled with Wheat, Barley, Oats and Engliſh Hay, was by the Lightning, ſet on fire and intirely conſumed with all it contained; alſo the Houſe of Mr. William Benoit jun was ſtruck and he himſelf conſiderably hurt and by another Flaſh his Shop ſtanding on the oppoſite Side of the Street was ſtruck and ſix Swine killed that lay near it; in the ſame Storm one Mr. Curtiſs, of Stratford, I am told, had an Ox killed, many Trees were ſtruck and ſundry Sheep Geeſe &c. were killed in divers Places. Many Perſons ſince the Storm complain of a Stupor & dull heavy pain in the Head, which ſome imagine may be productive of ſome peſtilential diſeaſes. But as the merciful Governor of thoſe deſtructive elements, protected his Peoples Lives, when thoſe terrible Cataracts of Fire were burſting over their Heads can alſo preſerve them from other fatal Effects of them.

The dreadful Conſternation People in general were thrown into, is rather to be conceived than deſcribed. May it ſerve to convince us all, of the Neceſſity of being always ready to meet our Judge, even in the terrible Diſplays of his awful Glory and Majeſty.

RUN away from the ſubſcriber on Tueſday the 24th inſtant, a boy about ſixteen years of age, named ELIZUR WARE wears his own black buſhey hair, wore away with him a woollen ſhirt, and long tow trowſers & frock, a felt hat about half wore, and a pair ſhoes. Whoever ſhall take up ſaid boy, and return him to me, ſhall have TWO DOLLARS reward, and all neceſſary charges paid by me

Thomas Stevens.

Glaſtenbury, Sept 25. 1771.

All perſons indebted to the inſolvent eſtate of ELISHA BURNHAM, late of Hartford deceas'd, are hereby deſired to make ſpeedy payment to me the ſubſcriber, as they would prevent trouble.

POET'S CORNER.

TOO long has Vice triumphant led the Way,
And baniſh'd Virtue from the Realms of Day
Virtue! the ſafeſt Guide, the trueſt Friend!
From her, true Joys and Happineſs deſcend;
She, when we quit this Tenement of Clay,
Will waft our Spirits to the Realms of Day.
Juſtly may we lament our wretched State,
(A dreadful Prelude to our future Fate)
But Conſcience muſt with Sorrow ever own,
That Heaven is juſt—and Sin brings on our Doom
Riſe Britons! riſe—your utmoſt Pow'rs unite,
To baniſh Vice, as Day the Shades of Night.
Seek the ſtraight Path, & with an humble Fear,
Teach your abandon'd Sons their God to fear.
Fair Virtue then ſhall deign a heav'nly Smile.
And ſpread her potent Wings o'er Britain's Iſle.
Expiring Freedom ſhall revive again,
And o'er all Britain's Realms for ever reign.

A deſcription of a WHIG.

EVERY perſecutor is not a whig but every whig is a perſecutor——the man who believes "the divine right of mobs to govern wrong" is a perſecutor, a tyrant, and a modeſt whig ——He is a whig who practices upon the infallible text of whigs, as you may find written in the book of St. Oliver, chap. 1ſt, verſes 1ſt and laſt

"Vox Populi, vox Dei Eſt."

A whig believes the divine right of all legal power, actively and poſitively, took its origin from the voice and decree of the people, and not from God—this is evident from the text "the voice of the people is the will of God"——Obſerve the text—it does not ſay vox Dei, vox populi eſt—was it ſo in the original, it would image the doctrine of a tory in his paſſive obedience—ergo, tis demonſtration, that vox populi, election, decree, action &c. of a whig, is the vox Dei election decree, &c of God—therefore a whig loves election, to be elected a governor, and loves to govern elected, or non elected; yet 'tis a violence on his conſcience to be governed either by King's, or the mobs whom he ſtiles God's vicegerents—whenever the act of election falls upon himſelf—He loves obedience and government, both active and paſſive, when himſelf is governor. A whig loves courts of inquiſition, tryal de ordeal, paſſive and active obedience in all men to himſelf, a whig takes double tythes, and offers to ſwear the tory is a fool, for not tithing Geneva and the maids in his ſchool——a whig concludes that Jones, Ireton, and Bradſhaw, were vicegerents of God by murdering their king and their country—a whig ſells and buys (like Judas) his king by perfidy of "ſolemn league & covenant," makes paſtime in burning and ripping up women, whipping and hanging of quakers and witches, when they do, or do not oppoſe the calf's head club faction, ſupporting "the good old cauſe"—to ſpeak with preciſion of ſuch vicegerents of vox populi, they reſemble their parents who ſaid "away with him and crucify him," whoſe fruits evidence their inſpiration was by vox inferiorum vel populorum, whoſe vicegerents they were—yet the whig is ſo infernally obſtinate beyond the force of reaſon and check of conſcience, as omnipotently to contend "with ſwords and ſtaves," that the vox Dei is the vicegerent of vox populi and of conſequence the king and all governors are in duty bound to pay all active obedience (which evidently includes paſſive obedience) to the ſovereign power and divine right to mobs, the Lord people—ſworn ſubjects to the k—ke rebels too. Such were the principles in the gunpowder plot—Oliverian uſurpation, and Gonz lian ſetlement, that finally the vox populi, or ſuperintendants of cruelty, by the juſt judgment of God and the king, were condemned to be pendent on a Welſh ſign poſt, adorned with a Scots neckloth; their children outlawed, and tranſported with their ſmectymnean garment envy, variance, hatred one to another—there to be buried with the burying of an aſs. Amazing it is, that after ſo many years of exile, ſo many acts of oblivion, ſo many bounties in the pecuniary way ſo many calls to repentance, even now in the auſpicious reign of George third, to find the ſame egaity philanty the ſame rebellious gubernatoral dictatorial ſovereign, ſubmiſſive, active paſſive haughtily obedience, noxiouſly living and judging in His Majeſty's court ſupremity, and moving people——But you have the reaſon above, every perſecutor (or tyrant) is not a whig, but every whig is a tyrant and perſecutor——the maxim is as certain as that the tory is a fool, or that the devil is a great walker abroad ſeeking whom he may devour.

From TUESDAY, OCTOBER 1, to TUESDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1771.

Mr. WATSON,

AS reſolves and addreſſes are become very familiar, it wou'd be well to exhibit antient and modern in the ſame paper, that the public may judge whether there is any ſimilitude in the complection, and judge what ſtreſs is to be laid on the flattery of expectants and dependant tools. You are therefore deſired to publiſh the following, as it is thought it will oblige many of your readers.

IN 1686, when James the II was introducing Popery and arbitrary power, the laws of the land ſtood in his way, and to gratify the King, all the judges, except one, gave their opinions for the King, and made it a general rule in law, (1ſt) That the laws of England are the Kings laws. (2d) That therefore it is an incident, inſeperable prerogative of the Kings of England, as of all other ſovereign princes, to diſpenſe with all penal laws in particular caſes, and upon particular neceſſary reaſons. (3d) That of theſe reaſons and neceſſities, the King is the ſole judge. Conſequently (4th) That this is not a truſt inveſted in, and granted to the King, but the antient remains of the ſovereign power of the Kings of England, which never was yet taken from them, nor can be.

Rapins Hiſt. of Eng. Vol. 2d. Fol 1149

An ADDRESS preſented to the King the 11th of June 1687. by the lawyers ſtiled the ſociety of the Middletemple.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty.

WE, your majeſty's dutiful ſubjects, to our great joy, have received a happy occaſion of making this declaration of our gratitude: and we know that your Majeſty's goodneſs is the greateſt that ever was ſhown by a prince to his ſubjects, ſo we wiſh the voice of men and angels to return ſufficient thanks for your Majeſtys condeſcention and clemency to all your ſubjects, in your gracious declaration for a toleration. And as for this compaſſion and goodneſs, thanks ought to be paid your Majeſty by all his ſubjects, ſo we eſpecially of the profeſſion of the law, have moſt reaſon to be thankful for the honour you have done us, by aſſerting your own royal prerogative which is the very life of the law, and our profeſſion. Which prerogatives, as they were given by God himſelf, ſo we declare, that no power upon earth can diminiſh them; but they muſt always remain entire and inſeperable to your royal perſon. Which prerogatives, as we have ſtudied to know them, ſo we are reſolved to defend them, by aſſerting with our lives and fortunes, that divine maxim, A Deo Rex, A Rege Lex. And now, as a teſtimony of our perfect ſatisfaction in this our addreſs and acknowledgment, we have ſubſcribed our names, that your Majeſty may know us to be yours; and that the reſt of our profeſſion may follow our example. And therefore we beg your Majeſty will accept this addreſs from us, who in concluſion make bold to offer our beſt wiſhes and hearty deſires, that your Majeſty's councils may proſper in wiſdom, your kingdoms flouriſh in peace, and your royal perſon enjoy a long, happy and glorious reign over us."

From the New York JOURNAL, &c.

To his EXCELLENCY.
WILLIAM TRYON, Eſquire,
Captain General and Governor in Chief, in and over the Province of New York, and the Territories depending thereon in America; Chancellor and Vice Admiral of the ſame.

The humble ADDRESS of the Judges, the Attorney General, Practicers of the Law, and other Officers of the Supreme Court of Judicature for the Province of New York.

HIS Majeſty having been pleaſed to diſcontinue the generous Adminiſtration of your noble Predeceſſor, by calling him to his Service in a diſtant Colony; permit us, Sir, to congratulate you on your Appointment to a Government characterized for its Loyalty to our moſt gracious Sovereign, and his illuſtrious Houſe.

The Magiſtrate who hazards his Life in Support of the Laws, and prefers the Calls of Duty to the Invitations of Eaſe, muſt obtain the Applauſe of his royal Maſter, and command the Affection of every Friend to the Conſtitution.

Influenced by this Sentiment, we ſhall endeavour, in conſulting the Happineſs of our Governor to teſtify our Gratitude to his Majeſty, for committing the Colony to the Care of a Gentleman, no leſs capable of advancing its Welfare by Wiſdom in Council, than of maintaining its Security by Bravery in the field.

While the ſame Principles, which have hitherto directed, continue to actuate your Conduct, and the Government ſhall derive Dignity and Importance from the Character of its Ruler, your Adminiſtration cannot fail to be happy; for ſo long as the Laws are preſerved from Violation, Virtue patroniz'd, and Learning encouraged, the Felicity of the Province will be daily augmented, and you will not only poſſeſs a Right to the Obedience, but to the Eſteem and Affection of all its inhabitants.

Public Juſtice is of too great Moment to Society to require any Intreaties for the Protection of thoſe who are concerned in its Diſtribution, we are confident that the Law will never be denied your Countenance and Support. Your Excellency may depend on our conſtant Endeavours to render your Reſidence as agreeable to yourſelf and Family, as we have reaſon to believe your Adminiſtration will be beneficial to the Colony.

An Addreſs of Men and Friars,
And modern practic liars.

HIS Majeſty having been pleaſed to diſcontinue the generous adminiſtration of your noble predeceſſor, by illing him to his ſervice in a diſtant land. ermit us, Sir, to congratulate you on your ppointment to the government of a provinc characterized for its loyalty, to our moſt grous ſovereign and his illuſtrious houſe. Thiagiſtrate who hazards his life in the ſupport the law of ſelf intereſt, and prefers the calls thof to the invitation of eaſe, to mend a brokentune or ſuppor extravigance, muſt obtain tipplauſe of all his comrades, and command aff ctions of all ſycophats. Ifluenced bis ſentiment, we ſhall endeavour to teſtify oratitude for the appointment of a gentleman the chief command, no leſs capable of advag the plan of extortion and oppreſſion by hisdom in council, than of maintaining its ſdyby bravery, or rather perfidy in the field, e the ſame principles of perverting the laſ nature and nations, and protecting of exon, which hitherto directed your councilntinue to actuate your conduct, and the goent derive ſtrength and importance from thracter of its ruler. your adminiſtration cannil to be diſtreſſing ſo all lovers of freedand ſo long as the laws of extortion are prd inviolate, and bribery and corruptionbraged, the filicity of your diſcreet cfficel be daily augmented, and you will not poſſeſs a right to the obedience of your, but the reſpect and eſteem of all ſlat

The laws of ſtreſt are of too great moment to you to require any intreaties for the protection of thoſe who are concerned in the diſtribution of your plunder. We are confident therefore they will never be denied your countenance and ſupport. Your Excellency may depend on our endeavours to render your plan as profitable as it is agreeable to your diſpoſition. We cannot but admire your wiſdom in introducing to our acquaintance Don Alonzo Giocomo, a man who hath the art of raiſing an immenſe fortune in a very ſhort time, from whoſe acquaintance we hope greatly to increaſe our profits, altho' the fees now are ſo many and ſo great that a man of a moderate fortune can ſcarce live, or even die with any credit. We may juſtly have great expectations from a man who cou'd make a plea of ignorance in a lawyer, procure a charge to a jury to acquit him from an indictment for extortion; and you may depend on it, that if ſuch indictment ſhould be brought againſt any of your tools, and they ſhould, by any unpolite twelve men, vulgerly call'd a Jury, be found guilty, we ſhall not lay any more upon them than one penny for each conviction. And if we, according to the true Britiſh maxim, give you a feather as often as you protect us in filching a gooſe, which we certainly ſhall do; you cannot fail to grow immenſely rich. We cannot ſufficiently admire your intrepidity in opening the way to confiſcations, the only ſure method to enſlave America: and we doubt not your wiſdom in ſuggeſting to your ——— that thoſe lands ſhould not be ſold to pay any preſent demands, but let out at very ſmall rents, to be held in tenancy at will, by ſome of the illegitimate ſons of ———. And though theſe be neither illuſtrious villains nor illuſtrious ſlaves, yet ſure they will be ſycophantic knaves; a ſet of people abſolutely neceſſary in the plan of inſlaving America.

BUT in defiance of all laws humane and divine, I obſerve with the greateſt horror and deteſtation, in the New-York Journal of Auguſt 29th, 1771, and in your paper alſo, a moſt ſhocking account of ſome, whom the writer ſtiles a company of gentlemen, aſſembled at the Kings Arms tavern in Newbern. That they accuſed, and then without the formalities of a legal trial, as hearing them in their own defence, &c condemned and executed, Iſaiah Thomas, printer of the Maſſachuſetts Spy No. 17, in Boſton, and his two co partners, Leonidas and Mucius Scævola. All which appears nothing but a mere mockery of juſtice, and violation of all the rules of righteouſneſs. If this is a juſt ſpecimen of the trials commonly had in North-Carolina, we have no great reaſon to wonder, that men ſhould ſtill be found hardy enough to abet the meaſures, or rather join the well-grounded complaints, of ſuch poor, diſtreſs'd Engliſh ſubjects, whom the writer, with a ſort of mildneſs peculiar to himſelf, is pleas'd to call "a ſet of villains, who were in actual rebellion againſt one of the mildeſt adminiſtrations in America! had torn down from their ſeats the Judges of his Majeſty's courts of law in this province, ſeverly whipped the lawyers, clerks and other crown officers." According to the ſame account, there had been upwards of 7000 in the ſmall province of North Carolina, about the ſame number that God declared, that he had reſerved to himſelf in Iſrael. And I cant imagine that taking the oaths of allegiance, will reconcile them to the mild adminiſtration abovementioned, where ſpeaking truth is miſcall'd ſlander, and puniſh'd with death. Nor can I imagine that 7000 Engliſhmen can be found in his Majeſty's dominions, that will be fond of ſuch courts, judges, lawyers, &c. Sir Edward Coke was a great lawyer and judge both: and yet we find that he complains of oppreſſors without fear of giving offence to any honeſt lawyer, or upright judge.

"It is not credible ſays Lord COKE, what horrible oppreſſions and exactions, to the undoing of infinite numbers of people, were committed by Sir Richard Empſon Knight, and Edmond Dudley, being juſtices of peace thro'out England—but at the parliament in the firſt year of Henery VIII this act of the ſecond Hen. VII, is repealed, and the reaſon thereof is yielded, for that by force of the ſaid act, it was manifeſtly known, that many ſiniſter and crafty, feign'd and forged informations, had been purſued againſt divers of the Kings ſubjects, to their great damage and vexation, and the ill ſucceſs hereof, and the fearful end of theſe two oppreſſors, ſhould deter others from committing the like."

N. B. Henry VIII cauſed Sir Richard Empſon Kight, and Edmond Dudley, the inſtruments of his fathers extortions, to be convicted and executed as traitors, A.D. 1510.—Will any body venture to ſay, that theſe two monſters, ſo juſtly infamous for converting the law, the means of the people's preſervation into the inſtruments of their deſtruction, would ever have ſuffered their deſerved puniſhment, if the oppres'd had been deny'd the poor, the little, the almoſt no privilege of complaining? After what my Lord Coke has wrote, will any body venture to affirm, that the oppres'd Carolinians, were guilty of an unpardonable crime; or indeed any crime at all, in complaining of the cruel, iniquitous and oppreſſive practices of their officers, contrary to law?—" while thoſe that govern (ſays a writer in the reign of George II) do it with any tolerable degree of moderation and juſtice, and in any good meaſure act up to their office and character, by being public benefactors; the people will generally be eaſy and peaceable; and be rather inclined to flatter and adore, than to inſult and reſiſt them." Nor was there ever any general complaint againſt any adminiſtration, which laſted long, but there was good reaſon for.

'Til men find themſelves greatly abuſed and oppreſſed by their governors, they are not apt to complain; and whenever they do in fact find themſelves thus abuſed and oppreſs'd, they muſt be ſtupid not to complain.

To ſay that ſubjects in general are not proper judges, when their governors oppreſs them and play the tyrant; and when they defend their rights, adminiſter juſtice impartially, and promote the public welfare, is as great treaſon as ever man uttered; 'tis treaſon—not againſt one ſingle man, but againſt the ſtate——againſt the whole body politic—'Tis treaſon againſt mankind——'Tis treaſon againſt common ſenſe——'Tis treaſon againſt God! And this impious principle lays the foundation for juſtifying all the tyranny and oppreſſion that ever any prince was guilty of.

The people know for what end they ſet up and maintain their governors; and they are the proper judges, when they execute their truſt as they ought to do it; when their prince exerciſes an equitable and paternal authority over them; when from a prince and common father, he exalts himſelf to a tyrant; when from ſubjects and children, he degrades them into the claſs of ſlaves——plunders them——makes them his prey, and unnaturally ſports himſelf the rules of righteouſneſs. AMATOR GENERIS HUMANI.

Connecticut, 1771.

From the GENERAL EVENING POST, July 9.

To his Grace the Duke of GRAFTON.

MY LORD,

THE influence of your Grace's fortune ſtill ſeems to preſide over the treaſury. The genius of Mr. Bradſhaw inſpires Mr. Robinſon. How remarkable is it, (and I ſpeak of it not as matter of reproach, but as ſomething peculiar to your character) that you have never yet formed a friendſhip, which has not been fatal to the object of it, nor adopted a cauſe, to which, one way or other, you have not done miſchief! Your attachment is infamy while it laſts. and which ever way it turns, leaves ruin and diſgrace behind it. The deluded gir', who yeilds to ſuch a profligate, even while he is conſtant, forfeits her reputation as well as her innocence and finds herſelf abandoned at laſt to miſery and ſhame. Thus it happened with the beſt of P——s, Poor Dingley too!——I proteſt I hardly know which of them we ought moſt to lament:——The unhappy man, who ſinks under the ſenſe of his diſhonour, or him who ſurvives it. Characters ſo finiſhed, are placed beyond the reach of panegyric. Death has fixed his ſeal upon Dingley & you my Lord, have ſet your mark upon the other.

The only letter I ever addreſſed to the K—was ſo unkindly received, that I be'ieve I ſhall never preſume to trouble his M——, in that way again. But my zeal for his ſervice is ſuperior to neglect, and like Mr. Wilkes's patriotiſm, thrives by perſecution. Yet his M—— is much addicted to uſeful reading, and if I am not ill-informed, has honoured the Public Advertiſer with particular attention. I have endeavoured therefore, and not without ſucceſs (as perhaps you may remember, to furniſh it with ſuch intereſting and edifying intelligence, as probably wou'd not reach him through any other channel. The ſervices you have done the nation,——your integrity in office, and ſignal fidelity to your approved good maſter, have been faithfully recorded. Nor have his own virtues been entirely neglected. Theſe letters, my Lord, are read in other countries and in other languages; and I think I may affirm without vanity, that the [illegible] the beſt of P——s is by this time not only perfectly known to his ſubjects, but tolerably well underſtood by the reſt of Europe. In this reſpect alone, I have the advantage of Mr. Whitehead His plan I think, is too narrow. He ſeems to manufacture his verſes for the ſole uſe [illegible] the hero, who is ſuppoſed to be the ſubject of them, and, that his meaning may not be [illegible]awfully exported in foreign bottoms, ſets all [illegible]nſlation at defiance.

Your Grace's re appointment to a ſeat in the Cabinet was announced to the public by the ominous return of Lo[illegible] Bu[illegible]e to this country. When that [illegible]oxious pl[illegible]et approaches England, he never fails to bring [illegible]lague and peſtilence a long with him. The [illegible] already feels the malignant effect of your i[illegible]ence over his Councils. Your former adminiſtra[illegible]n made Mr. Wilkes an Alderman of London and Repreſentative of Middleſex. Your next appearance in office is marked with his electio[illegible] for the Shrievalty. In whatever meaſure you [illegible] concerned, you are not only diſappointed [illegible] ſucceſs, but always contrive to make the G[illegible]nment of the beſt of P——s contemptible i[illegible] his own eyes, and ridiculous to the whole [illegible]ld. Making a'l due allowance for the effect [illegible] the Miniſter's declared interpoſition. Mr. [illegible]nſon's activity, and Mr. Horne's new zeal i[illegible]pport of adminiſtration, we ſtill want the [illegible]ius of the Duke of Grafton to account for [illegible]niting the whole intereſt of government in t[illegible] city, to the conduct of Mr. H——y. I wi[illegible]t bear hard upon your faithful friend and [illegible]ary T——t, for I know the difficulties of [illegible]tuation, and that a few lottery tickets are o[illegible] to his œconomy. There is a proverb conc[illegible]g perſons in the predicament of this gentl[illegible], which however connot be ſtrictly applie[illegible] him. They commence dupes, and finiſh [illegible]es. Now Mr. T——t's character is uni[illegible] I am convinced that his ſentiments never [illegible]ded upon his circumſtances, and that, i[illegible] moſt proſperous ſtate of his fortune, he [illegible]lways the very man he is at preſent.——[illegible]s there no other perſon of rank and conſequ[illegible]n the city, whom Government could confid[illegible] but a notorious Jacobite? Did you ima[illegible]hat the whole whig intereſt of London wou'd attend at the levy, and ſubmit to the directions of a notorious Jacobite? Was there no Whig Magiſtrate in the city, to whom the ſervants of George the Third could intruſt the management of a buſineſs ſo very intereſting to their maſter as the election of Sheriffs? Is there no room at St. James's, but for Scotchmen and Jacobites? My Lord, I do not mean to queſtion the ſincerity of Mr. H——y's attachment to his Majeſty's Government. Since the commencement of the preſent reign, I have ſeen ſtill greater contradictions reconciled. The principles of theſe worthy Jacobites are not ſo abſurd as they have been repreſented. Their ideas of divine right are not ſo much annexed to the perſon or family, as to the political character of the S——n. Had there ever been an honeſt man among the Stuarts, his ——'s preſent friends would have been whigs upon principle. But the converſion of the beſt of —— has removed their ſcruples. They have forgiven him the ſins of his H——n anceſtors, and acknowledged the hand of Providence in the deſcent of the——upon the head of a Stuart. In you, My Lord, they alſo behold, with a kind of predilection, which borders upon loyalty, the natural Repreſentative of that illuſtrious family. The mode of your deſcent from Charles the Second is only a bar to your pretenſions to the Crown, and no way interupts the regu'arity of your ſucceſſion to all the virtues of the Stuarts.

The unfortunate ſucceſs of the Reverend Mr. Horne's endeavours, in ſupport of the miniſterial nomination of Sheriffs, will I fear obſtruct his preferment. Permit me to recommend him to your G——'s protection. You will find him copiouſly gifted with thoſe qualities of the heart, which uſually direct you in the choice of your freindſhips. He too was Mr. Wilkes's friend, and as incapable as you are of the liberal reſentment of a gentleman. No, my L—d:—it was the ſolitary vindictive malice of a monk, brooding over the infirmities of his friend, until he thought they quickened into public life.; and feaſting with a rancorous rapture upon the ſordid catalogue of his diſtreſſes. Now, let him go back to his cloiſter. The church is a proper retreat for him. In his principles he is already a Biſhop.

The mention of this man has moved me from my natural moderation. Let me return to your G——.—you are the pillow, upon which I am determined to reſt all my reſentments. What idea can the beſt of S——s form to himſelf of his own g——nt: in what repute can he conceive that he ſtands with his p—p'e, when he ſees, beyond the poſſibility of a doubt, that, whatever be the office, the ſuſpicion of his favour is fatal to the candidate, and that, when the party he wiſhes well to, has the faireſt proſpect of ſucceſs. If his R——l inclination ſhou'd unfortunately be diſcovered, it drops like an acid, and turns the election? This event, among others, may perhaps contribute to open his M——'s eyes to his real honor and intereſt. In ſpite of all your G——'s ingenuity, he may at laſt perceive the inconvenience of ſelecting, with ſuch a curious felicity, every villain in the nation to fill the various departments of his G——nt. Yet I ſhall be ſory to confine him in the choice either of his footmen or his friends.

JUNIUS.

To JUNIUS.

YOU ſtill perſiſt in peſtering the Duke of Grafton with the moſt conſummate Impertinence and Calumny; but the noble Lord has too much good Senſe to bear your Calumny & Revenge without paying that Deference which is due to ſuch a Character as yours—ſilent Contempt & Indifference. I cannot help admiring your Expreſſions of one whom you at one Time call one of the beſt of Princes, at another Fool, Murderer, and every thing that is baſe. The major part of Mankind are not at a loſs to know the villainy of your Heart. The repeated Inſults and Calumnies thrown out againſt Sir William Draper, with as little cauſe as you have done againſt the Duke of Grafton, made that Gentleman addreſs you in a true Engliſh Style, to come forward and unmaſk yourſelf, and give him that Satisfaction which is expected from a Man of Honour, for ſuch a groſs Attack upon his Character. You, like a Portugueſe Deſperado, preferred ſecret Aſſaſſination to the Dignity of a Man of Courage, rather than be made a public Example of. Is that the Spirit and Honour of a Gentleman? Cou'd I drag you from your Den, the ſame Step ſhould ſoon be taken; but I know your cowardly Principles too well. One of your chiefeſt Pleas againſt the Duke of Grafton is, that he is a Libertine, but not a Word mentioned of his good Qualities. You know that would not be a ſincere Friend to his King and Country, grateful and ſtedfaſt to his Friends, and one that is always fond of rewarding true Merit. The malicious Pen of a Junius can never affect ſo great a Character. You leave no Stone unturned to ſhade your Villainy; but be aſſured your Subtlety will never be a Shield to protect you from the Cenſure and Contempt of good Men.

RECTUS.

From the public Prints brought by Capt. Derby, arrived at Boſton ſince our laſt from London, we have the following Advices, viz.

LONDON, Auguſt 12.

THURSDAY died, Sir William Mildmay, Bart. He was one of the Commiſſaries at Paris, for ſettling the Limits of Nova Scotia in the Year 1754. Dying without Iſſue his Title is extinct. Died alſo, Sir Francis Blake Delaval, Bart. Died, General Whitmore Warden of the Tower.

We hear that by the death of Sir Francis Blake Delaval an eſtate devolves to his brother of 4000l. per ann. He has likewiſe left in ſpecie 36,000l.

St James's Auguſt 17.

The King has been pleaſed to appoint Sir Charles Hardy, Knt. to be Maſter of his Majeſty's Hoſpital at Greenwich in the County of Kent, and alſo one of the Commiſſioners or Governors thereof.

His Hajeſty has been pleaſed to grant unto Sir George Brydges Rodney, Bart. the office or place of Rear Admiral of Great Britain, and of the Admiralty thereof, and of Rear Admiral of the Navies and Seas of the Kingdom of Great-Britain.

LONDON, Auguſt 12.

A Great Perſonage, we are aſſured, has been greatly importuned to exert his ſuperiority and power in checking the many wanton and licentious attacks from the preſs on his ſacred perſon; His anſwer was, "No! I was born, was inſtructed, and will continue as the friend of freedom; thoſe who think me otherwiſe, are of a nature incapable of comprehenſion, as their principle of protecting liberty is the laying of ſnares to entrap it."

L—d M——d, lately ſpeaking on the freedom of the preſs, to a nobleman high in office, obſerved, that this country was likely to be undone by its news-papers. "Did they repreſent the true ſtate of things (ſaid his Lordſhip) they would be valuable vehicle of public information; but hourly ſtriving rather to confirm than correct the worſt prejudices of the people, they become a very capital evil and, as ſuch muſt be confined within the line of ſome rational regulation."——Tremble, ye ſons of the Preſs! a northern whirlwind is preparing for your deſtruction.

A correſpondent adviſes that our Miniſtry will immediately engage in a War with ſome of the continental powers, to prevent the people engaging in civil War among themſelves.

Aug. 14. We are aſſured, that at the laſt Council, which was held for enquiring the cauſe of the late fire at Portſmouth were poſtponed for three weeks.

We are alſo aſſured, that on the above occaſion Lord R——d and and the Duke of G—n inſiſted on charging France directly with the burning of the ſtores; but Lord N—h proteſted againſt this, and Lord M——d would not hear of it. This ſpirited reſolution will be therefore entirely cruſhed, unleſs ſome further proofs ariſe.

RUN away from Peter Provoſt, gunſmith in New York, about 5 weeks ago, an Iriſh ſervant boy named John Foſhy, he ſome times calls himſelf John Green, about 5 feet 3 inches high, light complexion, ſandy coloured hair, longer over his ears than behind, about 19 years of age, no beard. Had on when he went away, a little round hat, black neckloth, blue cloth coat, with ſtriped waiſtcoat, black knit breeches, white thread ſtockings, braſs buckles in his ſhoes a little knock kneed, ancles fall in more than common, very talkative about his trade. Whoever ſecures ſaid boy in any of his Majeſt'ys goals or conveys him to New York, ſo that his maſter may get him again, ſhall have FORTY SHILLINGS reward, and all neceſſary charges paid by PETER PROVOST, living juſt oppoſite the old ſlip market.

N B. Said boy was ſeen in Hartford ſince he left his maſter.

CHARLESTOWN, South-Carolina, Aug. 26.

The North-Carolina, Gazette of the 19th of July ſays, "Upwards of 6000 of the people called Regulators have taken the oaths of allegiance to his Majeſty, and happily returned to their farms and plantations."——Their taking the oaths we make no doubt of; but we are informed, that ſince the battle of Almance more than 1500 families, whoſe proviſions were exhauſted, and ſettlements broke up, by the march of Governer Tryon's army through Orange and the adjacent counties, have removed into this province, and will be followed by many more; and that the late "ſignal and glorious victory," as has been called, is like to ruin and depopulate a great part of that province.

BOSTON, OCTOBER 3, 1771.

Brookfield Aug. 31. 1771.

THIS day Aaron Croſby, A. B. ſet out from this place, for the Indian County on Suſquehanna River, under the direction of the Reverend & Honorable Board of Commiſſioners at Boſton, with a pious reſolution to learn the Onyda Language, that being the prevailing language of all the Six Nations:——He generouſly conſented to deny himſelf the pleaſures of a gay and cultivated Life, for that mortifying and ſelf-denying Life which he muſt lead, with thoſe barbarous and hardy Sons of the Wilderneſs:—He purpoſes to place himſelf in ſome of the more reputable Families among them, and confine himſelf wholly to them, 'till he is become maſter of their Language, that he may be qualified to ſerve as a Miſſionary, without being obliged to conform to the ſlow and expenſive way of inſtruction by an Interpreter. He was accompanied from the Rev'd Mr. Forbes by James Dean, a Student of Dartmouth College in Hanover, New Hamſhire, who is a perfect Maſter of the Onyda Language, and who was ſent by Dr. Wheelock, to ſolicit Indian Children, for Dr. Moore's Indian Charity School, and to ſee if there is an opening for a Miſſionary among the Tuſcarores.——It is truely melancholy! that the pious and zealous endeavours of Dr. Wheelock to humanize and chriſtianize the Heathen, has, (notwithſtanding the vaſt expence and labor.) hitherto proved abortive, as all his Indian children have left him but two, and he has not one School-Maſter or Miſſionary in all the Indian Country.

However the Board at Boſton has been more ſucceſsful;——as they have had a Miſſionary at Onohoquagie ever ſince the year 1762, when a church was gathered and planted there, by the Rev. Mr. Eli Forbes of Brookfield, which, has increaſed from the number of 7 to 25 all walking in the faith and order of the goſpel under the paſtorial care of the Rev. Mr. Ebenezer Moſley;—the whole town is greatly reformed as to their morals and civil life:——Mr. Moſley ſays, "that there is but two drunkards in all the town, and it evidently appears that religion has taken hold of the hearts and defuſed its happy and divine influence over the lives of many.

They have another Miſſionary at the Onyda Caſtle, the Rev. Mr. Kirkland, who has learnt their language and meets with great ſucceſs, the poor benighted wretches are continually flocking round him to hear as they expreſs it (Colli whyuſeteugh) Gods news, and to enquire of him the way to Heaven.

And now they have ſent out a third, Mr. Croſby, on a plan that promiſes much;—O may the time come when the divine Father ſhall give to his bleſſed Son the heathen for his inheritance and the uttermoſt ends of the earth for his poſſeſſion!

There went with Meſſiurs. Croſby and Dean, a young Woman of the Onyda Tribe, who has been near four years under the care and inſtruction of the Rev. Mr. Forbes, and who has made good proficiency in the knowledge of the Engliſh Tongue, in reading and writing:—In civil and religious life, ſhe is ſober, ſtrictly temperate and very modeſt, and adorn'd with many amiable female virtues, and it is hoped, ſhe will be very ſerviceable to the Miſſionaries, as ſhe is well acquainted with every branch of good Houſe wifery, and very uſeful to her Tribe, by recommending to them, by inſtruction and example the practice of the chriſtian and ſocial virtues.

NEW-YORK, October 3.

Extract of a Letter dated 20th of March 1771, from a Gentleman in Dunkirk, old France, to his Friend in New-York.

"Yeſterday old Mr. Chapman, who ſold Pots (that is Peltry) was moſt barbarouſly murdered in his own Houſe, by ſome Perſon or Perſons not yet diſcovered, who broke one of his Arms and his Scull all to Pieces, ſtabbed him in ſeven Places and then robbed the Houſe of £200 Sterling a great deal of Plate, Cambrick and other valuable Goods to the Amount of £400 Sterling.

NEW-HAVEN, October 4.

On the 25th ult. Dr. WILLIAM SAMUEL JOHNSON, (one of the Council of this Colony) arrived at New-York, in Capt. Winn, from London; and laſt Tueſday Evening he got home to his Family, at Stratford, after an Abſence of near five years. He was appointed ſpecial Agent, (in October 1766, and ſoon after went to England) to repreſent this Colony, in a Cauſe which has been for many Years in Diſpute between them and one Maſon, known by the Name of the Maſon, or Mohegan Cauſe: which Cauſe was heard in England, in the Month of June laſt, but the Judges had not given their Decree, when the Doctor left Great Britain, which was about the Middle of Auguſt laſt.

HARTFORD, October 8.

On Wedneſday the 25th ult. departed this Life at Coventry, Mrs. Hannah Huntington, the late amiable and prudent Conſort of the Rev. Joſeph Huntington of that Place. She was ſecond Daughter to the late Rev. Mr. Devotion of Windham.

On the 3d of September, the Rev'd Ephraim Judſon was ordained to the Work of the Miniſtry at Chelſea in Norwich. Rev. Mr. Wight made the firſt Prayer: Rev. Mr. Benedict preached the Sermon. Rev. Mr. Lord made the ordaining Prayer, and gave the Charge, Rev. Mr. Roſſeter made the concluding Prayer.

We have Advice from Antigua, That on the 24th of Auguſt laſt five Pirates were executed at that Place for the murder of Capt. Finney, and taking his Veſſel as mentioned in the papers ſome time ago.

STray'd away from the Subſcriber laſt May, a bay roan Mare, with a black Main and Tail, three Years old paſt, about 13 hands and half high, was not dockt, but had the Hair of her Tail cut off, trots and paces. Whoever will take up ſaid Mare and ſecure her ſo that the Owner may have her, ſhall have One Dollar Reward, and all neceſſary charges paid by me,

TITUS IVES.

Norfolk, October 2d, 1771.

THE Subſcriber, having at great Expence, furniſhed himſelf with an elegant, and convenient Stage Coach, and four Horſes, propoſes for a low and moderate Price, upon ſuitable Encouragement, to drive between Hartford, and New Haven, once in each Week and to return to Hartford, the Day after he comes down to New-Haven; and as it may greatly tend to encreaſe the Intercourſe between the two Towns of Hartford and New-Haven, and (if another Coach ſhould proceed from Hartford, to Boſton as is probable will be the Caſe, if that takes place) encourge Gentlemen from the Southern Provinces, travelling to Boſton to paſs through this Colony, who now generally go by Water from New York to Providence, And as he muſt for a long Time at leaſt, be Money out of Pocket, and riſque impoſing on himſelf conſiderable Loſs, he humbly deſires all Gentlemen diſpoſed to countenance the Undertaking, to leave their Names at the Printing Office in New-Haven, or at his houſe in Hartford, adding ſuch Sum for him as their Generoſity ſhall dictate.

If any Gentlemen are diſpoſed to ſhare with him, the Loſs or Gain of the Undertaking, he is ready to admit them into Partnerſhip.

POET'S CORNER.

To the YOUNG LADIES.

Moſt hard! in pleaſing your chief glory lies
And yet from pleaſing your chief dangers (riſe.
Then pleaſe the beſt: and know to men of ſence,
Your ſtrongeſt charms are native innocence.
Arts on the mind, like paint upon the face,
Fright him that's worth your love, from your (embrace.
In ſimple manners all the ſecret lies,
Be kind and virtuous, you'll be bleſt and wiſe.
Vain ſhow and noiſe intoxicate the brain,
Begin with giddineſs, and end in pain.
Your ſex's glory is to ſhine unknown,
Of all applauſe, be fondeſt of your own.
To drink of pleaſure but enflames deſire,
And abſtinence alone can quench the fire,
Take pain from life, and terror from the tomb,
Give peace in hand, and promiſe life to come.

From TUESDAY, October 8, to TUESDAY, October 15, 1771.

WILLIAM STANTON to his CUSTOMERS.

Gentlemen,

HAVING ſupply'd the county of Litchfield and ſome towns adjacent, with the Connecticut Courant, for almoſt ſix years, and in that ſpace of time have often requeſted a ſettlement with my cuſtomers, but my requeſt has for the moſt part been diſregarded. Am therefore determined to bring the whole to a cloſe, and make a general ſtop at number 357, and would earneſtly deſire every individual perſon, to take the earlieſt opportunity and pay their ballances.—— Thoſe alſo who have long been indebted to me upon note, and neglect to make me pay, would do well ſeriouſly to conſider, that if any diſagreeable conſequences ſhould follow, they muſt blame themſelves and acquit me.

From the London Papers in Auguſt.

Extract of a Letter from Vienna, dated Aug. [illegible]

"[illegible] has lately ſubſiſted between the Imperial Court and the French King, and which daily encreaſes, is now perfectly unravelled. Our Ambaſſador at Paris, has, by his great abilities, diligence, and penetration, ſent ſuch information of the fineſſe and perfidy of the French, as not only clearly explains this myſtery, but their whole political ſyſtem for this laſt twelve month. With infinite pains and perſeverance the French have laboured, for ſome time, to influence the Imperial Cabinet to collect the whole military force of the Houſe of Auſtria in Hungary; to leave ungarriſoned all her fortified towns in Flanders, Germany, and Italy; and, with this vaſt army of Imperialiſts, to dictate terms of peace to Ruſſia, and, if refuſed, to attack the Ruſſians at the ſame inſtant they ſhould be engaged with the Ottoman troops. France not only promiſed a magnificent ſubſidy for the charge of ſuch a campaign, that muſt have expended ſo much treaſure for the marching of ſuch an army from Flanders, and the Milaneſe into the Turkiſh dominions; but likewiſe engaged, that the French and Spaniſh fleets, in the Mediterranean, ſhould ſail to the Levant, and unitedly attack the Ruſſian fleet, as well as land a conſiderable body of troops in the Morea and at the Dardanelles. Such were the promiſes of France, none of which ſhe ever had the ſlighteſt idea of performing, excepting the embarkation of troops. They were to be landed indeed, not upon any part of the Turkiſh territories, but at Genoa; nor long to remain there in garriſon. The Milaneſe being deſtitute of troops, ſuch an opportunity was not to be loſt. Mantua was the object. Auſtria was ſuppoſed not to have any objection to ſuch an operation, as it would awe the Venetians, and prevent their fleet uniting with the Ruſſians, taking poſſeſſion of the Morea for themſelves, and having the advantage of defeating the Turks. This political object the French declared could not be obtained, if their fleet cruized in the Adriatic; for it was uncertain their being able to prevent the junction of the Ruſſians and Venetians; and without the French fleet the Ottomans would be unequal even to the Ruſſians alone. France well knew being in poſſeſſion of Mantua with a good garriſon and a line of troops extending to the mountains, ſhe ſhould prevent the return of the Auſtrians into the Milaneſe, and dictate to all Italy, except Piedmont.

"By the fidelity of ſome Germans in the French ſervice, a diſcovery was made of the plan formed for ſeizing of Luxemburg, upon which expedition French battalions only were to be employed; the French Miniſtry being convinced there was no garriſon at Luxemburg to oppoſe them, therefore, if their numbers were great, they might perhaps have reſolution to ſucceed. The impoſſibility of employing the German battalions was obvious; for they would ſooner revolt than march upon ſuch a ſervice, ſo diſhonourable.

"Our Court is in the higheſt degree of agitation, and ſo much enraged that it is expected the French Ambaſſador will be immediately ordered to leave Vienna, and conducted to the frontiers with the ſame marks of diſgrace, as a French Miniſter was ſome years paſt from the Imperial Court of Peterſburgh."

Peterſburgh, July 13. [illegible] garriſon of Precop, conſiſting of 871 men, [illegible] 20 Officers, and 781 Turkiſh ſoldiers, finding themſelves obliged to ſurrender at diſcretion, [illegible] and obtained to be carried by ſea to [illegible], on condition not to bear arms during the war againſt the Ruſſians. There were found [illegible] 74 pieces of braſs cannon, 56 of iron, [illegible] and 10 mortars. Our whole loſs [illegible] men killed, 133 wounded, [illegible] of wounded, beſides 23 taken priſoners.

Before Prince Dolgorucki forced the lines of Precop, he had detached Prince Czerbaroff to take poſſeſſion of Arabat in marching by Genitſch and the neck of land on the ſide of the ſea of Azoff; and after the taking of Precop he ſent Major General Brano with another detachment to make himſelf maſter of Koſloff; but the Turkiſh garriſon did not wait his arrival, but demoliſhed the fortification, embarked on board ſome veſſels which were there, in order to repaſs into their own country ſo that General Brao took poſſeſſion of the place without ſtriking a ſtroke. The garriſon of Arabat, however, conſiſting of between 700 and 800 men, held him; but Prince Czerbatoff, attacking the fortreſs, carried it by aſſault, and the greater part of them were thus deſtroyed or made priſoners. In the mean time Prince Dolgorucky marched to within thirty five worſtes of Caffa, where he waits the coming in of the whole Tartar Nation to make their ſubmiſſion, and expects to finiſh his expedition into the Crimea in a fortnight or three weeks at fartheſt.

General Weiſeman's expedition beyond the Danube ſucceeded completely, he beat a corps of 5000 Turks near Tulcza, made 160 priſoners, burnt 30 veſſels, and took 18 cannon.

The corps of Prince Repnin have quitted the Banks of the Danube, in order to draw the enemy on this ſide, and to cut them off.

The Field Marſhal Count de Romanzow, by the laſt accounts was not far from Kabul, famous by the glorious battle on Aug. 1, 1770.

It is ſaid this General has a deſing of paſſing a conſiderable detachment over the Danube, in order to gain a footing on the other ſide of that river.

The advices from Chozim fully confirm the news Prince Dolgorouki had forced the lines of Iſthmus and Peninſula of Crimea the 25th of June and that the taking of the fortreſs had been the immediate conſequence.

Letters from Conſtantinople, by yeſterday's mail, dated July 3, tells us, that their advices from Syria are very diſagreeable. Ali Bey has publiſhed a Manifeſto, in which he ſtyles himſelf Sultan of Egypt, Succeſſor to the Pharaohs, and Deliverer of the land of Promiſe, Mecca, the Holy Land of the Turks. That the Bachas, Tripoli, Aleppo, and Kilis, with the Beraskier of Urſa, having aſſembled their forces to oppoſe his enterprizes after a moſt bloody engagement, in June had been defeated, and in conſequence of it, Ali Bey had made a triumphal entry into the City of Damas.

JUNIUS in his laſt Letter to the D— of G— having mentioned Parſon Horne it brought on an Altercation between them.—The latter [illegible] controverſy with the following Letter.

TO JUNIUS.

SIR,

FARCE, Comedy, and Tragedy,——Wilkes, Foote, and Junius, united at the ſame time againſt one poor Parſon, are fearful odds. The two former are only labouring in their vocation, and may equally plead in excuſe that their aim is a livelihood. I admit the plea for the ſecond; this is an honeſt calling, and my clothes were lawful game; but I cannot ſo readily approve Mr. Wilkes, or commend him for making patriotiſm a trade, and a fraudulent trade. But what ſhall I ſay to Junius the grave, [illegible] the didactic? Ridicule, indeed [illegible] called the teſt of truth; but ſurely to [illegible] you loſe your natural moderation when [illegible] is made of the man, does not promiſe [illegible] truth or juſtice when you ſpeak of [illegible].

You charge me with, "a new zeal in ſupport of Adminiſtration" and with [illegible] riſs." The reputation which your talents have deſervedly gained to the ſignature of Junius draws from me a reply, which I diſdained to give to the anonymous lies of Mr. Wilkes. You make frequent uſe of the word Gentleman; I only call myſelf a man, and deſire no other diſtinction; If you are either, you are bound to make good your charges, or to confeſs that you have done me a haſty injuſtice upon no authority.

I put the matter fairly to iſſue—I ſay that ſo far from any "zeal in ſupport of Adminiſtration," I am poſſeſſed with the utmoſt abhorrence of their meaſures; and that I have ever ſhewn myſelf and am ſtill ready, in any rational manner, to lay down all I have——my life, in oppoſition to thoſe meaſures. I ſay, that I have not, and never have had any communication or connexion of any kind, directly or indirectly, with any Courtier or miniſterial Man, or any of their adherents: That I never have received, or ſolicited, or expected, or deſired, or do now hope for, any reward of any ſort from any party or ſet of men in Adminiſtration or Oppoſition: I ſay, that I never uſed any "endeavours in ſupport of the miniſterial nomination of Sheriffs:" That I did not ſolicit any one Liveryman for his vote for any one of the Candidates; nor employ any other perſon to ſolicit it: And that I did not write one ſingle line or word in favour of Meſſrs. Plumbe and Kirkman, whom I underſtand to have been ſupported by the Miniſtry.

You are bound to refute what I here advance, or to loſe your credit for veracity: You muſt produce facts; ſurmiſe and general abuſe, in however elegant language, ought not to paſs for proofs. You have every advantage, and I have diſadvantage: You are unknown, I give my name: All parties, both in and out of Adminiſtration, have their reaſons (which I ſhall relate hereafter for uniting in their wiſhes againſt me: And the popular prejudice is as ſtrongly in your favour, as it is violent againſt the Parſon.

Singular as my preſent ſituation is, it is neither painful nor was it unforeſeen. He is not fit for public buſineſs who does not even at his entrance prepare his mind for ſuch an event. Health, fortune, tranquility, and private connexions I have ſacrificed upon the altar of the Public; and the only return I receive, becauſe I will not concur to dupe and miſlead a ſenſeleſs multitude, is ſarely that they have not yet torn me in pieces. That this has been the only return is my pride; and a ſource of more real ſatisfaction than honours or proſperity. I can practice before I am old the leſſons I learned in my youth: Nor ſhall I ever forget the words of my antient Monitor.

"'Tis the laſt key ſtone
"That makes the arch: The reſt, that there (were put,
"Are nothing till that comes to bind and ſhut.
"Then ſtands it a triumphal mark! then men
"Obſerve the ſtrength, the height, the why and (when
"It was erected; and ſtill walking under,
"Meet ſome new matter to look on and won- (der!"

I am, SIR,
Your humble ſervant,
JOHN HORNE.

To the Rev. Mr. HORNE.

SIR, July 17, 1771.

I Cannot deſcend to an altercation with you in the news paper. But ſince I have attacked your character, and you complain of injuſtice I think you have ſome right to an explanation. You defy me to prove, that you ever ſolicited a vote, or wrote a word in ſupport of the miniſterial Alderman. Sir, I did never ſuſpect you of ſuch groſs folly. It would have been impoſſible for Mr. Horne to have ſolicited votes, and very difficult to have written for the news papers in defence of that cauſe, without being detected and brought to ſhame. Neither do I pretend to any intelligence concerning you, or to know more of your conduct than you yourſelf have thought proper to communicate to the public. It is from your own letters I conclude that you have ſold yourſelf to the miniſtry; or, if that charge be too ſevere, and ſuppoſing it to be poſſible to be deceived by appearances ſo very ſtrongly againſt you what are your friends to ſay in your defence? Muſt they not confeſs, that to gratify your perſonal hatred to Mr. Wilkes, your ſacrificed, as far as depended upon your intereſt and abilities, the cauſe of the country? and if ever I ſhould be convinced that you had no motive but to deſtroy Wilkes I [illegible] ter, and to declare to the world that I deſpiſe you ſomewhat leſs than I do at preſent —— But as a public man, I muſt for ever condemn you. You cannot but know,—nay, you dare not pretend to be ignorant, that the higheſt gratification which the moſt deteſtable in the nation is capable, would have been the defeat of Wilkes. I know that man much better than any of you. Nature intended him only for a good humoured fool. A ſyſtematical education, with long practice, has made him a conſummate hypocrite. Yet this man, to ſay nothing of his worthy miniſters, you have moſt aſſiduouſly laboured to gratify. To exclude Wilkes, it was not neceſſary you ſhould ſolicit votes for his opponents. We incline the balance as effectually by leſſening the weight in one ſcale, as by increaſing it in the others.

The mode of your attack upon Wilkes (tho' I am far from thinking meanly of your abilities) convinces me that you either want judgment extremely, or that you are blinded by your reſentment. You ought to have foreſeen that the charges you urged againſt Wilkes, could never do him any miſchief. After all, when we expected diſcoveries highly intereſting to the community, what a pitiful detail did it end in! —— Some old cloaths—a Welch poney—a French footman, and a hamper of claret. Indeed Mr. Horne, the public ſhould, and will forgive him his claret and his footmen, and even the ambition of making his brother Chamberlain of London, as long as he ſtands forth againſt a miniſtry and a parliament, who are doing every thing they can to enſlave the country, and as long as he is a thorn in the King's ſide. You will not ſuſpect me of ſetting up Wilkes for a perfect character. But the queſtion to the public is, Where ſhall we find a man who, with purer principles, will go the lengths, and run the hazards that he has done? The ſeaſon calls for ſuch a man, and he ought to be ſupported. What would have been the triumph of that odious hypocrite and his minions, if Wilkes had been defeated! It was not your fault Rev. Sir, that he did not enjoy it compleatly —— But now I promiſe you you have ſo little power to do miſchief, that I much queſtion whether the miniſtry will adhere to the promiſes they have made you. It will be in vain to ſay that I am a partizan of Mr. Wilkes, or perſonally your enemy. You will convince no man, for you do not believe it yourſelf. Yet, I confeſs I am a little offended at the low rate at which you ſeem to value my underſtanding. I beg, Mr. Horne, you will hereafter believe that I meaſure the integrity of men by their conduct, not by their profeſſions. Such tales may entertain Mr. Oliver or your grandmother, but truſt me they are thrown away upon Junius.

You ſay you are a man. Was it generous, was it manly repeatedly to introduce into a news paper, the name of a young lady, with whom you muſt heretofore have lived in terms of politeneſs and good humour! —— but I have done with you. In my opinion your credit is irrecoverably ruined. Mr Townſhend I think, is nearly in the ſame predicament. —— Poor Oliver has been ſhamefully duped by you. You have made him ſacrifice all the honour he got by his impriſonment.—As for Mr. Sawbridge whoſe character I really reſpect I am aſtoniſhed he does not ſee through your duplicity. Never was ſo baſe a deſign ſo poorly conducted.—This letter, you ſee, is not intended for the public, but if you think it will do you any ſervice, you are at liberty to publiſh it. JUNIUS.

HARTFORD, October 15.

Yeſterday Morning departed this Life, Mrs. Mary Nichols, Widow of Capt. William Nichols, late of this Place deceaſed.

Dartmouth College, Sept. 30, 1771.

This morning, about eight o'clock, departed this life, after a few days illneſs of a nervous fever, in which he was for the moſt part delirious and incapable of converſation, the Rev. JOHN MALTBY, formerly of Bermuda, and lately of Wilton, in South Carolina. If we conſider him in the character either of a gentleman, a ſcholar, a chriſtian, or a goſpel miniſter; the loſs muſt be eſteemed very great, both to his relatives and particular friends, to his flock, to the church of God in general, and eſpecially to his orphan children, (five in number.) May the father of the fatherleſs be their God, guide, and portion: and may the Lord help when the godly thus ceaſe, and faithful fail.

Stray'd from the ſubſcriber, a STEER of a black pide colour, three year old paſt marks unknown, he left a drove in Middletown plains. Whoever takes up and returns ſaid ſtray to the owner, ſhall have a handſome reward and all neceſſary charges paid, by Hartford Oct. 14 1771. ASHBEL STEELE.

Daniel Cotton,

H*AS juſt received a freſh aſſortment of Engliſh and India* GOODS, ſuitable for the Seaſon, which he will ſell on the moſt reaſonable Terms, for Caſh or Produce in Hand, at his Store near the Court-Houſe in Hartford.

Run away from me the ſubſcriber, a negro man, named TOM, a little on the molatto colour, aged 19 years, ſpeaks good Engliſh and low Dutch, has a blemiſh in one eye. Had on when he went away, a light but coat white Philadelphia buttons, and veſt of the ſame colour. Whoever takes up ſaid negro, and brings him to me, ſhall have five dollars reward, and all reaſonable charges paid by me, JOHN DELAMETTER.
Dutcheſs County, Amenia, Oblong, Oct. 25, 1771.

A MEMORIAL, praying for an Act of Aſſembly to hang the Memorialiſt.

To the Honorable the General Aſſembly of the Colony of Connecticut, to be conven'd at New-Haven, on the ſecond Thurſday of October, 1771.

The MEMORIAL of Richard Steele Burglarian, now confin'd in Fairfield Goal, in behalf of himſelf and the reſt of the Houſebreakers who now, or hereafter may, practice their calling and profeſſion, within ſaid colony: humbly ſheweth,

THAT one certain ſtatute law of this colony, entitled an act for the puniſhment of burglary and robbery, is found by the woful experience of your honor's memorialiſts, as well as from the obſervation of all impartial by-ſtanders, greatly deficient, and inadequate to the purpoſe therein deſigned, by a wiſe and virtuous legiſlature, viz. the reformation of your memorialiſts.—At the ſame time that the puniſhment is, we humbly conceive, far too ſevere for the offence, heinous as we acknowledge it to be in the eye of the wealthy and proſperous part of the community.

We therefore your honors memorialiſts, hearing that your honors propoſed, at your next ſeſſion, to take ſaid ſtatute and us the ſufferers thereby, under your wiſe conſideration —— and being informed that certain men, of a penurious turn of mind, and unhappily of contracted ſentiments, eſpecially towards your honours memorialiſts on account of the great expence of convicting us, and confining afterwards —— as alſo for the repair of the goals broke by us, which we are ſenſible being great expence to the public, though a lucrative perquiſite to his Majeſty's attornies —— have determined if poſſible to prevail with your honors, to alter the preſent ſtatute by making the puniſhment death for the firſt offence—or that your unhappy memorialiſts, ſhould during life, or for a long time, be confin'd to hard labour and ſevere diſcipline, in ſome meaſure to make reſtitution to the private ſufferer and for public coſt —— concluding your honors will in ſome manner alter ſaid ſtatute, and dreading the conſequences, ſhould the latter of the above propoſals take place.

We beg leave with all ſubmiſſion, to pray your honors, to admit and conſider this our memorial, previous to any ſuch determination, —— Though ignorant of moſt of the great matters which concern the community in general, yet in this particular, we beg leave to aſſure your honors, we are well vers'd both in theory and practice, and therefore fondly hope what we humbly offer to your honors conſideration, will be allowed its full weight.

In the firſt place we beg leave to aſk for a total repeal of the preſent ſtatute, and for the reaſons which follow, among many more that might be adduced.

The great and ultimate end and deſign of this, as well as of all other penal ſtatutes —— the reformation of the puniſhed—has by this, never been in any degree effected—not owing as we conceive to the extreme incorrigibleneſs of the criminals many of whom were noted for being of kind humane and tractable diſpoſitions, and not a few of them virtuouſly educated and inclined, until by a gradual looſneſs of conduct & œconomy, aided by the ſnares of bad company, they have been reduced to indigence, when in ſome unguarded & often intoxicated moment, they have been tempted to invade their neighbours property —The conſequence of a detection has never fail'd to fix irreverſibly our ſad fate—like the firſt murderer, a mark is ſet upon us, which not the lenient hand of time, not the moſt obſtinate courſe of virtue, nor the waters of Lethe, can ever waſh out or efface.

Alas! what incentives are left us to virtue? —— Cut off from the ſociety of the good, and confin'd for coſts utterly out of our power to anſwer in a noiſome priſon, what can we hope for? What can be hoped for from us, but perſeverance in the courſe we have begun? If we break the priſon and fly to the remoteſt corner of the globe —— unhappy wretches! though every accuſing tongue is ſilent, our very fronts betrays us—and our mutilated ears, ſpeak us, to have been treated like the moſt inferior beaſts of property —— depriv'd of the peculiar honor of humanity, that of raiſing the human face divine toward heaven, and oh our fellowmen—branded with indelible infamy —— every avenue leading back to the high road of public eſteem, and virtue inſeparably bar'd and block'd up—A war in ſome meaſure declared againſt us by the community —— can we be thought plaintive in adopting the language of the firſt malefactor— OUR PUNISHMENT is greater than we can bear —— happy! would our mark operate like his, and prove our protection, inſtead of our ruin —— ſome may have—(their number is certainly ſmall, no burglarian is of that claſs)—ſuch exalted ſentiments of the innate beauty of virtue, that they can be eaſy under ignominy irreparable in this world, and peaceably and contentedly purſue the common, honeſt courſe of life, unencouraged either by the hope of eſteem, or the certain proſpect of reward; ſave a ſelf conſciouſneſs of aiming at the right. Theſe hints, with your honors obſervation on the effects of this ſtatute, when moſt rigorouſly executed, will, we humbly conceive, fully ſhew the deficiency of the ſtatute complained of.

We your honors memorialiſts beg leave in the next place to deprecate the confining of us to hard labour.

This, to ſay the leaſt that may juſtly be ſaid againſt it, is utterly inconſiſtent with the privileges and liberties of Engliſhmen, in compariſon with the leaſt violation of which, death is altogether preferable.

Men of ſpirit have in all ages preferred death to ſlavery —— and we ſee that Great Britain has been ſo careful to keep up this ſpirit, that tho' they annually ſentence numbers to the gallows, yet never preſume, even for the moſt heinous offences to inflict ſo degrading a puniſhment.

Our averſion to labour was one of the chief cauſes, of our entering on the enterprizing life we lead, and to be forced back to that, the hatred of which drove us through all the perilous adventures we have made, is to us, much worſe than death itſelf.

The conſequence of ſuch a proceeding, muſt in a ſhort time break up, and utterly ruin our whole fraternity, which permit us to hint for its antiquity, is ſurpaſs'd by none, if equal'd by any, and in however bad a light we are ſenſible, it is view'd by partial, intereſted and ſuperficial obſervers, may eaſily be made appear to be of great importance to in the ſtate—particularly, in tending to put mankind on that equal footing as to property, ſo often though hitherto in vain wiſh'd for by many. —— In keeping up the ſtate, a ſpirit for hardy, and hazardous enterprize, contempt of danger, fatigue and hardſhip —— a ſpirit of vigilance, cunning and addreſs, both offenſive and defenſive, all which in a time of peace, would be in danger of being wholly extinguiſhed and loſt, were it not for the bold exploits and alarming depredations, made by us from time to time —— Whereas the reducing us to become more uſeful machines in labour for the ſtate, muſt have, your honors will readily ſee, a quite different effect. —— Whilſt on the other hand, a bold fellow proceeding from one hazardous robbery to another, makes the whole country ring with his ſpirited exploits—when apprehended, convicted and puniſhed, degrading as the preſent one is, he is ſure at leaſt of the pity even of the good, and of the intereſt and aſſiſtance of the bad, beſide the ſatisfaction of being the principal object of attention, in a crowded court —— but if he breaks priſon and eſcapes, or gets clear in his trial, and inſults the court, how is his courage and addreſs admired, envied and imitated by the little and inferior beginners in the buſineſs? —— If ſentenced to the gallows, what crowds attend him! What reſpect and pity paid him! So that he appears not unlike his ſuperior brethren of antiquity, thoſe celebrated robbers of provinces and kingdoms, on the day of their triumph —— whilſt the ſilent, yet viſible indignation of all, at the wretched executioner of the ſentence is a ſtriking proof, of their opinion of the ſentence itſelf —— a military force being here equally neceſſary, to prevent a reſcue of the unhappy ſufferer, and to guard this finiſher of the law from being torn to pieces on the ſpot —— Never, permit us to aſſure your honors, whilſt ſuch a diſpoſition prevails—whilſt ſuch our public puniſhment, will our ſociety fail of increaſing in its numbers. The reaſon of the thing as well as the experience of Great Britain confirm this truth. —— But ſhould a decree paſs, to confine us to hard labour, and be put in execution —— Adieu at once to the very being of us KNIGHTS of the SHADE, and to all ſpirit of enterprize among us —— We ſhould have as little of it, as remains among the pitiful ſtates of Holland, if your honors ſhould thus unhappily adopt their plan.

Further, it muſt be a queſtion, well worthy the conſideration of all parſimoniouſly diſpoſed patriots —— a great number of which we have heard there are —— whether any expence would be ſaved, by ſuch an act ſince the houſe which muſt be erected for this purpoſe of confinement to labour —— would ſoon become uſeleſs for want of inhabitants for the reaſons above—In addition to which, we pray them to obſerve, what numbers of inhabitants daily come from the ſouthern provinces, to avoid a confinement of this kind, which inhabitants muſt be loſt by a freſh emigration, if ſuch a ſcheme is adopted, and the loſs of ſubjects is hurtful to every ſtate, but peculiarly to a new province.

Again, as ſome, (and indeed not a few) perſons of ſubſtance, have lately had the ſpirit to attempt our calling, and its ſiſter profeſſions, viz. counterfeiting, coining, &c. forfeitures and fines, have ſo increaſed, that over and above paying all the public coſt, we occaſion in helping to the honorable Superior Court in their circuits, a ſum is paid into the public treaſury of the colony, which increaſing branch of revenue muſt be cut off, and loſt on this low prepoſterous plan.

On the whole therefore we humbly pray your honours, that the preſent ſtatute may be wholly repealed.

That the propoſal for confining us to hard labour may (as we are confident it will) be treated with the contempt it deſerves.

And that if in the preſent imperfect ſtate of things, it is judg'd impolitic to admit and allow of that equality of property among men —— which the tolerating and encouraging us would produce.

But that there muſt be ſome law in force againſt us —— That your honors would order, decree and enact that the firſt offence be puniſhed with death —— which we ſhall acknowledge as the greateſt favour in compariſon of what we muſt ſuffer, under the preſent ſtatute.

Your Honors will, we hope, take our diſtreſſed ſituation into your wiſe conſideration, and grant us the relief we aſk in the premiſſes, and your Honor's mutilated, yet ſpirited Memorialiſts, as in duty bound (even under the gallows) ſhall ever pray. Dated September 1771.

To MELANCHOLY.

1 HAil, Melancholy! gloomy pow'r,
Companion of my lonely hour,
To ſober thoughts confin'd;
Thou ſweetly ſad ideal gueſt.
In all thy ſoothing charms confeſt,
Indulge my penſive mind.

2 No longer wildly hurried through
The tides of mirth, that ebb and flow
In folly's noiſy ſtream,
I from the buſy crowd retire,
To court the objects that inſpire
Thy philoſophic dream.

3 Thro' yon dark grove of mournful yews,
With ſolitary ſteps, I muſe,
By thy direction led;
Here, cold to pleaſure's airy forms,
Conſociate with my ſiſter worms,
And mingle with the dead.

4 Hail, midnight horrours! awful gloom!
Ye ſilent regions of the tomb,
My future peaceful bed;
Here ſhall my weary eyes be clos'd,
And all my ſorrows lie repos'd
In death's eternal ſhade.

5 Ye pale inhabitants of night,
Before my intellectual ſight
In ſolemn pomp aſcend!
O tell! how trifling now appears
The train of idle hopes and fears,
That human life attend.

6 Ye faithleſs idols of our ſenſe!
Here own how weak your vain pretence,
Ye empty names of joy!
Your tranſient forms like ſhadows paſs,
Frail offspring of the magic glaſs,
Before the mental eye.

LONDON,

Auguſt 16. Meaſures of the moſt lenitive nature are ordered, by authority, to be adopted among the diſcontented Americans. Nothing, of what nature ſoever, is now neglected by a Great-Perſonage, that promiſes the moſt diſtant hopes reſtoring tranquility thro' all his dominions in general.

Aug 16. Yeſterday Governor Penn took leave of his Majeſty at St. James's previous to his ſetting out for Pennſylvania.

There is no doubt but that at the enſuing meeting of parliament oppoſition will not be known in that Houſe; that is, if the amicable plan now in agitation is brought to the wiſhed-for period. This is a circumſtance, it is thought, that cannot fail: as the meaſures adopted are of ſuch a ſoftening nature, that Catilines they muſt be, indeed, who can refuſe them.

THE
CONNECTICUT COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt and moſt important Advices, both Foreign and Domeſtic

From TUESDAY, OCTOBER 15, to TUESDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1771.

An ADDRESS to the General Aſſembly of the Colony of Connecticut, now conven'd at New-Haven.

" May it pleaſe your Honours,

THE Engliſh conſtitution (ſays a learned writer) is originally and materially free. The character which Julius Cæſar, and Tacitus both give of the ancient Britons, ſo long ago, is, that they were extremely jealous of their liberties, as well as a people of a martial ſpirit." And the Engliſh, (ſays the baron Monteſquieu) have a great deal of reaſon to be jealous of their liberty—were they ever to be ſo unhappy as to loſe it, they would be one of the moſt ſervile nations upon earth.

Spt L. Vol. I Pol. 25."

And it was for the ſake of preſerving and tranſmitting inviolate, this liberty, civil and religious to their poſterity, that our pious forefathers made their flight over a vaſt ocean, into this weſtern world—then a howling wilderneſs; and the Lord of Hoſts was with them; intimidated the wild beaſts—and drove out the heathen before them—and gave them this good land, in which we now dwell; and has, without much expence to our mother country, made us a great people, to dwell on the face of this continent—and has united us together under the ſame happy, great, and glorious Engliſh conſtitution. Under which the King in his coronation oath, ſwears to exerciſe only ſuch a power as the ſame conſtitution gives him——and all officers, from the King in ſupreme, to the loweſt in ſubordination, are limited by law, and deſigned to preſerve the peace, and promote the happineſs of the people.

Or in the language of St. Paul, " the miniſters of God for good,"—Or in the words of the ſpirit of the Lord, by King David, " he that ruleth over men, muſt be juſt, ruling in the fear of God."—ſo juſt—ſo merciful——ſo godlike, that the Lord himſelf has ſaid they are " Gods." And conſequently are indiſpenſably obliged to imitate that great and glorious being, who is good to all, and whoſe tender mercies are over all his works. And not the prime artificers, and grand engineer of all miſchief——as a roaring lion go about ſeeking whom he may devour. And as I conſider ourſelves, and the ſeveral other colonies, not only members of one another, on this continent, but alſo as members of our vaſtly extended Britiſh empire; and I moſt fervently and devoutly pray the Supreme Lord of all, that this connexion may always continue, and that our lateſt poſterity may enjoy all the great and gracious privileges of the Engliſh ſons of God, as long as the ſun and moon ſhall endure——And as the connection now ſubſiſts, I can't help feeling, & commiſſerating the miſeries of North-Carolina, one of our ſiſter colonies, that cries out of oppreſſion, either from a ſet of banditti, or a late G—— Tryon and his accomplices.—And as a late infamous writer from Connecticut, to his friend in New York, has, without the leaſt ſhadow of truth, with the moſt brazen effrontery, proſtituted impudence, and conſummate wickedneſs, intimated that Connecticut, and indeed the whole Engliſh continent, were engaged in a moſt horrid, ſenſeleſs conſpiracy, to overthrow the Engliſh conſtitution, if his hero had not providentially ſtepd forth and miraculous intripidity, ſaved our new, ſinking world from ruin. I would, with all due deference to the great wiſdom of ſo auguſt an aſſembly of great and good men, humbly move, that all that has hitherto been publiſhed upon the new and before unheard of ſcene of blood, and ſlaughter in North Carolina, with the cauſes, concomitants and conſequences, ſo far as they have been diſcover'd, might be laid before this aſſembly and ſuch methods taken, and meaſures purſued, by ſending commiſſioners to collect a true hiſtory, upon the very ſcenes where the action happened: or otherwiſe, as your great wiſdom ſhall judge beſt, ſo that we may not ſuffer, from any falſe repreſentations, or groundleſs reflections. And for this motion, which is benevolently deſign'd, I ſhall apologize only by tranſcribing ſome parts from the Pennſylvania Journal of Auguſt 8th, 1771, as publiſhed in our Hartford paper of Sept. 10. 1771.

" From the foregoing—theſe people—muſt appear to have been an illiterate, injured multitude, ſtruggling againſt all the weight, influence and artifice of their own officers, without any one advantage, except what they derived from the juſtneſs of their cauſe——Their ſituation at a diſtance from the ſeat of juſtice——Law-proceedings inſupportable, becauſe of undue practices and heavy extortions——Juries choſen by the court—a Grand Jury compoſed of five old ſheriffs, all the reſt, except three being as they ſay, limbs of the law, againſt whom their complaints lay;——A governor who had denied any hopes of future clemency——and their laſt reſource, the aſſembly haſtily diſſolved——£30 000 raiſed by taxes, more than propoſed by law, while £60 000 was ſtill current among them—and yet to be ſunk.——I ſay, ſuch a ſituation is truly melancholy, and muſt juſtify every rational mode of proceeding to obtain redreſs." I am, gentlemen, with the moſt profound reverence and reſpect, your moſt ſincere friend, and obedient, humble ſervant,

A FREEMAN.

Connecticut, Oct. 10 1771

Mr. PRINTER,

By inſerting the following you will do good, as it may tend to cure the principal of a forced toleration, given to tolerators, by the humble ſervants of the people now convened at New-Haven upon other men's buſineſs.

IT is a given point in thoſe northern colonies, that the ſouthern regulators may complain of abuſes offered them by their governor, chief juſtice, pettifoggers and partial juries. My complaint cannot be thought unreaſonable only with ſuch as have a diſcovery and love oppreſſion, ſeeing I aim at truth, juſtice and facts as none deny.——In Connecticut law book page 169, 170, is an act providing how towns ſeized an churchmen ſhall be diſpoſed of and exempting them from paying to diſſenters——wherein, after giving themſelves power to tax churchmen, and uſe their money to ſupport diſſenting teachers—unleſs " it ſo happens that there be a ſociety of the church of England, who have a prieſt ſettled and abiding and performing divine ſervice among them. So next to a man who hath declared himſelf of the church, that he can conveniently, and doth attend worſhip there——then the collector having gathered his rate, ſhall pay it to the church miniſter, &c." From this law a common Engliſhman would imagine, the legiſlator deſigned ſome favour to the church of England, by way of Lex Talionis, were it not for the Indian diſcovery founded upon facts. And,

1. This law, like the Stamp Act, or rather is more intollerable and contrary to Magna Charta, in giving diſſenters power to tax churchmen, (who are free born real ſubjects to the king) without their vote or conſent.

2 Diſſenters ſhall uſe churchmen's money to ſupport their diſſentions from the eſtabliſhed religion, unleſs the profeſſors of the church, actually have a prieſt abiding and performing divine ſervice among them——hence ariſes diſtreſs, vendues & law ſuits, upon the death of a church miniſter; becauſe the diſſenters being unable or unwilling to pay their own teachers, and having legal minds and opportunities to help themſelves, ſeize the various utenſils of churchmen, and ſell them at the poſt, for money to pay their own teachers with——thus legally they act until the churchmen ſay " ours is our grief," and actually procure an orthodox clergyman to abide with them again——reaſon will bear its own weight——the church people being under neceſſity of great expence, in hiring candidates, and ſending them to Europe for holy ordination—building churches, &c.—Yet all this time are forced by this merciful law, to build meeting houſes and pay diſſenting teachers, for ſchooling diſſenters——and if ever this law is not practiced upon, 'tis owing to a ſovereign act of grace among the pariſhioners, who have read and found out, that one good turn deſerves another, that themſelves live by toleration, and their brethren, the diſſenters, never any tax or tythe to any orthodox clergy, in England, Scotland and Ireland——yet by this ſeeming favourable law, the church prieſt muſt not be ſick, ſo as not to be able to " perform divine ſervice ſo nigh a profeſſor, who hath declared himſelf of the church, that he can conveniently, and doth attend worſhip there."

3d. From hence is viſible another principal of oppreſſion in this law—" every churchman muſt attend," ſick or well, or pay rates to the diſſenters.——Now turn about, ſhould every diſſenter that attends on worſhip, be obliged to pay rates to the orthodox clergy, it would be nigh impoſſible to diſcover one diſſenting teacher who enjoyed an hundred pound ſalary, that would not cry out " tyranny, oppreſſion, a heavy yoke, a burthen, our fathers could not bear."

To the Printer of the MORNING CHRONICLE,

SIR, London, July 29.

WHEN men renounce their natural freedom, and ſubmit to the reſtraint and direction of a ruler, they have in view their own advantage and ſecurity. The obedience they beſtow is to purchaſe protection they are entitled to refuſe obedience. The end of government is to ſecure ſociety from the diſorders which reſult from the paſſions and the crimes of individuals, not to furniſh to Princes an opportunity to inſult and oppreſs mankind with impunity. In the courſe, however, of time, the original conditions which bind and unite the ſubject and the Prince become leſs diſcernable. The purſuits of pleaſure and property occupy the maſs of the people, and withhold their attention from matters of government. Princes, mean while, ſucceeding each other in a regular ſucceſſion, are induced to fancy, that the dominions over which they preſide belong to them of abſolute right. They forget that they are no more than Magiſtrates, removable at the pleaſure of the people; and become tyrants. It is thus perpetually, that diſpotic monarchies are eſtabliſhed.

To the honour of England it may be mentioned, that the zeal of the people for their natural and conſtitutional rights, though it has ſometimes been ſuppreſſed, has never been extinguiſhed. If they have groaned under the oppreſſion of tyranny, they can boaſt of having taught their Princes, that their conduct may reach an extremity which they will not tolerate. At a time when Lawyers and Divines were inculcating that the perſons of Princes were ſacred and inviolable, Charles the Firſt was led out to execution. But the diſcontents of the People are never excited without a juſt foundation. It is not on every trivial pretence, that they are fond to complain. It is not till after repeated and daring inſults that they proceed to their laſt reſource.

The fate of Charles ſhould have taught moderation to his ſucceſſors. But power has the ſtrongeſt allurements; and a weak and incapable Monarch, under the direction of infamous counſellors, may adopt meaſures which would fill with terror an enlightened and courageous Prince. He perceives no danger, while he is advanceing to a percipice; and ſecure in ſupine ignorance, is aſtoniſhed at the fears that pervade the hearts of his ſubjects. Their remonſtrances, though carried to his ear, leave no impreſſion behind them. He ſtares with amazement at what he cannot comprehend, and continues a conduct of which he foreſees not the conſequences.

"That a King of England can do no wrong" is a maxim which as been ſometimes contradicted by our hiſtory. At preſent, however we diſpute not its propriety. The delicacy of modern manners may have given a ſanction to this tenet. But it is alſo a maxim that the oppreſſive acts of Miniſters are to paſs unnoticed? Are the Repreſentatives of the people to forget the duties which they owe to them, and politely to refrain from impeachments?

The Commons according to the original frame of the conſtitution, were intended as the Guardians of the rights of the nation; but ſince the freedom of elections has been infringed, and boroughs and counties have become objects of ſale, the people are repreſented by the partiſans of the Crown. The democratical branch of our government ſeems accordingly to be overthrown; and Miniſters imagine they can act without controul.

But in the hurry with which advances are made towards deſpotiſm, Adminiſtration ſhould remember, that whatever undue influence may be acquired in the Houſe of Commons, the People will not forget the "Declaration of Rights" which took place at the Revolution. By this Deed they are informed of the moſt effectual method by which they may procure the redreſs of every grievance and oppreſſion. It marks out to them the duties which they owe as ſubjects, and the occaſions when it is neceſſary that they ſhould reſiſt authority. As it explains the bounds beyond which prerogative cannot legally extend, and aſcertains the foundations of public liberty, it is highly proper to appeal to it in every conteſt between the Crown and the people. While it points out to the ambitious Monarch the dangers, which attend all advances to arbitrary ſway, it furniſhes the ſubject with an antidote againſt tyranny. It teaches the people, that it is in their own power to ſecure their liberties, and to tranſmit them to their poſterity.

GRACCHUS.

LONDON.

Extract of a Letter from Wiſbich, July 25.

"Yeſterday came on at Cambridge aſſizes, before Sir William De Grey, Knt. Lord Chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas, the trial of a Merchant, Grocer, and Cordwainer of this town, for wilful and corrupt perjury; which laſted ſix hours and thirteen minutes, when the jury brought him in guilty; and he is to receive ſentence the firſt day of next term. It was the moſt remarkable trial that has happened in this country in the memory of man, and the moſt complicated ſcenes of villany ever heard of brought to light. He has been an old offender in ſuch horrid practices, and much miſchief has been done by him; however, by this conviction he is become infamous, and it is not doubted but he will meet with the fate he deſerves."

Extract of a letter from a Lady at Southampton, July 29.

"I was yeſterday looking out of my window upon the beach were the people bathe, and ſaw a moſt affecting accident. A little child was going to be dipped; and the fond mother was ſo terrified, that ſhe would not truſt it to the guide, but would dip the child herſelf; and between her fright and the child's ſtrugling, it ſlipped out of her arms, and was drowned. I hear it was an only child; the unhappy lady was almoſt diſtracted at the loſs."

The principal wounds Miſs Gough received from the ſawyer in Glouceſterſhire, were on the top, back part, and ſide of her head, from which her face and one eye have been very much ſwelled. Her hat was almoſt cut in pieces and her wriſts much bruiſed in defending herſelf from the ruffian. The death of her amiable friend, after whom ſhe often enquires, has not yet been made known to her.

The murderer, when firſt brought to Glouceſter caſtle, was not only loaded with the heavieſt irons on his legs, but had a collar of iron round his neck, from which a heavy chain going down his back, and between his legs, was faſtened to his hand bolts; however, it appearing that he could not live under the weight of his fetters the collar has been taken off.

LONDON, Auguſt 9.

A Gentleman of Experience in the political world obſerved, on Friday night in a large company, that he wanted no other proof of miniſterial folly than the inceſſant oppoſition to Mr. Wilkes; "there will always be a party againſt Government in a free country; the ambition inſeparable from human nature makes it impoſſible to be otherwiſe; a prudent Miniſter, therefore, ſhould rejoice when this party is inſignificant, inſtead of giving it weight by ridiculous perſecutions."

It is now certain that the Letter from Mr. Robinſon was to Mr. Smith Merchant in Paternoſter row, (not Budge row) whoſe daughter or neice he married: So that all that has been ſo roundly aſſerted of the Secretary to Lord North influencing the election for Sheriff, and invading the freedom of election, &c. turns out to be nothing more than a familiar epiſtle from one relation to another, which perhaps has happened every week while in town.

No party ever made ſo much uſe of the news papers as the preſent patriots. The many puffing paragraphs which Mr. Wilkes makes himſelf is amazing: He had no leſs than ſeven paragraphs in the daily papers in one day, as evidences of the Miniſtry's interpoſition in the preſent election for Sheriff, and yet it was publickly declared at Lloyd's Coffee-houſe laſt Saturday, by a Gentleman belonging to the Office of Ordnance, that there had not been one letter, or intimation about the election, come to that office where there is a certainty of 200 votes.

A very curious and valuable library, ſome time ſince, being on ſale, among the reſt, a manuſcript law book was put up, the performance of a late eminent hand: to enhance the price, and ſtimulate the company to purchaſe it, Mr. ——— the auctioneer, told them, that beſides its originality, it had the additional advantage of an opinion concerning it, written in a blank leaf, by one of the moſt diſtinguiſhed ſages of the law, but he muſt beg to be excuſed the producing it till after it ſhould be ſold: this took ſo well with the literati, that they advanced on one another at each bidding, till it was knocked down at a very conſiderable price, to one who was determined to have it at any rate, who when it was delivered to him, ſo eager was the expectation and impatience of the company to read the opinion, that the purchaſer for fear of being crouded to death, to his mortification, read theſe words:

Mem. I have carefully peruſed this book, and do pronounce it worth not one farthing. H.

One day laſt week, a Gentleman in Jermyn-Street, St. James's, that would be thought a great Connoiſſeur in Antiquities, went to an eminent Seal Engraver in the City, and aſked if he had by him a particular Antique head. No, Sir, ſaid he, but I can make you one: Do ſo, and ſend it home: It was accordingly done, and the price was 70 guineas—"A new way of modernizing ANTIQUITY."

Aug. 19. One day laſt week as Richard Sambler, a thatcher, at Burton, near Chriſt-church, Hants, was getting ſuddenly out of the chimney corner, to prevent a child that was near him from taking hold of a knife, which lay on the table, he unfortunately threw down a charged fowling piece, which went off, and ſhot his wife, then big with child, dead on the ſpot.

Extract of a Letter from Paris.

"Within theſe two hours I have received a copy of our great loſs in the late bloody engagement in Corſica. Marbœuf acted in the late unhappy action like a prudent, cautious, conſummate Officer; yet the natural ſituation of the country, the deep ravages between Caſida and La Tavagna, made it impoſſible for the braveſt and beſt diſciplined troops to reſiſt the barbarous feroſity of the natives; therefore the French failed in the attack, but made their retreat in good order. No human wiſdom could prevent the enemy taking the baggage and military cheſt at Fiemalto; for they deſcended the ſide of a vaſt mountain, that ſeemed inacceſſible, with ſuch a multitude, that they ſeemed a rapid torrent after a thunder ſtorm, ruſhing over every obſtacle with a furious impetuoſity. The following is a return of the killed and wounded; viz. 96 Officers killed, and 216 wounded; 544 Rank and File killed, and 1173 wounded. The numbers miſſing ſince the general attack are not included, nor thoſe taken priſoners in the ſurprize of the baggage, who, we fear, have not experienced much politeneſs from the Savages.——M. de Marbeuf attributes the loſs of this battle to one Ardachy, a ſerjeant in the Royal Italian regiment, who deſerted two days before, and is ſuppoſed to have gone over to the Mountaneers, to inform them of the diſpoſition of the French General, and directed their defence. The baggage and the military cheſt ſeem inacceſſible and impregnable at Fiemalto. This capture will prove a powerful comfort to the rebels, and enable them to reſiſt for a long time to come."

BOSTON, October 17.

We are informed by a Letter from London, that the Affair of ſetting Fire to Portſmouth Yard, is, at length like to come out; a Perſon having ſent a Letter to the Lord Mayor of London, offering to diſcover it, if he might be pardoned; in conſequence of this, the King has pardoned him; and 'tis ſaid, that this Man (who is an Engliſhman) has a great number of original Letters reſpecting this Affair, and that the French were the tempters. There are great Expectations from this Diſcovery.

A few Days ago a Spaniſh Ship, put into New London, in order to refit, having in a violent Gale of Wind, about the firſt of this Month, been diſmaſted, and received conſiderable Damage in her Hull. We are told ſhe was bound from St. Domingo to Cadiz; and is the ſame Veſſel that was mentioned in our laſt, under Newport Head. The Captain of the above Ship, and ſome other of her Officers came to Town laſt Evening.

HARTFORD, October 22.

Laſt Wedneſday ſen'night, in the Morning, Capt. John Cotton, of Middletown, in a Brig, bound to New London from the Weſt Indies, run aſhore on Narraganſet Beach, and is entirely loſt with Part of her Cargo.—The People were all ſaved.

WHEREAS upon the report of the Commiſſioners on the eſtate of Mr. Stephen Blake, late Conſtable of Middletown, his eſtate is inſolvent; and by the advice and direction of the Court of Probate, for the diſtrict of Middletown, the eſtate of the ſaid Blake, both real and perſonal, is ordered to be ſold at private Sale, if it can be ſold for near the value it was appriſed at in the Inventory. Whoever inclines to purchaſe all, or part of ſaid eſtate, are deſired to apply to the ſubſcriber, adminiſtrator on ſaid eſtate, any time between this and the laſt Monday of November next on which laſt Monday of November, I purpoſe to attend at the dwelling houſe of Mrs. Eſther Wetmore of Middletown, to make legal conveyances, if ſold —if not, I am ordered further to adviſe with ſaid court about the ſales thereof. The eſtate is a home lot, of about eight acres, with about 20 apple trees, a ſmall manſion houſe, one ſtory and an half high, with three fire places below, and a cellar under the whole, with a good barn cow houſe, ſtable and one ſtory houſe, and good well. Situate about a mile and a half from the meeting houſe, in the firſt ſociety in Middletown. Alſo five other pieces of land, of about 70 acres, within a mile and an half of the ſaid homeſtead, all under good improvement except about forty acres of woodland; four of ſaid pieces are within half a mile of ſaid houſe, and conſiſt of good plow, paſture and mowing land.

SETH WETMORE,
Adminiſtrator on ſaid eſtate.

The ſaid Wetmore has alſo to ſell or let, a dwelling houſe, tan yard, and ſhoemaker's ſhop, with 40 rods of land, well watered for tanning and where the ſhoemaking and tanning buſineſs has been lately carried on, ſituate about one mile from the above meeting houſe, and near a good corn mill.

CASH given for clean Cotton and Linnen Rags of any kind, at the Printing-Office in Hartford.

Now in the Preſs, & will ſpeedily be compleated.

A poſthumous Publication, of Six Diſcourſes, preached by the Rev'd NATHANAEL HOOKER, late of Hartford, deceaſed, on the following Subjects and Texts, Viz.

I. A Grateful Recollection of GOD's Providence Particularly relative to the remarkable Settlement, Defence, and Increaſe, of the four New England, Colonies——being a Diſcourſe delivered on the Annual Thankſgiving, November 17, 1768, from Deuteronomy xxxii, 7.

II. A particular Providence aſſerted, demonſtrated and improved, Proverbs xx 24.

III. Chriſtian Sincerity John i. 47

IV. Scripture Examples, their Deſign and Uſe, Hebrews xi, 32.

V. The Nature, Extent, and obligations of Charity, delivered before the North Aſſociation, in Hartford County, and as the Author apprehended, and as the Reader will ſee, and the Event afterwards proved THE LAST SERMON he Preached to his Brethren in the Miniſtry, 1 Corinthians, xiii. 3

VI. Pertinent Reflections on Old Age, or Old Age Improved. Geneſis xlvii 8 9

It is ſuppoſed the above Sermons will contain Six Sheets, will be printed in a legible Character, on good Paper——ſew'd in a Book, covered with Paper, afforded to the Subſcribers at One Shilling and Four Pence Lawful Money, to be Paid at the Delivery of the Books.

N. B. The above Sermons are carried to the Preſs as they were left in the Authors own Hand Writing ſufficiently correct for Printing. Its apprehended, by good Judges that in Sentiment. Method and ſtile the Compoſition is delicate and excellent that the Reader, if ſerious and judicious, will be both edified and pleaſed; and conſidering the Importance and Uſefulneſs of the Subjects treated of. Mr. HOOKERS approved Character, as an Author, how cheap the Books will come to the Subſcribers, and that none will be Printed, except for thoſe concerned in the Subſcription, it is hoped the work will ſoon be compleated.

WILLIAM STANTON to his CUSTOMERS.

GENTLEMEN,

HAVING ſupply'd the county of Litchfield and ſome towns adjacent, with the Connecticut Courant, for almoſt ſix years, and in that ſpace of time have often requeſted a ſettlement with my cuſtomers, but my requeſt has for the moſt part been diſregarded. Am therefore determined to bring the whole to a cloſe, and make a general ſtop at number 357, and would earneſtly deſire every individual perſon, to take the earlieſt opportunity and pay their ballances.——Thoſe alſo who have long been indebted to me upon note, and neglect to make me pay, would do well ſeriouſly to conſider, that if any diſagreeable conſequences ſhould follow, they muſt blame themſelves and acquit me.

POET'S CORNER.

[Concluded from our laſt.]

THE dazzling colours, falſely bright,
Attack the gazing vulgar's ſight
With ſuperficial ſtate ;
Tho' Reaſon's clearer optics view'd,
How ſtripp'd of all its glare, how rude,
Appears the painted cheat !

Can wild ambition's tyrant pow'r,
Or ill got wealth's unbounded ſtore,
The dread of death controul ?
Can pleaſure's more bewitching charms,
Avert or ſooth the dire alarms
That ſhake the parting ſoul ?

Religion ! ere the hand of fate
Shall make reflection plead too late,
My erring ſenſes teach,
Amidſt the flatt'ring hopes of youth
To meditate the ſolemn truth
Theſe awful relicks preach.

Thy penetrating beams diſperſe
The miſts of error, whence our fears
Derive their fatal ſpring :
'Tis thine the trembling heart to warm,
And ſoften to an angel form
The pale terrific King.

By thee ſublim'd the ſoul aſpires
Beyond theſe trifling low deſires,
In nobler views elate ;
Unmov'd her future change ſurveys,
And with intrepid courage pays
That univerſal debt.

In earth's ſoft boſom ſooth'd to reſt,
She ſleeps, by ſmiling dreams careſt,
That gently whiſper peace,
Till the laſt morn's fair op'ning ray
Unfolds the bright eternal day
Of active life and bliſs.

YOUNG.

ONE of the chief complaints, of the unhappy North Carolinians has been the oppreſſion, extortion and villany of their lawyers, countenanced and ſupported by the governor, and judges——to ſhew the world, that their grievances were real, they lately publiſhed an account of ſeveral bills of coſt, that had been taxed againſt them in ſuits commenced for mere trifles, which appeared to be really enormous——as to their eſtate's being ſold, much below the value, to diſcharge theſe coſts—I confeſs however hard it appears upon them I cannot conſider it as a grievance, ſo directly worthy the attention of the public, ſince it daily is, and ever muſt be, the fate of thoſe under the neceſſity of raiſing money, to ſell their effects at a low price——In the publication refer'd to, they ſtated in one column, the damages, or debt recovered, and in the oppoſite the coſt taxed, in ſeven, or eight actions it appeared, the debt in ſome, was but a trifle, and in all of them, amounted to a ſum, ſhort of ten pounds——the coſt to more than eighty in the whole——every good man, muſt deteſt ſuch cruel proceedings, and deeply commiſerate our unhappy fellow-ſubjects, thus groaning under the worſt of all evils [illegible]——and in ſpite of all the addreſſes made governor T—n, by a corrupt, and proſtituted clergy ; or a venal time ſerving laity, his character wrote in the blood of his fellow ſubjects, muſt to all poſterity, mark and point him out, as one of the wanton and perfidious butchers of mankind.——But not to ſpend the whole of our indignation, againſt the authors of this miſchief, nor looſe ourſelves in commiſerating the unhappy ſufferers,—let us for a moment conſider, the above account of their cauſe for complaint, and compare it with ſomething ſimilar, much nearer home ;——On examining the judgments of our courts, (confeſſedly as upright, and impartial as any under heaven) ſhall we not find as exorbitant bills of coſt, bills as far exceeding the debt, or damage recovered as thoſe refered to above ? Every one converſant in our courts muſt anſwer in the affirmative.——Not many years ſince, two neighbours of mine, unhappily differed about the property of a hen and chickens ; this originated between the children, who ſoon drew their parents, on both ſides into the quarrel, as they liv'd ſcarce a ſtones throw apart, and their lands joined, they had frequent opportunities, of doing each other numberleſs little ill offices, which though more irritating, than even ſubſtantial ills, they found no redreſs but in retaliation, their overt acts, not being actionable at law, and the language on both ſides, though as abuſive as the whole force of their invention could make it, ſhort of legal ſcandal——at length an opportunity offered, for giving vent, in a different channel, to the unfriendly paſſions, which had hitherto preyed only on themſelves.——Mr. Teſty had a lot joining his neighbour Quibble, through which for twenty years, during their good underſtanding, Mr. Quibble paſs'd and repaſs'd, to, and from a lot of his, lying by it, without the formality of a leaſe, or written permit therefor.——Teſty on adviſing with his friend Bramble, (who generally gave advice in ſuch caſes for little, or no reward, ſave the pleaſure of bringing forward a law ſuit, and of courſe, of being employed either as chamber council, or evidence before the court, where he greatly improved in knowledge of ſuch matters) contriv'd to lay a ſnare for Quibble, by plowing and ſowing this lot—— Quibble without being forbid, drove his cattle through, as uſual, for two or three days, until Teſty, having got ſufficient evidence of the treſpaſs commenced his action, demanding twenty ſhilling damages ; the cauſe, of courſe came before a ſingle magiſtrate, where Quibble on the advice of lawyer Demur, plead title to the land, and removed it to the County Court.——It would be tedious to give a minute hiſtory of this cauſe, which being adjourned and continued from court to court, for about two years, at each of which courts, the parties with a large number of witneſſes duly attended——was on the point of being brought to an iſſue, when Mr. Demur found a flaw in the plaintiffs writ, abated it, and obtained a large ſum in coſt, near one fourth of what the defendant had paid out in the ſuit.——This was a heavy blow to Teſty, as beſide taking the whole income of the reſt of his lands, for the two years back, he was now obliged to ſell his cows, at a low rate, to ſatisfy Quibbles execution. All this indeed, he could have got through, but the diſgrace of being beat and that by a mear trick, and when Mr. Vulture his attorney, declar'd it was a very clear caſe, had the writ been good, was abſolutely intolerable——grown obſtinate, if not wiſe by this misfortune, he commenced his ſuit anew, and after two years farther purſuing it, in court, obtained a compleat victory——judgment for about five ſhillings damage, and ſomewhere near twenty pounds coſts of ſuit.——The victory however, was like that which Pyrrhus obtained over the Romans, it well nigh ruined him, without a ſecond, which muſt have compleatly done it.——His attorney told me, that the coſt of this ſuit, to both parties, was near as he could calculate, about eighty pounds—which obliged poor Quibble to ſell his land, and move into the new ſettlements, and Teſty to part with his ſtock, and to live very hard and cloſe, by which in two or three year, he recovered himſelf to a conſiderable degree.——It is proper to obſerve here, that the above ſum expended, was very far from being the whole damage, they ſuffered by the ſuit.——This under borrowed names, is the true hiſtory of a ſuit at law, even in Connecticut, and within ten years paſt ſome immaterial circumſtances varied or omitted—were it the only one of the kind, I ſhou'd not have hinted at it, my deſign being to avoid ſuch particular characters and tranſactions, in this paper, which may fail of having a general effect for the better on the readers——ſo far from it, that it is but one inſtance, out of hundreds of a like nature in that ſpace of time.——No court of juſtice can prevent every evil of this kind, not having it, in their power, to make men good-natured, nor at all times even honeſt.——To remedy various grievances, irremediable by courts of law, thoſe of equity are erected——the general aſſembly in this colony act in this capacity——As this body are continually changing in conſequence of their being twice every year elected——the time of their ſeſſion very ſhort——the buſineſs before them various and perplexed ; not a little ſo, by an unhappy intermixture of public concerns, and private grievances, before the ſame board——and as it has become, almoſt an eſtabliſhed rule to commit every cauſe brought before them to committees, to hear, examine, and report to their next ſeſſion, (a method much more coſtly than the courts of law)——and but ſeldom that any coſts are allowed——under theſe conſiderations may one with ſubmiſſion, query, whether the relief obtained in this way, is not often more fatal to the petitioners, than the firſt grievance he complained of, could poſſibly have been ?——(to ſay nothing of the expence to the public, nor of the unhappy neglect of many important matters on this account)——The hiſtory of one, one of the many private cauſes agitated here in equity, might here be given, to ſhew that vexatious and expenſive as the former method often is ; this is frequently much more ſo—but I prefer laying down the outlines of the coſt, of a common petition, from its firſt commencement, to its iſſue, & leave every one to make the particular calculation, according to the cauſes they calculate for,—obſerving by the way, that the aſſembly take cognizance of cauſes of ten pounds, & very frequently of half that conſequence The coſt & charge to the public is not taken into the following eſtimate, but ſuppoſe if one half days expence of the honorable aſſembly be put to each (in its whole proceſs) it will be quite moderate.——A days public expence of the honorable aſſembly being upwards of thirty pounds lawful money to the colony.

X——Vs——Z.

Z formerly took advantage of X, in a mortgage of land, to the damage of X the petitioner, the ſum of ten pounds lawful money, and refuſing to make ſatisfaction, &c &c. &c. the interpoſition of the honorable aſſembly is prayed—an abatement is plead, and ruled not to abate—a committee granted—report made to the next ſeſſion that Z ſhall pay X ten pounds, or permit him to redeem—no coſt allowed to be taxed.——Bill of the coſt of X.

The coſt of Z the petitionee, muſt of courſe be much the ſame——thirty pounds expended to recover ten pounds, beſide fifteen pounds expence to the public.—Is not the doctrine true ?——Extreme of right produces at times extreme wrong.

Let no one imagine the above coſt is fictitious or exaggerated——ſo far from it, that it is below the common expence in ſuch caſes——and I could were it neceſſary, inſtance caſes, when the expence of one of theſe commiſſions in equity, has been more than ſixty pounds lawful money——to point out a remedy for theſe evils, (if I may give them ſo hard a name) might be thought too aſſuming, therefore ſhall not attempt it. But when one conſiders the increaſing numbers of little vexatious ſuits, in our courts, already too large for the ſtated periods of their ſitting to try one half of them—many of them of no more conſequence, and as expenſive as Teſty's and Quibble,——That the petitions to the honorable aſſembly increaſe, with equal rapidity, and indeed with double expence to the public and individuals.——That the unneceſſary expences this way are double to all the neceſſary, for ſupport of government certainly to wiſh for relief, is neither idle or impertinent.

I had wrote thus far, when Mr. Vulture call'd upon me—as I had mentioned his name, and the caſe he was concerned in, I thought it but juſtice to ſhew it him, which I did, and he obſerving that every cauſe had two ſides to it, has undertook to convince the public, that the above expences are not only neceſſary but beneficial to the colony in general, and individuals —— As this will be in my next, hope the public will ſuſpend their judgment, until they hear the whole.

'TIS owned that the law is worded in a very leaky manner, (not to ſay it is a monſter with a double face) wanting a determinate meaning · for by this law, how doth a man become a churchman? By declaration is one ſtep but yet in this point, the law leaves it undetermined before whom declaration ſhall be made.—The ſecond ſtep is the man "ſhall live ſo nigh," alas! here is another law twiſt, "ſo nigh," how nigh ſo nigh is, is for each judge to determine, whether it is a ſabbath day's journey, or twenty or one hundred miles——but here the lawyer helps the law;—So nigh means ſo nigh as he can conveniently attend. Alas! this helps the matter none, except to perplex it; for this conveniency is to be determined by ſome body, and by uſage the profeſſor is prevented by the judges favour. But the words following ſeem to explain the law, or the common ſenſe of conveniently in this caſe. "and doth attend;" but the wiſdom of great men have found out that even this may be no certain diſtinction of the words "ſo nigh," ſince the law ſays not how many ſundays in a year a man muſt attend in order to be deemed a churchman "in heart." Hence it happens a man living twenty miles off from the church, and having attended twenty two ſundays in a year, four ſundays went to the meeting, ſtayed at home twenty ſix ſundays, and run the gantlope, according to the viſible compound fractions of the law otherwiſe, yet is judged a diſſenter, becauſe twenty ſix and four are more than twenty two, therefore he did not live ſo nigh as he conveniently or could attend; and the law ſays he ſhall attend the church or be deemed a diſſenter, and pay rates for his crime. I do not complain of the puniſhment if the rule was general, that is, if all ſtay at home, diſſenters were puniſhable the ſame way, and were obliged to pay to ſupport what they judged wrong. In this general view diſſenters would not be gainers, but as the caſe now ſtands, they obtain nine tenths of their ſalaries from bad churchmen, wicked baptiſts, vile quakers, zealous ſeparates, and ſtay at home brethren. 'Tis therefore I complain of this two-faced, half-faced, no-faced, precarious lurid law, and only aſk for juſtice and redreſs, that for the future the magiſtrates be obliged to give uniform judgments, and not be hither and thither blundering out their meanings.

This law hath coſt with the help of litigious committees, collectors, &c. not leſs than £10,000 ſince its unhappy birth, to the mutual diſſatisfaction of proteſtants and diſſenters——Lawyers and magiſtrates differ in conſtructing this law—one ſays, that becauſe B declared himſelf to be a churchman ſix months after the rate was voted, and ſix months before ſaid rate was due or to be paid—the church ſhould hold B rate, but another court calls it an error, becauſe the rate was voted before B was a churchman.——Yet the ſame court judged Q was legally holden to pay a rate, which was voted four years after he was a churchman, becauſe in ſaid vote was included 10 l. due the diſſenting miniſter from the whole pariſh, three years before Q was a churchman—hence the world may ſee how W loſt his caſe—it was becauſe B was not a churchman, until after the rate was voted—and if ſo, why did D loſe his caſe too?—O! it was becauſe the rate was voted four years after Q was a churchman.

Again, 'twas a churchman, and being mad with his miniſter, went off to the diſſenter, one month before the rate was due—the collector got his rate, and paid it to the diſſenters, a ſuit was brought before juſtice X who rendered judgment, that the church miniſter had no right to T's rate, becauſe T was a diſſenter when the rate became due.

Well, O being mad with his miniſter, declared for the church two months before the rate was due——the collector got the rate and paid it to the diſſenters——the church prieſt ſued for it before juſtice W whoſe judgment was, that the church miniſter had no right to ſaid rate, becauſe ten months of the year was ſpent with the diſſenters, and there was no equity for two months to govern ten. And when theſe matters were brought before others in order to find out what was right, there were minds and mouths, filled with becauſe and buts while a demurrer was judged proper for impertinent churchmen.

Dartmouth College in N. Hampſhire Oct 10.

THE Rev. Doctor Wheelock through the ſurpriſing ſmiles of heaven upon his unwearied endeavours, has now ſo nearly effected his great and arduous undertaking to ſettle and accomodate his Indian School and College, in a howling wilderneſs, that he has the faireſt proſpect, in a little time, to be able to ſupport an hundred Indian and Engliſh youths upon charity and all with a view to the firſt and grand object of the inſtitution, viz. the ſpreading the bleſſed goſpel of the Redeemer among the ſavages. This ſolitude hitherto proves moſt favourable and friendly to the ſtudies of the youth's; as they are thereby free from a thouſand ſnares, temptations and divertiſements, which were, and would have been unavoidable, if this ſeminary had continued where it was or been fixed in any populous town in the land; and he hopes in the allwiſe governor and diſpoſer of all things, that he will mercifully ſo direct and overrule in the ſettlement of the new pariſh, now forming here, that his ſtudents both Engliſh and Indians may ſtill have no examples hereto influence them but to virtue and religion. And though it has not been practicable, to keep more than four or five of his Indian children with him, while he has been removing and building to accommodate and ſettle ſo large a number in the wilderneſs yet he hopes in a very ſhort time, to have convenient ſtudies, in the buildings, which are near finiſhed, for an hundred ſtudents; and has accordingly ſent by his miſſionaries the Rev. Mr. Avery, whom he has ſent to be colleague with the Rev. Mr. Kirtland at Onoida, and Mr. Dean a member of this college, for a Number of boys of the ſix nations, if they may be obtained, and is ſeeking for proper agents to fetch as many more, from the northern tribes, where he hears there are a number deſirous of an education.

And as the hon. London board in Boſton have with great chearfulneſs and a laudable generoſity, lately undertaken to ſupport the Rev. Mr. Kirtland in his miſſion, ſo it is hoped they will alſo ſupport his worthy colleague, the Rev. Mr. Avery, in the ſame ſervice.

And as the Doctor has two more prepared to be miſſionaries, to ſouthern and very remote and numerous tribes, as ſoon as the ſeaſon will permit, next ſpring, under the direction and conduct of the Rev. Mr. Brainard, it is alſo hoped that the hon. board in Boſton, or ſome others who have money in their hands, ſacred to ſuch uſe, will generouſly ſupport them in their miſſion. He has alſo two others who are prepared for a miſſion, among nothern tribes, as ſoon as a door ſhall be opened for them, which he alſo hopes will be next ſpring. The Doctor has others preparing for the ſame ſervice, and hopes there will be no more occaſion of complaint of money in any public fund or more private ſtore, lying unimproved for want of proper agents to ſpend it in their glorious cauſe. And it is much to be deſired & hoped that all parties will agree and unite, in this great and moſt intereſting cauſe of the Redeemer, and that there will be no boaſting, of one againſt another, nor any undermining or unmanly plottings, or endeavours of one party, to overthrow, diſcredit or obſtruct another, in the proſecution of the ſame glorious deſign.

VIRGINIA, Auguſt 20.

WE the ſubſcribers, who are in cloſe goal, in Middleſex county, for preaching Jeſus Chriſt, and him crucified, outſide of our few licenced meeting houſes wherein we believe we act agreeable to the Lord's commiſſion given all faithful miniſters in Mark xvi. 15 16. do take this public method to inform the rulers of our colony, for their tender conſideration, that we and many others of our inoffenſive and conſcientious brethren, who are King George's loyal ſubjects are ſuffering great perſecution for want of a toleration law in Virginia—The people of our perſuaſion, viz. the Baptiſts in this government, are falſely accuſed with many things touching our tenets and practices, more eſpecially in our doctrines to the Negroes, and for joining the Regulators in North Carolina, and heading that mutiny; we confeſs ſome few of our private members were ſeduced by the mob to join them, which were long ſince cenſured by all the orderly members of our churches; one of our Miniſters ran the riſk of the Regulators rage laſt fall in bearing teſtimony in his preaching, againſt their rebellious practices.

We humbly beg an intereſt in the prayers of all God's people, that the Lord, in his great mercy may ſtrengthen our ſouls, and all in like circumſtances, that with patience, meekneſs, and reſolution, we may endure our affliction, whilſt we are thus ſet for the defence of the glorious goſpel.

The laſt ſabbath, while one of us introduced God's worſhip, by ſinging and praying, and during the while that three of us one after the other, ſpoke for edification to the multitude that flocked round the priſon window to hear us a drum was beat near the window to drown the ſound of the goſpel trumpet.

PORTSMOUTH, October 11.

We hear from Merrimack, that Samuel Wentworth, Eſq; of that Place, has raiſed in his Garden this Seaſon a CUCUMBER, that Meaſured in Length 22 Inches——If ſuch Things are done in Merrimack, what may we not expect from that fertile Land about DARTMOUTH COLLEGE, which is certainly much richer and the Soil deeper, as an Evidence a few hills of Corn being planted on the Earth thrown out of the bottom of a Well 30 or 35 Feet deep, grew to the equal highth and goodneſs of that in the reſt of the Field [illegible] 9 or 10 Feet high ——On ſuch Land as this ſhall the People of the Towns in and about Portſmouth, who live on trifling ſmall Farms, refuſe to go, and keep their Eyes ſhut till the Connecticut, New-York and Rhode-Iſland People have ſecur'd all the Lands to themſelves, and in a few years, will ſend ſuch a Number of Repreſentatives from thoſe new Towns, as will outvote the original Inhabitants, and thoſe call'd Town born Children in all important Matters.

THERE has for many years been a great noiſe about an American Biſhop: ſome oppoſing and others exerting themſelves to introduce what they call a Biſhop. Nothing can be more ridiculous than a contention about an American Biſhop, for we have now about five hundred in New England, beſides great numbers in the other provinces.——Agreeable to the ſcriptures, every Goſpel Miniſter is a Biſhop; for Elder, Preſbyter, and Biſhop ſignify the ſame thing, and are common appellations in the New Teſtament, given to Miniſters of the Goſpel. Any one who wants to be further ſatiſfied upon this ſubject may conſult Dr. Chauncy's View of the ancient Biſhops, where he will find it fully proved that all Miniſters of the Goſpel and Elders of the Church, are BISHOPS.—Therefore it is propoſed that every ordained Miniſters ſhall hereafter have the title of Biſhop.

—By the BOSTON POST.—

BOSTON, October 24.

Since our laſt arrived here Captn. Hall and Briant, from London:—The following Articles are from the Prints.

LONDON, Auguſt 20.

It is ſaid that Lord Camden has refuſed taking the Seals again, alledging that he was certainly as well qualified to hold them two years ago as now.—But the truth ſeems to be, that his Lordſhip is grown very fond of a retired Life.

Aug. 28. Monday Morning the French Ambaſſador Le Count de Guignes, ſuddenly ſet out for Paris, without taking Leave. And, Yeſterday morning his Horſes were ſent after him. All the Furniture in his late Dwelling-Houſe in Great George ſtreet, is ſold.

It is ſaid that the French Ambaſſador's Return home is occaſioned by a great Difference having ariſen in his Royal Maſter's Councils, and not from any Umbrage taken at this Court.

The abrupt departure of the French Ambaſſador occaſions a variety of conjectures.

Count de Guignes, previous to his departure, ſent a meſſage to the Spaniſh Ambaſſador, informing him of his Recall.

It is now confidently aſſerted, that the author of Junius is a Barriſter of the Middle Temple, nearly allied to a certain noble Earl, and that the manner of the diſcovery will ſhortly be made public.

It is reported to be abſolutely intended to repeal the American duty on tea next winter, in conſideration of the colonies peaceably returning to their obedience to the mother country.

Auguſt 24. The Chancellor of France has at length obtained leave for M de Voltaire to return to his native country. He is accordingly preparing to ſet out for Paris, where this celebrated genius is now likely to end his days.

Auguſt 30. Monday laſt the two Meſſengers who had been in different parts of the kingdom, in queſt of perſons ſuſpected about the firing of Portſmouth Dock, arrived at St. James's; but what the reſult of their journey was, has not yet tranſpired.

Though a perſon has ſurrendered, and is actually in the Compter, on the ſubject of the fire at Portſmouth dock yard, yet, we are now aſſured, that he has not been examined by [illegible] Lord Mayor, his Lordſhip looking upon it [illegible] buſineſs that does not come properly within [illegible] province. All reports, therefore, of the ſaid perſon having been re examined on Wedneſday night, are without foundation.

Her Majeſty is again pregnant.

NEW YORK, October 24.

Friday the 18th Inſt. was held at the Queens Head Tavern in New York, a Grand Lodge of the moſt ancient and honourable Fraternity of Free and Accepted Maſons; when a Commiſſion from the Right Honourable Lord Blaney, Grand Maſter of England, appointing Sir John Johnſon, Bart. Grand Maſter of Maſons for the Province of New York, was preſented to George Harriſon, Eſq; then Grand Maſter; and received with the general Approbation of the Brethren. After the Commiſſion was read, he was immediately in due Form inveſted with the Badges of that important office, and placed in the Chair, agreeable to the Rites and Uſages practiſed upon ſuch ſolemn Occaſions, by that reſpectable and Catholic Society. In theſe Ceremonies he was aſſiſted by the Right Honourble Lord Drummond, and Colonel Johnſon. After the Inſtalment was over, an elegant Entertainment was given to all the Members, and ſeveral other Gentlemen, Maſons, who had been permitted to be preſent. The Evening was concluded with that Feſtivity and Mirth which are the never failing Attendants upon Friendſhip and good Cheer.

Laſt Night arrived the Ship Earl of Dunmore Capt. Lawrance, who left London the 4th September, Mr. Lindley Murray, of this City Merchant and his Lady are among the Paſſengers. The Papers by Capt. Lawrance to the 2d of Sept. contain nothing remarkable, more then thoſe by Capt. Chambers, except that one Dudley and one Britain have confeſſed themſelves to be concern'd in the late Fire at Portſmouth, which it is ſaid was procured by the French, with the connivance of ſome people of Note in England. Dudley it was ſaid, was to be ſent to Portſmouth to confront ſome Accomplices there. On his Information, Britain was taken up and confined in Reading Gaol. He owns being concern'd, and ſays he was hired; has written Letters to two noble Lords in Adminiſtration, daring them to bring him to a Trial; intimating that People of too high a Rank are concern'd, to ſuffer an Inquiry to be made, and offering to ſuffer as a prin[illegible] if he does not prove this Charge. (Time, [illegible] Room admit no more.)

NEWPORT, October 14.

At the Superior Court holden at South-Kingſtown laſt Week one CÆZAR HAZARD, a Negro Man, was indicted upon the Stat. 22 and 23. Car. II for feloniouſly aſſaulting on Benjamin Deeling with a Hedge Stake, with an Intent to maim and disfigure him; Upon Trial it appeared the murder of Deeling was principally intended; that his Scull was fractured, and he left as dead: The Trial took up the greateſt Part of the Day, when the Jury withdrew, and in about 15 Minutes, brought him in GUILTY, and Sentence of Death was pronounced accordingly.

BOSTON, October 24.

We hear that Captain Preſton who was lately juſtified by the laws of his country, for killing ſome rioters on the 5th of March 1770 has had a ſtill further compenſation from his ſovereign, for his ſervices. It is ſaid, that the King ever willing to reward thoſe who beſt promote the intereſt of the crown has conferred on this Captain 500l ſterling, to recruit him in what he expended and alſo a penſion of 200l. per annum. "Vengeance is mine ſaith the Lord, I WILL REPAY."

HARTFORD, October 29.

On Tueſday Evening laſt a Woman who appear'd to be a Traveller, went into a public Houſe in Farmington, where ſhe procured Lodgings for the Night for herſelf and a Child about two Months old, and when ſhe went to bed, deſired the Family not to be troubled, at the crying of the Child in the Night, as it was apt to be very uneaſy when in Bed. However, ſome Time after the Family went to bed the Child was hear'd to cry exceſſively, which engaged the Landlady to go to its Aſſiſtance, when, to her Surprize, ſhe found it alone in Bed, and the Woman abſconded. In the Morning the Town was alarm'd and the moſt diligent Search made to diſcover the barbarous Mother, but as yet no Intelligence can be obtained, where ſhe came from, or where ſhe is gone. The Select Men of the Town have taken proper Care of the Child.

[illegible]HIS city is at preſent expoſed to a melancholly ſcene of diſtreſs. [illegible]e beautiful and rich vale from hence to Laugenburgh is over flowed by an inundation of the Elbe. The water already comes into one of the gates of the city; and the inhabitants are alarmed, leſt it ſhould break the dam, which has been ſtrengthened by ſeveral thouſand ſacks of ſand that ſeparate it from the Alſter; were it to overflow, a great part of the city would be under water, and the damages to the houſes and warehouſes would be very great. The waters having riſen, from the 17th to yeſterday morning, fifteen inches.——The Senate held an extraordinary aſſembly, which laſted till four o'clock in the afternoon, to conſider of the means of preventing this miſchief; and came to the reſolution of making three ſlopes in the great Dyke of the Elbe, that the waters may empty themſelves into that river. The ſuburbs, which extend two Engliſh miles on that ſide, with fine country houſes and gardens, are all under water, which is of ſuch a height, that nothing is to be ſeen but the tops of the trees; and the great road, which leads to Berlin, is impaſſable. We are by this deprived of all fruits and vigetables, as well as forage for the horſes and cattle, with which this city uſed to be ſupplied from thence. And the loſs of the rich crops of corn, by which the people expect to be relieved from the dearneſs of it, is a melancholly event, of which bad conſequences cannot but be apprehended. The damage the city has already ſuſtained, is computed, at 200,000l ſterling. The price of all kinds of proviſions is daily increaſing; and a thouſand pounds weight of hay, which uſed to be ſold for 14 or 15s, is not to be had at preſent for leſs than 3l. ſterling. A public Faſt is ordered on Sunday the 28th Inſt. on account of this calamity.

LONDON, Auguſt 6.

A few days ago a moſt audacious robbery was committed at an Apothecary's in Prince ſtreet; but the witty preſence of mind with which it was perfected, even after a diſcovery, deſerves to be recorded. A fellow went in at the private door (which happened to be left open) walked up one pair of ſtairs, packed up the bed, mattraſs, and all the bedding and furniture of the bed, and came ſoftly down ſtairs with it; by ſome accident, his foot ſlipped in the paſſage, as he was going out, and the load fell from off his head. The noiſe brought out the apothecary—'Hey day, friend,' ſays he, 'what are you doing there? Sir,' replied the man, without the leaſt heſitation, 'I have brought home the bed an bedding you purchaſed to day at the Auction.' I purchaſe a bed at an auction!' was the anſwer, I was at no auction, nor have I bought any bed.'—'I am ſure' returned the fellow, 'my maſter told me it was near an apothecary's.—I am ſorry for the miſtake, Sir, and I beg you will be ſo good as to help me up with my load again, that I may carry it to the right place.' The apothecary very civilly did as he was deſired, and the man marched off with his prize—but lo! when the apothecary and his wife withdrew for bed at night, all that preſented itſelf to their view was a naked four poſt bedſtead! and the party robbed diſcovered that he had literally aſſiſted in the robbing of himſelf.

Auguſt 11. Thurſday died, Sir William Mildmay, Bart. He was one of the Commiſſaries at Paris, for ſettling the limits of Nova Scotia in the Year 1754. Dying without Iſſue his Title is extinct. Died alſo, Sir Francis Blake Delaval, Bart. Died, General Whitmore, Warden of the Tower.

We hear that by the death of Sir Francis Blake Delaval an eſtate devolves to his brother of 4000l. per ann. He has likewiſe left in ſpeice 36000l.

LONDON, Auguſt 26.

Yeſterday Col. Coote, who arrived on Monday laſt by land from the Eaſt Indies, was introduced to his Majeſty at St. James's, and graciouſly received.

On Sunday the Duke of Glouceſter, being detained by contrary winds, came from aboard the Venus, dined and drank tea at the Rooms at Weymouth, and afterwards returned on board. The ſhip was not gone out of Portland Race on Monday.

The Duke d'Aremberg, who a few days ſince left England, is a Prince of the Empre, and enjoys an eſtate of 30,000l. per annum near Bruſſels with a deſign to viſit England INCOG. but in leſs than a week, being known, his views were fruſtrated, and he was obliged to enter into public life, was preſented at court, and as ſoon after as poſſible left the kingdom.

When the news was brought to Mr. Foot of Sir Francis Blake Delaval's death, he burſt into tears. On Sir Francis being named to Mr. Foot by ſome Ladies in the Boxes, he again expreſſed the ſame ſorrow—'You may wonder, Ladies, (ſays he,) at this feeling of mine; but Democritus himſelf muſt have felt thus at the loſs of ſuch a friend! Theſe tears are but a poor teſtimony of my gratitude for a life of ſervices received from him, and particularly for the tenderneſſes of days and hours at my bed-ſide, when I loſt my limb at the ſeat of Sir Francis's brother, Lord Mexborough."

It is ſaid Mr. Alderman Wilkes is now buſily employed in ſtudying that great lawyer Coke's Inſtitutes on the laws of England, both common and ſtatute, and has made ſome diſcoveries relative to the Office of Sheriff, which it is thought will be obſerved by all ſucceeding Sheriffs in future ages.

We hear Mr. Alderman Wilkes is at length provided with all the neceſſary requiſites for the important office to which he was lately elected. Mr. Sheriff Blake having given him the chariot in which he himſelf ſerved the laſt year, and Mr. Croſby having lent him the uſe of two of his longtailed horſes.

By ſeveral Veſſels arrived at Boſton from London, ſince our laſt, we have the following Advices, viz.

LONDON, Sept. 2.

Friday one Britain, confined in Reading Jail on the information of Mr. Dudley, ſent a letter to a Great Perſon in the Miniſtry, defying him, it is ſaid, to bring him to juſtice; and ſaying, he does not in the leaſt deny his being concerned in ſetting fire to Portſmouth Dock Yard, but he did it through want of bread; and that ſeveral perſons were concerned in it, whoſe influence will be ſufficient to prevent any enquiry.

The above Britian appears to be a very ſenſible man and a ſcholar, was, many years ſince, a Dragoon in his Majeſty's ſervice, and lately, as we are informed, an Officer——, but by various turns of fortune was reduced ſo low that he was ſtarving for want of the common neceſſaries of life, when he was hired to commit the above atrocious crime: he is viſited by great numbers of Gentlemen and Ladies in the priſon, ſays that he has been promiſed any money he wants, on condition of his obſerving an inviolable ſecrecy, which he refuſed; he has wrote to two noble Lords in Ad—n, a Copy of one of which letters follows hereafter.

Copy of a letter to a perſon in the City.

Reading, Aug. 28, 1771.

Mr. ——,

"I have ſent you the true copy of a letter I ſent to Lord —— by yeſterday's poſt. I hope you have courage enough to publiſh it, and then the world will ſee what a wretched ſet of men compoſe the preſent Adminiſtration. Sir, they dare not bring me to a tryal. I know too much of their wickedneſs. I have dared the Earl of ——, about ten days ago, in as ſharp a letter as this. All the anſwer I received was a letter from an Agent, either of their's or of the French, offering to bail me out of priſon, provided I would quit the kingdom & go to France . . . . Publiſh this letter literally, and ſign Britian at the bottom.

I am, Sir, your humble ſervant.

Copy of a Letter ſent to Lord ——, dated Aug. 27.

"My Lord,

"I am not—ſurpriſed, that you ſhould do all that lies in your power to bury in oblivion the late fire at Portſmouth Dock.—In all debates wherein the honour of the Britiſh Nation is really concerned, we always ſee Lord ——'s name prefixed to the contrary ſide of the queſtion, conſequently we muſt expect the ſame, when the affair will expoſe your Lordſhip's conduct; wherein will be proved your receiving large ſums of money at different times for your Secret Services. Perhaps you ſay, "what credit can be given to the evidence of a villain, who would be ſuch a traitor to his King and Country?" But hold, my Lord, your crimes are more heinous than mine.—What money I received was a bare ſubſiſtance—Your's my Lord, to indulge luxury.—I was in a mean capacity, a menial ſervant only. You my Lord, in a high office, intruſted with the Rights and Privileges of the People of England. Beſides, my Lord, I have another advantage over you I am the penitent Publican, while you continue the hardened Phariſee.

——Do not let the above diſpleaſe your Lordſhip, as I ſend it to give you an opportunity to vindicate your character, and bring the People concerned in that affair (i. e. Portſmouth Fire) to a trial, which I believe your Lordſhip dare not do. If my evidence is not ſufficient to prove all the charges I have made, I will ſuffer as the Principal. Tho' my Lord, you muſt not alter the Law of the Land: Thoſe tricks muſt be left off. I am,

Your Lordſhip's
Moſt obedient

Extract of a Letter from Paris, Sept. 2.

"THE ſudden arrival in this city from London of Count de Guignes threw us all into Surpriſe, imagining ſome very great and important Matters were upon the Carpet, and what confirmed us in this Opinion the more, a Council was immediately held, and before it broke up Diſpatches were ſent to every Sea Port in this Kingdom, from which it is conjectured that a War is near at hand. We have likewiſe learned, that another Reaſon for the Count's ſudden Appearance here is on account of ſome very important Diſcoveries being made in London with regard to the Fire at Portſmouth, not at all to the Honor of the French. As ſoon as the Council broke up, Expreſſes were ſent to Spain and Portugal on ſome extraordinary Affairs, which Time can only diſcover, as every one about the Court is quite ſilent as to what has paſſed there, and are ſo very reſerved in Converſation, they will not enter upon any State or Political Matters. However, this we are certain of, that unleſs France is aſſiſted by Spain and Portugal, and the Dutch ſupplies them with Money, the Finances are ſo low, that they will not be able to carry on a War one Year, but nothing will be done till the Return of the Couriers from Spain and Portugal."

Sept. 9. It was currently reported all day yeſterday, that two great perſons had been ſent to the Tower at two o'clock the ſame morning, being charged with being concerned in the late Fire at Portſmouth.

Sept. 16. They write from Portſmouth that above ſix perſons, two of them capital Traders, have abſconded from thence ſince the beginning of Auguſt laſt.

The Parliament of England is not to meet till after chriſtmas.

Orders are ſent to Chatham for equipping a Fleet of five Ships immediately, three of which are to be of the Line. The Deſtination is as yet a profound Secret.

Tueſday a Packet was ſent off from the Admiralty Office, to be forwarded with all Expedition for Sir George Rodney at Jamaica.

NEWBERN, (N. Carolina) Aug. 30.

The laſt words and dying ſpeech of BENJAMIN MERREL, executed at Hillſborough.

I Stand here expoſed to the world as a criminal, my life will ſoon be a change; God is my comforter and ſupporter; I am condemned to die for oppoſing government; all you that are here preſent, take warning by my miſ[illegible] end, when I ſhall be hung up as a [illegible]acle before you. My firſt ſeducers were Hunter and Galaſpie; they had often ſolliceted me, told me a ſettlement was only contended for, with reſpect to public officers, who they ſaid, had oppreſſed the people, and that unleſs theſe meaſures were taken, there could be no remedy or redreſs hereafter.

Thus they preſſed me on by aſſuring me the diſputes (as they called them) then exiſting, might be ſettled without ſhedding of blood. I conſidered this unhappy affair, and thought poſſibly the contentions in the country might be brought to ſome determination without injury to any, and in this mind I joined the regulation. After I had liſted under the banner of the regulators, I was ever after preſſed to be made a leading man amongſt them, and was one with the number that oppoſed Colonel Waddell with his troops; informations prevailing, the Governor was on his march to lay waſte this country, and deſtroy its inhabitants; informations which I now find to be falſe, and propagated to ſcreen old offenders from juſtice.

As to my private life, I do not know of any particular charge againſt me; I received, by the grace of God, a change fifteen years ago, but have, ſince that time, been a backſlider; yet providence, in whom is my chief ſecurity, has been pleaſed to give me comfort under thoſe evils in the laſt hour; and although the halter is now round my neck, believe me, I would not change ſtations with any man on the ground All you who think you ſtand, take heed leſt ye fall.

I would be glad to ſay a few words more before I die; the purport of which is,—in a few moments I ſhall leave behind me a wife and ten children, to a wicked and cenſorious world, and entreat it as a favour no reflections may be caſt upon them on my account; and if it is poſſible, ſhall eſteem it as a bounty, if you, gentlemen, will petition the governor Council, &c. that ſome part of my eſtate may be ſpared to them, it will be an act of mere Charity, though I have forfeited the whole by the laws of God and man. Here he pauſed—

I have ever ſince the day of battle, been thoroughly convinced, I was wrong in oppoſing the laws and government of my country; I was blindly led into the atrocious act by wicked and deſigning men, without provocation and reſentment, but O! it is now too late to call back the bloody intention; the blow is given and I muſt die for the crime—here he pauſed again—

All you that are here preſent, beware of drunkenneſs, lying, curſing and ſwearing. I could point out ſome inſtances of this kind, but it will avail nothing at preſent, they are regiſtered in heaven.

HARTFORD, Nov. 5.

Laſt Friday ended the Fall Seſſions of our General Aſſembly at New-Haven.

The Child that was left at the Tavern in Farmington, as mentioned in our laſt, belonged to New-Haven, and its unnatural mother is the Wife of one Benjamin Oſborn.

ALL parties have reaſon to complain of this law, or the capacity of the judges, as they differ from themſelves, except the petty foggers and nine penny ſtock jobbers——'tis hoped the legiſlators (of this colony where chriſtian and political freedom is in its zenith) will at leaſt try to form an explicit meaning to ſaid ambiguous law or repeal it, and ſo let every man pay as his conſcience ſhall dictate—but if the former, the ſubject will know what to do—if the latter, 'twill be bad enough—pray let it be known to whom the collector is accountable by this law, for the rate collected of a churchman, for I cannot find out, by any woful experiment yet tried—for if the collector or treaſurer or committee are ſued, the action barrs, or if all jointly, then the action bars, by the opinion and practice of different judges. I therefore give it as my opinion, that the general court would do great juſtice, by aſcertaining the meaning of ſaid laws—reſpecting churchmen baptiſts and other ſchiſmaticks (as they are called by a learned judge of the law) but ſhould they think otherwiſe my opinion is that all the clergy of the epiſcopal diſſention for the future depend upon the Lord and not upon the preſent law for their ſupport; hereby will make a ſaving of collective litigation and vaſt pure expences; hereby alſo may ſilent the popular legaliſts and fulfil the deſign of the goſpel—the deſign of the goſpel by preaching to the poor for nothing which will compel of all denominations of heriticks and ſchiſmaticks to come in the chriſtian church more than the force of reaſon the ſtrength of conſcience and the word of God have kept out for theſe two hundred years.

The free toleration given epiſcopal diſſenters by real diſſenters I muſt well reſemble the favours of many (not Queen of Seats) obſerve their law ſays, that churchmen ſhall be taxed by and with diſſenters——Suppoſe now a vacant pariſh in this colony of diſſenters who contend & refuſe ſettling a teacher among them for ten years all this time are no rates to be paid——Suppoſe alſo that in ſaid pariſh are fifty churchmen and a parſon in orders 'tis a fact the clergyman all theſe ten years can recover no rates by this compaſſionate law becauſe the diſſenters will not tax themſelves nor churchmen who not much unlike their brethren, are proud of legal righteouſneſs and a ſtarved prieſt—who voluntarily ſay, Where is your tax? Can it be ſuppoſed this was the cordial intention of the legiſlator, thus to uſe Epiſcopalian miniſters whoſe unhappy lot and portion ſhall happen to be reſident among them? No, no. For diſſenters love a free and generous toleration, eſpecially for themſelves. Therefore the law ſays, "That when diſſenters taxation of churchmen fall ſhort of paying their miniſter, then they may tax themſelves." Incomprehenſible liberty this! Epiſcopalian ſons rejoice and exert your gratitude for nothing!——You might do juſt ſo much before this law of licence' and may tell the diſſenters that they may give their miniſters what money they pleaſe. And here you need not fear that tythes and hundreds will be given, ſeeing the law of God by Moſes is repealed—Behold the licence given to churchmen. But did the legiſlator deſign to aſſiſt ſuch licence with a warrant to enforce it? The anſwer is viſible in the following narration of facts, viz. The wardens and veſtry made a rate on themſelves, &c. for a warrant applied to a juſtice who, for wiſe and known reaſon is not a churchman, who replied thus, You had no legal meeting when you made your rate——the law does not ſay I ſhall give a warrant——implication is nothing, &c—The wardens ſaid, how ſhall we have a legal meeting?——The Eſquire ſaid I muſt ſign a notification, and lead you to a choice of a clerk, &c. Well, Mr. juſtice, we aſk for ſuch a notification. Ah! ſaid the juſtice, I cannot give it by any law——Implication is nothing——Lord have mercy on us! Mr. juſtice why then was the law made that churchmen ſhould tax themſelves, if the diſſenters did not tax them high enough, what power, what privileges have churchmen by this law? Mr. juſtice wiſely and legally anſwered, I will tell——

"Tom Tib went one evening to drive home the cows——it come into his head to take his gun, as bears formerly were plenty, not thinking he ſhould find a bear while after the cows; but coming into the cow-paſture, thought there might be a bear in a certain thicket of vines,—and as he came nigher to the ſwamp he heard a noiſe——he cock'd his gun——drew it up to his face——walk'd ſoftly round the buſhes, not thinking to find any thing—but when he got round the corner, behold! he found——nothing——"

Upon the whole, that which is crooked ſhould be made ſtraight. To do that let churchmen, quakers, baptiſts, new lights, &c &c. turn whigs and for the future refuſe paſſive obedience to any oppreſſive, tyrannical laws, and cry aloud for redreſs of grievancies and intollerable burdens placed on ſeven by a unit.——If ſuch men have the ſenſe of feeling, and ſpirit of martyrs they unitedly may have redreſs without delay. Let but ſufferings and indignation meet it will create an emetic, which will cauſe terrible convulſions in the Boſom of this colony, ſhake the lucrative poſt of governor, and make councillors tremble next May.

It will be publiſhed in half ſheets, in ſuch manner as that when compleated, it may be bound in a ſmall octavo volume. It will come out on Fridays, and may be had at the Printing Office in Hartford, every Monday, for five coppers each number.

Now in the Preſs, & will ſpeedily compleated. be

A poſthumous Publication, of Six Diſcourſes, preached by the Rev'd NATHANAEL HOOKER, late of Hartford, deceaſed, on the following Subjects and Texts, Viz.

I. A Grateful Recollection of GOD's Providence Particularly relative to the remarkable Settlement, Defence, and Increaſe, of the four New England Colonies——being a Diſcourſe delivered on the Annual Thankſgiving, November 17, 1768, from Deuteronomy xxxii, 7.

II. A particular Providence aſſerted, demonſtrated and improved. Proverbs xx. 24.

III. Chriſtian Sincerity John i, 47.

IV. Scripture Examples, their Deſign and Uſe. Hebrews xi, 32.

V. The Nature, Extent, and obligations of Charity delivered before the North Aſſociation, in Hartford County, and as the Author apprehended, and as the Reader will ſee, and the Event afterwards proved, THE LAST SERMON he Preached to his Bretheren in the Miniſtry, 1 Corinthians xiii. 3.

VI Pertinent Reflections on Old-Age, or Old Age Improved Geneſis xlvii 8, 9.

It is ſuppoſed the above Sermons will contain Six Sheets, will be printed in a legible Character, on good Paper——ſew'd in a Book covered with Paper, afforded to the Subſcribers at One Shilling and Four Pence Lawful Money, to be Paid at the Delivery of the Books.

N. B. The above Sermons are carried to the Preſs as they were left in the Authors own Hand Writing ſufficiently correct for Printing. Its apprehended, by good Judges that in Sentiment, Method and Stile the Compoſition is delicate and excellent, that the Reader, if ſerious and judicious will be both edified and pleaſed; and conſidering the Importance and Uſefulneſs of the Subjects treated of, Mr HOOKERS approved Character, as an Author, how cheap the Books will come to the Subſcribers, and that none will be Printed, except for thoſe concerned in the Subſcriptions, it is hoped the work will ſoon be compleated.

WHEREAS upon the report of the Commiſſioners on the eſtate of Mr. Stephen Blake, late Conſtable of Middletown, his eſtate is inſolvent; and by the advice and direction of the Court of Probate, for the diſtrict of Middletown, the eſtate of the ſaid Blake, both real and perſonal, is ordered to be ſold at private Sale, if it can be ſold for near the value it was appriſed at in the Inventory. Whoever inclines to purchaſe all, or part of ſaid eſtate, are deſired to apply to the ſubſcriber, adminiſtrator on ſaid eſtate, any time between this and the laſt Monday of November next on which laſt Monday of November, I purpoſe to attend at the dwelling-houſe of Mrs. Eſther Wetmore of Middletown, to make legal conveyances, if ſold—if not, I am ordered farther to adviſe with ſaid court about the ſales thereof. The eſtate is a home lot, of about eight acres, with about 20 apple trees, a ſmall manſion houſe, one ſtory and an half high, with three fire places below, and a cellar under the whole, with a good barn cow houſe, ſtable and neceſſary houſe, and good well, ſituate about a mile and a half from the meeting houſe, in the firſt ſociety in Middletown. Alſo five other pieces of land of about 70 acres, within a mile and an half of the ſaid homeſtead, all under good improvement except about forty acres of woodland; four of ſaid pieces are within half a mile of ſaid houſe, and conſiſt of good plow, paſture and mowing land.

SETH WETMORE.

Adminiſtrator on ſaid eſtate.

Said Wetmore has alſo to ſell or let, a dwelling houſe, tan yard, and ſhoemaker's ſhop, with 40 rods of land, well watered for tanning and where the ſhoemaking and tanning buſineſs has been lately carried on, ſituate about one mile from the above meeting houſe, and near a good corn mill.

THE Subſcriber, having at great Expence, furniſhed himſelf with an elegant, and convenient Stage Coach, and four Horſes, propoſes for a low and moderate Price, upon ſuitable Encouragement, to drive between Hartford, and New-Haven, once in each Week, and to return to Hartford, the Day after he comes down to New-Haven; and as it may greatly tend to encreaſe the Intercourſe between the two Towns of Hartford and New Haven, and (if another Coach ſhould proceed from Hartford, to Boſton as it probable will be the Caſe if that takes place) encourge Gentlemen from the Southern Provinces, travelling to Boſton to paſs through this Colony who now generally go by Water from New York to Providence. And as he muſt for a long Time at leaſt, be Money out of Pocket, and riſque impoſing on himſelf conſiderable Loſs, he humbly deſires all Gentlemen diſpoſed to countenance the Undertaking, to leave their Names at the Printing Office in New Haven, or at his houſe in Hartford, adding ſuch Sum for him as their Generoſity ſhall dictate.

If any Gentlemen are diſpoſed to ſhare with him, the Loſs or Gain of the Undertaking, he is ready to admit them into Partnerſhip.

NICHOLAS BROWN.

TO BE SOLD,

"THIS GUNPOWDER PLOT DISCOVERED."

Fœlix, qui poteit rerum cognoſcere cauſas. R

Happy the man of mortals, happyeſt (he,
Who can from their effects, their (cauſes ſee.

Mr. Watſon,

AM very much pleas'd with the good ſenſe, learning, and good nature apparent in the Obſervator No. XIII, in your paper, and heartily wiſh him ſucceſs in endeavouring to free the people, from what he very juſtly ſtiles "the worſt of all exactions—a legal one." And as a further expreſſion of my good will—ſhall, through the channel of your paper communicate to him, and publiſh the hiſtory of judge Brierbuſh, that lived in the reign of George II, and was a near relation to your lawyer Bramble, and a curious antiquarian is of opinion, that they both deſcended from the antient family of the Brambles mentioned in the ninth chapter of Judges: and that lawyer Bramble and judge Brierbuſh, have endeavour'd, as far as their power and reſolution wou'd admit, to keep up to the character of the firſt founders of the family.

The Judge, like all other Brambles and Brierbuſhes, roſe from dirt to opulence, by ſucking the ſtrength out of all the beſt land, and ſtarving all around him.—From being ſued in a great number of actions himſelf he firſt learnt to ſerve a writ, and then to draw it. And as a great number of his abated, he learnt to abate others—'till at length, at the expence of his employers, he became a mere adept in all the tricks and quirks of the law—the true grounds & reaſons of law, I myſelf have heard him own, he never knew. But by this method of making conſtant uſe of all the tricks & quirks of law, he rais'd a reputation of the ſame kind of the ſoil, from which he ſprang—and as likeneſs begets love, he ſoon collected and aſſimilated a great number of Shrubs and Brambles and Brierbuſhes, that took their riſe from much the ſame ſoil, and grew much in the ſame manner—'til at laſt he obtain'd among them, the character of the ableſt manager of all cauſes that took their riſe from the ſame ſoil—But as a large Brierbuſh was found, by long experience, to be very troubleſome at the bar, thoſe that officiated there were deſirous of moving it, as they thought, out of their way, to the bench—and accordingly effected the thing—but to their great mortification they found, that their expedient did not anſwer their deſign of getting rid of him, but only enlarged the ſphere of his action, and that in dancing from the bar to the bench, & from the bench to the bar, he ſcratch'd worſe than ever. For though like your lawyer Bramble, he cou'd adviſe to a caſe to bring it forward, and ſwear to ſupport it, yet before his elevatian to the bench, he cou'd never, by a legal judgment, determine in favour of his friend, or againſt his enemy; and to their coſt they ſoon found, they had by their thus advancing him to the bench from the bar, only jump'd out of the frying-pan into the fire.—But as the ſupreme diſpoſer of all things, has ſo ordered that good frequently comes out of evil, this perhaps gave being to an act of parliament, made in the 5th of George II, by which it is provided, (ſays a learned modern writer upon the law) "that no practiſing attorney, ſolicitor or proctor, ſhall be capable of acting as a juſtice of the peace." Judge Blackſtone, Vo. I F 353.

And though I muſt confeſs, I have no opinion of extending acts of parliament in general, to the plantations; yet if extending this, wou'd in any meaſure prove a remedy, which the Obſervator's exceſſive modeſty, wou'd not ſuffer him to "attempt," I ſhou'd be glad to have this ſingle act extended, with a proviſo in favour of all honeſt lawyers.——For "certainly (as the Obſervator afterwards very judiciouſly obſerves) to wiſh to be freed from the almoſt infinite number of vexatious law-ſuits; or "for relief, is neither idle or impertinent," unleſs his friend Vulture ſhould convince the public, that the above (ſuits and) expences are not only neceſſary, but beneficial to the colony in general and individuals.

Shall add here one curious anecdote in the hiſtory of judge Brierbuſh, which may perhaps give us ſome general, faint idea of his true character.

"Mr. Querens, after having modeſtly obſerv'd to Dr. Blunt, that he had heard many complain, of the Doctors good friend judge Brierbuſh, aſk'd him to be ſo kind as to give him his true character. That, ſays the Doctor, is not in my power—but this I can ſay in one word that he is ſuch a devil, that if he could get five ſhillings, by adviſing the beſt friend he has in the world, into the law to ſpend five hundred pounds, he'd certainly do it." Or in the language of a late elegant poet,

"At war with every welfare but his (own,
As wiſe as Lucifer, and half as good;
And by whom none but Lucifer can (gain."

As it is now grown late at night, muſt omit the remainder of this curious hiſtory, to another opportunity, and conclude a real friend and admirer of every honeſt lawyer and upright judge. Your conſtant reader, Connecticut, Nov. 5th. A.D. 1771. } Honestus.

BROKE out of the county goal in this town laſt night, a young man of about 20 years of age, well ſet, ſhort of ſtature, pretty fair complexion, wears his own hair of a dark colour, calls himſelf by the name of John Brown, and has been twice crop'd and branded for burglary.—Alſo Thomas Martin, about 23 years old, light colour'd waiſtcoat, lined with green baize, ſwarthy complexion, wears his own dark colour'd hair, and was committed for horſe ſtealing.—Alſo one Edward Davis, about 40 years old, was committed laſt ſummer for paſſing counterfeit coins, has had his trial, was found guilty, but has not had his puniſhment.——Alſo Mercy Burgy of Colcheſter, about 50 years old, committed for criminal converſation with a negro. Whoever ſhall take up one or all of the above criminals, and return them to the goal from whence they made their eſcape, ſhall have TWENTY SHILLINGS reward for each, paid by JOHN LORD, Goaler.

TITUS IVES.

Norfolk, October 2*d,* 1771.

SALEM, Nov. 5.

Laſt Saturday Capt. Peaſe, in the Brig Union, arrived at Marblebead from London, by whom we are favoured with a London Print of the 17th of Sept. from which the following Articles were taken, viz.

PETERSBURGH, Auguſt 16.

BY ſeveral letters from our army under Prince Dolgorouki, we learn, that our fleet from Aſoph is in the harbour of Caffa, which has ſtruck terror into the inhabitants of Conſtantinople.

Arta in Lower Albany, July 31.

They write from Negropont that the peaſants of the neighbouring countries have quitted their habitations to take ſhelter in the heart of the iſland. Athens has been ſacked, and the natives of Albany, in their different incurſions, have laid waſte above a hundred leagues of ground.

Reading, (England) Sept. 14. Britain, who has lately engaged the public attention, by acknowledging himſelf to be one of the incendiaries employed to burn Portſmouth dock-yard, ſtill perſiſts in his former declaration, and ſeems greatly diſappointed, that no order has yet been received for his removal to London; he denies having the leaſt knowledge of Dudley, and is quite ſilent relative to the particulars of the fire; though he ſometimes appears fond of giving a detail of the various ſcenes of villany in which he has been engaged; among others, he mentions having received a ſum of money in June 1770. (in conjunction with four more) to ſhoot a Great Perſon in Hyde-park, which he ſays would actually have been effected, had not his Piſtol miſſed fire.

LONDON, Sept. 13. 1771.

Letters from Breſt ſay, that ſome hundreds of the Engliſh ſhip-builders, who were employed in the King's Yard there, are ordered to Toulon, to expedite the fitting out of ſome men of war ſaid to be deſtined for the French ſettlements in North-America.

It appears, from the navy regiſters kept in every ſea port town in France, that 43,000 ſea-men are enrolled in the French King's ſervice.

Sept. 17. It is now ſaid the Parliament will meet for the diſpatch of buſineſs ſome time in November.

Laſt week Sir Robert Bernard and Barre arrived in the town from their travels; they have made the tour of Spain, Italy, and Portugal, where it is ſaid they have picked up ſome material intelligence.

Two Algerine Xebiques have taken a Daniſh frigate of 20 guns in the Mediterranean, after an engagement of one hour, and have carried her into Algiers. The Capt. and ſome of the crew eſcaped in their long boat, whilſt the Barbarians were boarding their frigate. They were ſoon after taken up by an Engliſh frigate, which went in purſuit of the Xebeques, but without being able to come up with them; the account ſays the Mediterranean ſwarms with theſe pirates.

We are aſſured that ſome extraordinary Changes in the Admiralty and Navy-Offices will take place at the beginning of the enſuing Winter.

There is a current report that the merchants of London will eſpouſe the cauſe of Meſſrs. Aldermen Peers and Naſh at the enſuing election for Lord-Mayor; if ſo, it is thought their connections in trade will carry the election.

A letter from a gentleman at Dunkirk, to his friend in town, mentions, that an embarkation of troops was carrying on with great expedition at that place, and at the different ſeaports in France.

Saturday advice was received by expreſs from Paris, to a merchant of this city, that an account was brought there of the ſailing of two fleets, one from Breſt, and the other from Toulon; that they had taken on board proviſions for ſix months, but to what part they were bound was kept a profound ſecret. It further ſays, that councils are daily held, and that Count de Guignes is preſent at all of them.

LONDON, Auguſt 31.

We learn from good authority, that the French King has iſſued orders for immediately manning and victualling twenty ſail of the line, to be ready for ſervice at the ſhorteſt notice.

The proſpect of an Eaſt-India war is ſo ſtrong, that Heyder Ally has lodged 2,500,000 pagodas with a merchant at Fort St. George, to purchaſe the aſſiſtance of the Engliſh Company.

Six Couriers, with Letters to the French Chargé de Affaires, have arrived ſince the Departure of the Count de Guignes. It is ſaid the Count is ſoon expected to return hither.

Sept. 14. Lord North has declared he will not quit the helm till he has conveyed the political veſſel into a quiet harbour. "I took the command (ſaid he, lately to a naval friend) in the midſt of a hurricane, and have almoſt reached a port of ſecurity; when I caſt an anchor to my ſatisfaction there, the admiral may give the rudder to whom he pleaſes, and my beſt wiſhes for a proſperous voyage ſhall certainly attend the new captain."

The pretended diſcoveries of Dudley and Britain, relative to ſetting fire to Portſmouth dock-yard, gain not the leaſt credit at the Weſt end of the town; but they are impatient to hear how the hum will end.

Britain and Dudley are culprits deſerving a ſevere puniſhment, whether they did or did not actually ſet fire to Portſmouth dock-yard.

Britain was a priſoner for forgery, and Dudley for debt, and their information is thought to be a ſcheme to get rid of their difficulties, and a releaſe from confinement.

The Northington Eaſt Indiamen, lately arrived, hath brought over an Arabian Poney, extremely fierce and ravenous, valued at 3000 guineas, and the whelp, of a wild Tyger. In her paſſage ſhe met with a ſtorm, when both got looſe. The horſe killed one man and devoured him, and tore out the bowels of another, before they could ſecure him again. The whelp got upon the gib boom, where it ſat a conſiderable time, to the no ſmall terror of the ſhip's company; at laſt a Sailor ſwore, if the Captain would give him a Cann he would fetch it down if it was the Devil. The promiſe given, up went the Tar, and brought him down as gentle as a Lamb. The whelp, it is ſuppoſed, had a ſtrong ſenſation of its danger, and expreſſed its gratitude to its kind preſerver, by permitting him to play with it with great familiarity, whilſt to every other perſon who approached him, he ſhewed the Ferocity of his Nature.

Amongſt the many reports about the perſons of high rank that are concerned in the fire at Portſmouth, it is ſaid, that a certain great perſonage, who has long been the cat's paw of an unpopular junto, is very ſtrongly ſuſpected of having ſome concern about that buſineſs, People are tender in ſpeaking out upon the occaſion, but it is certain that he is, and for ſome time has been, in actual cuſtody; His houſe is night and day ſurrounded by a ſtrong guard, and when he is permitted to go abroad, he is conſtantly attended by a troop of light horſe.

NEW-YORK, November 7.

Extract of a Letter from Kingſton, in Jamaica, September 16, 1771.

"SEPT. 3d. This Morning about 8 o'Clock, we had a moſt dreadful & terrible Earthquake, which laſted about one Minute; had it continued half that Time longer every Houſe in this City muſt have been levelled to the Ground. The Shock was ſo ſevere that it was with much Difficulty People could keep their Feet. The general Terror among the Inhabitants can better be conceived than expreſſed; every One being in dreadful Expectation of inſtantaneous Death It pleaſed God, however, to ſpare us, and in his Judgments to remember Mercy. My Houſe rocked like a Cradle, and I fully expected it muſt have rent aſunder. Think my Friend, what muſt have been the Situation of my Mind on this Occaſion! To ſee my Wife and Family flying frantic & wild, ſeeking Protection from me—Good God! I would not paſs ſuch another Minute tho' to purchaſe Millions of Worlds.—About Half an Hour after, we had another Shock, tho' not ſo violent, and betwen 9 and 10 at Night, another ſomething harder than the laſt. The next Day there were no leſs than five Shocks more, and between that Time and the Date of this Letter, ſcarce a ſingle Day has paſſed without our feeling this dreadful Convulſion of Nature, and ſtill this City is preſerved as a Monument of God's Mercy & Goodneſs. The late Earthquake at Hiſpaniola being called to our Minds afreſh, you may well imagine added much to our Apprehenſions."

On Saturday the 26th ult. ended our Supreme Court, at which William Daviſon was convicted of Felony, and received Sentence to be hanged on the fifteenth inſt.

On Wedneſday laſt the Sloop Jenny, Francis Lowndes, Maſter, arrived here in 19 days from Turks Iſland, in a very diſtreſs'd condition. Soon after they left the Iſland, the Captain and moſt of his people were taken ſick, principally owing to their having eaten a poiſonous kind of Fiſh at St. Thomas's. The Veſſel about the ſame time ſprung a Leak, ſufficient to keep one Pump almoſt conſtantly going, and they have much reaſon to believe that had they not fortunately fell in with Capt. John Wilſon, (in the Brig George, bound from Philadelphia to Cadiz, on the 25th ult. in Lat, 37, 35, two Days out, all well) who moſt generouſly aſſiſted them, with what freſh proviſions, and other Neceſſaries they wanted, they could not have got the Veſſel to Port, and therefore they conſider themſelves as bound in Gratitude make to this public acknowledgement to Capt. Wilſon for his Kindneſs.

On the 12*th of October, his Excellency the Earl of Dunmore, Governor of Virginia iſſued a Proclamation, diſſolving the General Aſſembly of Virginia, the Reaſons for which are not mentioned, nor any Thing of the Election of a new Aſſembly.*

ANNAPOLIS, (in Maryland,) October 24.

There are at this Time, in his Excellency the Governor's Garden, two Trees, that, in their proper Seaſon, brought plentiful crops of fruit, now ſtock'd with ſundry cluſters of apples, of a ſecond crop, and One of them continuing ſtill in Bloſſom.——A remarkable inſtance of the oppenneſs of the Seaſon, as well as of the ſuperfæcundity of nature.

QUEBEC, October, 10.

On Thurſday the 26 of September laſt between the Hours of 4 and 5 in the Evening happened the following extraordinary Accident, viz.

Upon the Arrival of a young Man, in a Caleche at one Joſeph Renaud's Door in the Pariſh of St. Peters, South River, the Earth opened, ſwallowed up, and buried him under its Maſs, together with the Carriage and two Horſes. There were in the houſe a Woman, two Girls, and a young Lad; the latter perceiving this extraordinary Accident, cried out let us ſave ourſelves, at the ſame Time going out of the houſe to make his Eſcape, when he ſaw the Earth again opening about 18 Feet wide, which obliged him to retire, but the Woman, who likewiſe endeavoured to ſave herſelf, was ſwallowed up; the Lad was returning into the Houſe where the Girls had remained, in the greateſt conſternation and fright, when all on a ſudden it fell down, was carried to about the Diſtance of an Acre and Half from where it ſtood, and buried in the River, under an enormous Maſs of Land, which prevents any Part of its being ſeen except the End of one of the Rafters; notwithſtanding the Lad was only found up to the Shoulders in the Earth, and whoſe doleful Cries brought ſome People to his Aſſiſtance, who had almoſt dug him out, when the Barn, which was at a greater Diſtance than the Houſe, fell and was likewiſe ſwallowed up in the Abyſs, this obliged the People to leave the Lad, who continued calling for their Aſſiſtance; but a little Time after, notwithſtanding the Danger, they returned and ſaved him.

This Immerſion has formed a Bank, at leaſt three Acres broad, the Height of which exceeds the Shore, by about 15 Feet; it has ſhut up the Channel of the River in ſuch a Manner, that the Waters had not ceaſed to re flow the 29th, and left it quite dry below the Bank.

It is a difficult Matter to diſcover the Cauſe of ſo extraordinary a falling as there was not the leaſt Sign of an Earthquake, and as it was a Hill, the declivity of which to the River was very gentle: Yet, as the land formed a ſmall Creek, againſt which the Waters ſtruck, and had cut a very deep Channel therein, it is to be preſumed, that having, by Degrees, waſhed away the Earth, which is of a very ſoft Clay, it had in Courſe of Time, made a ſubterraneous paſſage; This appears the more probable, as in the Place where the land ſunk, there appeared a deep Pit about 60 Feet perpendicular.

It is to be obſerved that ſome days before this Accident, the Chimney ſeemed to the Maſter of the Houſe to have ſunk, and a few Stones had fallen down.

On the Whole we leave, to the Conſideration of Perſons of better judgment, to give ſome more natural Reaſons for the above fatal Event.

BOSTON, Nov. 7.

By letters, &c. from the Bay of Honduras we learn, that there is, and like to continue, a great famine in that country, the locuſt having overſpread the country in ſuch a manner, that they have eat up every green thing: and it is ſaid in ſome parts that they lay on the ground a foot thick—At Ambergreaſe, it is ſaid, that 17,000 Indians had died for want, and in other parts of the country thouſands were dead, and dying; ſo that it was computed that upwards of 80,000 Indians had died with the famine when the laſt accounts came away.—Proviſions were very ſcarce at our ſettlements on the Bay, ſo that many veſſels failed from thence with very ſhort allowance; the famine is alſo great among the Spaniards, they having ſent to Honduras for flour.

Tueſday laſt being the fifth of November, the ſame was obſerved here as uſual.

We learn that notwithſtanding the various reports in England relating to a rupture with the French or Spaniards, that Great-Britain muſt either bear the inſults of foreigners, or chaſtiſe their inſolence by the art of War.

Extract of a Letter from Portſmouth, to his Friend in this Town dated September 11, 1771.

"We are not very briſk in our motions here, we are all waiting and making the beſt preparations we can, in order to be in readineſs when the firſt blow is ſtruck."

HARTFORD, November 12.

A few days ſince the dwelling-houſe of Mr. Sexton of Colcheſter, accidentally took fire, and was entirely conſumed, together with all the houſhold furniture.

A few Days ſince died at Litchfield, the Rev. Solomon Palmer, an Epiſcopalian Miniſter at that place.

We hear from Charleſtown, South-Carolina, that Dr. Haley, who had been ſome time abſent on account of an affair of honor with Mr. De Lancy, has voluntarily ſurrendered himſelf to take his trial at the general ſeſſions, which was to begin on Monday the 21ſt of October.

STray'd or ſtolen out of the paſture of Mr John Skinner of Hartford, about four weeks ſince, a dark bay MARE, ſix years old, both paces and trots about 14 half hands high, branded on her fore near hoof with W T ——Whoever ſhall take up and return ſaid ſtray to the owner, ſhall be handſomely rewarded, and have all neceſſary charges paid, by

TO THE PRINTER.
SIR,

HAPPINESS is univerſally allowed to be the object which all mankind, ſome way or other, are in purſuit of. At the ſame time it is univerſally allowed, that few, very few, if any, ever attain it. If we take a view of mankind in general, we ſhall find this obſervation very juſt. For, if you aſk a man who riſes early, and takes ſcarcely any reſt, thereby ſacrificing the hours which nature intended for the refreſhment of ſleep, to the hurry and fatigue of buſineſs ; if you ſhould aſk this man, I ſay, Why he is purſuing buſineſs with ſuch earneſtneſs and ſolicitude ? he will immediately tell you, That it is to acquire a fortune, with which, after having borne the burden and heat of the day, he may live happy the reſt of his days, ſit down and enjoy himſelf, and partake the pleaſures which proceed from a retired life, domeſtic happineſs, and ſocial friendſhip. Thus he is building caſtles in the air, anticipating joys which he will never poſſeſs, and taking anxious tho'ts not only for the morrow, but for a diſtant period of time, which moſt probably he will never ſee. For how many men of this ſtamp have we ſeen, who, juſt when they were about to retire from buſineſs, have retired into the other world ? whilſt they were building a commodious houſe, and furniſhing it with a thouſand decorations, death, cruel inſatiable death, was preparing them a bed in the ſilent, ſolitary grave, where the indigent man lays as ſoftly, and ſleeps as ſoundly, as the moſt oppulent poſſeſſor. And of thoſe few who retire from buſineſs, are thoſe happy expectations they had conceived fully anſwered ? Are thoſe pleaſing ideas they had formed realized ? No ; the man who has been uſed to hurry and buſtle of buſineſs connot bear the ſolicitude of retirement. Time, that heavieſt of burdens, hangs upon his hands ; he cannot find amuſement for his leiſure hours, and would willingly engage again in that buſineſs which he ſo lately quitted. As he is not contented, of courſe he cannot be happy. Let us next take a view of thoſe who glory in their high birth and ſounding titles, who revel in fortune's lap, and enjoy all the pleaſures which riches and honour can afford ; whoſe life is one continued ſcene of gay diverſions and faſhionable amuſements. Surely theſe muſt be happy who poſſeſs every thing their imaginations can fancy, or their hearts can wiſh ?—No, they are not ; the enjoyment of theſe things produce nothing but diſappointment ; and a life ſpent in purſuit of them will end in vanity and vexation of ſpirit. Beſides, in their exalted ſtation they are ſubject to envy and ambition, two paſſions as diametrically oppoſite to the nature of happineſs, as light is to darkneſs, as virtue is to vice. The one creates an anxiety in their minds when they behold any perſon poſſeſs an accompliſhment which they are not maſter of ; the other (ambition) never permits them to attain the height of their wiſhes ; and whilſt there remains anxiety in the mind, there can be no happineſs ; where there remains an enjoyment unfulfilled, a craving unſatisfied, there can be no felicity. Thus, if we were to enquire into the lives of different characters and profeſſions in the world, as philoſophers, poets, ſtateſmen and divines, we ſhould find, that theſe likewiſe come ſhort of the mark. But if there is ſuch a thing as happineſs to be obtained on this ſide of the grave ſurely it belongs to that man who lives a life of contentment, eats the bread of induſtry, and ſleeps the ſleep of temperance ; who maintains that beſt of bleſſings, a good conſcience, and enjoys the gift of providence with a thankful heart ; who, as a member of ſociety, contributes every thing in his power for the good of the community to which he belongs ; and, as a private man, fills every character of life with integrity and uprightneſs. This man is happy, this man is bleſſed in all his works.

H.

A Diſpute hath, for ſome time paſt, been carried on in the Virginia News papers for and againſt an American Epiſcopate, in which the writers, on both ſides have diſcovered great ingenuity and abilities. The following humorous addreſs appeared in a Paper of the 10th inſt. and ſeems deſigned to ridicule a publication in a preceeding paper, for convening the clergy of that colony, with a view of petitioning for a Biſhop to preſide over them.

To the TAYLORS in the colony and dominion of Virginia.

Dearly beloved BRETHERN,

WITH the approbation of a good conſcience, I deſire a convention of the TAYLORS at Williamſburgh, the 16th of this inſtant, when (at this critical juncture) matters of very great importance (to the TAYLORS only) will be laid before you. It is probable that before that time another cauſe of meeting will ariſe, and which it will be our duty to attend. But, that none may be backward in coming, I think it neceſſary they ſhould know ſome ſmall part of the important matters that will be then agitated : It is no leſs than to join unanimouſly in drawing up a petition for a GRAND TAYLOR to preſide over us ; for want of which we have long laboured under many intollerable grievances. Such a Supreme Judge of our trade would not ſuffer us to be uſed as we have hitherto been ; for although it is well known NINE TAYLORS but make a man, yet are we often had up before the odious courts of juſtice, and dock'd of our juſt charges ; and if we but cabbage ever ſo little, we are ſometimes forced to rake hell to make ſatiſfaction, which would never happen, had we an independant juriſdiction of our own, and we have every bit as good a right to it as the CLERGY.

I am, reſpectfully, Gentlemen, your affectionate brother,
and very humble ſervant,
JOHN THIMBLE.

GOOSE, NEEDLE, & SHEARS, Eſquires, are Candidates for the above high office.

BOSTON, November 14.

Yeſterday arrived here Capt. Lyde, in 7 Weeks from London; by whom we have the following Advices from the public Prints, viz.

VENICE, Aug. 24.

LETTERS from Corſou Adviſe, that the Ottoman fleet, conſiſting of 56 ſail having run the hazard of ſailing out from the Dardanelles, whilſt Vice Admiral Arf was cruiſing in the Streights of Tenedos; the Ruſſians attacked and purſued them into the port of Modron, where they were deſtroyed or burnt, except four caravelles, which they have taken. This action happened on the fifth of laſt month.

LONDON, September 17 to 20.

From good authority the Printer received the following account, dated Venice the 24th of Auguſt, 1771:—They write from Corſu, that a Turkiſh fleet, conſiſting of fifty-ſix ſail, came out of the Dardanelles by order of the Grand Signior, and that Rear-Admiral Arf, who cruiſed with his ſquadron thereabouts, having met them, affected to ſhun them till he had drawn them out upon the high ſea; then facing about, he attacked them with ſuch impetuoſity, that the aſtoniſhed Turks betook themſelves to flight, and ſaved themſelves in the harbour of Modron near Lemnos, where they erected batteries on ſhore, in order to defend the entrance of the port. Rear-Admiral Arf, who was not ſtrong enough to force the entrance, blocked up the mouth of it, in order to hinder the Turks from eſcaping, while he ſent for ſuccours; and Admiral Spiritoff, upon the firſt notice, flew immediately to join him; they then ſet aſhore 1500 Albanians who, with ſurpriſing bravery, took the Turkiſh batteries; ſo that our ſhips entered the harbour without any reſiſtance, and burned the whole Turkiſh fleet, except only four Caravells, which have been ſaved and fell into the hands of the victors. This affair happened on the 5th of July laſt.

The virulent & unjuſt abuſe daily propagated againſt the public and private character of a great perſonage calls to mind what a celebrated female hiſtorian is ſaid to have thrown out in a company of Republicans, who were treating the Royal character with great freedom and levity: "I am (ſaid ſhe) as much for a Republic as any of you; but whilſt you have a King, treat him like a Gentleman."

The late Mr. Pelham, as able and as honeſt a miniſter as any this country has been bleſt with, was once ſolicited by a hackney-writer of better parts than principles to engage his pen in defence of the King and his Adminiſtration, but declining to give the leaſt encouragement, the man retired, muttering, that he would draw his pen againſt them: when Mr. Pelham, with becoming dignity, ſaid, "You may write againſt me as much as you pleaſe, but depend upon it, that my gracious Maſter's character ſhall not be traduced with impunity."

One day laſt week an officer of the Cuſtoms at Rocheſter, ſearched a young lady's high head, on an information, and found concealed in her roll a large quantity of foreign lace, which he ſeized. It is thought this new mode of ſmuggling has been practiſed with great ſucceſs, but by the above diſcovery the ladies heads will be often ſubject to an examination, which will diſcommode the oeconomy of their hair. If this fact ſhould induce the fair ſex to lower their heads to a moderate ſtandard, it will be a great ſaving to the Nation.

A correſpondent ſays that the paragraph in our paper concerning a painter's bill, brings to his remembrance a ſtory of a ſimilar nature: a church warden in his pariſh having been at ſome conſiderable trouble to remove a woman who was with child out of his parophical territories, innocently made a charge of it in his bill to the veſtry, in the following words. To getting a Woman with Child out of the Pariſh? 2s. 6d.

A perſon preſent aſked him what he would charge for getting a woman with child, in the Pariſh?

Extract of a Letter from Chatham, September 15.

"All our docks and ſlips are full in building and repairing ſhips at this port."

A perſon lately arrived from Madrid ſays, that the King of Spain is taking the moſt effectual method to increaſe his marine, and that the Spaniards, in caſe of a war, will become more formidable than they have for ſome tieme appeared.

A perſon lately arrived from Cadiz, informs, that no leſs than five veſſels, laded with troops and ammunition, have ſailed from thence within theſe two months for the Spaniſh ſettlements.

A maſter of a veſſel lately arrived from the Weſt-Indies ſays, he ſpoke with nine ſail of Spaniſh men of war, and that the Commodore hoiſted out his boat and boarded him, and aſked him, if he knew what men of war were at Jamaica, to which he anſwered in the negative. They behaved very civilly.

By a Dutch ſhip that is arrived off Dover, from Denia we have advice, that the Spaniards have ten ſhips of the line, four frigates, and ſeveral ſtoreſhips, lying in the harbours there, all ready to ſail at a few hours notice; and a Regiment of ſoldiers daily exerciſing, which are to be embarked as ſoon as orders come for their ſailing. The Capt. further ſays, that they will not admit an Engliſh ſhip into their harbours.

A report prevails at the weſt end of the town, that the Court of Spain have, by a new treaty, guarantied to France all her ſettlements in New-Orleans on the American continent for ever.

A Correſpondent aſſures us he has receved letters from Spain, which mention, that it is a general talk there, that the whole force of the Court of Madrid will ſhortly be employed againſt the Ruſſians, if ſo, it is impoſſible that England can long preſerve her neutrality.

We hear from Plymouth that ſix ſail of large ſhips, ſuppoſed to be French Men of War, paſſed by in the night of the 15th of this Month.

SALEM, November 12.

Laſt Wedneſday Morning the Trial of Bryan Sheehen, for committing a Rape on the Body of Mrs. Abial Hollowell, wife of Mr. Benjamin Hollowell, of Marblehead, in September laſt, came on before the Superior Court of Judicature, at the Court-houſe in this Town. The Trial laſted from between nine and ten o'clock, A. M. till three in the Afternoon, when the Jury withdrew, and in about one hour brought in their Verdict GUILTY. Mrs. Hollowell's Teſtimony againſt the Priſoner was corroborated by the Phyſician who attended her, and by the People who were in the houſe at and after the Perpetration of the Crime; by which the Guilt and Barbarity of the Priſoner was ſo fully demonſtrated, that the Verdict of the Jury has given univerſal ſatisfaction,

This Bryan Sheehen (who has not received his ſentence) is the firſt perſon, as far as we can learn, that has been convicted of Felony, in this large country, ſince the memorable Year 1692, commonly called Witch-Time.

His Excellency Governor Wentworth of New-Hampſhire, has iſſued a Proclamation ſetting forth, That he has receiv'd an Information or Complaint from the Collector and Comptroller of His Majeſty's Cuſtoms for the Port of Piſcataqua, "That on the 26th of October laſt, Richard Keating, Maſter of the Brig Reſolution, then in that Port, came to His Majeſty's Cuſtom-Houſe, and enter'd ſaid Veſſel from St. Lucia and St. Martins, but did not enter One Hundred Hogſheads of Molaſſes, then on board, with Deſign to defraud the King of the Duties thereon; in Conſequence of which they ſeiz'd ſaid Brig and Molaſſes, agreeable to the Laws, and put the Officers belonging to the Cuſtoms in Poſſeſſion of ſaid Veſſel and Goods to ſecure them. That on the 29th between 11 and 12 o'Clock at Night, there enter'd on Board ſaid Brig a numerous Company of Men in Diſguiſe, armed with Clubs, and wreſted ſaid Veſſel out of the Hands of the Officers then on board, turned ſome of them out of the Veſſel, and confined others in the Cabbin, and then proceeded to unload and carry away the Molaſſes."—The Governor with the Advice of His Majeſty's Council have promis'd and engaged a Reward of Two Hundred Dollars to be paid out of the public Treaſury, to any Perſon who ſhall inform of, and diſcover any of the principle Actors or Abettors of the aforeſaid illegal & riotous Tranſaction, ſo that they may be convicted thereof.

VI Pertinent Reflections on Old Age, or Old Age Improved, Geneſis xlvii. 8. 9.

It is ſuppoſed the above Sermons will contain Six Sheets, will be printed in a legible Character, on good Paper——ſew'd in a Book, covered with Paper, afforded to the Subſcribers at One Shilling and Four Pence Lawful Money, to be Paid at the Delivery of the Books.

N. B. The above Sermons are carried to the Preſs as they were left, in the Authors own Hand Writing, ſufficiently correct for Printing. Its apprehended, by good Judges, that in Sentiment, Method and Stile, the Compoſition is delicate and excellent, that the Reader, if ſerious and judicious, will be both edified and pleaſed; and conſidering the Importance and Uſefulneſs of the Subjects treated of, Mr. HOOKERS approved Character, as an Author, how cheap the Books will come to the Subſcribers, and that none will be Printed, except for thoſe concerned in the Subſcriptions, it is hoped the work will ſoon be compleated.

ON Wedneſday the 4th of September was celebrated the anniverſary Commencement of the College in Providence. After the uſual proceſſion, which was from the College Hall to the rev'd Mr. Snows meeting houſe. At 10 o'clock A.M. the buſineſs of the day was preceded by prayer. An elegant ſalutatory oration was then pronounced in latin by Mr. Samuel Ward, which juſtly procured him the applauſe of the learned part of the aſſembly. A ſenſible Engliſh dialogue betwixt Meſſieurs Arnold and Brown, was the next entertainment. An intermediate oration pronounced with much ſpirit by Mr. Uſtick, on the advantages of peace concluded the forenoon exerciſes.

The afternoon began with litigating this thesis in latin "juſtilia Punitiva eſt Dei attributam." Mr. Arnold reſpondent, and Meſſieurs Brown, Coſſit, Farnham & Uſtick opponents. This diſpute was judiciouſly managed on both ſides. Mr. Ward vindicated literature from the aſperſions thrown upon it, proving that it promotes virtue and religion. Whoſe arguments on that ſubject were retorted with much ingenuity and ſarcaſtic wit, by Mr. Coſſit, who, in concluſion, addreſſed the audience with a ſharp, and exceedingly pleaſant, popular ſatire on the ſons of the three grand learned profeſſions, divinity, law and phyſic: both whoſe arguments were accurately weighed and examined, by Mr. Farnham, who ſpoke with great depth of judgment and preciſion of phraſe, and demonſtrated the great advantages derived to the cauſe of religion and virtue, from a ſuitable progreſs in the liberal arts and ſciences.

The following young gentlemen were then admitted the degree of A. B. Thomas Arnold, Micah Brown, Ranna Coſſit, Benjamin Farnham, Thomas Uſtick and Samuel Ward. Mr. Daniel Hitchcock of Yale College, received the degree of A. M. The honorary degree of A. M. was conferred on the rev'd Francis Pelotte and William Nelſon.

A conciſe, pertinent charge, was then delivered to the graduates, by the preſident, in which he fully vindicated the college from the various calumnies pointed at it, by the errors of the ignorant, and the malice of thoſe whoſe knowledge and profeſſions had given room to expect better things. That it is a peculiar recommendation of that ſeminary, that it is free from that biggotry and intolerant principle, which at once deſtroys chriſtian charity, and defeats, in a great degree, the purpoſes of learning. That the conduct of the firſt ſons of the college had, and he truſted would ſtill continue, to afford it the higheſt recommendation.

The valedictory oration was delivered by Mr. Arnold, on the antiquity of laws; an oration agreeable in its manner, and ſtrong in its argument.

The whole ſolemnity was conducted ſo as to do honour to the inſtitution, and give much ſatisfaction to a numerous and polite audience.

HARTFORD.

The following Act paſſed in the General Aſſembly of this Colony, at their laſt Seſſions in New-Haven.

"An act to prevent injuſtice by the bills of credit of the neighbouring colonies, paſſing in this colony.

WHEREAS the paſſing of paper bills of credits, as a medium of trade, not carrying in the face of them a ſufficient ſecurity for payment in money, to the poſſeſſors in a reaſonable time, the ſums therein mentioned, hath formerly proved very prejudicial to the trade of this colony, and occaſioned injuſtice in dealing, by reaſon of the depreciation of ſuch bills——Which for the future to prevent:

BE it enacted by the Governor, Council of Repreſentatives in General Court aſſembled, and by the Authority of the ſame——That from and after the firſt Day of January, in the Year of our Lord, One Thouſand Seven hundred and Seventy Two—No Perſon or perſons, ſhall directly or indirectly, utter or receive in any Payment, Trade or Dealing in this Colony, any Bill or Bills of Credit, emitted, or that may be hereafter emitted, by any of the neighbouring Colonies, except ſuch Bills, ſecure to the Poſſeſſors thereof, (appearing on the Face of the Bills) the Value of the Sum expreſſed in ſuch Bills, to be paid in Silver or Gold in a reaſonable Time, not exceeding two Years, if without Intereſt, or not exceeding Five Years on Intereſt.———And whoever ſhall be Guilty of the Breach of this Act, ſhall Forfeit and Pay the Sum of Five Pounds, or ſuch greater Sum not exceeding Twenty Pounds, as the Court before whom the Conviction is (having reſpect to the aggravation of the Offence) ſhall Judge reaſonable, one half of which Penalty ſhall belong to the Treaſury of the County, wherein the Trial is had, and the other half to any Perſon who ſhall Sue for, and Proſecute the ſame to Effect—Provided nevertheleſs—That nothing in this Act, ſhall extend to Prohibit the Currency, in this Colony, of any of the Bills of Credit, emitted by the Province of New-York, before the Firſt Day of January, in the Year of our Lord, One Thouſand Seven hundred and Sixty Eight.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Auguſt 3.

We have advice, that Ali Bey having recalled his army from Syria to Egypt, to attack a competitor who had riſen up againſt him, the Ottoman Troops had taken the advantage of this circumſtance to attack him in his retreat, & that they entirely defeated him in a battle, in which Chiek Daher was wounded. By accounts received by a veſſel from Paros, to Smyrna, Count Orlow arrived there the 10th ult. with two ſhips and ſix frigates. Some ſay he is preparing to make an expedition in Candia; others that he intends to try a new interprize in the Morea. It is not without much uneaſineſs, that this Admiral was ſeen before Smyrna. The plauge only can defend this city from the Ruſſians, who will not like penetrating it as long as that diſorder, which daily encreaſes, continues within the walls. All the foreign Conſuls are obliged to retire to the country. Cara Oſman Oglow, Governor of this city, and Kan Cioban Oglow, live in tents to preſerve them from the contagion. It is remarkable, that the plague makes more progreſs among the Turks and Jews than among the Greeks. Every family is ordered to bury their dead, and if any one who dies without relations or friends, his neighbours are to bury him.

Extract of a letter from Berlin, Sept. 7

"I am ſorry that I can tranſmit no agreeable accounts to you of the negociations of peace between Ruſſia and the Porte. I am told that the Count of Vienna does not at all reliſh the project of the Court of Peterſburgh, for rendering the Crim independent of the Porte for the future, and that they have made ſtrong repreſentations to the Czarina againſt ſuch an independency. What view they may have in this, or how far it may be their intereſt that the Crimea ſhould remain under the power and influence of the Turks, I confeſs I have not penetration enough to diſcover. The King of Pruſſia is far from their way of thinking, and has refuſed to join with them in remonſtrating to the Empreſs of Ruſſia againſt that meaſure. In the mean while this difference of opinion retards the negociation."

LONDON, Sept. 21.

In the Courſe of next week a Privy Counſel will be ſummoned to meet at St. James's, when it will be then finally determined, whether the Parliament will meet for the diſpatch of buſineſs before Chriſtmas, or be further prorogued to January next.

The accounts from the ſecond Ruſſian army ſay, that after the conqueſt of the Crimea, a great part of Circaſſia has ſubmitted to the Ruſſians, inſomuch that the Ruſſians are entirely maſters of the navigation in the Black Sea, and in the Propontis from Azoff, down even to Conſtantinople, and on the eaſtward to the mouth of the Danube.

Lord Chatham ſpeaking of the ſtruggle likely to be in the City for the office of Lord Mayor, declared, that Mr. Wilkes acted very imprudently to make his deſigns ſo public: "He is ſo eager (ſaid this great man) to engroſs all the employments to his own circle, that his true motives cannot remain long concealed; and the moment the Livery diſcover that he is not only labouring to make himſelf their maſter, they will ſee their independency as much in danger from him, as it is from an abandoned Adminiſtration."

LONDON Sept. 18, 1771.

Copy of a letter from BRITAIN, now in Confinement in Reading Goal, to a ſecond Noble Lord.

To Lord ——.

AS the late Fire at Portſmouth Dock engroſſes the public Attention, I hope you will abſolve me from my Promiſe of ſecrecy made to the Under Secretaries when at Reading, & give me Leave to lay the whole State of the above Fire before the Public; which I intend to do in a Series of Letters to my Friends in London, and to be publiſhed in the public papers. I hope your Lordſhip will not deny me this Requeſt, as it is but reaſonable that I ſhould have ſome Hearing to clear myſelf from the falſe Reports that have been propagated by the Miniſtry. They have declared, "that I want a ſum of Money and my Liberty out of Priſon, which induced me to declare myſelf concerned in the above Fire." This you know, my Lord, is falſe. When I ſolicited a Pardon, I was then at Liberty in London; and in my Letter to the Lord Mayor I informed him, "that I wanted no Fee or Reward whatever but his Majeſty's Pardon." In the ſaid Letter I owned being concerned in ſetting Fire to Portſmouth Dock-Yard, and the Writer of a reaſonable Letter ſent to the Lord Mayor, dated June 13. where "his —— is expreſly called a Blockhead, his —— and Dignity threatened to be in Danger, and plainly told that the Government of the — Empire will be given to one more worthy of it before July the 10th, 1772." I owned myſelf a Party concerned in attempting his ——'s Life, and theſe were the Crimes I wanted a Pardon for. Now, his Majeſty's Pardon to me is only conditional; in the Gazette for July 31ſt it ſays, "His Majeſty is hereby pleaſed to promiſe his moſt gracious Pardon to the Writer of the ſaid Letter for the Offences therein mentioned, provided Information ſhall be given to one of the principal Secretaries of State, upon which the Parties concerned may be apprehended and brought to Juſtice."

"Now, my Lord, as I ſaid before, this Pardon is only conditional; therefore if my Information is not ſufficient to bring the Parties concerned to Juſtice why do you forgive me the other Offences? If a poor Printer only print the Truth, you are ready to devour him, Pray what will you do now? Nothing, my Lord! You dare not! I do not crave your Favour, but once more DARE you to bring me to a Trial. You know you had Information ſufficient, provided you had exerted yourſelf as a —— of State ought to have done. It is not the Poſt you are in that is to be deſpiſed for the Neglect, but the Man who fills that Poſt. There is a Clerk in one of your Officers (as I told the Under Secretaries) who gave the French Intelligence of your ſecret Counſels; his Name is —— ——. Will you deny now that you have not Information enough to ſecure that Clerk? I do not doubt but you will. You know, my Lord, I deſired you to confront me with Count Guignes long before he left England. If I was in the wrong, why did not you do it? You have been called upon to publiſh my Depoſition; why don't you? Your Secretaries were ſo careful to keep it from the Public, that they would not let the Mayor of Reading ſee the leaſt Tittle of it. Nay, moreover, you have debarred me the Uſe of Pen & Paper, and I do not doubt but as ſoon as you read this Letter, but my Keeper will have Orders from you to ſhut me up in a Dungeon; but if you do order it, the Public will ſoon be appriſed of it; and they may judge of your Conduct as they think proper.

"Before I take my Leave of your Lordſhip, permit me to return you my moſt humble Thanks for the Pains you have taken in propagating a Report that I am Inſane; and as a Proof of my Gratitude, I aſſure your Lordſhip, that I will prove ſome of your dear Friends Traittors to their King and Country; and the Public may be aſſured, that Tower hill will be found a more neceſſary place then Bedlam.

I am, my Lord, your Lordſhip's
Moſt obedient humble Servant,
JONATHAN BRITAIN."

Reading, September 14.

A Correſpondent ſuppoſes the Letter from Britain to a ſecond noble Lord to be written by an Iriſhman, as he makes him write it at a Time when he ſays he is debarred the Uſe of Pen and paper.

The Government have offered Mr. Banks and Dr. Solander two frigates to proſecute their raſearches and diſcoveries in another voyage round the world, which theſe two ingenious naturaliſts, have accepted; and propoſe ſetting out early next Spring round the Cape of Good Hope for India.

The four voyages round the world by Commodore Byron, Carteret, Walace and Cooke, are now ordered for publication as ſoon as poſſible; and ſome of the moſt ingenious men of the age, have been applied to, to prepare the papers, and direct the publication.

On Wedneſday night, between one and two o'clock, a dreadful fire broke out in Eaſt-lane, near Bullſtairs, Southwark; the tide being low, the engines were for a long time uſeleſs, during which time upwards of twenty-five dwelling-houſes, beſide warehouſes and ſheds, were reduced to aſhes.

The Letters ſigned JUNIUS are now generally ſuppoſed to have been written by William Gerrard Hamilton, Eſq; He is Chancellor of the Exchequer in Ireland, and Member for old Sarum.

It is ſaid the piece referred to above, (from its Nature and Tendency) is the moſt daring production ever publiſhed in America.

HARTFORD, November 26.

One evening laſt week, Enſign Timothy Peck of Litchfield, was found dead in Farmington, with his head maſh'd in a moſt ſhocking manner —— He had been to this place with a cart for a load of goods, and 'tis ſuppoſed he by ſome accident fell before one of the wheels of his cart, which went over his head, and kill'd him in a moment.

A PHILOSOPHER.

THE character of Judge Brierbuſh drawn in your paper, by Honeſtus, having proved ſo highly entertaining to your readers, I was ſorry they could not enter into it with ſo full a reliſh as I could, who know that ſame Dr. Blunt, that in converſation with Mr. Querens, threw out the ſhort and comprehenſive diſcription of the Judge, which concludes, I may ſay contains Honeſtus's character of him—there is much contained in it, but all depends upon the credit due to the aſſertion of Dr. Blunt, of this many of your readers may not be judges; I mean with your permiſſion, to introduce him to their acquaintance, and give them his riſe, progreſs and character.

His parentage was illuſtrious, he is deſcended from an antient and very honourable family, you ſhall hear him boaſt much of his anceſtors before the revolution, who could read and write, as he ſays; but for the laſt century he chuſes to be ſilent; I have the honour of his intimate acquaintance, but muſt own myſelf ignorant whether he has had any anceſtors within the laſt hundred years or not.

His genius from infancy was ſurpriſing, it ſurmounted every difficulty with eaſe his imagination was rich and copious, his invention fertile and quick, his judgment ſolid and ſure, he read every thing and remembered all he read. 'Tis true his acquaintance obſerved nothing of all this nevertheleſs the fact is inconteſtable; he concealed the ſplendor of his talents, till on ſome worthy occaſion, he might burſt the veil at once, and dazzle us with the ſudden luſtre of his genius; he was a Junius Brutus for that, I have only to lament this worthy occaſion has never happened.

His education was private, he purſued his ſtudies on nights in obſcure places, and in the day time amuſed himſelf in tending cattle and hogs, and in rural labour, till he was of full age, when for three months, he ſubmitted to the tuition of a phyſician in an obſcure town for the ſake of retirement; I have heard him heap encomiums upon the learning and ſagacity of his preceptor, and eſteem himſelf very fortunate in this, that his maſter, being above the drudgery of buſineſs, had full leiſure to devote himſelf to his inſtruction, though he ſays his ſcholar entered into every part of the ſcience with ſuch facility, that the taſk was rather delightful than tedious.

His learning is a copious topic—the arts and ſciences are his handmaids—in languages he is ſo paſſionately fond of the latin, that he has been known to commit to memory, after he was turned of thirty, the whole of the Sententiæ ſelectæ pueriles, or ſelect latin ſentences for boys. He talks as familiarly of Demoſthenes, Longinus, Cicero, Quintilian, and the other great anticnts, as tho' he had been their play fellow. To preſerve his knowledge of Greek, he makes his apprentice on ſunday morning, read a chapter in his family in Engliſh, out of the new teſtament, whilſt he overlooks him in a greek one.

The force of his rhetoric upon town meetings is pungent, & operates like a powerful cathartic.

As every truth ſimple or complex he is poſſeſſed of, is derived from inſtruction or the native force of genius, he has no need of logic, for why ſhould he ſubmit to ſtudy rules of reaſoning when he is above the thing?

Metaphyſics being his favourite, is as familiar to him as his clyſter pipe, he has made himſelf ſo great a maſter in this ſcience, that he not only underſtands the whole doctrine of entity, as delivered by former maſters, but has actually diſcovered a method of reducing entity to nonentity, ſuprizing as this may ſeem, he has made it evident in the ſureſt way, I mean by experiments often repeated.

In natural philoſophy and mathematicks, his ſkill is ſo nice, that he openly profeſſes he can as certainly determine the ſtrength or weakneſs of a patients conſtitution, from the ſize and conglomeration of the anus, as a markſman can a good fowling piece, from its ſhape & the ſize of its bore.

His ethicks follow the uſual tract, ſave in this he is particular, inſtead of love your enemies, in the vulgar tranſlation, he tranſlates it laſh your enemies, all great genius's are fond of their own refinements, and he is fond of this noſtrum, and loves to practiſe upon it, or at leaſt would love to, if he had an enemy to practiſe upon.

POET'S CORNER.

PICTURE OF LIFE.

"WHat is this life thatmortals idly crave ?
The noiſy paſſport to the ſilent grave
Each moment ſinks the value of the prize,
And death is daily marching 'fore our eyes.
Drunk with the joys of life, we heed them not
Till ſickneſs warns us of the common lot,
The lot which levels all on equal terms,
And gives an olio banquet to the worms,
That rudely knaw, in undiſtinguiſh'd graves,
The fleſh of Emperors, and fleſh of ſlaves.
Abaſhing, humbling thought ! enough to force
Strong wing'd ambition from her eagle courſe—
Enough to curb the ſelf-ſufficient will,
And bid the luſt of earthly praiſe be ſtill.
What is this life—a temporary ſtage,
Where divers men in divers parts engage.
The fleeting forms in quick ſucceſſion glide,
As one moves off his abſcence is ſudply'd ;
And, ſhould ſome fav'rite actor quit the ſcene,
Into his place another ſteps ſerene :
Serene, and, full of ſelf, he tries to ſoar
And reach a height, that ne'er was reach'd before
Behold the wither'd, ſapleſs tree of fame,
That boaſts no other virtue but the name :
Yet, by the dupes of admiration view'd,
Its trunk appears magnificently rude :
In ſhatter'd pomp it ſtill attracts the ſight.
And warms each novice with a ſtrange delight
In vain—for ſouls renown'd in ancient days,
With greedy hands have pre engroſs'd her bays,
Each twig ſo rifl'd that no modern now
Can find one leaf to dignify his brow,
Yet, tho' her branches gradually fade,
Man ſtill ſeeks refuge in her ſcanty ſhade.
Vain fooliſh man ! When all the precious fruit
Is torn away, to reverence the root."

Stray'd or Stolen from

Mr. DRAPER,

If you think the following Morſel worthy of a Place in your next, I ſhall ſend you the remaining Chapters.

ZOROASTER.

An Eaſtern Hiſtory.

CHAP. I.

1. AND it came to paſs in the ſeventeen Hundredth and ſixtieth Year, in the Eighth Month, on the Twenty fifth Day of the Month, that George, the great King of the Britainites, ſlept with his Fathers and was buryed in the Sepulchre of the Kings; and George the Third, his Grandſon, reigned in his ſtead.

2. Twenty and two Years old, was George the Third, when he began to reign; and his Mother's Name was Auguſta.

3. And he did that which was right in the Sight of the Lord, and walked in all the Statutes and Ordinances of the Lord blameleſs.

4. And all the Tribes of the People rejoiced greatly, becauſe that the Lord had made George the Third King over them; and they ſhouted with a loud voice, ſaying, God ſave the King.

5. And the thing pleaſed the Lord exceedingly; and he ſaid unto them, behold I have given unto you a King after mine own Heart, who will go in and out before you, and lead you with a ſkilful Hand, and with an upright Heart, even as my Servant George the ſecond did.

6. Now therefore be wiſe, and hearken unto his Words; and whatſoever he ſhall ſay unto you, that obſerve and do.

7. If ye be obedient, and do all that I command you this Day; if ye ſhall love, honor and reverence mine anointed, and ſhall lead quiet and peaceable Lives in all Godlineſs and Honeſty;

8. Then I will be your God and ye ſhall be my People, and it ſhall be well with you, and happy ſhall ye be, you and your children for ever.

9. But if ye be diſobedient, ſtiff necked, and rebellious, hearkening unto the deceiving Words of wicked Men, and grieving and vexing the righteous Soul of my Servant whom I have ſet over you this Day, and doing Evil in my Sight;

10. Behold, I will come out in Anger againſt you, and will give you up to Hardneſs of Heart, and Blindneſs of Mind; and ye ſhall become a Stench in my Noſtrils; and I will take from you my Servant whom I have choſen, and ye ſhall become a Prey to crafty Tyrants, who ſhall turn you aſide from the paths of Peace, and ſhall lead you in the Way that is not good.

11. And all the People anſwered and ſaid, it is well ſpoken; the Words of the Lord and of the King we will obſerve, to keep and to do them.

12. And the People hearkened unto the Voice of the Lord, and obeyed the King for a Seaſon; and the Lord bleſſed them in Riches and Honors, more and more; and made all their Enemys to flee before them; and the Land had reſt.

13. And the King's Heart was right before the Lord, and towards his People; and his Soul loved them, and he ſpake kindly unto them, and was unto them as a good, indulgent Father.

14. And the King ruled with Juſtice & Equity over all his People, even over the Britainites, and the Hibernianites, and the Inhabitants of the Iſles, and over the Provinces beyond the great Waters, even the Maſſachuſites, and the Connecticutenſians, and the Hampſhirites, and the Rhodians, and the Jerſites, and the Yorkites, and the Penſylvanians, and the Virginians, and the Merylandians, and the Carolinites, and the Georgites, and the Canadites.

15. And the King ſet Governors over all the Provinces and over all the Iſles; and Francis was Governor over the Maſſachuſites.

16. And all the People, even the Britainites and the Hibernianites, and the Dwellers in the Iſles and in the Provinces proſpered, and were happy; and Joy and Gladneſs ſported in their Countenances, and all Clouds were removed from their Brows; and they bleſſed God and the King.

17. And it came to paſs in the ſeventh Month on the tenth Day of the Month, that Stephen, the chief Judge over the Maſſachuſites, dyed, and was gathered to his Fathers.

18. And Francis, the King's Governor, called together the great Men of his Counſel; and they appointed Thomas to be chief Judge over the Land, in the Room of Stephen.

19. Now Thomas was an upright Man, one that feared God and eſchewed Evil; moreover Thomas was well ſkill'd in all the Statutes, [illegible] to hear.

20. And all the People rejoiced exceedingly, becauſe that Thomas was appointed to be chief Judge over them.

21. But Jacob had ſaid in his Heart, behold now Stephen is dead, and I, even I, will be chief Judge over the Land.

22. So when Jacob heard that Thomas was appointed to be cheif Judge, his Countenance fell; and he was exceeding wroth.

23. And one told Jacob the younger ſaying, behold Thomas is cheif Judge.

24. Then was Jacob the younger's Wrath greatly kindled; and he ſaid, God do ſo to me, and more alſo, if I do not kindle in the Land a Flame which many Waters cannot quench.

25. Now the reſt of the Acts of Jacob the younger, and all that he ſaid, and all that he did, behold, are they not written in the Books of the Chronicles of the Jacobites. So Jacob the younger ceaſed from troubling, and was buryed under the Mantle of Charity.

26. And in thoſe Days certain of the Sons of Belial ſaid among themſelves, behold now, we have neither Vineyards nor Olive yards, nor Flocks nor Herds, nor Gold nor Silver, what therefore can we loſe? yet peradventure by our Craft, we may gain ſomething.

27. Behold, Jacob the elder, and Jacob the younger, have ſet themſelves againſt Francis the Governor and Thomas the cheif Judge; come therefore, and let us join ourſelves unto the Jacobites; who can tell but Francis may purchaſe our Friendſhip at our own Price.

28. So Samuel the Publican, and William the Scribe, and Will the Weaver, with others of the Sons of Belial, ſet themſelves to oppoſe Francis the Governor, and Thomas the chief Judge, and drew much People after them; and the Land was diſquieted.

29. But it came to paſs that when Thomas the chief Judge had performed his Circuit thro' the Land, and had judged the People in Righteouſneſs, the Maſſachuſites perceived that they had been mocked and deceived by the Sons of Belial.

30. And they ſaid unto them, behold now, what is this that ye have done, & why have ye wickedly troubled our Spirits with vain Imaginations? for now have we ſeen and heard for ourſelves, and we know of a Truth, that ye have ſent forth a lying Spirit to mock us with Leaſing concerning Thomas the chief Judge.

31. Wherefore ceaſe from troubling us; for, as the Lord liveth, we will no longer hearken to your Words, but we will turn a deaf Ear to all your Reproach.

32. And the Sons of Belial were amazed, and confounded and put to Silence. So the Land again had Reſt.

33. And it came to paſs after Many Days, that George, ſirnamed Grenville, one of the Kings chief Counſellors, ſtood before the King, and ſaid;

34. O King live forever; behold now thy People, even the Britainites and the Hibernianites, are burthened with heavy Taxes; & have contributed great part of their Gold & Silver, & Corn and Wool, to protect the Iſles in the Sea, and the Provinces beyond the great Waters, againſt the Heathen Natives round about them.

35. And now behold the Dwellers in the Iſles, and in the provinces are become numerous and wealthy; and it is fit that they ſhould bear part of the Burthen with us; for behold we are Brethren.

36. [illegible] tion of this Burthen be raiſed by a Duty on certain Writings.

37. And the Thing pleaſed the King, becauſe it ſeemed juſt and right in his Eyes; and the King called together his Nobles and the wiſe Men of the Nation, and required of them their Advice in this matter.

38. Then the Nobles, and the wiſe Men of the Nation, ſtood before the King, and counſelled him on this wiſe, ſaying, let the Decree go forth according to the Word of George the chief Counſellor.

39. So the King ſent forth his Decree, and appointed Officers, in the Iſles, and in the provinces, to receive the Dutys. In all this, the King's Heart was wholly right, neither was Guile found in his mouth.

40. But when the Dwellers in the provinces heard thereof, they were ſorely diſquieted, and would have ſupplicated the King to repeal his Decree.

41. But the Sons of Belial ſaid among themſelves, behold now the Time of our Deliverance is at Hand; come therefore let us provoke the people to Wrath.

42. So the Sons of Belial reviled the King, and his Nobles, and the wiſe men of the Nation, and counſelled the People to diſobey the command of the King, and to refuſe Obedience to his Decree.

43. And certain alſo of the Prieſts, joined themſelves unto the Sons of Belial, and, in the name of the Lord, ſtirred up the people to commit Folly and Wickedneſs in the Land.

44. So the Men of the great Citys aroſe, and came upon the King's Officers, and evil intreated them, and drove them out. Alſo certain of the Sons of Belial in the City of Boſtonia, aroſe by Night, and beſet the Houſe of Thomas the chief Judge, and utterly deſtroyed it; but Thomas fled and eſcaped.

45. And when Tidings of theſe Things were brought to the King's Ears, then was his Soul greatly troubled within him; and he turned his Face to the Wall and wept: for he loved his people in the provinces, even as a Father loveth his Children.

46. And the Thing that the People had done diſpleaſed the the Lord exceedingly; and his Anger was ſorely kindled againſt them, becauſe they had diſobeyed the Voice of his Word, and had grieved the Soul of his Anointed. And the King prayed unto the Lord for them.

From a late Publication.

THE following anecdote which was related by a gentleman who was himſelf a witneſs to the truth of the fact, is ſo remarkable an inſtance of an heroic and unſhaken ſenſe of friendſhip, among perſons of a claſs that we have accuſtomed ourſelves to conſider and indeed (often to the infinite diſgrace of humanity) to treat as barbarians, that I could not diſpence with the communicating it to the public.

At a late public ſale of negro ſlaves at Santa Cruitz, among the great numbers that Chriſtian avarice had been either the immediate or ſecondary means of placing on a level with the cattle daily brought to our markets, were two, each of them apparently about the age of thirty, whoſe deportment ſeemed ſuperior to the reſt.—What their rank had really been, they with a ſullen dignity ſeemed reſolved to conceal from every one.——Yet mingled with a haughty manner to all beſides, there appeared in every look and action the tendereſt affection and heart-felt attachment to each other.——When the captain of the veſſel which had brought them hither, entered on the neceſſary buſineſs of diſtributing his marketable goods into the proper lots for ſale, both of them, in the moſt ſubmiſſive manner, and with an earneſtneſs that ſpoke more than common feelings, clung round his knees, and hung about his garment, intreating him only to favour them ſo far as to permit them both to be appointed to the ſame lot, by which means they may ſerve one maſter, and at leaſt enjoy the trifling ſatisfaction of being companions even in ſlavery.——But even this poor requeſt itſelf, either through the brutality of their ſaleſman, or from apprehenſions of their combining in ſome mutinous deſign, was denied them.

Yet earneſt as they ſeemed in their deſire, the refuſal was received with manly reſignation by them both: and when upon the point of being delivered to their reſpective maſters, they only begged the leave of a few words with one another, permitted out of hearing, tho' not of ſight of thoſe they were to ſerve.——This was allowed them; which after a few minutes converſation, and a cloſe embrace, they parted, and were ſent to their reſpective ſtations.—Seven days after the tranſaction, they both (as it afterwards appeared) were miſſing at the ſame hour; nor were they, though the ſtricteſt ſearch was made after them, to be found; till at about a week's diſtance, a planter riding through a thicket which lay in the midway between the two plantations they had been deſtined to, ſaw, to his great ſurpriſe, two bodies hanging on one tree, locked faſt, and folded in each others arms, embracing and embraced; which, on enquiry made, proved to be the faithful, yet deſperate friends.

Such was the attachment, even in death, of mortals, formed like ourſelves, with ſouls informed with every noble & generous ſentiment, and capable of cultivation like our own; but whom with the moſt barbarous oppreſſion, we, at our pleaſure, deprive of liberty, of life, and even of thoſe advantages which common humanity induces us to beſtow upon the more domeſtic brutes, the horſe and ox.——Hear this ye Chriſtians; hear it and bluſh!

Stolen from the ſubſcriber on the 26th inſtant, a black mare, about 14 hands high, natural pacer, one hind foot white, a ſmall ſtar in her forehead, ſhod all round, about 7 years old, branded on the left ſhoulder thus 8, had on a bridle and breaſted ſaddle. Whoever ſhall take up the thief & mare ſo that I may have her again, ſhall have five dollars reward, and all neceſſary charges paid, by me, SAMUEL ELMER.

PORTSMOUTH, Dec. 6.

About five Weeks ago, was brought to Dr. Hall Jackſon of this Town, one Fletcher, of Winter Harbour, he is now in the thirty-ninth Year of his age; when he was ſix Months old, he loſt his ſight, and has remained perfectly blind ever ſince; the next day after his arrival here, he had his left Eye couched, but beſides the diſeaſe that attended this Eye, from his Infancy, he had received a Blow from the End of a Mop Staff, which had rendered the Diſorder ſo complicated, as to afford little or no proſpect of ſucceſs, notwithſtanding it ſo far ſucceeded, as to make him capable of diſtinguiſhing ſome Objects, tho' not with any great degree of exactneſs; he in ſome Meaſure though not wholly, loſt the little Benefit that he received by a violent inflammation that ſucceeded the Operation, and this retarded it's being performed on the other Eye, until laſt Thurſday week when it was done with all the ſucceſs that could be expected or deſired: No ſooner was the Inſtrument out of his Eye, when he was able clearly, and diſtinctly to ſee the many Perſons and Objects that ſurrounded him, in all of which he immediately perceived a Difference, but how or in what this difference conſiſted, he could give no Account, as he had no Idea of Form, Colour, Magnitude, diſtance, or even a Plurality of Things but what he had formed in his Mind, from the Senſe of Hearing and Feeling; which plainly demonſtrates that were we deprived of the Uſe of our ſenſitory Organs we could have no Ideas of Things whatever.

All objects and colours ſeem'd equally agreeable to this Perſon but Red and green, the former of which he could not look upon with any degree of ſatisfaction, but with the latter he appeared to be much Pleaſed.

The Joy expreſſed by this Perſon in being reſtored to ſo valuable a Senſe, did by no Means appear ſo great as in thoſe that have been before ſenſible of the enjoyment of it.

About ten days ago a Negro Man belonging to Mr. Nathaniel Meſerve of Durham, who had been blind for ſome Years, had both his Eyes Couched by Doctor Hall Jackſon, and perfectly reſtored to ſight.

NEW-HAVEN, December 13.

Laſt Tueſday Evening departed this Life, in the 24th Year of her Age, Mrs. LUCY JONES, the amiable Conſort of Mr. ISAAC JONES, of this Town, and only Child of Captain CHARLES GOODRICH, of Pittsfield: A Lady of many very amiable Qualifications, lived univerſally beloved, and died greatly lamented by all that had the Pleaſure of her Acquaintance; and, we truſt, is now rejoicing amongſt the redeemed above, whilſt her Friends are almoſt inconſolable at their irreparable Loſs. Many affecting Circumſtances attend both the Huſband and Father of the Deceas'd. In leſs than Three Years the Huſband has been bereaved twice; both Mother and Child buried in the ſame Grave, and the Father in the ſame loneſome State. This particular caſe calls for the ſympathizing Pity of all their Friends.

Her Remains were decently interred Yeſterday Afternoon.

On Sunday the 1ſt Inſtant, the Brig Ann, bound from Boſton to N. York, Joſep Crew, Maſter, run on a reef of Rocks near Norwalk harbour, and received ſo much Damage that it is thought the Veſſel will be rendered unfit for any further Service. No Lives were loſt; but the Cargo is much damaged.

We hear from Salem, in the Province of New-York, That about Three Weeks ſince, a white Woman, the Wife of a Molatto, belonging to that Place, was found dead in a Mill Pond, with ſeveral Marks of Violence on her; and her Huſband who is the ſuppoſed Murderer has abſconded.

Laſt Saturday Evening Mr. Moſes Cook, of Waterbury, being at Mr. Clark's Tavern, in Bethany, where there was an Indian named Moſes Paul, who had behaved ſo diſorderly, (on Mrs. Clark's refuſing to let him have a Dram) that he was turned out of doors, when he ſwore to be revenged on ſome one Perſon in the Houſe; and Mr. Cook going out ſoon after, received from the Indian, (who 'tis ſuppoſed lay in wait, near the houſe, in Order to put his Threat in Execution) a violent blow on his Head, with ſome Weapon, that broke his Scull in ſo terrible a Manner, that he died of the Wound laſt Night.

The Indian was apprehended and committed to the Goal in this Town laſt Sunday.

HARTFORD, December 17.

Laſt Week, died at Stockbridge, Mrs Abigail Woodbridge, Conſort of the Hon. Timothy Woodbridge, Eſq; one of the Council of the Province of Maſſachuſetts Bay.

Middletown, December 14, 1771.

THE ſon of Mr. Antony Ames of this town, a promiſing child about ſix years old, as he was reaching after a diſh that was ſwimming in the water, accidentally (laſt Tueſday) fell headforemoſt into a tub of ſcalding water, juſt after they had taken the hog out, and was ſcalded in ſo terrible a manner, that in defiance of all that was done for his relief, a fever ſet in, he turn'd delirious, and expired next morning. A moſt melancholy confirmation of the truth and juſtneſs of the obſervations made long ſince, by a divinely inſpired writer.

"Man that is born of a woman is of
"few days and full of trouble.
"He cometh forth like a flower, and
"is cut down: he fleeth alſo as a ſha-
"dow and continueth not."

For the benefit of the public, I would beg leave to obſerve, that ſoft ſing old linnen cloths, dipped in warm milk or cream, and immediately applied to the burn—and then dipping other cloths in the ſame milk or cream, and applying them upon the firſt, by way of fomentation, is one of the beſt external applications, that can be made———then dreſſing the burn with ſome ſoft eaſy diſgeſtive ointment—and afterwards at each dreſſing, fomenting the burn with a tea made of Bark, of burn bruſh, that grows frequently in little ſwamps, & wears a button, almoſt like the button-wood tree. Giving, at the ſame time, ſuch medicines, as will have a tendency to defend the vitals—promote inſenſible perſpiration—prevent or remove a fever—for any other ſymptom that may threaten the patient—by the advice of an able experienced phyſician, who in no caſe is more neceſſary, in the opinion of your old friend, and ſervant of the public,

ELIOT RAWSON.

POET'S CORNER.

A Requeſt to the DIVINE BEING.

By a LADY.

THou great and ſacred Lord of all,
Of Life the only Spring;
Creator of unnumber'd Worlds,
Immenſely glorious King!
Whoſe Image ſhakes the ſtaggering mind,
Beyond conception high;
Crown'd with Omnipotence, and veil'd
With dark Eternity.
Drive from the Confines of my Heart,
Impenitence and Pride,
Nor let me in erroneous Paths
With thoughtleſs Idiots glide.
Whate'er thy all-diſcerning Eye
Sees for thy Creature fit,
I'll bleſs the Good, and to the Ill
Contentedly ſubmit.
With humane Pleaſure let me view
The Proſperous and the Great;
Malignant envy let me fly,
With odious Self-Conceit,
Let not Deſpair, nor curs'd Revenge,
Be to my Boſom known;
O give me Tears for othersWoe,
And Patience for my own;
Feed me with neceſſary Food,
I aſk not wealth nor [illegible]
But give me Eyes to [illegible]
And Senſe to praiſe [illegible]
And when thy Wiſdom think[illegible]
To ſhake my troubled Mind,
Preſerve my Reaſon with my Griefs,
And let me not repine.
May my ſtill Day obſcurely paſs,
Without Remorſe or Care;
And let me, for the parting Hour,
My trembling Ghoſt prepare.

THE CONNECTIC COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt and moſt important Advices, both Foreign and Domeſtic

From TUESDAY, DECEMBER 24, to TUESDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1771.

Continuation of the Eaſtern Hiſtory.

CHAP. II.

1. IN thoſe Days aroſe William the Orator, and John the Wilkite, and ſet themſelves to diſturb the Peace of the Britanites.

2. Now William the Orator had before time been chief Scribe unto the King; but the King had removed him out of his Place; therefore was William the orator exceeding wroth, and joined himſelf unto John the Wilkite, who feared not God, neither regarded Man.

3. And when the King heard what was done in the Provinces, he called together his great Counſellors, and the Nobles, and the wiſe Men, and ſpake unto them ſaying.

4. Behold now, ye have heard how that my People in the Provinces have rebelled againſt me, and have ſet at nought my Decree, and have evilly intreated my Officers: what think of ye it?

5. Then aroſe, William the Orator and ſpake unadviſedly with his Lips ſaying, as the Lord liveth, the Thing which the King has done is not good.

6. But the People in the Provinces have done wiſely in that they have diſobeyed the Voice of the King, and have refuſed Obedience to his Decree, and have drove out his Officers;

7. For the King, and the Nobles and the wiſe Men, have no [illegible] over them; neither are they bound in any wiſe to yield Obedience to your Commands.

8. Nevertheleſs, the King and the Nobles and the wiſe Men may reſtrain the People in the Provinces in their Handicrafts, ſo that it ſhall not be lawful for them to take even a Nail for a Horſes Hoof, or to grind a handful of Corn at their own Mills.

9. And if I hear but a Dog in any of the Provinces murmuring or complaining againſt this Thing, behold I, even I, who am grey-headed, will lead forth the Hoſts of the Nation to battle againſt them, and will cut off from among them, every one that piſſeth againſt the Wall.

10. And the King and his Nobles and all the wiſe Men of the Nation, marvelled greatly at the ſtrange Saying of William the Orator.

11. Howbeit, becauſe he had Compaſſion on their Infirmities, he repealed the Decree.

12. And when the Tidings came to the People in the Provinces, that the King had repealed the Decree, they rejoiced with exceeding great Joy, and praiſed God, and bleſſed the King, and again the Land had Reſt.

13. But the Sons of Belial raged furiouſly, becauſe the Decree was repealed, and becauſe all Contention, Strife and Murmuring had ceaſed from among the People; for they ſaid among themſelves, ſurely now, unleſs Diſcord prevail in the Cities, our Names will no more be had in Remembrance.

14. Therefore the Sons of Belial ſpake unto the People ſaying, behold how the King, and his Nobles, and his wiſe Men, have repealed the Decree whereof in time paſt ye complained; but, wot ye not, that they have done this Thing thro' Fear?

15. Know ye not that there are yet remaining divers Statutes, Laws, and Ordinances which are not good?

16. Riſe therefore and play the Men; be no longer like Aſſes couching under their Burthens, but ſtand up for your Liberties, leſt ye be ſold for Bondſmen and Slaves, you and your Wives, and your little ones.

17. Howbeit the People hearkened not unto their Words; they perceived that Deceit and Falſhood was in their Heart. So the People returned every Man to his Tent.

18. And it came to paſs, in proceſs of Time, that the King, at the Requeſt of his Nobles and wiſe Men, ſent forth another Decree, that whoſoever ſhould carry in Ships to the Provinces, any Chryſtal, or Parchment, or Balm, or blue, or ſcarlet, or crimſon Colours, ſhould pay unto the King a reaſonable Duty.

19. For the Nobles, and the wiſe Men, and all the Britanites ſaid, verily it is lawful for us to do what we will with our own; and why ſhould the Dwellers in the Provinces murmur at this thing, ſeeing they are not compelled to take of us, the Work and Labour of our Hands?

20. And when the dwellers in the Provinces heard thereof, they were not diſpleaſed for the Thing did not appear altogether wrong in their Eyes

21. But the Sons of Belial again took Council together, how they might diſquiet the People with vain Fears and Jealouſies, and provoke them again to do evil in the ſight of the Lord.

22. For they ſaid, peradventure we may perſwade the People that this Thing proceedeth altogether from the Machinations of Francis the Governor; and that the King, and his Nobles, and the wiſe Men of the Britanites, and Francis the Governor, and Thomas the chief Judge, and all the King's Officers, and all the Judges and Rulers of the Land, are contriving to bring all the Dwellers in the Provinces into miſerable Bondage, notwithſtanding we are Brethren.

23. So the Sons of Belial ſet themſelves to perſwade the people concerning theſe Things; and they ſpake in the Ears of the People according to all the wicked Intentions of the Thoughts of their Hearts; and their Words ſank deep in the Hearts of the Multitude, and they were greatly diſmayed and terrifyed. And the Land was ſorely diſquieted.

24. Moreover the Sons of Belial wrote Letters unto John the Wilkite in the Priſon; (for the Judges over the Britanites had caſt him into Priſon for ſpeaking Evil of God and the King;) and John the Wilkite wrote a Letter unto the Sons of Belial; and the Souls of the Sons of Belial were knit unto the Soul of the John the Wilkite.

25. And the Sons of Belial perſwaded the Multitude that they ſhould not part with their Money to buy Balm of the Britanites, becauſe they ſaid, the Land of the Maſſachuſites abounded with Balm, and many of the People believed their Report; but others laughed them to ſcorn.

26. Moreover they perſuaded the Multitude that they ſhould buy no Merchandize of the Britanites; but ſhould rather pay double Price to certein cunning Merchants of the Provinces, whoſe Store-houſes were filled with all manner of Merchandize.

27. So theſe Merchants made unto themſelves great Gain. Likewiſe the Sons of Belial profited by their Craft in buying and ſelling of Spinning Wheels, and in talking about fine Linnen, and in receiving Gifts.

28. Moreover the Sons of Belial ſtirred up the Multitude to evil intreat all ſuch as preſumed to buy Merchandize of the Britanites; and they aroſe upon the men and beſmeared them with Pitch, and covered them with Feathers and expoſed them to ſcorn and Deriſion, and to Mockings and Scourgings; and took from them their Goods, and caſt them out of the Cities; and Confuſion and Tumult prevailed in the Land.

29. Thus were the People deceived, and led aſtray, and became a Reproach among all the Inhabitants of the Earth.

30. And when theſe Things were told unto the King, he was grieved at their Folly; nevertheleſs becauſe he had a Regard unto them, he forgave them; and would not come out in Anger againſt them, according to the Saying of William the Orator; but the King was kind and gracious unto his People in the Provinces, and he repealed his Decree; and required of them only one fourth part of the Duty on Balm, which they and their Forefathers had paid from the Beginning

31. And when the Dwellers in the Provinces heard [illegible] then were their Hearts filled with Joy [illegible] Gladneſs; and in all the Iſles, and [illegible] all the Provinces, the Land had Reſt ſave [illegible] in the Province of the Maſſachuſites; for there the Sons of Belial yet continued to deceive the Multitude, and to provoke them to work Abomination in the Sight of the Lord.

32. And they made long Speeches in the Market places, concerning the King and his wiſe Men, and concerning Francis the Governer; but the number of thoſe who believed them not increaſed daily more and more; howbeit many ſtill believed on them, and were diſquieted in vain.

33. And it pleaſed the King to remove Francis whom he had ſet to be Governor over the Maſſachuſites and to appoint in his ſtead Thomas their Brother.

34. And Francis being accuſed of many Things, deſired to be brought before the King and his great Council, to be enquired of touching thoſe Things, whereof he was accuſed, and to ſee his Accuſers Face to Face; and Francis was found faithful and upright in all Things; and he found Favour in the Sight of the King.

LONDON, Auguſt 20.

THE Lords in the oppoſition have in one of their proteſts declared, that there has been a ſyſtematical plan carried on, during this reign, for rendering the Houſe of Commons odious and the Houſe of Lords contemptible, for the purpoſe finally throwing all power into the hands of the crown. The ſame Scheme adopted in the reign of Charles the ſecond, of laſcivious memory. Lord Clifford propoſed in the Houſe of Lords a perpetual fund, which was to be applied to the advancement of the prerogative, and the degradation of parliament. The King and the Duke of York attended in the Houſe, in order to countenance the deſign. The Lords who were in the ſecret, ſtaring at one another, and anxiouſly meditating upon the fate of England, remained in an awful ſilence. At lenghth, Lord Shaftſbury, who had promiſed to co-operate in the deſign, in order to have a better opportunity of revenging himſelf and his country, ſtood up, and clearly proved, that the ſcheme would have no other end but that of ſending the royal family once more upon their travels, without any hopes of return. While he was ſpeaking, the Duke of York whiſpered the King, "What a rogue have you of a Lord Chancellor?" The King briſkly riplied, "God's fiſh! what a fool have you of a Lord Treaſurer!" The King's brother only attended laſt year when the vital ſtab was given to the conſtitution at midnight. The King was dandling his children.

ſhall want. The conqueſt of Corſica greatly drained their Treaſury of the ready ſpecie, and is daily adding to their debts. For this reaſon they have come to a reſolution to get it off thei hands at any rate. Spain and Sicily were ap-

It is ſaid, that a Bill will be brought into Parliament next Winter, for naturalizing General Paoli.

At the Cloſe of the Poll, the laſt Day, the Numbers ſtood thus, for Alderman Naſh, 2199. Alderman Sawbridge, 1878. Lord Mayor, 1795. Alderman Halifax, 846. Alderman Townſend, 151. Sir H. Bankes, 36.

Whereupon Alderman Naſh, and Saltar, and Alderman Sawbridge, Frame-work-knitter, are to be returned to the Court of Aldermen, when no doubt Alderman Naſh will be elected Lord-Mayor.

The Schiſms which have unhappily weakened the patriotic Band, affords the moſt melancholy Reflections to every true Friend to Liberty. It is to Mr. Wilkes, and to him alone the City owes a courtly Lord Mayor. By dividing Mr. Townſend and Sawbridge, he has been fighting the Battles of the Miniſtry, who have ſeen Mr. Townſend inſulted and neglected. Mr. Wilke's Popularity is greatly on the wain.

JUNIUS has publiſhed another long Letter to the Duke of Grafton; as alſo one to the Livery of London, while they were polling for Lord Mayor: But neither was received with any great Eclat.

The Report of the Otteman Fleet having been deſtroyed by the Ruſſians in the Port of Modon, the 6th of July laſt was not true: It was a ſkirmiſh between ſome Turkiſh or Barbarian Veſſels, and a Diviſion of the Ruſſian Fleet, to the Advantage of the latter.

By the Paper of the 15th of October, there does not appear any probibility of a Spaniſh War.

BOSTON.

Extract of a letter from Putney, in [illegible] Government, dated De[illegible]be 11th, 1771, 12 o'Clock high, b-ght.

—ould (in great haſte) inform you that a certain Gentleman, one Howard by name, who it is ſaid, is Lieutenant Colonel of the King's life guard, is arrived here from England, via New-York, and has brought a Mandamus from the King; in conſequence of which Mandamus, he has obtained a Charter of the antient town of Hinſdale, ſigned by Gov. Tryon, and warned all the people off their ſettlements.—Several other Mandamus's he has alſo, one for General Amherſt of twenty thouſand acres, with ſundry others, all which according to the Mandamus's, are to be laid out in this County, in ſuch places (or towns) as have not been Granted by New-York. I am affraid of your intereſt this way, except Sir you uſe ſome precaution about the ſame.

The people of Hinſdale are in great perplexity, knowing not what to do, though many of them are the wealthieſt men on the River, many of their farms eſtimated at ten, fifteen & twenty thouſand pounds old-tenor each.—

Extract of another Letter from Putney, dated December 14, 1771.

"LAST Wedneſday I wrote to you in great haſte, informing you as well as I was then able, of a very extraordinary affair, viz. The antient town of Hinſdale being chartered by New-York to one Howard, in conſequence of a Mandamus from his Majeſty.—The particulars of which affair I will relate to you as far as I am able.——Yeſterday I was at Judge Wells's upon ſome particular buſineſs of my own; I ſaw this gentleman, & had ſome converſation, which is the means of my information,—He, viz. Lieut. Col. Howard, had a Mandamus from the King for 10,000 acres of land, to be laid out in the province of New York, which had not been granted before by ſaid province.——He, upon information at York, of the value of the town of Hinſdale, made a pitch of ſaid place by plan, obtained a charter under the province ſeal of the ſame, ſigned by governor Tryon—Immediately upon which he comes here, with two livery ſervants his attendants—tells Hinſdale people of it, makes them one offer, viz. to leaſe the lands to them they now enjoy for five years, at one penny ſterling per acre; another five years for one ſhilling ſterling per acre; and at the expiration of ſaid term, to come to ſome new agreement.—Hinſdale people have got the ſame under conſideration; they are in great perplexity, not knowing what to do; they are wealthy men, many of them, but perſons of no great education, and am afraid they will do ſomething prejudicial to themſelves on that account. Theſe, Sir, are real facts, and deſerve to be put in the public prints.—One Katham living here, has opened a ſecret, viz. A New-York gentleman being up here, who you have heard of, but whoſe name I forbear mentioning, ſent a letter to him laſt Thurſday, deſiring him a[illegible] to ſign a power of attorney, [illegible] ſent incloſed in the letter from [illegible]tleborough, aſſuring them that their patent ſhould be ſigned for Fullam, immediately upon his arrival at York, which place he ſets out for next Wedneſday; which power was by Katham and ſons ſigned, and who are now full of the moſt conſummate aſſurances, that they ſhall ſhortly have the charter.——And I muſt Gentleman give you my opinion, that according to the complexion of things, and knowing ſo many artful, deſigning tricks managed about theſe lands, if you are not ſpeedy, and uſe your utmoſt vigilance in further ſecuring your intereſt, up here, you will loſe it, or at leaſt it will be ſo embarraſſed, that to remove the evils theſe bad men may involve you in, will coſt more than half your lands will be worth——I am not intimidated Gentlemen by theſe perſons conduct, as to in the leaſt ſuſpect the juſtneſs of your cauſe; but when men are corrupt, and affairs carried on by deſigning men, what muſt be the conſequence? I believe you will upon cool ſober thought join with me in ſentiment. Your ſettlers are very uneaſy, and upon my word, I cannot blame them; for if they loſe what they have here, they loſe their all.

Extract of another Letter from Putney, dated December 14, 1771.

"ONE Mr. Howard a Lieutenant Colonel in the King's Guards, has obtain'd a Patent under the great ſeal of the Province of New-York, of all the land that is in Hinſdale on the weſt ſide of Connecticut River, and to extend three quarters of a mile into Guildford.

This Patent was obtain'd in conſequence of a Mandamus from the King, &c. to Governor Tryon, wherein he was directed to lay out to Lieut. Colonel Howard, 10,000 Acres of Land within the Province of New-York, in ſome Place that never before had been patenteed, and ſo as not to interfere with any lands poſſeſs'd or claim'd by the Indians. The Land that is within the Town of Hindſdale near one hundred years ago, was granted by the Province of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay to the Proprietors of Northfield; theſe Proprietors ninety five Years ago purchaſed of the Indians their Right to theſe Lands, and the Deeds which were obtain'd from the Indians, are now in being. About eighty Years ago the Proprietors above-mentioned went into poſſeſſion of this Land, and have improved a conſiderable Part of the ſame for about eighty Years ſucceſſively.

Soon after the Settlement of the Line between the Maſſachuſetts and New-Hampſhire, this Land was confirm'd to the Heirs and Aſſigns of the Original Proprietors above-mentioned, by a Patent under the Great Seal of New-Hampſhire."

Sunday afternoon arrived here the ſhip Boſcawen, Captain Robſon from London, by whom we have the public prints, but they contain no articles of material intelligence, except that the parliament was prorogued to the 26th of November, but that it was thought they would not ſit for the diſpatch of buſineſs till after Chriſtmas:—That a ſpeedy war with Spain was looked upon as inevitable; and alſo from ſeveral concurring circumſtances, it was conjectured, that the King of Pruſſia was preparing to engage in a war with an European power:—And that Meſſirs. Wilkes and Bull, the two ſheriffs elect were ſworn into their office at the court of Exchequer: The former having on the pannels of the door of his new chariot, the motto, Libertas, and on the ſide pannels, Aroui meo non couſido; and the door of the latter, Mens Conſcia Recti.----

POET'S CORNER.

Mr. PRINTER.

THE late accounts of the rapid progreſs of the Ruſſian arms againſt the Turks, would almoſt induce us to think, that nothing leſs than the diſſolution of the Turkiſh power, (eſpecially in Europe) will be the conſequence. There has been many traditions concerning the fall of that mighty ſtate; their truth or falſhood, time will diſcover ——The following is an extract, from a poem entitled the Northern Star, which made its appearance in the life time of Czar Peter the Great; and ſeveral years after it was publiſhed, the author received a preſent from the Czarina his conſort and ſucceſſor, in acknowledgment of her approbation—as it may be of amuſement to your readers, pleaſe to inſert it.

FROM nameleſs outlets—endleſs naval hoſts,
Black'ning, ſtill more, the ſable Euxine's coaſts,
Shall teach the PORTE's imperial walls to ſhake,
And the fell Sultan's iron ſceptre break.
Grecia's loſt ſoul ſhall be reſtored by thee!
Great ſaver!—ſetting empire's genius free!
Then Helleſpont, whoſe ſtream indignant glides,
And a ſubjected world's two bounds divides,
Shall feel, while reaching both, thy thunder roars,
EUROPE and ASIA trembling to her ſhores!
Then, may thy floating empire's conqu'ring ſweep
New greet vaſt RUSSIA, round th' Atlantic deep.
So ſpring the ſeeds of pow'r, when wiſely ſown!
So pregnant genius plans the future throne!
Mean while, great founder! gath'ring ſtrength from blows,
They ſpread thy glory, who thy arms oppoſe.
The ſelf-priz'd Lords of CHINA's boaſtful land
Feel their pride ſhrink, beneath thy bord'ring hand!
The trackleſs wilds, which both vaſt ſtates disjoin,
Are, even when arm'd with ſhiv'ring winter, thine.
O'er realms of ſnow thy furry ſquadrons fly,
And bring at eaſe, the dreadful diſtance nigh!
In vain oppos'd, th' enormous WALL they ſee:
Proclaim'd defiance can but quicken THEE!
Zemla's white cliffs—eternal hoards of froſt!
Where proud diſcovery has ſo oft been loſt!
Thro' ev'ry period of the world till now,
Have check'd all keels that would thoſe oceans plow:
Nature's laſt barrier! they, all ſearch withſtood:
And bound ambition up—in freezing blood!
Reſerv'd by Heav'n—and for thy reign deſign'd,
Thy piercing eye ſhall that dark PASSAGE find:
Or, Eaſt's & Weſt's embracing confines ſhown,
Join two emerging worlds—and both thy own.
Stop, headlong Muſe——ah! whither wouldſt thou go?
Look down, with caution, on the depth below!
Proſpects too vaſt the raſh preſumer fright;
And, dazling, wound an unco lected ſight.
Congratulate, a while, our Church's gain;
And, mingling joy, relax thy wonder's ſtrain.
Shall then at laſt, beneath propitious ſkies,
The croſs, triumphant, o'er the creſcent riſe?
Shall we behold earth's long ſuſtain'd diſgrace
Reveng'd, in arms, on Oſman's haughty race?
Shall Chriſtian Greece ſhake off a captive's ſhame?
And look, unbluſhing, at her Pagan fame?
'Twill be—Prophetic Delphos claims her own;
Hails her new Cæſars—on the Ruſſian throne.
Athens ſhall teach once more! once more aſpire!
And Spartan breaſts re-glow with martial fire?
Still, ſtill Byzantium's bright'ning domes ſhall ſhine,
And rear the ruin'd name of CONSTANTINE.

LONDON, Sept. 24.

BY the laſt letters from Bengal, dated in February 1771, it appears they were under great apprehenſions of a ſecond famine, rice being then from 15 the 17 Seers per Rupee. A gentleman gives the following account of the firſt famine in a letter to his friend.

"As ſoon as the dryneſs of the ſeaſon foretold the approaching dearneſs of rice, our gentlemen in the company's ſervice, particularly thoſe at the ſubordinates, whoſe ſtations gave them the beſt opportunities, were as early as poſſible in buying up all they could lay hold of. When the effects of the ſcarcity became more and more ſenſible, the natives complained to the Nabob at Maxadavad that the Engliſh had Engroſſed all the rice, particularly in the Bahar and Purnea provinces. The complaint was laid before the preſident and council by the Nabob's miniſter who reſides in Calcutta; but the intereſt of the Gentlemen concerned was too powerful at the board; ſo that the complaint was only laughed at and thrown out. Our gentlemen in many places purchaſed the rice at 120 and 140 ſeers for a rupee, which they afterwards ſold for 15 ſeers for a Rupee to the black merchants; ſo that the perſons principally concerned have made great fortunes by it; and one of our writers at the Durbar who was intereſted therein, not eſteemed to be worth a thouſand rupees laſt year, has ſent down, as it is ſaid, 60 000l. ſterling to be remitted home this year. The black merchants who had made the groſs purchaſes from our gentlemen, brought down great quantities of their rice, and depoſited it in the golahs and granaries about Calcutta, where very unfortunately for the poor inhabitants, great part of it was deſtroyed by the moſt terrible fires, which we had in the months of April and May, before which time the Engliſh had ſold off all they had on hand. The effects of the ſcarcity continuing to become daily more alarming, our Governor and council bethought themſelves, though much too late, to ſend into the interior part of the country to purchaſe what rice they could on the company's account, fixed the price of ſales in Calcutta, at ten ſeers for a rupee, and ſeized all they could upon the rivers. The black merchants remonſtrated, that the charges of bringing the rice down the country, together with the high intereſt which they paid the ſhroffs or bankers for raiſing the money, and other contingencies, ran ſo exceſſively high, that they ſhould, upon theſe terms, be loſers by their purchaſes: upon which, by an order of council, ſeypoys were ſtationed at their golahs to prevent the delivering any rice without a permit or order; and notwithſtanding all the orders for purchaſing up the country on the company's account, ſo bare were the company's granaries here, that the council were obliged to ſend and take from the merchants golahs what they want for the ſupport of their workmen on the fortifications at Calcutta and Budge-Bridge, who were threatening to deſert for want of victuals, and it was deemed a great favour if the merchants were allowed to carry from their golahs a few maunds to the Bazars to ſell for the ſupport of the inhabitants. The Nabob and ſeveral of the great men of the country at Maxadavad diſtributed rice to the poor gratis, untill their ſtocks began to fail, when thoſe donations were withdrawn, which brought many thouſands down to Calcutta in hopes of finding relief amongſt us. By the time the famine had been about a fortnight over the land, we were greatly affected at Calcutta, many thouſands falling daily in the ſtreets and fields, whoſe bodies, mangled by dogs, jackalls, and vultures, in that hot ſeaſon (when at beſt the air is very infectious) made us dread the conſequences of a plague. We had 100 people employed upon the Catcherry liſt on the company's account with doolys, ſledges and bearers to carry the dead & throw them into the river Ganges. I have counted from my bed chamber window in the morning when I got up forty dead bodies lying in the agonies of death for want, bending double with their ſtomachs quite cloſe contracted to their back bone. I have ſent my ſervant to deſire thoſe who had ſtrength to remove farther off, whilſt the poor creatures, looking up with arms extended, have cried out, baba, baba, my father! my father! This affliction comes from the hand of your countrymen, and I am come here to die, if it pleaſe God, in your preſence, I cannot move; do what you will with me. In the month of June our condition was ſtill worſe, only three ſeers of rice to be had in the Bazar for a rupee, and that very bad which when brought muſt be carried home ſecretly to avoid being plundered by the famiſhed multitude on the road. One could not paſs along the ſtreets without ſeeing multitudes in their laſt agonies, crying out as you paſſed, my God! my God! have mercy upon me, I am ſtarving; whilſt on other ſides numbers of dead were ſeen with dogs, jackalls, hogs, vultures, and other birds of prey, feeding on their carcaſes. It was remarked by the natives, that a greater number of thoſe animals came down at this time than was ever known, which upon this melancholy occaſion was of great ſervice: as the vultures and other birds take the eyes and inteſtines, whilſt the other animals knaw the feet and hands; ſo that very little of the body remained for the Catcherry people to carry to the river, notwithſtanding they had very hard work of it. I have obſerved two of them with a dooly carrying twenty heads, and the remains of the carcaſes that had been left by the beaſts of prey, to the river at a time. At this time we could not touch fiſh, as the river was full of carcaſes; and of thoſe who did eat it, many died ſuddenly. Pork, ducks, and geeſe alſo lived moſtly upon carnage; ſo that our only meat was mutton when we could get it, which was very dear, and from the dryneſs of the ſeaſon ſo poor, that a quarter would not weigh a pound & a half. Of this I uſed to make a little broth, and after I had dined, there were 100 poor at the door waiting for the remains, which I have often ſent among them cut up into little pieces; ſo that as many as could might partake of it; and after one had ſucked the bones quite dry, and thrown them away, I have ſeen another take them, and do the ſame, and ſo by a third, and ſo on. In the month of Auguſt we had a very alarming phænomenon appeared of a black cloud at a diſtance in the air, which ſometimes darkened the ſun and ſeemed to extend a great way all over and about Calcutta. The hotter the day proved, the lower this cloud ſeemed to deſcend, and for three days cauſed great ſpeculation. The Bramins pretended that this phænomenon, which is a cloud of inſects, ſhould make its appearance three times, and if ever it deſcended to the earth, the country would be deſtroyed by ſome untimely misfortune. They ſay that about 150 years ago they had ſuch another bad time, when the ground was burnt up for want of rain; this is the ſecond time of this phænomenon's appearing, and that they came much lower than is recorded of the former. On the 3d day, the weather being very hot and cloudy with much rain, we could perceive them with the naked eye, hearing a continual buzzing.

"About one o'clock they were ſo low as 30 feet from the ground, when we ſaw them diſtinctly to be a great number of large inſects, about the ſize of a horſe ſtinger, with a long red body, long wings, and a large head and eyes keeping cloſe together like a ſwarm of bees, ſeemingly flying quite on a line. I did not hear that any were caught, as country people were much frighted at the prognoſtications of the Bramins. Whilſt it rained they continued, in that poſition for near a quarter of an hour; they then roſe five or ſix feet at once, and in a little time deſcended as much, until a ſtrong northweſt wind came and blowed two days ſucceſſively, when they gradually aſcended, in the ſame manner, but more precipitately until the next morning when the air was quite clear. It was very remarkable that for ſome days before the appearance of this phænomenon, that toads, frogs and inſects that in numbers innumerable always make a continual noiſe here, the whole night, during the rains diſappeared, and were neither ſeen or heard, except in the river.

"Whilſt the famine continued news came down privately to Calcutta, that the Nabob was dead, and had died in his garden of the ſmall pox. Many people would not give credit to the report, as the governor and council pretended they did not know it for three weeks afterwards, when Mahomed Reza Cawn came down from Maxadavad, and bro't with him the young brother of the deceaſed Nabob, the only male heir remaining of Meer Jeffier's family, whom the ſaid governor and council in the preſence of ſome of their friends proclaimed Nabob the very next day at the court houſe."

A woman, ſiſter to the grave digger of St. Luke's, old ſtreet, has been brought to bed within theſe ten months of five children, who are all alive and well.

LONDON, October 1.

The committee of the Livery at the Paul's Head Tavern, in Support of the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor and Mr. Alderman Sawbridge, lamenting that Difference among the popular Candidates, which endanger the worſt of Evils, the Prevalence of the Court Party in the City, readily embraced an Overture from Mr. Townſend's Friends, to treat with Mr. Townſend upon his declining the Poll, his Intereſt being manifeſtly too weak to have any other effect but that of injuring the public cauſe, and promoting that of the Court. With this view they appointed a committee to wait upon Mr. Townſend, with the propoſal that follows, which, with his anſwer, they now ſubmit to the candour of the Public.

(COPY) Sept. 30, 1771.

At a meeting of many of the Livery of London this Day at the Paul's Head tavern, it was reſolved that an application ſhould be made to Mr. Alderman Townſend requeſting him to decline the Poll as one of the candidates to be returned to the Court of Aldermen, for their Choice of Lord Mayor for the Year enſuing, in favour of the Right Hon. Braſs Croſby Eſq; and John Sawbridge Eſq; and we whoſe Names are here under written were deſired to wait on Mr. alderman Townſend with the ſaid Requeſt.

Copy of Mr. Townſend's Anſwer.

"I have declared my ſentiments very fully in Common Hall, which have been correctly printed in this Days Public Advertiſer. I have no favour to aſk, nor any benefit to receive. The Livery of London may if they pleaſe abandon their Conſiſtency. My integrity dearer to me than my life, has never yet been impeached. Let the kingdom judge between us. I will not decline the poll.

JA. TOWNSEND."

Fenchurch Street, London, Monday, Sept. 30.

By the Boſton Poſt.

Venice Sept 20. By a letter from a Greek merchant, at Smyrna, to his brother in this city, we learn that the famous Ali Bey, who lately revolted from the Grand Signior, has, at length, conquered all Syria, and on the 27th of Auguſt made a public entry into Antioch, where he was received with the loudeſt acclamations by the people of that metropolis: He was immediately waited on by the patriarch at the head of his clergy, and by above 300 monks of different orders preceded by an officer, carrying a ſtandard with the croſs. They were graciouſly received, and the patriarch addreſſed remains of the ancient church of Syria into his protection. His Highneſs aſſured them that all religions ſhould find favour, and that no injury whatſoever ſhould be done to his Chriſtian ſubjects, whilſt they behaved with fidelity and circumſpection. He ſeems to have taken a great liking to the patriarch, and ſpends ſeveral hours in his company, from whence large immunities are expected for the Chriſtians in Syria and Paleſtine.

LONDON, October 8.

At half paſt one o'clock the Lord Mayor and Aldermen came upon the huſtings; when the common Serjeant declared Mr. Alderman Naſh duly elected. The Lord Mayor Elect then addreſſed the Livery as follows:

The LORD MAYOR Elect's Speech to the Livery.

"Gentlemen of the Livery,

"I beg leave to return you my thanks for the high honor you have conferred upon me, by chooſing me your chief Magiſtrate for the year enſuing.

"When I conſider the dignity and importance of that exalted ſtation, I cannot help reflecting how unequal I am to the great and arduous taſk.

"[illegible], if a ſacrifice of my private concerns, by a conſtant attendance on the duties of the office, if a ſtrict and impartial adminiſtration of juſtice, if a watchful attention to the franchiſes, intereſt, and proſperity of my fellow citizens, can merit your eſteem, you may be aſſured of my utmoſt endeavors to deſerve it; and in which, as I have the example ſo I hope I ſhall have the kind aſſiſtance of my brethren.

"Providence having crowned my induſtry with an independent fortune I am determined to be an independent Magiſtrate, uninfluenced by any motives that may lead me from the public ſervice to my own advantage.

"I cannot conclude without publicly acknowledging my obligations to my Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs, for their ready attention to the preſervation of the peace, and ſecurity of my perſon in coming to, and going from, this place, during the poll."

His ſpeech was received with burſts of applauſe.

"Never did circumſtances more ſtrongly concur in favour of the Miniſtry than in the late election for Lord Mayor. Mr. Naſh's extenſive buſineſs ſecured the votes of many merchants, grocers, and ſugar bakers, to the amount of ſome hundreds; his connections with the Diſſenters gained him a third of the votes of that body; his good character likewiſe favoured him; and the prudence of the Miniſtry, in lending him their intereſt while they concealed their interference, gave him many votes without diſguſting many of his own private friends who were of the popular party."

When Lord North was acquainted with the majority of numbers in favour of Mr. Alderman Naſh, he replied, "So, So I think the ſcum of the earth hath at laſt boiled over."

October 10. Alderman Townſend did not dine on Tueſday at the Manſion-Houſe but Alderman Sawbridge did. In conſequence ſome converſation paſſed between him and Mr. Wilkes; and in the courſe of it, Mr. Wilkes declared that he would always inform the public of every part of their conduct that he thought intereſting to the community; that, as long as he had an arm, and a pen, he would employ them in the cauſe of truth; and, when his arms failed, he would learn to write with his toes; and therefore he deſired them to look to their conduct, for he would ſpare none of them.

GOVERNOR Tryon has iſſued a proclamation againſt a number of perſons, who, he ſays, under the title of a claim from New-Hampſhire, have encroached on Lands, they have no right to. He warns all magiſtrates to be vigorous in the exertion of their duty, and to take care that the laws be duly obſerved. Perhaps a new expedition is in contemplation by this enterpriſing genius. Under the conduct of General Tryon and Lieut. Colonel Howard, a ſeries of important events may take place. Should this be the caſe, we hope the ſame conſequences may not take place as enſued at Almance, unleſs by the Laws of mutatis mutantis.

His conſtant ſucceſs, joined with the cheapneſs of his price, and his ſalubrious part of the country, being near the North River, where fiſhing and game are plenty and other amuſements, he doubts not may be a ſufficient recommendation to the reſpectable public, and all may be aſſured of the beſt care and attendance at his houſe in Newburgh, oppoſite Poughkeepſie and the Fiſh Kill.

Hartford, December 3 1771.

The Treaſurer of the Colony of Connecticut, hereby gives notice to the Conſtables and Collectors of the TAX 1771, that he expects they reſpectively pay ſaid Tax, by the thirtieth Day of January next, in Bills emitted on this Colony, the 10th Day of May 1770, or in hard Money, otherwiſe he ſhall think it his Duty to ſend out his Warrants of Diſtreſs indiſcriminately, againſt thoſe that ſhall then be delinquent. Thoſe Perſons alſo that are indebted to the Colony, by Bond or Note, or any otherways whatſoever, are deſired to Diſcharge the ſame. The reſpective Sheriffs of the Colony are likewiſe directed to make returns of the Executions committed to them by the Treaſurer. The Agents, King's Attornies are likewiſe called upon to ſettle, which will effectually prevent his taking thoſe Meaſures that will be expenſive to them, as well as diſagreeable to him.

Treaſury-Office, 17th December, 1771.

ALL perſons indebted to, or that have any demands upon the eſtate of JOHN LEDYARD, Eſq; deceas'd are deſired ſpeedily to ſettle and adjuſt the ſame with the ſubſcriber. And thoſe that have failed to pay the intereſt monies due to the Grammar School, are requeſted immediately to diſcharge the ſame to the committee without further notice.

Thomas Seymour.

Hartford, December 18 1771.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon. judge of probate for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners on the eſtate of Enoch Merrills, late of Eaſt-Windſor deceas'd, repreſented inſolvent, do hereby give notice, that we ſhall attend that buſineſs at the dwelling houſe of Aaron Biſſel, in ſaid Eaſt Windſor, on the ſecond tueſdays of January February & March next, at one of the clock in the afternoon, on each of ſaid days. And as there is but four months allowed for the ſettlement of ſaid eſtate, no accounts will be allowed after ſaid time.

THE CONNECTICUT COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt and moſt important Advices, both Foreign and Domeſtic.

From TUESDAY, JANUARY 7, to TUESDAY, JANUARY 14, 1772.

NEWYORK, Jan. 2 1772.

Laſt Thurſday Night arrived here in ten Weeks from Falmouth, the Harriot Packet, Capt. Lee, and by Capt. OSBORNE, from London, arrived at Philadelphia, we have the following Advices, viz.

LISBON, Sept. 10.

LAST, Friday at noon as the Marquis of Pombal, principal Miniſter of his moſt Faithful Majeſty, was going out of the King's Palace, he was attacked in his carriage, in the midſt of the horſe-guards who accompanied him, by a young countryman almoſt naked, who threw a ſtone at him with ſuch violence, that it ſplit the coach door againſt which it happily hit; he had time to throw another, before he was ſeized by the guards, who would have cut him to pieces, had not the Marquis forbid their hurting him. This wretch did not endeavour to eſcape, and only ſeems to regret his not being killed by the guards; he was immediately carried to the priſon of the Jonquiere.

Peterſburgh Aug. 27. Notwithſtanding the expences of the preſent war are prodigious, yet they are far from being burthenſome to the people, who contribute nothing of their own thereto. The method of negociating money, the ſpoils taken from the enemy, and the contributions which the Imperial armies draw from the conquered provinces, [illegible] defraying the above expences.

Ratiſbon, Sept. 4. The famine that has happened at Bohemia, has occaſioned a contagious diſtemper in that Kingdom, which is ſaid to have carried off 1700 perſons within the ſpace of 12 days.

Warſaw, Sept. 5. The Confederates taking advantage of the abſence of General Branicki, and Colonel Drewitz, are again aſſembling to a conſiderable number in the Palatinate of Cracow; and it ſeems as if they wanted to ſurround the regiment of Lithuanian guards, which has been left at Wieliczka; but it is hoped their deſign will be fruſtrated.

Naples, Sept. 3. The ſmall-pox has made ſuch havock in this city, that in the Month of Auguſt 600 children died of that diſtemper.

Venice, Sept. 7. By the laſt letters from Conſtantinople, the renowned Moldavangi Baſſa, Commandant of the Dardanelles, was beheaded by order of the Sultan, becauſe he had not properly paid the troops under his command.

From the Iſle of Elbe, Sept 7. If ſome advices from Corſica are to be credited, the French have been obliged to ceaſe all their works in that iſland as the Malcontents come in the night, and burn, blow up, or demoliſh them. In ſhort 22 of thoſe wretches in one night, deſtroyed all the work a whole battalion of French had completed in a week; their hatred towards the French is ſo great, that they poiſon all the wells, ciſterns, fountains, and little ſprings, which are in that part of the country they inhabit; they kill the horſes in the fields, and infect the hay they are to eat, and are continually maſſacreing ſome of the French officers. It is ſaid, that being determined to throw off the French yoke, they have ſent ſeven of their Deputies to offer the general government of the iſland to an Italian Prince. According to the plan they have made among themſelves, and the capitulation they have agreed to, this Prince is to accept of Corſica as an hereditary kingdom to his family. The nation is to furniſh him with a revenue of 800 000 Sequins per ann and is to reſerve the right of always having 6000 men on foot in the iſland. On the Prince's ſide, he is to ſupport nine battalions of infantry, three companies of huſſars, and one corps of artillery of about 360 men.

Vienna, Sept. 14. By letters from the Danube we are informed that General Eſſen in attempting to paſs that river has been totally defeated, and deſpoiled of the greateſt part of his baggage and ammunition. The ſame letters add, that Prince Repnin is highly diſpleaſed at the conduct of Count Romanzow, and that he has begged leave to retire.

Eſcurial, Sept. 15. The crops in Spain have been this year very abundant; and the harveſt all over the kingdom has been as fine as could be wiſhed.

Baſtia, Sept 16. A new act of indemnity will ſoon be paſſed in favour of the inſurgents, on condition of their returning peaceably to their reſpective places of abode before the expiration of two months; in failure of which they will again be declared rebels againſt the King of France, and their goods will be confiſcated. Notwithſtanding theſe ſalutary precautions the banditti daily increaſe, and commit dreadful ravages.

Baſtia. Sept. 18. The Court of France has ennobled ſeveral Corſican families who aſpired to that honour. Theſe new nobles are coming to this capital, to aſſiſt at the next aſſembly [illegible]

Paris, Sept. 20. It is aſſured that the Miniſtry has ordered all the Ex Jeſuits, who were about to ſettle in Paris, to depart from the city. At leaſt it is certain, that thoſe who had begun to preach, have diſappeared, without fulfilling the engagements that they had entered into, to exerciſe the duty of certain churches. It is ſaid to be at the requeſt of the King of Spain, that the Government has determined to ſend them at a diſtance from the capital.

Paris, Sept 23. A young man, who had been taken up for a ſlight offence, ripped open his belly with a knife as he entered the Court of Juſtice. He had the ferocious courage to tear out his liver, and the abdomen, of the ſtomach; he twiſted his bowels round his hands, and in that frightful poſture he fell down. He lived twelve hours in that dreadful condition, crying out in a moſt horrible manner.

Cologne, Sept 23. Letters from Genoa adviſe, that the Court of Ruſſia having communicated to a mediating power the conditions upon which it would conſent to make peace with the Porte, that power declared, that ſuch conditions were neither fit to be propoſed nor accepted; and that if ever the Porte did accept of them, that power would be the firſt to oppoſe it.

Paris, Sept 22. Letters from Rome adviſe that Mr. Meuret, Secretary to Prince Edward, has been carried off, in conſequence of ſuperior orders; what makes people ſuſpect ſome myſtery in the caſe is, that the Pretender, before he left Rome, in a letter, which that Prince wrote to his intendant, only ſays, that he is going to treat about an affair of importance, and that it is a ſecret, which he cannot truſt with any perſon.

Antwerp, Oct. 4. All the advices from Flanders bring us ſad accounts of the diſtemper among the horned cattle, which has broke out again, and makes great havock there.

LONDON, Sept 28.

On Tueſday, at a coffee houſe at the Royal Exchange, a gentleman agreed to give another 100 guineas, to receive one guinea every week for three years, or to ceaſe paying it when Mr. W. ſhall be choſen Lord Mayor.

A gentleman converſant with maritime affairs aſſures us that when a man of war is manned and victualled for a ſix month voyage ſhe ſtands the Government in juſt 1000l. a gun.

Ruſſia, which a century ago had ſcarcely a ſhip of war in her whole ſervice, is now generally eſteemed the ſecond naval power in Europe, and bids fair to be the firſt, if the Miniſtry of this nation do not pay a ſtrict attention to the wooden walls of England.

Claret, Burgundy, and Champaigne, which now ſell at prodigious high prices in this country, are to be raiſed in as much perfection in the Britiſh territories on the Miſſiſippi as in any part of France, and could be ſold for a ſhilling a bottle to the people of London, was a ſettlement once eſtabliſhed in that part of the world, by our government.

A plan for new American repreſentation has been laid before his Majeſty, and has met with his approbation.

Sept. 30. Admiral Elphinſtone has quitted the Empreſs of Ruſſia's ſervice. In the diſcharge which has been ſent him, her Imperial Majeſty returns him thanks for his ſervices. It is ſaid that many of the Engliſh ſailors left the Ruſſian fleet on this occaſion.

Oct. 1. It is ſaid, that the French and Portugueſe ſhips of war have free admiſſion into the [illegible]

The city of London is [illegible] different parties, that Adminiſtration conſiders it, we hear, as a very impotent enemy: If therefore, it would acquire a real importance in the conſtitutional ſcale the citizens ſhould attend to the re-eſtabliſhment of their general tranquility; concord is the only ſhield which can ever render them invincible; and when they are internally diſtracted, they are not more employed in oppoſing miniſterial invaſion, than in publicly injuring themſelves.

Thoſe political barometers the funds, fell yeſterday amazingly, in conſequence of a report circulated relative to an immediate war. Yet conſiderate men imagine the report wholly a Change-ally artifice, as the Parliament is prorogued, which would inſtantly aſſemble for ways and means, was there any real apprehenſion of a rupture.

Twelve guineas were yeſterday frequently offered round the Change, for the receipt of an hundred, in caſe a war with France or Spain took place in the courſe of a twelvemonth; yet notwithſtanding the preſent ſerenity of the political horizon, very few ventured to take the money; a circumſtance which ſtrongly corroborates the report of that rupture which created ſo alarming a reduction in the ſtocks.

Orders are ſent to Cork and Kingſale to provide quarters immediately for ſix regiments of foot, which are to be quartered there for the greater convenience of embarkation.

They write from Marſeilles, that the Captain of a French frigate, lately returned from the Levant is broke, for not taking ſatisfaction for an inſult given to the flag by a Ruſſian corſair; and another officer of the ſame rank has met with the like fate, for ſuffering another corſair of that nation to take a French veſſel in his ſight.

It is now known, that one principal reaſon for allowing a Popiſh Biſhop in Canada, was to furniſh a pretence for eſtabliſhing a Proteſtant Prelacy throughout the Britiſh colonies.

Lately died Miſs Elizabeth Gordon, a maiden Lady, at her ſeat near Harwich; ſaid to have died worth 50,000l. great part of which ſhe has left to charitable uſes; among the reſt 2000l. for erecting an hoſpital for the relief of indigent old maids.

Though the colonies ſeem ſtill to adhere to that one reſolution, "that they would import no tea till the duty laid on it here is taken off," yet it is ſaid, the orders from them for that article are as many and great this year as they uſed to be formerly.

Oct. 2. A maſter of a veſſel, lately arrived from Dunkirk, ſays, that the Week before he left that place, no leſs than nine veſſels arrived there from England laden with corn.

Oct. 3. The American agents are very buſy in preparing to lay before the enſuing parliament many beneficial regulations, reſpecting the trade of the colonies.

Letters from Conſtantinople affirm, that a Malteſe Renegado, renowned for his knowledge and valour in maratime affairs, had, in a converſation lately with a Caimacan, declared, that in the preſent ſtate of the Dardanelles, it was far from impoſſible for a few men of war not only to force that famous paſſage with impunity, in diſpute of the Turkiſh artillery, but even to advance to Conſtantinople, and bombard the city. It is added, that the Grand Signor, on being informed of the affair, far from puniſhing the Renegado, as uſual in former times, had given him a commiſſion to inſpect into theſe antient fortreſſes and make what improvements he thought neceſſary to their defence.

It is ſaid that the French Miniſter at Peterſburgh being diſcovered of reflecting in his letter with great freedom on that court, will be ordered home without permiſſion of an audience of leave.

Letters from Paris ſay, that the people in the inland part of that kingdom are in a ſtarving condition for want of corn.

Oct. 4. It is reported that ſome of the great officers of State will go to Reading the beginning of next week, to examine Britain confined in the goal there, relative to the crimes he has lately charged himſelf and others with.

They write from the iſland of Sky, that no leſs than 370 perſons have lately embarked from that iſland in order to ſettle in North Carolina; ſeveral of them are people of property, who intend making purchaſes of the land in the Weſtern Iſlands of Scotland, is ſaid to be the reaſon of this emigration.

Yeſterday a Gentleman of Saliſbury court, Fleet ſtreet, ſaid to be worth 30,000l. was detected in ſtealing writing paper from the ſitting Alderman's room in Guildhall. He was committed to Woodſtreet Compter, to take his trial at the enſuing ſeſſion.

When Mr. Sheriff Martin on Saturday laſt pulled off his gold chain upon the Huſtings, he delivered it to a perſon who attended to receive it from him, in order to convey it to the new Sheriff, Mr. Wilkes, who uſed it for the ceremony of being admitted into his chair, but ſo little confidence did Mr. Martin repoſe in his ſucceſſor's honeſty, that he ſaid out aloud before all the by ſtanders, "Take notice, I deliver this chain on the account of Mr Bull; and you are to bring me a receipt for it from that Gentleman." Accordingly the man returned with Mr. Bull's receipt. The value of the chain is about one hundred pounds.

Wedneſday two of the Directors of the E. I. C. had violent words about the preſent conteſted Election for Lord Mayor, and a challenge was given, which would have been anſwered had not their friends immediately interfered.

After the cloſe of the poll yeſterday at Guildhall, ſome of the mob called out to Mr. Alderman Naſh to come down to the Huſtings, which he condeſcendingly did; after bowing to them ſeveral times. No ſooner had he complied with their requeſt, but they began to be ſo outrageous, that ſome of the Aldermen's friends were obliged to call Conſtables together to his aſſiſtance, who after they had with great difficulty eſcorted him from the hall to the yard, put him into his coach and ordered the coachman to drive on; but this was prevented by one part of the mob, while the others forced in the panels of the carriage. Mr. Sheriff Wilkes, as ſoon as he heard of theſe tumultuous proceedings came forward, and genteely offered Mr. Naſh the uſe of his chariot, which he readily accepted, and they both were drove to the Alderman's houſe in Cannon ſtreet.

Oct. 5. Yeſterday the Prince de Poniatowſki nearly related to his Poliſh Majeſty, arrived here from Poland.

Oct. 9. An officer of rank, who was lately caſhiered for breaking his arreſt, is reſtored to his former command.

A great number of marine officers have been called from half-pay upon actual ſervice, it being ſettled that no new ones ſhall be appointed on that eſtabliſhment till the old ones are provided for.

The following letter was received on Monday by the Sheriffs at the time of calling up the poll

"Meſſrs. Wilkes & Bull,

"Gentlemen,

"I beſeech you to pardon a ſtranger preſuming to give you a hint in the execution of your office. As the name of Mr. Alderman Banks ſtands loweſt on the board behind you you may poſſibly overlook its importance. The rule has lately been introduced of declaring him who has had the loweſt number duly elected; it was ſo in the caſe of the Middleſex election. You will be pleaſed not to let prejudices ariſing from cuſtom, determine you to tranſgreſs a rule ſo lately eſtabliſhed; and eſtabliſhed too by ſo very reſpectable authority as the preſent moſt virtuous, diſintereſted unbiaſſed, and uncorrupted Houſe of Commons, Your's, J. C."

Oct. 11. By an account from Lyons in France we hear that a ſilk manufacturer being at dinner at the houſe of a friend, a little girl brought him a box tied with pack thread, which ſhe preſſed him to open, as it required an anſwer; accordingly he opened it and having pulled off the ſtring which bound ſomething in it, two piſtols loaded with ball went off, and ſet fire to ſome gun powder in the box; the balls did no damage, but the gun powder ſet fire to his cloaths and ſcorched his face. Enquiry has been ſtrictly made after the contrivers of this plot, but to no purpoſe. A ſimilar affair to the above happened about ten years ago at the ſame place.

On Tueſday night an expreſs arrived from Paris at the French Ambaſſador's houſe in Great George ſtreet, that his Excellency Count de Guignes would be in town to-morrow; and preparations are making for his reception.

great a ſtagnation in trade, that ſeveral merchantmen bound to different ports now lie in the river unable to procure freights.

The ſum of two millions five hundred thouſand pounds, it is computed, will be wanting to ſupply the exigencies of the enſuing year.

Oct. 13. Some late letters from the Hague adviſe, that the French are equipping ſeveral men of war, frigates, &c. at Toulon, and the other ports of France, in order to have a powerful ſquadron at ſea early in the ſpring.

According to recent letters from Genoa, the Republic has engaged to build ten new ſhips of war of different rates, for the ſervice of France which are to be furniſhed with the utmoſt expedition.

Oct. 14. We are aſſured, that a number of reſpectable merchants in the city intend, in a few days to wait upon Lord North, in order to learn his Lordſhip's ſentiments as to the likelihood of a ſpeedy war: and it is hoped his Lordſhip will be very candid and explicit upon a ſubject ſo important to the nation in general, but more particularly intereſting to the trading part of it.

An anonymous correſpondent has ſent us the following paragraph:—It is with the utmoſt concern we inform our readers, that the ſo much celebrated and truly diſintereſted patriot John Wilkes, Eſq; is in a deep conſumption, and that the gentlemen of the faculty have pronounced it impoſſible he ſhould hold out longer than the end of his Sheriffalty.—Oh! poor old England.

ANECDOTE.

ABOUT the middle of Auguſt, 1758, his preſent Majeſty (then Prince of Wales) ſet out with his Tutor, Lord Bute, on a Tour into Scotland. Dreſſed as private Gentlemen, and attended only by two Servants, they reached Edinburgh, without being diſcovered.—Here, while they alighted to change horſes, an Officer of the Horſe paſſed unluckily by the Inn, and eaſily traced the Royal features through all the diſguiſe which covered them. He immediately took horſe, and followed the Travellers at a diſtance. Eager to unriddle ſome important myſtery, which might be the cauſe of their journey, he followed them from Edinburgh to Glaſgow, from thence to the Weſt of Scotland, and, finally, to the Iſland which gives title to Lord Bute. From thence he traced them by another road back to the Inn where he firſt found them at Edinburgh, without making any diſcoveries.—This the Writer ſays is a well atteſted fact; and thoſe who ſay that his Majeſty never travelled through any of his dominions do him great injuſtice

ANECDOTE.

The preſent ſtate of France.

IT has been the conſtant cuſtom whenever the French Monarch comes out of Verſailles, or any of his Palaces, for the people to croud the carriage and ſalute him with the cry of Vive le Rio. But ſince the many acts of tyranny, under which the French ſuffer, they have turned their backs to the coach in ſullen diſdain. A poor infirm old woman was ſtanding with a little baſket of cakes, to ſell in the outward Court of Verſailles; ſome little time ago when Louis came out of the Palace and drove to the ſpot where the old woman was, before ſhe could get out of the way, on her not giving the uſual ſalutation, one of the guard rode up to her and demanded, why ſhe did not cry Vive le Roi? I would, replied the old woman, with all my ſoul, but was afraid the people would have ſtoned me to death if I had.

ANECDOTE.

A Biſhop and a general being in company, the biſhop gave the French King for a toaſt. The general after drinking it, expreſſed his ſurpriſe that the biſhop ſhould give ſuch a toaſt. I did it, ſaid the biſhop, in compliment to you; for were it not for the French King, there would be no need of any army. When it came to the general's turn, he gave the devil; the biſhop refuſing to drink it, the general inſiſted he ſhould, declaring, that were it not for the devil, there would be no occaſion for eccleſiaſtics.

The following ſhort Anecdote will ſhew the advantage of public ſatire to men in the higheſt ſtations.

DURING the firſt triumvirate of Pompey, Cæſar, received one of the oldeſt plays in the Latin tongue, in which there happened to be the following lines; noſtris miſeriis magnus es, 'by our miſeries thou art become great.' The whole audience immediately applied this to Pompey, who was as well known by the name of Magnus, as that of Pompey; and made the actor repeat it an hundred times.—What did Pompey? Did he reſent the ſatire, or the people's applauſe? No——his conduct was wiſe and prudent; he reflected juſtly within himſelf, that ſome actions, of which he had been guilty, had rendered him unpopular. He began, from that hour, to alter his meaſures; he regained, by degrees, the people's eſteem and confidence, grew popular; and neither feared their wit, nor felt their ſatire.

ANECDOTE concerning L. C. J. COKE.

IN the year 1508, Sir Edward Coke, then Attorney General, married the Lady Hatton, according to the book of common prayer, but without bans or licence, and in a private houſe; ſeveral great men, were then preſent, as Lord Burleigh, Lord Chancellor Egerton, &c. they all, by their Proctor ſubmitted to the cenſure of the Archbiſhop, who granted them an abſolution from the excommunication they had incurred; the act of abſolution ſet forth, that it was granted by reaſon of penitence, and the fact ſeeming to have been done through Ignorance of Law.

Whitgiſt and Collier.

LONDON, Oct. 14, 1771.

THE following is an exact ſtate of facts. Mr. Townſend made no reply publickly in the Common council to Mr. Wilkes, when he called on Mr. Townſend to name a certain perſon unworthy of the Cup, who had been guilty of colluſion in the buſineſs of the Printers, and made one of them guilty of Perjury, which ought to be imputed to him. Mr. Wilkes immediately, in the face of the Court, declared the aſſertion to be an impudent falſehood; a falſehood only to be paralleled by another of the ſame Alderman, when he went down with Mr. Horne to Franham laſt ſummer, on a viſit to Mr. Bellas, on purpoſe to tell him that Mr. Reynolds had given Mr. Wilkes 200l. for his intereſt to ſucceed the Town Clerk. To this, advanced in the face of the Court, Mr. Townſend made no reply. Afterwards Mr. Wilkes ſat down in his place next to Mr. Oliver, at whoſe left-hand Mr. Townſend was. Mr. Wilkes then ſaid to Mr. Townſend, in the hearing of Mr. Oliver, "You juſt now advanced an impudent lye." Mr. Townſend replied, "You are a Scoundrel." Mr. Wilkes then added, "Set your name to the charge, and I will prove you a lying Scoundrel to the world." Nothing more paſſed at that time, nor has ſince. When Mr. Townſhend has ſettled his former Affair, of honour with Mr. Heaton Wilkes, he will, probably, begin with the elder Brother.

A certain Secretary has publickly declared, that he will oppoſe the Repeal of any Acts that may affect the Colonies, there being a talk of ſome ſuch proceedings at the enſuing Parliament.

Sunday died, greatly lamented, in the 74th year of his age, the Reverend and learned Dr. John Gill, an eminent Diſſenting Miniſter of this City.

Tueſday laſt, about two o'clock, after Major Rogers had paſſed thro' Deptford, the poſt-chaiſe man, who drove him told him a highwayman hovered round the chaiſe. As ſoon as the fellow came to the Major, he ſeized him by the hand and pulled him into the chaiſe—The highwayman anſwers the deſcription in an advertiſement of Sir John Fielding's. The Major carried him to the Mayor at Graveſend, & after an examination there, ſent him to the Rotation office, in Bow ſtreet.

BOSTON.

Application having been made to the Governor to grant a further ſhort Reprieve to Bryan Sheehen, in order to his preparing for Death, His Excellency has been pleas'd further to Reprieve him until the 16th inſtant.

Capt. Grandy who arrived at Marblehead laſt Week, in 61 Days from Cadiz, on George's Bank, the 17th Inſtant ſaw a large Schooner, almoſt under Water, ſuppoſed to be about 100 Tons Burthen; her Foremaſt was partly out of Water, ſome part of her Sails looſe, and her ſides and Quarter painted black and yellow.—She was ſuppoſed, by the Freſhneſs of the Tar, to be an outward bound Veſſel.

Laſt Week a Veſſel arrived at Salem from the Weſt-Indies, who about a Fortnight before, off the Capes of Virginia, fell in with Capt. Wanton in a Sloop from the Mole bound to Rhode-Iſland, who having met with a violent gale of Wind, and in a ſhattered condition, with 5 Feet of Water in the Hold, took him and his Crew on board and brought them ſafe into Salem. The Captain has ſince ſet out for Newport with one of his Servants, leaving another to the Charity of this town, who would have ſuffered much had he not been relieved by the Humanity of the Overſeers of the Poor here.

We hear from Newbury-Port, that on the 15th ult. the Schooner Neptune Capt. Jones, arrived there from the Weſt-Indies, who the ſame day ſaw a Schooner between the Iſle of Shoals and Hampton-Beach, that was overſet, and appeared to be about 50 or 60 Tons burthen; her Foremaſt was ſtanding, but her Mainmaſt gone; her ſails were waſhing along ſide; ſhe had ſome red paint upon her quarters; Her Boat was laſhed upon Deck, but no perſons were diſcovered on board, ſo that it is feared the Crew were all drowned.

We hear that a young Woman in the Service of Mr. Brewer, Innholder in Waltham, having lain in Bed one Morning rather later than common, Mrs. Brewer ſent up to enquire the Reaſon; the young Woman ſent back Word, that ſhe ſhould be down in a few minutes, and accordingly came; when Mrs. Brewer, obſerving that her Looks and behaviour were not as uſual, aſked her if ſhe had had a child; to which ſhe anſwered, that ſhe had not: But her Reply not being ſatisfactory, Search was made in her Chamber, and a new-born Infant was found dead under her Bed-Cloaths. The young Woman, we alſo hear, was ſo ill, after the Diſcovery, that it was thought ſhe could not ſurvive.

NEW-LONDON, Jan. 10.

Laſt Tueſday came into Stonington-Harbour, the Sloop ——, Capt. Lilly, owned by Mr. Jaſper Griffing of Guilford, which veſſel being at Anchor at Block-Iſland, on Sunday Night laſt drove aſhore on that Iſland, received conſiderable Damage, loſt both Anchors, and had the Cargo taken on Shore;—after getting the Veſſel off again, the Mate brought her into Stonington as above, without Anchor or any Ballaſt on Board. Capt. Lilley had 34 Days Paſſage from St. Kitts: In Lat. 38 ſaw a Sloop Bottom upwards, being a Brimſtone Bottom, which Veſſel they took to be Capt. Spencer, who ſailed from St. Kitts the ſame Day with Capt. Lilley, and belonged to the ſame Owner.

Capt. Ederton, in a Norwich Brig, was at St. Euſtatia the 20th of November, having carried his Cargo in well.

HAPPINESS.

Aſ happineſs is all our aim,
Some ſeek to purchaſe it by fame;
While others think in honour lies,
The ſo much wiſh'd and ſought for prize;
And ſome, that wealth alone's the thing,
Which can at once the treaſure bring:
Health, beauty, wit, we all deſire,
For each of theſe the world admire;
But theſe are idle, falſe and vain,
And of the ſource of grief and pain:
The path to happineſs we find,
Through virtue lies, and peace of mind.

From the LONDON CHRONICLE of Sept. 28.

To His Grace the DUKE of——

MY LORD,

THE people of England are not appriſed of the full extent of their obligations to you. They have yet no adequate Idea of the endleſs variety of your Character. They have ſeen you diſtinguiſhed & ſucceſsful in the continued violation of thoſe moral and political duties by which the little, as well as the great ſocieties of life, are collected and held together. Every colour; every character, become you. With a rate of abilities, which Lord Weymouth very juſtly looks down upon with contempt you have done as much miſchief to the community as Cromwell would have done, if Cromwell had been a coward, and as much as Machiavel, if Machiavel had known, that an appearance of morals and religion are uſeful in ſociety.——To a thinking man, the influence of the Crown will, in no view, appear ſo formidable, as when he obſerves to what enormous exceſſes it has ſafely conducted your Grace, without a ray of real underſtanding, without even the pretenſion to common decency, or principle of any kind, or a ſingle ſpark of perſonal reſolution. What muſt be the opperation of that pernicious influence (for which our Kings have wiſely exchanged the nugatory name of prerogative) that in the higheſt ſtations, can ſo abundantly ſupply the Miniſter, of a great nation, whom a private Gentleman would be aſhamed and afraid to admit into his family! Like the univerſal paſſport of an Ambaſſador, it ſuperſedes the proviſion of the laws, baniſhes the ſtaple virtues of the country, and introduces vice and folly triumphantly into all the departments of the ſtate. In former times corruption was conſidered as a foreign auxiliary to government, and only called in upon extraordinary emergencies.——The natural reſources of the Crown are no longer confided in. Corruption glitters in the van;——collects and maintains a ſtanding army of mercenaries, and, at the ſame moment, impoveriſhes and inſlaves the country.——His Majeſty's predeceſſors (excepting that worthy family, from which you, my Lord, are unqueſtionably deſcended) had ſome generous qualities in their compoſition, with vices, I confeſs, for frailties in abundence. They were Kings or Gentlemen, not hypocrites or prieſts. They were at the head of the church, but did not know the value of their office. They ſaid their prayers without ceremony, and had too little prieſtcraft in their underſtanding, to reconcile the ſanctimonious forms of religion with the utter deſtruction of the morality of their people.——My Lord, this is fact, not declamation.——With all your partiality to the Houſe of Stewart, you muſt confeſs, that even Charles the Second would have bluſhed at that open encouragement, as thoſe eager, meretricious careſſes, with which every ſpecies of private vice and public proſtitution is received at——. The unfortunate Houſe of Stewart has been treated with an aſperity, which, if compariſon be a defence, ſeems to border upon injuſtice. Neither Charles nor his brother were qualified to ſupport ſuch a ſyſtem of meaſures, as would be neceſſary to change the government and ſubvert the conſtitution of England. One of them was too much in earneſt in his pleaſures,—the other in his religion. But the danger to this country would ceaſe to be problematical, if the Crown ſhould ever deſcend to a Prince, whoſe apparent ſimplicity might throw his ſubjects off their guard,—who might be no libertine in behaviour,—who ſhould have no ſenſe of honour to reſtrain him, and who, with juſt religion enough to impoſe upon the multitude, might have no ſcruples of conſcience to interfere with his morality. With theſe honourable qualifications, and the deciſive advantage of ſituation, low craft and falſhood are all the abilities that are wanting to deſtroy the wiſdom of ages, and to deface the nobleſt monument that human policy has erected.——I know ſuch a man; My Lord, I know you both; and with the bleſſing of God (for I too am religious) the people of England ſhall know you as well as I do. I am not very ſure, that greater abilities would not in effect be an impediment to a ſign, which ſeems, at firſt ſight to require a ſuperior capacity. A better underſtanding might make him ſenſible of the wonderful beauty of that ſyſtem he was endeavouring to corrupt. The danger of the attempt might alarm him. The meanneſs and intrinſic worthleſſneſs of the object (ſuppoſing he could attain to it) would fill him with ſhame, repentance, and diſguſt. But theſe are ſenſations, which find no entrance into a—, contracted heart. In ſome men, there is a malignant paſſion to deſtroy the works of genius, literature and freedom. The Vandal and the Monk find equal gratification in it.

Reflections like theſe, my Lord, have a general relation to your Grace, and inſeparably attend you, in whatever company or ſituation your character occurs to us. They have no immediate connection with the following recent fact, which I lay before the public, for the honour of the [illegible] of Sovereigns, and for the edification of his people.

A Prince (whoſe piety & ſelf denial, one would think, might ſecure him from ſuch a multitude of worldly neceſſities) with an annual revenue of near million ſterling, unfortunately, wants money.———The navy of England, by an equally ſtrange concurrence of unforeſeen circumſtances (tho' not quite ſo unfortunately for his Majeſty) is in equal want of timber. The world knows, in what a hopeful condition you delivered the navy to your ſucceſſor, and in what a condition we found it in the moment of diſtreſs.——You were determined it ſhould continue in the ſituation in which you left it.——Upon a repreſentation from the Admiralty of the extraordinary want of timber, for the indiſpenſable repairs of the navy, the Surveyor General was directed to make a ſurvey of the timber in all the royal chaces and foreſts in England. Having obeyed his orders with accurancy and attention, he reported that the firſt timber he had any where met with, and the propereſt in every reſpect for the purpoſes of the navy, was in Whittlebury Foreſt of which your Grace, I think, is hereditary Ranger. In conſequence of this report, the uſual warrant was prepared at the Treaſury and delivered to the Surveyor, by which he or his Deputy were authoriſed to cut down any trees in Whittlebury Foreſt, which ſhould appear to be proper for the purpoſes abovementioned. The Deputy, being informed that the warrant was ſigned and delivered to his Principal in London, croſſes the country to Northamtonſhire, &, with an officious zeal for the public ſervice, begins to do his duty in the Foreſt. Unfortunately for him, he had not the warrant in his pocket. The overſight was enormous, and you have puniſhed him for it accordingly. You have inſiſted that an active, uſeful officer, ſhould be diſmiſſed from his place. You have ruined an innocent man, and his family.——In what language ſhall I addreſs ſo black, ſo cowardly a Tyrant?——thou worſe than one of the Brunſwicks, and all the Stewarts!—To them who know Lord North, it is unneceſſary to ſay, that he was mean and baſe enough to ſubmit to you.—This however is but a ſmall part of the fact. After ruining the Surveyor's Deputy, for acting without the warrant, you attacked the warrant itſelf. You declared it was illegal, and ſwore, in a fit of foaming, frantic paſſion, that it never ſhould be executed. You aſſerted, upon your honour, that in the grant of the Rangerſhip of Whittlebury Foreſt, made by Charles the Second (whom with a modeſty that would do honour to Mr. Righby, you are pleaſed to call your Anceſtor) to one of his baſtards (from whom I make no doubt of your deſcent) the property of the timber is veſted in the Ranger.—I have examined the original grant, and now, in the face of the Public, contradict you directly upon the fact. The very reverſe, of what you have aſſerted upon your honour is the truth. The Grant, expreſly, and by a particular clauſe, reſerves the property of the timber for the uſe of the Crown.

In ſpite of this evidence,—in defiance of the repreſentations of the Admiralty,—in perfect mockery of the notorious diſtreſſes of the Engliſh Navy, and thoſe equally preſſing, and a moſt equally notorious neceſſities of your pious Sovereign,—here the matter reſts.—The Lords of the Treaſury recal their warrant;—the Deputy Surveyor is ruined for doing his duty;—Mr. John Pitt (whoſe name I ſuppoſe is offenſive to you) ſubmits to be brow beaten and inſulted;—the oaks keep their ground;—the King is [illegible]ed, and the Navy of England may periſh for want of the beſt and fineſt timber in the Iſland. And all this is ſubmitted to——to appeaſe the Duke of G——n!—To gratify the man, who has involved the King and his Kingdom in confuſion and diſtreſs, and who, like a treacherous Coward, deſerted his Sovereign in the midſt of it!

There has been a ſtrange alteration in your doctrines, ſince you thought it adviſeable to rob the Duke of Portland of his property, in order to ſtrengthen the intereſt of Lord Bute's ſon in law, before the laſt general Election. Nullum tempus occurrit regi was then your boaſted motto, and the cry of all your hungry Partiſans. Now it ſeems, a grant of Charles the Second to one of his Baſtards, is to be held ſacred and inviolable! It muſt not be queſtioned by the King's ſervants, nor ſubmitted to any interpretation but your own.——My Lord, this was not the language you held, when it ſuited you to inſult the memory of the glorious Deliverer of England from that deteſted family, to which you are ſtill more nearly allied in principle than in blood.——In the name of Decency and Common Senſe, what are your Grace's merits, either with King or Miniſtry, that ſhould intitle you to aſſume this domineering authority over both? —Is it the fortunate conſanguinity you claim with the Houſe of Stewart?—Is it the ſecret correſpondence you have for ſo many years carried on with Lord Bute, by the aſſiduous aſſiſtance of your cream coloured Paraſite;—Could not your gallantry find ſufficient employment for him, in thoſe gentle offices by which he firſt acquired the tender friendſhip of Lord Barrington?——Or is it only that wonderful ſympathy of manners, which ſubſiſts between your Grace and one of your Superiors, and does ſo much honour to you both?——Is the union of Bliſil and Black George no longer a Romance?——from whatever origin your influence in this Country ariſes, it is a phænomenon in the hiſtory of human virtue and underſtanding.——Good men can hardly believe the fact. Wiſe men are unable to account for it. Religious men find exerciſe for their faith, and make it the laſt effort of their piety, not to repine againſt Providence.

Lady Bute is talked of as to be created, Ducheſs in her own right, the dukedom to be hereditary in her family.

Certain advices have been received from Paris, which ſay, that the King of Spain has actually inſiſted on the co-operation of the Court of France with him, in a ſcheme, to be put in motion early the enſuing ſpring; and in caſe of non compliance, threatned to diſſolve the alliance now ſubſiſting between the two Crowns. Lewis was greatly alarmed at this, and forced to take his head out of the boſom of his fair enchantreſs, and betake himſelf to ſtudy. A council was ſummoned, when it was determined to favour the demands of his Catholic Majeſty. Since this, every method has been taken to drain money from the Subjects, and ſome of the moſt oppreſſive kind that ever was attempted in that kingdom before.

By the lateſt accounts from Germany, things do not appear to be in the pacific ſtate A——n could wiſh, on many parts of the continent; ſo that notwithſtanding all the induſtry exerted to keep the peace the enſuing ſpring is expected to be a martial one, and that ſome campaigns, both offenſive and defenſive, are formed to take place very early.

To ſuch a pitch of gaming are our gentry arrived, that we are told no leſs a ſum than 35 000l. was won by a noted young cub, at a Coffee houſe near Pall-Mall, the laſt week.

They did not flow through the quill of any Hibernian. They do not belong to the Republican Amazon. The hero of Minden dares not claim them. The phrenzy of pride, envy, hatred, malice, and all uncharitableneſs, could never be ſo lively painted but by the perſon who actually poſſeſſed it. I do not know three ſuch perſons: One I do know! Extract of a letter from Capt. Robert Dunn, of the ſnow Eſther, dated St. John, Antigua, Auguſt 19.

"Yeſterday ended the trial of George Waſhington, alias Fiſher, Pirate Captain; John Cooper, Chief Mate, John Barlow, Carpenter; Thomas Jenkins, Thomas Ternay, and James Burrell, Seamen; late belonging to the ſnow Eſther, for the piratically running away with the ſaid veſſel, and murdering Charles Phennie; when they were all condemned to be hanged on the 24th inſtant, the two former in chains. They arraigned the juſtice of the court, damned the Judges, and behaved in the moſt inſolent manner telling the ſpectators, eſpecially the ſailors, that were they out they would behave worſe than they had ever done, and aſking the Judges whether they might not be aſhamed to condemn ſo many ſtout young men for ſo trifling a crime as they had been guilty of."

The city of Jeruſalem has, we are told, ſubmitted to Ali Bey. Amazing are the revolutions this antient city has undergone. Jews, Chriſtians, Turks and Pagans, have alternately poſſeſſed it.

By letters from Madrid we are informed, that the King of Spain has for ſome time paſt diſcontinued his uſual diverſions of ſhooting and hunting, in order to attend more cloſely to the buſineſs of the ſtate.

By a gentleman who arrived this week from Cherburgh we learn, that the baſon, and all the works deſtroyed by the Engliſh in the late war, are almoſt put into the ſame condition they were before; he ſays he ſaw a number of Iriſh labourers employed on thoſe works, who are well paid; that they are building frigates there, and that there were ſeveral upon the ſtocks; that he ſaw above twenty Engliſhmen employed on that work, and was told by ſome of them that they had almoſt double the wages they have in their own country. He farther ſays, they have plenty of proviſions, which are chiefly brought there by Engliſh veſſels out of Derbyſhire. He alſo gives an account, that curioſity led him to take a view of the place, for which he was taken and carried before a Magiſtrate, and ſearched; but having nothing about him but a bit of pencil, and his countrymen declaring they would leave their work if he was not diſcharged, he was diſmiſſed, but ordered to quit the place immediately. So different is the conduct of the French to that of the Engliſh, who invite their enemies to ſee the weak condition of their navy.

HARTFORD, January 21.

About the laſt of December, the houſe of Mr. Samuel Allin of Sandisfield took fire. Mr. Allen was gone a diſtance from home, & Mrs. Allen having occaſion to go to a neighbours houſe, about 12 rods diſtance in the evening, after having put her 3 children in bed, and about half an hour after, ſhe was alarm'd by the cry of her eldeſt child (about 9 years of age) who had been awak'd by the fire, and made its eſcape from the houſe.—Mrs. Allin immediately ran to the fore door of the houſe, which, when ſhe had open'd, the fire burſt out upon her, and prevented her going in.—She tried to get into the houſe at ſeveral other places, in order to ſave her two children that remain'd in the houſe, but the inſide being all in flames, rendered every means to ſave them ineffectual, and the two innocent babes periſhed in the flames—One of them the next day was taken out of the bed where it lay, the bed entirely burnt up, and the body about half conſum'd—the other in endeavouring to ſave itſelf, left the bed and ran into the dwelling room, which was over the cellar, and the bones of it were found in the cellar the next evening, the body entirely conſum'd—but the liver remained untouched by the fire.

An extemporaneous Antidote againſt the Court Poiſon—the Oppreſſion and "Covetouſneſs, which is Idolatry," that is defended by Zoroaſter, in the Eaſtern Hiſtory.

UPON examining into antient Hiſtory, find Zoroaſter was a great Idolater, that lived about 1300 Years after Noah's Flood, founded a ſect of groſs (and it ſeems lately covetous) Idolaters, that were worſhippers of Fire, to which Element they have and will undoubtedly be conſign'd, unleſs a timely Repentance, by the aſſiſtance of Divine Grace, mercifully prevents.

To reduce theſe modern Idolaters to a ſincere Repentance, turn them from Darkneſs to Light, and from the Power of Sin and Satan, to the acknowledgment of the only living and true God, the Poſſeſſor of all Being, and the Fountain of all good; and to deter them from the Idolatrous Worſhip of the Mammon of unrighteouſneſs, you'll be ſo impartial, as to inſert in your next Paper, theſe Extracts from the ſacred Oracles.——1 Kings, Chapter 21, from the 1ſt Verſe to the 26th.

"AND it came to paſs after theſe things that Naboth the Jezreelite had a vineyard, which was in Jezreel, hard by the palace of Ahab king of Samaria.

2. And Ahab ſpake unto Naboth, ſaying, Give me thy vineyard, that I may have it for a garden of herbs, becauſe it is near unto my houſe, and I will give thee for it a better vineyard than it; or if it ſeem good to thee, I will give thee the worth of it in money.

3. And Naboth ſaid to Ahab, The Lord forbid it me, that I ſhould give the inheritance of my fathers unto thee.

4. And Ahab came into his houſe, heavy and diſpleaſed, becauſe of the word which Naboth the Jezreelite had ſpoken to him: for he had ſaid, I will not give thee the inheritance of my fathers: and he laid him down upon his bed, and turned away his face, and would eat no bread.

5 But Jezebel his wife came to him and ſaid unto him, Why is thy ſpirit ſo ſad, that thou eateſt no bread?

6. And he ſaid unto her, Becauſe I ſpake unto Naboth the Jezreelite, and ſaid unto him, Give me thy vineyard for money; or elſe if it pleaſe thee, I will give thee another vineyard for it: and he anſwer'd, I will not give thee my vineyard.

7. And Jezebel his wife ſaid unto him, Doſt thou now govern the kingdom of Iſrael? ariſe, and eat bread, and let thine heart be merry: I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite.

8. So ſhe wrote letters in Ahabs name, and ſealed them with his ſeal, and ſent the letters unto the elders and to the nobles that were in his city dwelling with Naboth.

9. And ſhe wrote in the letters, ſaying, Proclaim a faſt, and ſet Naboth on high among the people:

10. And ſet two men, ſons of Belial, before him, to bear witneſs againſt him, ſaying, Thou didſt blaſpheme God and the king: and then carry him out, and ſtone him that he may die.

11. And the men of his city, even the elders and the nobles who were the inhabitants in his city, did as Jezebel had ſent unto them, and as it was written in the letters which ſhe had ſent unto them.

12. They proclaimed a faſt, and ſet Naboth on high among the people.

13. And there came in two men, children of Belial, and ſat before him: and the men of Belial witneſſed againſt him, even againſt Naboth, in the preſence of the people, ſaying, Naboth did blaſpheme God and the king. Then they carried him forth out of the city, and ſtoned him with ſtones, that he died.

14. Then they ſent to Jezebel, ſaying, Naboth is ſtoned, and is dead.

15 And it came to paſs when Jezebel, heard that Naboth was ſtoned, and was dead, that Jezebel ſaid to Ahab, Ariſe, take poſſeſſion of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, which he refuſed to give thee for money; for Naboth is not alive, but dead.

16 And it came to paſs when Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, that Ahab roſe up to go down to the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, to take poſſeſſion of it.

17 And the word of the Lord came to Elijah the Tiſhbite ſaying,

18 Ariſe, go down to meet Ahab king of Iſreal, which is in Samaria; behold, he is in the Vineyard of Naboth, whither he is gone down to poſſeſs it.

19 And thou ſhalt ſpeak unto him, ſaying, Thus ſaith the LORD, Haſt thou killed, and alſo taken poſſeſſion? And thou ſhalt ſpeak unto him, ſaying, Thus ſaith the LORD, In the place where dogs licked the blood of Naboth, ſhall dogs lick thy blood, even thine.

20. And Ahab ſaid to Elijah, Haſt thou found me, O mine enemy? And he anſwered, I have found thee; becauſe thou haſt ſold thyſelf to work evil in the ſight of the LORD.

21 Behold, I will bring evil upon thee, and will take away thy poſterity, and will cut off from Ahab him that piſſeth againſt the wall, and him that is ſhut up, and left in Iſreal.

22 And will make thine houſe like the houſe of Jeroboam the ſon of Nebat, and like the houſe of Baaſha the ſon of Ahijah, for the provocation wherewith thou haſt provoked me to anger, and made Iſrael to ſin.

23 And of Jezebel alſo ſpake the LORD, ſaying, The dogs ſhall eat Jezebel by the wall of Jezreel.

24 Him that dieth of Ahab in the city, the dogs ſhall eat; and him that dieth in the field, ſhall the fowles of the air eat.

25. But there was none like unto Ahab, which did ſell himſelf to work wickedneſs in the ſight of the LORD whom Jezebel his wife ſtirred up.

26. And he did very abominably in following idols, according to all things as did the Amorites, whom the LORD caſt out before the children of Iſrael."

Would only remark, that we learn from the ſame divinely inſpired book that the dogs lick'd the blood of Ahab in about two years, and eat the body of Jezebel in about five years, after they brought their falſe accuſation, by which, upon the falſe witneſs of two ſons of Belial, the innocent Naboth, was wickedly deprived of his life and property both.

To the Counſels of a Friend;
Would you lead a happy Life,
Care avoid, and ſhun the Strife,
Which from Law muſt ever riſe,
Fatal Flame that never dies.
If poſſeſs'd of moderate Wealth,
And more ample Stock of Health,
Keep a chearful Look ſerene,
Void of any haughty Mein,
Seek companions blithe and free,
And of equal Rank with thee;
Prudence follow, nor advance
Into wild Extravagance;
By a plain, but wholeſome Diet,
Sleep you'll purchaſe ſound and Quiet;
Let your Conduct ever run
To all obliging, rude to none;
Chooſe a modeſt, virtuous Wiſe,
Skill'd to ſmooth the Rubs of Life.
With theſe Bleſſings well poſſeſs'd,
Own yourſelf compleatly bleſs'd;
And whate'er your ſettled Spot,
Well contented with your Lot,
Calmly be reſigned to Fate,
When it ſummons, ſoon or late,
Thus let ſurly Death appear,
Without a Wiſh, without a Fear.

Extract of a letter from Naples written by a Biſhop.

" While I was at Calabar a few days ſince viſiting my dioceſe, the following ſhocking and inhuman affair was committed: a widow had conceived a paſſion for a young man, who refuſed to eſpouſe her, on account of her having two children by her former huſband; and ſhe, at length, after repeated applications to him, deſpairing of the accompliſhment of her wiſhes while her infants ſurvived, with her own hands murdered them both. She has been ſince apprehended and committed to the priſon of Coſence in order to receive puniſhment for her crime. But what puniſhment can be adequate to ſuch inhumanity."

On Thurſday at the launching of the Grafton man of war at Deptford, the following remarkable incident happened:—In the morning of that day the Royal Standard Flag of England, fixed at the top of the flagſtaff 70 feet high, and placed in the center of the deck, fell down, occaſioned by the halliards not being properly ſecured. The neceſſity of replacing it before the launch was evident, but no perſon was found hardy enough to undertake it; at laſt one of the common ſhip-carpenters, in the yard, with great alertneſs climbed up to the top, though it was conſtantly waving with the wind, at length he gained the ſummit, and having a ſpunyarn tied about his waiſt he laid himſelf flat on the truck, a board at the top, about three feet diameter; he then put the ſpunyarn through the truck, and let it down, by which proper halliards were drawn up, and afterwards the ſtandard, which the carpenter properly fixed, and then deſcended to the infinite amazement of the numerous ſpectators. He was introduced to Lord Sandwich, who made him a genteel preſent, with a promiſe of future preferment.

THE CONNECTICUT COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt and moſt important Advices, both Foreign and Domeſtic

From TUESDAY, JANUARY 21, to TUESDAY, JANUARY 28, 1772.

NEWYORK Jan· 13 1772.

Tueſday laſt the General Aſſembly of this Province met here when his Excellency made the following ſpeech to both Houſes.

Gentlemen of the Council, and Gentlemen of the Aſſembly,

WHILE I reflect on the important duties attendant on the elevated ſtation in which it has pleaſed my Royal Maſter to place me, and that I have the honor to ſucceed the noble Perſonage who ſo juſtly merited the high applauſe he received from a grateful People, my heart is filled with every ſenſible anxiety; but when I review the honourable and affectionate Addreſſes preſented to me on my arrival, my ſpirits are cheered with the moſt pleaſing expectations: That theſe may be realized; I am now to entreat the aid of your united and generous efforts in ſupport of an adminiſtration which can be only ſucceſsful in proportion to the aſſiſtance I receive from you.

Through the extenſive Beneficence of my Sovereign, unſolicited and unexpected, I appear in the rank I now ſtand before you, Finding my own health, and that of my family, greatly impaired by a ſouthern climate, I had requeſted, and actually obtained, the King's leave to return to my native Country; ſoon after which, three weighty objects preſented themſelves to my view; the diſtractions of the Province I was in, my appointment to this Government, and the regard due to a family oppreſſed with ſickneſs. On the one ſide the ſupport of a People, friends to the laws, attached to the conſtitution, and loyal to their Prince was offered me to ſuppreſs an inſurrection that had even ſubverted their civil liberties; on the other; my inclination led me to accept the more friendly invitation to this happy climate, where I expected to reap thoſe benefits which my family have ſince in a great meaſure, experienced in their health;—public duty, however, prevailing over every other paſſionate deſire, my honour, and my ſervices I held engaged in the public cauſe, free from any motive of revenge, or feeling other reſentment than what ſpring from a ſenſe of my country's wrongs. The enterprize was ſucceſsful, and the event crowned with the perfect reſtoration of good order and public peace to the country; bleſſings under Providence effected by a ſmall body of officers and men, whoſe ſpirited conduct has made the deepeſt impreſſions of gratitude on my mind. This ſervice unavoidably prevented my paying an earlier obedience to his Majeſty's commands, and my own wiſhes, by repairing to this Government.

Gentlemen of the General Aſſembly,

Having nothing in command, immediately from his Majeſty, to communicate; it is my duty to point out to you the neceſſity of framing a Militia Bill upon ſuch a ſyſtem as will render it moſt uſeful in defence of the country.

The injuries of time and ſtorms have ſo defaced the fortifications of this city, that they require a thorough repair, as ſoon as the ſeaſon will admit;—I am, therefore, to recommend to you to provide as wel for this eſſential work, as the ſupplies for his Majeſty's Troops, and the ſupport of government.

Gentlemen of the Council and Gentlemen of the General Aſſembly,

It is from the very favourable reception I have met with ſince my arrival, that I draw my moſt aſſured hopes of future happineſs among you. Influenced only by principles that flow from an honeſt heart, I feel an ardent deſire to co-operate with you in every meaſure that will beſt promote the honor and dignity of his Majeſty's government, and advance the real felicity of a People eminently diſtinguiſhed by their loyalty to the beſt of Sovereigns, and affectionate diſpoſition to their mother country.

New-York, 8th Jan. 1772. W. TRYON.

LONDON, October 23.

Wedneſday laſt there was a very long and warm debate in the Commons, upon the addreſs of thanks to his Majeſty, and another to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, for his ſpeech from the Throne. The Court party met with a very ſtrong oppoſition, and able ſpeakers, who vehemently proteſted againſt every paragraph in the addreſs to Lord Townſend, except one; which expreſſed their loyalty and duty to the King. Dr. Lucas, Henry Flood, Eſq; Mr. Huſſey, Sir William Mayne, Mr. French, and others, particularly exerted themſelves on this occaſion, eſpecially in their debate on the fourth paragraph of the Addreſs, reſpecting the large arrear which has been incurred on account of the parliamentary deductions made from the revenue, for the payment of different grants for premiums, bounties, and public work,

Early in the debate, a motion was made by Mr. Flood, that one of the lights in Dome ſhould be taken out, in order to admit a greater quantity of freſh air. Some Members oppoſed it, on account of the danger of catching cold. Dr. Lucas immediately replied, That he hoped the Speaker, nor one of the honorable Gentlemen would think him pedantic if he preſumed in that caſe to give his advice, as he was always ready to preſcribe for the good of his friends. That, if the North light was taken out, the wind being about South Weſt, the foul air. (he was ſorry to ſay there was foul air in the Houſe of Commons) would go out, and the freſh come in without endangering the health of any gentlemen preſent—This ſtroke of wit occaſioned much laughter for a conſiderable time.

After debating on the queſtion, Whether an Addreſs ſhould be preſented to the Lord Lieutenant, about half an hour after three in the morning, it was reſolved in the affirmative; which Addreſs, the Speaker, attended by a numerous train of dependent Members, preſented on Thurſday (the 10th) to the Lord Lieutenant, at the Caſtle.

LONDON, October 17.

A certain celebtated Iriſh orator has intirely exculpated himſelf to a Great Perſonage, with reſpect to being the author of the letters ſigned Junius, and the ſuſpicion is now ſaid to fall intirely on a late Secretary to a Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, who was diſtinguiſhed in that country by the name of one ſpeech H——n, in conſequence of his never having ſpoken but once in the national Aſſembly there.

Letters from the Continent of the 29 ult. adviſe, that the Prince of Brunſwick and ſome other Volunteers of the Ruſſian Army, had very near fallen with their Eſcorte, into the Hands of the Confederates near Warſaw; but, after a ſharp Conteſt, they beat them off with conſiderble Loſs. His Royal Highneſs and his Retinue are ſince arrived ſafe in Gen. Romanzow's Camp.

Among the Livery of London are now to be found a Doctor in Divinty, a Counſellor at Law, a Capt. in the Army, and a notified patriot Apothecary, if not a Phyſician.——Yet with all their preaching, adviſing, fighting and quacking, the City ſtill remains much out of order, and diſeaſed in mind, body, and eſtate.

LONDON, October 8.

THE following extraordinary account of the Fire at Portſmouth, and a moſt horrid conſpiracy having juſt appeared in a periodical paper, we thought it our duty to lay the moſt remarkable paſſages of it before our readers, leaving it to themſelves to decide what degree of credit it ought to obtain.

"Jonathan Britain was born in the north part of Yorkſhire; his father and mother were Roman Catholics, and he declares that he ſecretly profeſſed that Religion himſelf, but appeared openly as a proteſtant. About four years ago he entered as a common man in Mordaunt's Dragoons, he was ſoon after made a Corporal, and in a ſhort time Serjeant, from that he was raiſed to Serjeant Paymaſter.—Some time after he was placed in this ſtation, he was ſent into Glouceſterſhire upon a recruiting party, where he got acquainted with one Pierre Rogers, who has a Commiſſion in the French ſervice, and was employed to enliſt men here for the uſe of the King of France, by order of C——de G——, the late Ambaſſador. Britain and Rogers entered into a long converſation together; the latter ſoon found the former was of the ſame religion as himſelf, and therefore opened his mind without any ſort of reſerve; he made him large promiſes, and told him he would introduce him to the French Ambaſſador, and that he ſhould receive one ſhilling a day, pay from the French King, and two guineas and a crown for every man he got; he was at length prevalied upon to undertake this dangerous buſineſs, & accordingly beat up for volunteers with redoubled vigour; he prevailed on many to go to France, who were immediately ſent to Rogers, and he took care of them till there was a proper opportunity for ſhipping them off.

"Britain, after he had been acquainted with Rogers ſome conſiderable time, was introduced by him to one Le Jeune, a Roman Catholic Prieſt, and one Jean Caleane; they had frequent meetings together, and when Britain became a little intimate with them, Le Jeune ſaid he had a matter of great importance to communicate, and begged they might all meet at a certain time he then mentioned, at the Golden Croſs, Charing Croſs, which they did; Le Jeune told them as ſoon as they met, that before he could open the buſineſs, he muſt enjoin them all in an oath of ſecrecy, and adminiſter the Sacrement to them, this was directly complied with, and as ſoon as done, (though they all knew the deſign of meeting before, except Britain,) Le Jeune, after a ſhort introduction, addreſſed them nearly in the following words: "The purpoſe of this meeting, Gentlemen, was, to acquaint you, that a deſign is formed of ſetting fire to Portſmouth Dock Yard, afterwards to the Governor's houſe, and then to the town, in different parts; for this purpoſe I have got a certain number of balls made of pitch, tar, roſin, and other combuſtible matters, hollow within, and in order to ſhew you the execution theſe balls will do, I will burn one now before you." Le Jeune then put a little tow into the hole, touched it with the candle, and it burnt a full quarter of an hour.

"This matter being finiſhed, their next buſineſs was to fix the places of rendezvous, which they did; the firſt was at Havant, a market town in Hampſhire, where they met on the 21ſt of July, 1770; but not having balls enough ready, as they imagined, to put their diabolical ſchemes effectually into execution, it was deferred till the 27th, the fatal morning, and they proceeded to Chicheſter, to the White Swan, where they ſta'd till late in the evening of the 27th, and then made the beſt of their way to Portſmouth. They arrived there a little after one in the morning. Caleane went to Broker's Point, and prepaired a boat in order to convey them all off, Britain, Le Jeune. and Rogers, ſet fire to the Dock Yard in thirty-one or thirty-two places: the flames came out in a few minutes with great violence: upon ſeeing that, fear ſoon got the better of their reſolutions, and their deſign was carried no further into execution at that time, and they made the beſt of their way to London; Rogers ſet off directly from thence, the 28th, to the ſeat of a Gentleman, in the ſouth part of Yorkſhire, who is a Roman Catholic, by whom he was harboured for ſome time."

This daring paper, after accuſing ſome people of the firſt rank in England of being concerned in the above affair, proceeds thus:

"They then formed a ſcheme for ſhooting a Great Perſonage; the day fixed was the fourth of June laſt the King's Birth Day; Britain was to be the principal agent in this ſhocking buſineſs: an Ambaſſador's ſervant was concerned with them. In the morning of the fourth of June, Rogers went to Count de G——, and ſoon after returned to his accomplices at a houſe by Charing Croſs, where he brought in a green purſe between forty and fifty guineas, which was equally divided amongſt them: they then began to drink pretty freely of brandy, in order to prepare themſelves with new ſpirits for the execution of this horrid deed; Britain was to fire at the Great Man; Rogers was to walk at a ſmall diſtance with more ball and powder, in caſe the firſt did not take effect. Britain now makes no ſcruple to declare, that he went with a deſign to kill the K——; for that purpoſe he took a large Horſe piſtol loaded with ball, and Rogers and he went into St. James's Park, in order to wait his M——'s coming out of the Court to go to Buckingham Houſe, which he did; ſoon after they were there in a chair; attended by a few Yeomen and Footmen only. Britain walked as near to the ſide of the chair as he poſſibly cou'd; he had the piſtol concealed under his coat, which he cocked and drew out ſo carefully as not to be ſeen; he pulled the trigger; the lock ſnapped, but there was no flaſh; he turned round immediately, to get more powder of Rogers, whom he found (inſtead of being cloſe behind) at more than two hundred yards diſtance; this led him to ſuſpect that they all deſigned to eſcape and leave him to fall a victim. Rogers and he proceeded to the houſe from whence he came; they examined the piſtol, found the pan did not ſhut cloſe, and that the powder had run out in carrying it along. From this time Britain's ſuſpicions increaſed: this, with ſome remorſe of conſcience, determined him not to truſt to them any longer, but to make a full diſcovery of the whole affair, which he did a few weeks after: and deſired Lord S——, in a letter, not to ſuffer Count de G—— to leave the kingdom till he was brought before him; if this had been done, which it was undoubtedly the duty of Lord S—— to do, the other Inceadiaries might have been ſecured, and brought to condign puniſhment." [WHISPERER

In the inconſiſtent account of the firing the Dock-Yard at Portſmouth, given by Jonathan Britan now in Reading Gaol, he mentions his aſſociate Rogers having been concealed at the ſeat of Earl Falkenbridge, a Roman Catholic Nobleman in Yorkſhire; now we are well informed, there is no perſons of that title in the county, there is indeed an Earl Fauconberg, but he is a Proteſtant, and was created to that rank, in the year 1756, by his late Majeſty King George II.

By authentic accounts from Reading, we hear, that a perſon concerned in the publication of a violent periodical paper, lately had a conference there with Britain, who boaſted he could furniſh particulars that would ſell 5000 papers in a day, provided he could receive an adequate reward for his trouble.

I underſtand there is an extraordinary number of Whiſperers publiſhed, ſaid to be my depoſition concerning the late fire at Portſmouth. I beg leave to inform the public, "That the publication is ſpurious, it is not my depoſition, neither was I acquainted with its being publiſhed." One Moore, who lives at No. 32, in Chancery lane, came down to me and deſired I would give him an explanation to the blanks of my late letters, which I did, and, he minuted them down; but for any other particulars, he is totally unacquainted with. The public will be preſented with a true and genuine copy very ſhortly, and once more I aſſure them, that Moor's ſtory is moſt of it his own invention.

Oct. 21. Advices have been received from Spain, that the Court has no intention of committing acts of hoſtility againſt any Chriſtian Power, and that the putting the Spaniſh navy on a reſpectable footing is only following the example of all the other maritime Powers in Europe.

The Canady paper money being now recovered, as we hear, from France, it is confidently aſſerted, that Lord North is determined to make the Spaniards, pay the Manilla ranſom, and to convince his Countrymen, that under his Adminiſtration, no Potentate on earth ſhall offer an injury with impunity to England.

Oct. 25. Private letters from Holland, by Tueſday's mail, ſay, that they have juſt received advice that the King of Pruſſia is raiſing forces in every part of his dominions. The ſame letters add, that the Queen of Hungary, jealous of the deſigns of his Pruſſian Majeſty, has ordered all her frontier towns to be ſtrongly garriſoned, and has taken every neceſſary ſtep to prevent any part of her kingdom being ſuddenly attacked.

Very extenſive orders are now executing at Briſtol, and Liverpool, and London, for goods to be ſhipped to North-America.

The extreme impropriety of Clergymen interfering in temporal matters is obvious to the ſimpleſt layman, it being their province to explain the terms, and point out the road to ſalvation, to enforce (both by example and precepts) our obedience to ſpiritual and moral duties, not to lead us in the rule of politics, in which every man, either from reading or obſervation, may be ſuppoſed as well verſed as themſelves; if we implicitly pin our political faith on their ſleeves, who knows but ſome of them may carry it to the grave? Many ſober chriſtians have ſometimes been apt to imagine they were attending a party lecture at ſome miniſterial levee, rather than a ſermon breathing the pure doctrine of Chriſt, in the houſe of God. A witty poet recommends it to them to "Stick to the cuſhion and the text,

"And clear the paſſage when per-(plext,"

rather than any other avocation whatſoever.

Extract of a letter from North-Carolina, Nov. 11.

"It may not be unacceptable to you to have the Account I have lately received from a Gentleman, my intimate Friend, who is now on his Circuit through the weſtern Counties of this Province. He ſays he has the Pleaſure to inform me that the ſpirit of Regulation there is entirely ſubdued, Peace and Order reſtored, the ſurviving Regulators, Out-laws excepted, returned to the Cultivation of their Lands and reſpective Occupations, happy that an End is put to an Inſurrection in which moſt of them were involved through Ignorance and the Subtility of a few, without any Idea of the Deſigns and Intention of it. That no Reſentment ſeems to be retained either againſt Government for the Meaſures adopted againſt them, or thoſe who bravely executed theſe Meaſures. It is further the Opinion of all the judicious honeſt People of the province, that the Battle of Alamance has not deprived us of one valuable Inhabitant except thoſe who ſuffered for Government in the Battle. You may rely on the authenticity of what I write."

On Thurſday, the Day after Chriſtmas laſt, at Smith's Town, Long Iſland, 7 young Men went out with Guns to Hunt for Foxes; on the Way, one of the young Men, whoſe Name was David Smith, ſeeing a Fox, attempted to fire, but did not, thinking the Diſtance too great, forgetting to uncock the Gun, they all went to a Station, where he and 5 others waited, while the other Man went to a Thicket at the End of a long Beach, in order to drive out the Foxes which uſually harboured there, and muſt in their Retreat neceſſarily paſs the Place where the 6 young Men were ſtation'd, which was on the Declivity of a Hill. They being all ſeated on the Ground which was frozen and ſlippery, Mr. Smith having reſted the But of his Gun on the Ground, leaning the upper Part on his Shoulder, it ſlipped from him down the Hill, and as he ſnatch'd at, and haſtily drew it up, it went off; the Muzzle being juſt above his right Pap, the whole Charge enter'd there, ſhatter'd the upper Joint of the Arm and Shoulder in a dreadful Manner, and lodged among the broken Bones. After remaining a Moment in a kind of Aſtoniſhment, he ſprung up, ran a few Steps, and ſaid, I am a dead Man. He was carried to a neigbouring Houſe, and lived in great Agony till the 1ſt Inſt. and then died in the 24th Year of his Age, leaving a young Widow and one Child.

POETS CORNER.

The WINTER's WALK.

O Now behold! where'er we rove,
  What dreary proſpects round us riſe;
The naked hill, the leafleſs grove.
The hoary ground, the frowning ſkies!
  Nor only through the waſted plain,
Stern winter, is thy force confeſs'd;
Still wider ſpreads thy horrid reign,
I feel thy power uſurp my breaſt.
  Enliv'ning hope, and fond deſire,
Reſign the heart to ſpleen and care.
Scarce frighted love, maintains her fire,
And rapture ſaddens to deſpair.
  In groundleſs hope and cauſeleſs fear,
Unhappy man! behold thy doom,
Still changing with the changeful year,
The ſlave of ſunſhine and of gloom,
  Tir'd with vain joys, and falſe alarms,
With mental and corporeal ſtrife,
Snatch me my faireſt, to thy arms,
And ſcreen me from the ills of life.

Containing the freſheſt and moſt important Advices, both Foreign and Domeſtic

From TUESDAY, JANUARY 28, to TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1772.

Province of Maſſachuſetts Bay, Jan. 15, 1772.

Mr. WATSON,

The publication of a Piece in your Paper No. 365, and 366, intitu'ed the Eaſtern Hiſtory, occaſioned the following obſervations, though not made in the ſame ſtile that the author thereof has adopted, leaſt ſuch a perverſion ſhould tend to impreſs the minds of ſome of your readers, with irreverent ideas of the holy ſcriptures. And as many of your cuſtomers live in this province, who undoubtedly expect to ſhare in all the privileges of your preſs, with others who live in your colony.—The ſame is preſented to you with a deſire that you would give them a place in your next.

A MASSACHUSETTENSIAN.

WHEN king Henry the fourth apprehended that he was near expiring, he earneſtly deſired to ſee the young Prince of Wales, in order to enrich him with ſome wholeſome advice concerning his government, whereupon the prince appeared in the preſence of his pious father, who pronounced the following exhortation to him, viz: "I refer all to God, but charge thee on my bleſſing, and as thou wilt anſwer it at God's tribunal, that thou adminiſter juſtice uprightly, that thou eaſe the oppreſſed, and exerciſe mercy, that thou avoid flatterers the bane of princes, that thou puniſh the oppreſſors of the people, and ſuffer not thy officers to wrong and oppreſs them, by needleſs delays and extortions, ſo wilt thou obtain the love of thy ſubjects and the favour of God, who, while they live and have wealth, thou ſhalt have peace and plenty, but if made poor by tyranny and oppreſſion, they will be continually making commotions & inſurrections."

Which ſolemn charge the young prince very politely aſſured his father, that he would keep engraven upon his heart, and that he lived and reigned in a religious and punctual obſervance thereof. Hiſtory furniſhes us with inconteſtable evidence, and that he and his ſubjects enjoyed all the happy fruits that naturally reſult from ſuch rules of action is equally evident—ſince it plainly appears that wholſame advice ſtrictly attended to, is productive of great good, and liberally contributes to the peace and comfort of the ruler of the ruled. And if George the ſecond of bleſſed memory, had (before he ſlept with his fathers) communicated his ſentiments upon the ſame important ſubject, to the then Prince of Wales, and he had paid the ſame attention and regard thereto, that the firſt mentioned prince did, undoubtedly he would have been a conſtant poſſeſſor of the delicious fruits thereof, and his ſubjects have lived in the fruition of peace and plenty, and intirely devoted to his M——y's perſon and government.——Whereas inſtead of his conforming to ſuch rules of action, he has ſuffered himſelf to be ſurrounded with a crew of fawning, flattering, cringing miſcreants, totally void of every principle of virtue and humanity, who prefer their ſiniſter views and intereſts, to that of their maſters or his ſubjects, and are continually making repreſentations to him concerning his people, replete with falſhood and deceit, with no other view than to deſtroy all confidence between the prince and his people, which ought always to be preſerved inviolate—who are inceſſantly plodding and deviſing meaſures, wholly ſubverſive of every fundamental principle, on which the happy conſtitution of the Britanites, and of the Maſſachuſites, depend for its exiſtence. Inſtances whereof, I have no doubt are freſh in the minds of every well-wiſher to his country—witneſs the deteſtable Stamp-Act, the execution of which would inevitably have deprived the Americans of great part of the little ſubſtance that they had acquired by frugality and induſtry, and when that was repealed, was it not ſucceeded with another equally unconſtitutional and pernicious? And in order to inforce the ſame, a board of commiſſioners eſtabliſhed, who were to reſide in our metropolis, the members whereof, compoſed of the moſt abandoned morals, being beſt calculated to execute the purpoſes of a corrupt, profligate, abandoned adminiſtration. Troops uſhered in upon us, under a pretence of protecting ſuch board in the execution of ſaid act, when there was never the moſt diſtant proſpect of their being obſtructed or moleſted—whereby the ſtreets of our metropolis were crimſoned with the blood of our fellow citizens. And had not we a governor appointed to preſide over us, who exerted himſelf on every occaſion in ſupporting ſaid board in all their illegal and wanton proceedings, who ſought for every trivial pretence to repreſent the people of this province to his majeſty, as being averſe to his perſon and government, and every little tumult or riot, was conſtrued into open acts of riot and rebellion, and an account agreeable to ſuch conſtruction, tranſmitted to his majeſty by him, in the moſt aggravated point of light. Whereas the people of this province have always diſtinguiſhed themſelves for their affection for his Majeſty's perſon, and for preſerving and maintaining peace and good order amongſt us. And after he was recalled to anſwer for his mal-adminiſtration, whilſt in the chair, was he not heard and acquitted in a manner unknown to Britiſh liberty? And was not he ſucceeded by one, who has ever ſince his advancement to the chief ſeat of government, been aſſiduous in purſuing meaſures ſimilar to thoſe of his predeceſſors? Nay, has he not attempted ſome things more fatal to us, (if poſſible) and provided he ſhould ſucceed therein, according to his wiſhes, will undoubtedly in the ſequel, operate to the total annihilation of our charter, and the ſtanding laws of this province. As for inſtance, has he not given miniſterial inſtructions, the force of law in this province, by his ordering the garriſon at Caſtle William, in the pay of this province, to be withdrawn, and the fortreſs to be garriſoned by his majeſty's regular forces, whereby the key of the province is taken from us, and depoſited in the hands of ſtrangers, on whom in a time of danger, we have no right to depend for protection? And has he not continued the ſeſſions of the general aſſembly, in a place where they are beholden to the owners of private property for ſhelter, at a great diſtance from their records, and the reſort of their conſtituents, to whoſe advice and complaints they are anxious to attend—whereby a coſtly and commodious building provided for them, is rendered uſeleſs? Has he not refuſed his conſent to a tax bill, unleſs the commiſſioners of the cuſtoms, their ſuperior and inferior officers were exempted from paying their proportionable part of the public taxes. Whereas the charter veſts full power and authority in the general aſſembly of this province to impoſe, and levy proportionable and reaſonable aſſeſſments, rates and taxes, upon the eſtates and perſons, of all and every the proprietors and inhabitants of the province, & that they are inhabitants thereof, and receive their protection from this government, is undeniably true. Hence it plainly appears, that he prefers miniſterial inſtructions not only to the intent & meaning of the charter, but the letter of it, which is a conſcious and wanton abuſe of his prerogative, and if extended much further in this way, will reduce the aſſembly of this province, to this fatal alternative, viz. either to have no taxes impoſed, and levied upon the polls and eſtates of the province, or to have the ſame [illegible] in ſuch a way and manner, and upon thoſe only, whom a miniſter of ſtate ſhall order, for if he can order that A. be exempted from paying taxes, he can with equal propriety order, that B ſhall alſo, and finally determine, that the whole ſhall be impoſed upon ſome individual in the province, who by his adherence to the cauſe of his country, has rendered himſelf obnoxious to thoſe in power, for by eſtabliſhing the firſt principle, the other inſtances will remain good, which would in a little time, put an end to civil liberty, and eſtabliſh tyranny & oppreſſion. Hence it is that we have had ſome ſmall commotions amongſt us, being what every one had a right to expect, agreeable to the ſaying of King Henry.

DUBLIN, Oct. 12.

His Excellency GEORGE Lord Viſcount TOWNSHEND, Lord Lieutenant General and General Governor of Ireland, his Speech to both Houſes of Parliament, at Dublin, on Tueſday the 8th day of October, 1771.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

MY experience of your attachment to his Majeſty's perſon, and of your zeal for the public ſervice affords me the beſt grounded hopes, that nothing will be wanting on your part to co-operate with his majeſty's gracious intention to promote the welfare and happineſs of this kingdom; and when to this conſideration I add my remembrance of your kind regard to the eaſe and honour of my adminiſtration, I feel the moſt ſenſible pleaſure in the preſent opportunity which his Majeſty has given me of meeting you a fourth time in Parliament.

The preſent proſpect of public affairs ſeems to afford you the fulleſt opportunity for deliberation on ſuch ſubjects as immediately relate to your own domeſtic happineſs. I muſt therefore recommend to your own conſideration whatever tends to promote and ſtrengthen the interior police of this kingdom, and ſuch laws as may be ſalutary and for the benefit of the lower orders of the community, for theſe have ever been found the moſt effectual means of binding their affections to their country, and ſecuring their allegiance to our common parent.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

As in aſſembling you together in the laſt ſeſſion it was not his Majeſty's purpoſe to aſk ſupplies, but ſolely to comply with the wiſhes of his people, it was not thought proper to call upon you, at that time, for any further aid; but as in the ordinary courſe it now becomes neceſſary to provide for the expences of the enſuing two years, your laſt grants being nearly expired, I have no doubt of your turning your thoughts to that important ſubject, and of your granting ſuch ſupplies as ſhall be found neceſſary for the honour and firm ſupport of his Majeſty's government, for the ſecurity of this kingdom, and for the maintenance of the public credit.

I have ordered the proper eſtimates and accounts to be laid before you, from which you will find, not only that the revenue has fallen conſiderably ſhort of former years, but that the deductions made therefrom for payment of different grants for premiums, bounties, and public works, have been ſo very great, that it has not been nearly ſufficient to defray the charges of his Majeſty's eſtabliſhments and other neceſſary expences of government, and that a larger arrear has been incurred on that account. If ſuch grants are judged proper to be continued, either for theſe or other public uſes, you will obſerve that it is impoſſible that the revenue, as it now ſtands, can anſwer thoſe ſervices, and alſo the ſupport of government: I therefore think it incumbent upon me to recommend this ſubject to your moſt ſerious conſideration.

It is with concern that I muſt aſk a ſum of money to diſcharge the arrears already incurred on his Majeſty's eſtabliſhments, but you will find that they have been unavoidable, for that the ſtricteſt œconomy has been uſed, not only in the charges of the late augmentation, upon which a very large ſaving has been made, but in the reduction of the ſtaff which is now deminiſhed to the number directed by his Majeſty.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

The birth of another Prince is ſuch an addition to his Majeſty's happineſs and our ſecurity, that it muſt afford us the trueſt ſatisfaction.

It is my indiſpenſible duty to recommend particularly whatever intereſts the proteſtant religion: there can be no proviſion in its favour, which ſhall tend to carry into execution the good effects of that important law for limiting the duration of Parliament, and are at the ſame time conſiſtent with the principles of humanity, and the natural rights of mankind, which ſhall not fail to have my hearty concurrence.

The illegal aſſociations and audacious outrages committed in different parts of this kingdom, particularly in the North, deſerve your moſt ſerious attention; they are as deſtructive to commerce, as diſgraceful to liberty.

The wiſdom of former Parliaments, and the affection of my predeceſſors in this high ſtation for your intereſts, have uniformly co operated in ſupport of your charter ſchools and your linen manufacture: I am perſuadeded our zeal for theſe national objects will equal theirs.

His Majeſty has the firmeſt reliance on your loyalty and duty, and is perſuaded that your proceeding will be no leſs conſiſtant with your own dignity than with the true intereſts of your country. For my part, I have reſided ſo long amongſt you, that I truſt it will be needleſs for me to make any new declaration to you of my attachment and affection.

The following is the ſubſtance of the addreſs of the Houſe of Commons to be preſented to his Majeſty.——They aſſure his Majeſty of their firm attachment to his ſacred perſon, Royal Family and Government; and return their humble thanks to his Majeſty, for continuing his Excellency the Lord Viſcount Townſhend in the government of this kingdom, from whoſe long experience of their loyalty and zeal for his Majeſty's ſervice, from whoſe ſincere wiſhes for the proſperity of this country, manifeſted during a reſidence of four years amongſt them, they have every reaſon to expect, that the buſineſs of this ſeſſion, will be carried on with candor, temper, and unanimity. They congratulate his Majeſty upon the further addition to his Majeſty's royal houſe, by the birth of another Prince, an event which muſt give the higheſt pleaſure to a people deeply intereſted in every thing that can contribute to his Majeſty's happineſs. That they bring with them every diſpoſition to promote the honour of the crown, and the ſervice of the public; and that his Majeſty may be aſſured that they will take into their moſt ſerious conſideration, thoſe important objects recommended to them from the throne, and chearfully make every proviſion for the honourable ſupport of his Majeſty's government, the ſecurity of this kingdom, and the maintenance of the public credit. That they have ſeen with extreme concern, the illegal aſſociations, and audacious outrages committed by the lower order of the people, in different counties of this kingdom & particularly in ſome places in the North which, if not duly attended to, muſt be productive of the moſt fatal conſequences; and while they are truly ſenſible are diſgraceful to a country of liberty, and ruinous to a country of commerce; and that it is their firm purpoſe to uſe the moſt effectual methods to ſtop their progreſs, and prevent them for the future. That they will give particular attention to thoſe great national objects, the linen manufacture, and the Proteſtant charter ſchools. They beg leave to aſſure his Majeſty, that in all their deliberations they will ſupport, to the beſt of their power, the honour of the crown, and the true intereſt of their country.

The Rev. Mr. Cooper, Preſident of the College of New York, is juſt arrived in the Fox, Capt. Norman, from New-York. He is ſaid to have come over at the deſire of the clergy, to further the ſettlement of a Biſhop in America.

The affair of the Miſſiſippi government is revived ſince Lord Hillſborough's return from Ireland, and we are told that a civil eſtabliſhment on that river will take place in the courſe of the preſent winter.

A Mr.—— is arrived from Bengal, who is ſaid to have amaſſed above one hundred thouſand pounds by a monoply of rice; and to which monoply, it is ſaid, was chiefly owing the late terrible and affecting famine in that country, by which nearly 100,000 unhappy people loſt their lives.—Who would wiſh the enjoyment of riches at ſuch a price?

It is ſaid that the ſeizures made ſince the firſt of June laſt, on the coaſt of Great Britain and Ireland, amount to upwards of 90 000l.

The ſmugglers from the iſlands of Jerſey and Guernſey, taken by his Majeſty's cutters in the courſe of this year, have been computed to 40,000l.

A War in Germany is inevitable. The King of Pruſſia has entered Poland with forty thouſand men. The Ruſſians have evacuated the fortified places in their poſſeſſion, on the Germanic ſide of Poland, for Pruſſian Garriſons. The unadviſed precipitancy of the Court of Vienna, in making a demand of ceſſions on the ſide of Moldavia, kindled this flame. The Czarina was enraged, and ſhe ſet all engines at work to rouſe his Pruſſian Majeſty's ambition and natural jealouſy againſt Auſtria.

The diſpute between Great-Britain & Spain will produce no immediate conſequences. It was altogether a ſmuggling affair in the Weſt-Indies; and it will be explained away. In the mean time Spain is actually arming. France will not continue an idle ſpectator on the continent; and we, from treaty as well as good policy, muſt take an active part on the oppoſite ſide.

The Cabinet here has declared, in the moſt ſolemn terms, againſt a continental war. I hope the reſolution will be kept. But it is apparent, it is certain, that we muſt in three weeks begin to arm. The general diſpoſition to war on the continent renders the meaſure neceſſary; and I am convinced that every neceſſary meaſure will be taken. To be prepared is, perhaps, to prevent war: If we keep to the ocean, hoſtilities, under a prudent management, will do no harm to commerce.—I would, therefore, adviſe ſtockholders not to be bubbled out of their property.——There is no fear of public bankruptcy; there can be no fear as long as we are determined to confine ourſelves to our own element, the ſea. Extract of a Letter from Legborn, Nov. 2.

"I could not ſuffer the courier to depart, without the pleaſure of acquainting you, that his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Gloceſter is ſo far recovered as to be able to bear the motion of the coach without affecting his breath, and to dine with his company as uſual. LONDON, Nov. 9.

It is thought, notwithſtanding many Paragraphs in the Papers relating to the preparations for War, there will not be one with Spain very ſoon.—The ſeizing the Schooner in the Weſt-Indies being on Account of a ſuppoſed Breach of Acts of Trade.

The following are the Particulars relating to that Affair.

Lieut. G——, in the Sir Edward Hawke Schooner of eight guns and thirty men, in the government ſervice, with the King's Commiſſion and Colours, being near the mouth of Carthagena harbour, was taken by two guarda coſtas of twelve guns each, and fifty men or more, on pretence of being within the limited diſtance of the ſhore.

The Carysfort frigate, being near, immediately made a demand of the Schooner, which was delivered up and returned to Port-Royal; where Sir George Rodney called a Court-Martial on the Commander of the Schooner, at which (though he had been known to have behaved courageouſly in action, and eſteemed an excellent officer, and though real reſiſtance would have been fruitleſs) he was ſentenced to be broke for having ſuffered himſelf to be carried in by the guardcoſtas without firing a gun: Had he fired a gun and ſtruck he had been ſafe.

The Carysfort had demanded ſatisfaction; but, as ſhips in the King's commiſſion are not liable to be ſearched, and for which reaſon the Spaniards have lately denied them acceſs to their ports, and this being the firſt inſult of the nature, Sir George Rodney, as Rear-Admiral of England, inſiſting on a national ſatisfaction, immediately ſent down the Achilles, of ſixty guns, and a frigate, to join the Carysfort, and demand ſatisfaction for the affront to the Engliſh colours, the reſult of which is daily expected by the Dunkirk, Capt. Mackenzie, who waits the Governor's anſwer.

BOSTON, January 27.

If what we hear is true, we are now to expect high Admiralty Juriſdiction; when the Crown has needy Servants the People are always oppreſſed by overſtraining the Laws. If a man's Effects happen to fall into the Hands of a Cuſtom-Houſe officer, and get into a Court of Admiralty, not leſs than the whole will content ſome of the Fleecing Gentry, nor does any Thing ſo enrage them as the clearing a ſmall Pittance, though never ſo righteouſly, by the Judge. Any Thing favourable to the Sufferer, procures a Reſentment to the Judge; and ſuch Appraizers are cenſured, and the Perſon ſuffering Loſs led into Snares by being tempted to claim Property, that an action may be brought againſt him to ruin him. This in ſome ſort ſeems to be the Caſe now with William Tyng, Eſq; nay, if we are not miſinformed, the malicious deſign of a Horſe Leach Crown Officer runs higher, even to a Demand that Mr. Tyng be diſmiſſed from the profitable Office of High Sheriff: But Mr. Tyng has one Security, he is not "generally reputed to be concerned with Iſaiah Thomas in printing and publiſhing the Maſſachuſetts Spy."

The Hinſdale Affair has changed its Countenance, in ſome Sort, and the Inhabitants are allowed to keep their Lands, provided they will pay 10 Dollars for a Quietus, for every 100 Acres, if not the Owners muſt turn out, or defend their Property, perhaps againſt "Governor and General W. T—n," who ſome ſay, murdered the people in North Carolina, becauſe they juſtly complained of Extortions.—We doubt whether an expedition againſt Hinſdale would be ſo ſucceſsful.

Mr. WATSON,

THE CONNECTICUT COURANT

Containing the freſheſt and moſt important Advices, both Foreign and Domeſtic

From TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 4, to TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1772.

To the Printer of the Connecticut Courant.

Pleaſe to give this a place in your paper, and it may be acceptable to your readers, in general, as well as to your humble ſervant.

A Letter to a FRIEND.

Dear Sir,

ACcording to your deſire, after the converſation we had, not long ſince, on the late diſputes relative to the operations of the divine ſpirit on the hearts of ſinners in their converſion, I ſend you my thoughts on the ſubject.——When I parted with you, I flattered myſelf that I ſhould be able to reflect ſome light on the affair, that might tend to free it from the embarraſſments controverſy has thrown upon it. But when I came ſeriouſly to review my own thoughts, and carefully to ſearch the ſcriptures on the point, found my own ſyſtem liable to exception, and that it was very difficult, if not impoſſible, clearly to determine on which ſide of the queſtion the truth lay.

In this enquiry I had a ſpecial regard to the diſcourſe our Saviour had with Nichodemus, in the 3d of John, on the important ſubject of regeneration.

That ruler, it ſeems was convinced by the miracles our Saviour wrought, that he was ſent of God, and came into the world on purpoſe to teach men the true knowledge of God, and how they might obtain that happineſs God had provided for his people.—To be inſtructed in theſe important matters, and fully ſatisfied about them, was the great deſign of Nichodemus in coming to Chriſt—this appears from what our Saviour ſays to him in the third verſe, "verily, verily I ſay unto thee, except a man be born again, or from above, as it is in the margin, he cannot ſee the kingdom of God" Here our Saviour, by the eaſieſt, and perhaps the beſt choſen metaphor, in all the ſcripture, endeavours to inſtruct this ruler in the nature, and convince him of the neceſſity of true religion, in order to the divine acceptance, and a participation of the bleſſings of God's people.

But it appears from what Nichodemus ſays, in the 4th verſe, that he greatly miſapprehended our Saviour's meaning, "how can a man," &c. Our Saviour farther to explain, and inforce his doctrine, adds in the 5th and 6th verſes, "verily verily I ſay unto thee except a man be born of water and of the ſpirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God—that which is born of the fleſh is fleſh, and that which is born of the ſpirit is ſpirit," i. e. men born in this world, by natural generation, have faculties and inclinations to do the buſineſs, and enjoy the pleaſures of this world ; and worldly ſenſual things, naturally engage and govern their purſuits they that are born of the ſpirit (or from above) are new creatures in a moral ſenſe, are born into the world of happy ſpirits, they ſee the reality and ſuperlative excellency of ſpiritual and eternal things, have inclinations, and in ſome meaſure, a freedom to purſue the ſame ſpiritual deſigns that all good ſpirits do, and are pleaſed in the enjoyment of the ſame objects, that all good ſpirits are delighted in —You ſee therefore the neceſſity of this new ſpiritual birth. Verſe 7th, our Saviour adds, "marvel not that I ſaid unto you, ye muſt be born again."——It is very certain then, that there muſt be a regeneration of men in order to their being accepted of God, and happy in the enjoyment of him, but the manner in which it is wrought, by the ſpirit of God, Chriſt tells Nechodemus, he can't comprehend in the 8th verſe, "the wind bloweth, &c."—After all it ſeems Nichodemus did not underſtand the nature and neceſſity of regeneration, by what he ſays in the 9th verſe, "how can theſe things be?"—That he ſhould remain thus ignorant of the nature and neceſſity of regeneration, after our Saviour had explained himſelf in the cleareſt manner, the nature of the thing would admit of, is what our Saviour is ſurpriſed at, and blames him for——and well he might, as Nichodemus was a profeſſed maſter in Iſrael, one acquainted with the writings of Moſes, and the prophets, had read the ſcripture account of the original formation and glorious ſtate of man in innocency——his ſhameful apoſtacy from God—the evil imaginations of heart, and impious practices of men ever ſince—Job's doctrine that none can bring a clean thing out of an unclean——David's confeſſion that he was "ſhapen in iniquity," and prayer that God would create in him a clean heart—the exhortation of the prophets to get, & God's promiſe that he would give his people a new heart, as the principle of all acceptable obedience &c.——That a maſter in Iſrael, one who was under advantage to know theſe things, whoſe very profeſſion it was to ſtudy and teach the great truths of religion, ſhould not know the nature and neceſſity of regeneration, as our Saviour had explained it, in his preceeding diſcourſe, nor have learned it from the ſcriptures, was juſt matter of ſurpriſe—and for this he is blamed ; but not because he was unable to underſtand the manner of the divine operation, in [illegible] our Saviour ſeems more than to intimate, that the human mind cannot comprehend and explain it—And this, perhaps is no more neceſſary for us to underſtand, than to know how "the bones grow in the womb of her that is with child."—While we tabernacle in fleſh perhaps we are incapable of forming any juſt conceptions of the manner of the operations of unimbodied ſpirits, and if ſo how ſhall we comprehend and explain the manner of the divine ſpirit, in his operations upon the hearts of ſinners in ſaving converſion ? Is not an eager and too curious enquiry in this matter, Diſcountenanced by what our Saviour ſays in the 12th verſe of this 3d of John, "if I have told you earthly things," i. e. If I have taught you the nature and neceſſity of true religion, in order to your happineſs, by ſomething known on earth, "and ye believe not," and dont underſtand "how ſhall you believe, if I tell you of heavenly things"

I muſt confeſs, Sir, ſince I more ſeriouſly entered into the diſquiſition of the matter, I am more diffident, and ſhou'd no other advantage accrue from my enquiry, I hope this will be the conſequence to myſelf at leaſt, to have learnt a little modeſty in affirming and diſputing about things beyond my meaſure. And I cant but think the diſputants, on both ſides of the queſtion, go beyond what is written in the bible.—This I am certain of, "the wrath of man worketh not the righteouſneſs of God." It is an old and true ſaying that "where there is much diſpute about religion, there is commonly but a little of the power of it.

The greateſt benefit we can do to mankind, is to make them ſenſible of the evil, and danger of ſin, the neceſſity of regeneration, through the influences of the divine ſpirit, and a heavenly life——and in order hereto, I cant but think the great truths and motives of the goſpel, in a practical view of them, are the grand appointed means—"knowing the terrors of the Lord, (ſays the apoſtle) we perſuade men, teſtifying repentance toward God, and faith in Jeſus." I am perſuaded the power of the holy ſpirit makes theſe means effectual, when, where, and in what manner and degree he ſees fit, without "reſpect of perſons," where the goſpel is preached.——I am therefore determined, (laying aſide ſuch curious queſtions, which naturally, and as in fact is found, gender ſtrife) to be "inſtant in ſeaſon and out of ſeaſon," in inculcating the plain, practical truths of the goſpel, and the infinite concerns of eternity, relying entirely upon the energy of the divine ſpirit, to make my labours ſucceſsful:—and am perſuaded, ſhould it pleaſe God to put this into the hearts of all the miniſters of the goſpel, and graciouſly bleſs their labours in this way, for the revival of religion in the power of it, theſe diſputes would ſoon vaniſh and give no further trouble either to the preſs or converſation. I am, Sir, &c.

From the PENNSYLVANIA PACKET.
To the PRINTER.

SIR,

IN reading Yorick's excellent Sentimental Journey, a few nights ago, I met with the following paſſage in the hiſtory of his ſervant Le Fleur: "He emptied the contents of his pocket on the floor——pulled out a dirty cravat, a handkerchief, a comb, a whip laſh, a night cap—then gave a peep into his hat, &c." I was much pleaſed with the ingenious manner in which he had characteriſed him from the ſimple contents of his pocket. The whole paſſage was ſo impreſſed upon my mind, that after I went to bed and fell aſleep, I was led to the following dream, which, if it will not be foreign to the deſign of your uſeful paper, I ſhould be glad to ſee publiſhed when you have not any thing of more importance to communicate to your cuſtomers.——I thought I ſet off upon a journey through the weſtern parts of this province, with a commiſſion from the Governor to ſearch the pockets of every man I ſhould meet on the road. The improbability of a perſon's being entruſted with ſuch a commiſſion in a free country is obvious to every body, but will readily be overlooked by ſuch who know how much dreams are compoſed of improbabilities of a more abſurd and ridiculous nature. Soon after I left the city, I met with a Military Officer; upon ſearching his pocket I found a guinea, a letter from his commanding officer, and a copy of a bill for 50l. ſterling, to be drawn ſome months hence. The next man I met with was a Lawyer; he had in his pocket a few Half Johannes's, and a bundle of old papers, which appeared ſo confuſed, that, I would not take time to read them. The next perſon I met, was a Phyſician, who had been viſiting a patient; he had in his pocket a clyſterpipe, a large ſnuff-box, an empty pill box, and a ſmall caſe of ſurgeons pocket inſtruments. The next man I met was a Miniſter of the Church of England; he had in his pocket a common prayer book, a collection of marriage licences, Dr. Chandler's plea for a Biſhop, and a few numbers of that periodical paper, called the Anatomiſt. Soon after parting with this Clergyman, I met another of the Preſbyterian denomination; he had in his pocket an old Bi[illegible] relative to the trial of Andrew [illegible] collection of papers lying along with Alexander [illegible], to be referred to the Synod, and laſtly, a few numbers of the Centinel. The next man I met was a plain Quaker, whom I found, upon enquiry, to be a preacher; I deſired to ſearch his pockets, he conſented, but upon trial I found he had none. After travelling for ſome time, I met with a young man dreſſed like a perſon of rank and fortune; upon examining his pockets, I found nothing there but a tavern bill; the caſe was, he had been drunk the night before, had ſlept in a houſe of bad fame, and had been robbed of his money, watch, buttons, buckles, and every thing he had valuable about him. The next man I met was a Merchant; his pocket was filled with two large bundles of paper money, three mortgages for plantations and five bonds in judgments. The next man I met, I judged from his appearance to be a Jew. Upon ſearching his pocket, I found there an old Hebrew Bible, and a pair of gold ſcales. A little farther on I met with a plain Countryman; he had a piece of lincey woolſey under his arm; in his pocket he had a quantity of looſe cut tobacco, a certificate from the miniſter of the congregation he belonged to, a ſealed letter, the ſuperſcription of which was as follows, "To James M'Dowell in Ireland, to the care of the Rev. Mr. Rutherford miniſter there, this with care;" beſides theſe I found a looſe piece of paper, containing a memorandum of ſundry things to be bought in Philadelphia; the following is a copy of it, "a pair of wool cards, the ſhorter catechiſm, a tobacco box, an almanack, and a pound of Bohea tea for my wife when ſhe has company." The next man I met, appeared to be formal and reſerved; I attempted to ſearch him, but he refuſed to ſtand ſtill, unleſs I approached him with my hat off; this I readily complied with, and upon putting my hand into his pocket, I found there a cat and nine tails, Wingate's arithmetic, an old ſilk pocket handkerchief, and a Barlow penknife; I was at no loſs in pronouncing him to be a country Schoolmaſter. The next man I met looked full and bloated; upon ſearching his pocket, I found there half a fowl wrapped up in an old news paper, Glaſs's art of cookery, with blank leaves, on ſome of which were written annotations or explanations of the author's meaning; beſides theſe, I found a little ode humbly addreſſed to a frying-pan. As I had travelled a long way without eating any thing, I took the liberty of helping myſelf to the wing of his fowl, which offended him greatly; he lifted up his fiſt and attempted to ſtrike me; I ran from him as faſt as I could; he chaced me, and luckily for me, in ſtepping acroſs a cart rut, he fell ſprawling upon the ground—I was ſo diverted with his fall, and his droll figure as he lay acroſs the road, that I roared out a laughing, upon which I awoke, not a little mortified, to find the whole was nothing but a Dream. For the LONDON PACKET.
Some Anecdotes of Mr. EYRE, the celebrated Paper Stealer.

HE was put an apprentice, and ſerved his time with Mr. Shuckburgh, bookſeller, in Fleet-ſtreet. Upon the death of his father, who left him an affluent fortune, he commenced gentleman, took lodgings in Saliſbury court, Fleet-ſtreet, and either married, or ſeemed to be married, to a young woman, by whom he had ſeveral children. Soon after this connection, an aunt of his died in Somerſetſhire, to whom he was heir at law. She had been attended during a long and tedious illneſs, by a phyſician in the neighbourhood, who, from his friendſhip and regard for her, not only promoted her recovery, (ſome years before her death) but would not accept of any fee for his long attendance on her. His kindneſs and aſſiduity ſo highly ingratiated him into her eſteem, that ſhe made a will, whereby ſhe bequeathed him all her fortune, which was very conſiderable; and when he waited upon her one day, ſhe preſented him with it, ſaying, "pray, Doctor, read that paper at your leiſure;" he accordingly took it with him: but, upon ſeeing her again, repreſented to her, in the moſt forcible terms, that he had a ſufficient competency to live eaſily and contentedly, that he had no higher ambition than to attend his patients, ſerve them, and merit their good opinion: but that if he were to accept the bequeſt ſhe propoſed, he might forfeit their eſteem, in diverting the [illegible] family; but, with great difficulty he perſuaded her to make a new will, in which ſhe bequeathed the Doctor only a thouſand pounds, appointing him one of her executors. Upon the demiſe of the good old Lady, the Doctor wrote to her nephew in London, informing him that he had ſucceeded to his aunt's fortune, and deſiring Mr. Eyre to come down to give the neceſſary orders for her funeral. Mr. Eyre accordingly went down into Somerſetſhire, and, upon his arrival at his aunt's, was met by the Doctor, who informed him there was a will made in his favour, in her bureau, directing him to the drawer in which it was. Mr Eyre went up ſtairs, and finding his aunt's teſtament, with the item in favour of the Doctor, who upon ſeeing Mr. Eyre again, aſked him if he had found the will. Eyre, at firſt, denied having met with any one; but being hard preſſed, at length acknowledged that he had deſtroyed it, ſaying there was no occaſion for a will, as he was by law heir to the whole eſtate. "Yes, (ſays a friend of the Doctor's who was preſent) but there was a legacy of a thouſand pounds in behalf of the Doctor——do you intend to pay that?" "I know nothing of any legacy, replied Eyre, and ſhall pay none." This ſo enraged the Doctor though he deſpiſed the money, that he immediately ſaid, "If that's the caſe, you have deſtroyed the will, and have no one to ſhew:——let me tell you I have one," and immediately produced the will in his poſſeſſion, whereby he became ſucceſſor to a fortune of near twelve thouſand pounds.

Thus we find Mr. Eyre's infamous thirſt of gain has always been his foe;——and the late inſtance of expoſing himſelf to tranſportation for a few quires of paper, ſeems to ſum up his wretched character in a ſhort compaſs.

For the CONNECTICUT COURANT.

Mr. Watſon,

THAT there is an eternal and unalterable difference between truth and falſhood in ſpeculation, & right and wrong in practice——That the wiſe and virtuous ſhou'd be rewarded, the vicious puniſh'd, the reſentment that glows in every breaſt demonſtrates——And that the rules of juſtice and equity, ſhou'd conſtantly govern all our actions, as every man naturally feels this paſſion riſe againſt the villany, baſeneſs oppreſſion and cruelty of others——That mankind in general ſee, and approve of what is right, though they may do what is wrong, and that they are in ſome meaſure, capable of conforming their lives, words and actions to the laws of reaſon, revelation and their country, are maxims upon which commerce is carried on, and government [illegible]. But that this power of knowing, approving and doing right, is frequently baſely proſtituted to the vileſt purpoſes; the ſaying and doing wrong, is evident from a great number of inſtances; and eſpecially from an extract of a letter from North-Carolina, of November 11, publiſhed in your paper of January 23, 1772. In which the writer ſays, "that the ſpirit of regulation is intirely ſubdued—the ſurviving regulators happy that an end is put to an inſurrection, in which moſt of them were involved, through ignorance and the ſubtilty of a few, without any idea of the deſigns and intentions of it. That no reſentment ſeems to be retained either againſt government, for the meaſures adopted againſt them, or thoſe who bravely executed thoſe meaſures. It is further the opinion of all the judicious, honeſt people of the province, that the battle of Alamance, has not deprived us of one valuable inhabitant, except thoſe who ſuffered for government in the battle."—If this was all a true genuine account, what need of this concluding clauſe?" You may rely upon the authenticity of what I write." We have been repeatedly adviſed by the beſt authorities, that the people have been long, and moſt horribly oppreſſed, under colour of law, & countenance of their wicked men in authority—that iniquity has been connived at, if not eſtabliſhed by law. That the diſcreet, and indeed comparatively innocent Fanning himſelf, was convicted of extortion, in a number of inſtances, and for each conviction was fined the enormous ſum of one ſingle penny. From which conduct, I think we may fairly conclude, that however dear he had ſold juſtice, the court rated guilt very low. A late elegant writer upon the laws of England, ſays, "there is yet another offence againſt public juſtice, which is a crime of deep malignity; and ſo much the deeper, as there are many opportunities of putting it in practice, and the power and wealth of offenders, may often deter the injured from a legal proſecution. This is the oppreſſion and tyrannical partiality of judges, juſtices and other magiſtrates, in the adminiſtration and under the colour of their office. However, when proſecuted either by impeachment in parliament, or by information in the court of King's Bench, (according to the rank of the offender) it is ſure to be ſeverely puniſhed with forfeiture of their offices, fines &c.*"

The fining an egregious malefactor, only one ſingle penny for extortion, when perhaps he had taxed his ten thouſand pounds that way, might be the beſt reaſon a late writer had for calling it one of the mildeſt adminiſtrations in America. We have alſo been adviſed that the intrepid or rather perfidious T—n, ſued upon the people imploring from him, as the common father of the province, and one that ruled over men, that he would be "juſt ruling in the fear of God," and give them a fair opportunity of repreſenting, ſo that he might faithfully redreſs their grievances. If this was doing right, there ſeems to be no poſſibility of doing wrong. And in the N. York Journal of October 29 1771, it appears that his excellency governor Martin of North-Carolina, beſides the uſual proclamations, publiſhed three extraordinary. The firſt againſt vice and debauchery; the ſecond in his majeſty's name againſt extortion, from which it ſeems his majeſty thought it had been practiſed there; the third in governor Martin's own name, requiring all officers to poſt up a table of their fees——and tranſmit a copy of the ſame to him immediately, without fail, as they ſhall anſwer the contrary at their peril, &c. After all that has been before publiſhed will any mortal be ſo hardy, as to venture to affirm, that this late audacious account, or that the moſt horrid extortion, & barbarous and cruel murders, in ſupport and defence of the vileſt, the moſt intolerable of all oppreſſions, appears conſonant to right reaſon? (Which an antient writer ſays) is the law of truth, agreeable to nature, implanted in all men, univerſal and eternal; it is not one law at Rome, and another at Athens—one to day, and another tomorrow. But one, and the ſame law continues and extends itſelf to all times, and to all places, and I will add to all perſons, as one God is the common father of us all. And no one can violate this law without offering violence to his own nature or conſcience, and thereby ſuffering the greateſt puniſhment, though he ſhould eſcape all other things that are call'd ſo. This late account from Carolina brings to my remembrance what the Son of God who came down from heaven to bear witneſs to the truth, once ſaid of the Jews, "ye are of your father the devil, and the luſts of your father ye will do; he was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, becauſe there is no truth in him. When he ſpeaketh a lie, he ſpeaketh of his own: for he is a liar and the father of it."

Indeed I will freely own, that it clearly appears to me, that a creature, that can now venture to publiſh ſuch an account, muſt be either very weak, or very wicked.

NEW-YORK, February 6.

The General Aſſembly have appointed five of the Members of the Houſe, to be a Committee to examine and ſee what Repairs are neceſſary to be made to the Fortifications of this city, and to report their Opinion thereupon to the Houſe, with all convenient ſpeed.

They have alſo ordered, that a Bill be brought in granting unto his Majeſty the Sum of Two Thouſand Pounds, for furniſhing the Troops quartered in this Colony, with Neceſſaries for one year.—The ſame to be made payable out of the Intereſt Money ariſing by Virtue of an Act, entitled, An Act for emitting the Sum of £. 120,000, in Bills of Credit to be put out upon Loan, and to appropriate the Intereſt ariſing thereon, to the Payment of the Debts of this Colony, and to ſuch public Exigencies as the Circumſtances of this Colony may from Time to Time render neceſſary.

On Monday laſt, about 1 o'Clock in the Afternoon, a Sloop loaded with Staves, ſome Flax Seed, and 10 Caſks of Pot Aſh (Chatfield Maſter) from New-Haven bound here, in coming through Hell-Gate the Wind ſuddenly dying away, was driven upon the Rocks on the Long Iſland Shore, where the Veſſel will be loſt, but the People were, and it is hoped moſt of the Cargo will be ſaved.

NEW-HAVEN, February 7.

Capt. Smith Odel, of Stratfield, (who has for many Years been a Coaſter from that Place to Boſton and New York) was on Monday the 27th ult. oppoſite to Hempſtead, Long-Iſland, ſtruck overboard by the Boom, and drown'd. The ſame Day, Capt. Smith, belonging to Connecticut River, was alſo knock'd over by the Boom, and drowned in the Sound, near Say-Brook.

Laſt Wedneſday died in this Town at Dr. Rhodes's, Monſieur Laurent Moiſſon; he arrived here a few Months ſince from Hiſpaniola, where was his Place of Reſidence, and where he was eſteemed an honeſt, worthy Man. His Funeral was attended Yeſterday by the Free Maſons, and a Number of other reſpectable inhabitants.

The ſame Day, as Mr. Nathaniel Luddington, of Waterbury, was taking a heavy Log out of a Sled, he received ſo violent a Stroke, under his Chin, with a Lever, that his Jaw-bone was broke and his Neck diſlocated, of which he expir'd inſtantly.

HARTFORD, Feb. 11.

Extract of a Letter from a Merchant in Cadiz, to his correſpondent in London, dated October 20, 1771.

"A*T five o'clock this afternoon, the Vera Cruz, a Spaniſh frigate (Don Antonio de la Vega, Commander) arrived here from the Iſle of Falkland, after a paſſage of 35 days; and two hours after, one Scot (an Iriſh ſailor, who has been for ſome time in the Spaniſh ſervice, and ſailed in the ſame frigate) came to my houſe.——This fellow aſſures me, that on 15th or 16th of July, two Engliſh ſhips arrived at that iſland, in order to take poſſeſſion thereof, in conformity to the convention lately ſigned between the Spaniſh Ambaſſador and Lord Rochford; that the Commodore preſented his orders to the Spaniſh Commander, but that he raiſed ſo many difficulties about the reſtitution, whether it was to be of the whole Iſland, or barely of Port Egmont, that after a three days conference upon the matter, the ſaid Engliſh ſhips were forced to depart; yet it is not known for what port they ſet ſail. The ſailor could not inform me what was the purport or ſubſtance of the difficulties ſtarted; however, the fact is what I have related, and that the Vera Cruz was purpoſely diſpatched hither, to give information of this affair to the court and that for the greater ſecrecy of it, the Captain has his orders to pretend, that he comes immediately from Buenos-Ayres, and to ſuffer nobody to come aſhore. The ſailor in my houſe, being one of thoſe who rowed the boat that brought aſhore the Court diſpatches, watched his opportunity to elope, and in hopes of a handſome gratuity, for bringing the news to an Engliſhman, fled to my houſe to communicate it to me, as, through the Captain's great care, it is kept a profound ſecret from the public.*

"This is ſo very intereſting a piece of intelligence, that I beg you will immediately cauſe it to be in our papers, that the nation may not be ſurpriſed and impoſed upon, but prepared againſt every event that may happen; and if you have an intimacy with any of our Miniſters, you will do well to communicate it to them, and produce this very letter of mine, to convince them of the reality of the matter, &c."

'P. S. By the next poſt you may expect farther particulars relative to this affair, time not permitting me at preſent to ſay more.'

Boſton, January 1, 1772.

A Gentleman in England, of diſtinguiſhed character for many munificent deeds to the Public, having ordered his Correſpondent here to ſubſcribe Ten Guineas towards printing a ſecond Volume of Collection of Papers relative to the Hiſtory of Maſſachuſetts-Bay, the Work will begin to be printed as ſoon as other Subſcribers ſufficient to defray the Expence ſhall appear. The Volume will be about the ſame ſize and delivered to ſubſcribers at the ſame price of the former. None will be printed for Sale, the Publiſher having principally in view the Preſervation of theſe Papers for the Benefit of Poſterity. SUBSCRIPTIONS to encourage the Printing of this Collection will be received by E. Watſon, Printer in Hartford.—The Volume will contain about 600 Pages, and no money is expected till the Books are delivered.——

☞ As moſt of theſe Papers will, probably, be irrecoverably loſt in a few Years, unleſs preſerved by Printing, it is hoped that a ſufficient Number of Subſcribers will ſoon appear, from a regard to the Public as well as for the ſake of their particular Entertainment.

A few of the firſt Volume of Collection of Papers, may be had at the Heart and Crown in Boſton.

POETS CORNER.

A devout wiſh for the revival of religion, or orthodoxy and union.

O! That kind heaven in energy divine——
The power that firſt from darkneſs call'd (forth light,
The chaos form'd into this beauteous world;
And in his image man: and ſet him high
Over his works, with noble powers indow'd
To know his Maker, and imbibe his love;
His wiſhes center'd and all ſatisfied
In God, the boundleſs ſource of joy divine:
Whence his glad heart o'erflow'd with gratitude
To heaven and kind benevolence to earth.
(O! how unlike our preſent ſtate elaps'd!)
Would God, in tender mercy to his works,
Ruin'd by ſin, and our chief glory loſt,
The heavens bow, and by his powerful ſpirit,
Come down and wake us to a lively ſenſe,
Of what concerns us moſt, our future weal.
Reform our hearts, ſet right our moral powers;
And with his gracious efficacy form us
Anew in Chriſt, with chriſtian principles,
To all the virtues of the chriſtian life.
Thus freed from the vile ſervitude of ſin;
And rais'd above the low purſuits of earth,
We ſhould, with vigour and unceaſing aim,
Seek the great ſource of life and every good;
And center in him all our vaſt deſires,
Until our ſouls would be conform'd to him,
In every moral excellence, deſired
And copied from him with divine delight.
Then from their fill of nobleſt bliſs, our ſouls
Would raiſe their higheſt honours to their ſourſe,
Adore the wond'rous meaſures heavenly love
Has plan'd to work all this for rebel man.
Thence would our hearts with warmeſt wiſhes (glow,
To ſee this glory and this good defus'd
Through the whole world to all the fallen race.
This is the principle, the ſureſt baſe,
(Wrought and ſupported by heaven's powerful
Communicated through and for the ſake [ſpirit,
Of the great Mediator freely) this
The ſpring of true morality, that gives
Prime honours to their heavenly ſourſe, & makes
Each individual in himſelf moſt happy.
And this diffus'd through families and ſtates,
Would make them happy in all ſocial good.
And with the common ſmiles of providence
Would bleſs the world with all this ſtate allows;
And form us to a better life hereafter,
The height of moral excellence and bliſs.
When all theſe flattering & theſe vexing trifles
Shall be no more, and vaſt eternity
Will ſee the full and ſtill increaſing joy.
O! that this ſpirit might prevail and ſpread
Through every nation, every rank of men
How would the world be bleſs'd—"the wrath (of man,
That worketh not the righteouſneſs of God;"
But grieves his ſpirit and reſiſts his grace,
And ſpreads confuſion in the church and ſtate,
In various forms, wou'd diſcontinue ſoon.
With party zeal, outragious ſpirit that breaks
The deareſt ties of nature and religion;
Beclouds the mind, and oft enſnares the good
With dang'rous errors, ſwerv'd from ſimple truth,
The bane of ſocial bliſs—and nice diſpute,
That pains the head, and never mends the heart,
And leads the mind, in curious ſearches deep,
Above plain ſenſe, exploring ſomething new
With its fine thoughts ſtill pleas'd; unapt to hear
The ſpirits gentle, ſtill, perſuaſive voice,
Or feel the influence of his doctrines pure
That fills the meeken'd ſoul with heavenly love,
And all his happy fruits that bleſs mankind.
Theſe evil paſſions, that engender ſtrife,
And vex the heart and yield ſuch bitter fruit,
Would ceaſe on earth—— men to them'elves
(reſtor'd,
And to their makers Image and his love,
Thro' faith in Chriſt, and in believing feel
That peace and joy, the ſpirit of grace imparts
To humble penetents, from ſin reclaim'd,
In ſenſe of pardon and the glorious hopes
The goſpel gives, the effect of ſovereign love.
Such joyful ſenſe, ſuch inward peace will prompt
To kindeſt deeds—the patriot and divine,
And every order, every rank would ſtrive,
But to advance the welfare of the whole,
And propagate the pleaſures that they feel,
In knowing theſe grand truths and ſentiments,
That make men men, to their prime ſtate reſtor'd;
Not by proud argument and thoughts impos'd,
But cleareſt reaſonings, calm and meek addreſs,
T' inform the mind and reconcile the heart;
With humble prayer and truſt in heaven alone,
To give ſucceſs to their endeavours kind.
Then might we hope that God wou'd dwell
(with men,
And righteouſneſs and peace prevail on earth.
Men orthodox in heart, diſpos'd t' imbibe,
The ſpirit of the goſpel and receive,
The genuine impreſs of its doctrines pure;
And live by faith in Chriſt, would ſoon unite
In the kind ſentiments of Chriſtian love.
Endearing tie, the moſt diſtinguiſh'd badge
Of Chriſt's diſciples, his own ſpirit diffus'd
Through all their hearts, in friendlieſt amity
Wou'd bind their ſouls together, move far off
All angry ſtriſe, that blemiſhes the cauſe
And name of Chriſt, with ſcandal infinite.
And pure benevolence to all mankind,
Would raiſe the honor of the goſpel high:
And its diſtinguiſh'd glory ſtill command
Eſteem and reverence from th' admiring world.

WE the ſubſcribers being appointed by the hon. Judge of Probate for the diſtrict of Hartford, commiſſioners on the eſtate of Mr. Samuel Farnſworth, late of Hartford deceas'd, repreſented inſolvent. OBSERVATOR [No. XV.]

Salus populi ſuprema lex eſto.

LET the ſafety of the people be the ſupreme law, is a maxim ſo evidently founded on the reaſon and nature of things, that it needs no laboured diſſertation to prove, either the truth, or extent [illegible] of it——its uſefulneſs ariſes from being [illegible] ſimple rule, level with the moſt common underſtanding,—yet ſufficient to try with the greateſt certainty, the juſtneſs, or inequality of every law, and ſyſtem of government, that ever did or does ſubſiſt, and take place in the world.—On this principle I mean to make an obſervation or two, on the late act of aſſembly, publiſhed in the Connecticut Courant, relative to the paper bills, of our neighbouring provinces, obtaining a currency among us.——This act at firſt view, I own appears not barely anti-commercial, it even wears the aſpect of an arbitrary exertion of the powers of government, to controul individuals in the diſpoſal of their property, and to forbid their receiving in payment what they judge an equivalent, under fine or forfeiture.

Penal laws, however fond of them the arbitrary governors of their ſubjects may be, are ever odious to a free people, when made frequent, are ſeldom put in execution but with reluctance, and never effectually take place among them, but where there is the moſt evident neceſſity, and the ſafety and ſecurity of the people require it.——If on a fair conſideration of the ſubject, this act appears in this light, every well wiſher to the colony will ſtrengthen the hands of government, and at the ſame time ſerve their own intereſt, by putting it in execution——It will readily be granted that a paper currency may be ſo well regulated, as to ſupply all the purpoſes of ſilver and gold, and in commerce, be vaſtly preferable to either, in the diſpatch and ſafety, it will give buſineſs—It muſt alſo be owned, that a bad regulated currency of paper bills, if not worſe than none, is at leaſt productive of the moſt extenſive miſchief.

Paper bills deſigned for a currency, muſt either by an act of government, be good in all payments between man and man, or give the poſſeſſor indubitable, and poſitive ſecurity for their value, in ſpecie from ſomewhere, ſome bank, or treaſury when call'd for—otherways thoſe grounds of certainty will be wanting, which are requiſite to give the bills the needful credit——Whenever a government iſſues an emiſſion of bills, the government of courſe (acting honeſtly) ought to become obligated not barely for the payment of them, ſometime or other, but explicitly engage it, in a reaſonable time, and make public proviſion therefor—for inſtance, when this colony found it neceſſary to iſſue bills, though they did not preſume to make them abſolutely a currency and payment, yet they gave them out in form of notes, promiſing the payment at ſuch a time with intereſt, and left their bills to obtain their credit, and currency from the punctuality of their payment.

This without partiality, was putting them on the faireſt and moſt generous, as well as on the moſt certain footing——the conſequences demonſtrated the truth of this aſſertion——as the bad effects of the old tenor, for want of being on ſuch a footing, very fatally proved in its turn—The province of New York have found, and ſtill are under, the neceſſity of a paper currency of ſome kind or other, as well as their neighbours, their former emiſſions have been abſolutely a currency in that province, and obtained a credit accordingly—on ſuch a footing their bills were good, and greatly promoted the intereſts of commerce among themſelves and [illegible]——[illegible] their bills, was [illegible] had hitherto, [illegible] pass'd bills for a [illegible] the royal diſ[illegible] having made [illegible] it a favourite [illegible] if poſſible, any paper currency [illegible]

Thus ſtood matters [illegible] reſpecting a paper currency, which [illegible] for, at the time of [illegible] breach of the non importation agreement, immediately after which, they obtained the royal aſſent to a bill for emitting one hundred and twenty thouſand pounds in paper——no trifling reward for the important [illegible]. I wiſh not to dwell on the diſagreeable ſubject, and had their emiſſion on whatever grounds or conſiderations it was obtain'd, been regulated to anſwer and promote the valuable purpoſes of trade, it might have been ſo far an atonement, as that there might have been no neceſſity of mentioning it at all. Their late emiſſion is made neither for the payment of debts due from the province, nor do they carry with them any ſecurity for their being paid off in ſpecie, at any given time, but only that they ſhall paſs in payment at the treaſury, not that the poſſeſſor ſhall be intitled to demand ſilver or gold for them, but that if he happen to owe the treaſury, theſe bills will anſwer his purpoſe——the province have ordered theſe bills to be put on a loan of five per cent. and having made no other proviſion for the paying them off, than that their treaſurer ſhall take them in payment, it is eaſy to ſee at once, that by this bubble they will receive an annual income of ſix thouſand pounds for nothing more, than the trouble of ſtriking off, loaning out the bills, and we may add, lending their names to help on the impoſition. It is ſaid, (ſuppoſe it to be ſo) that they have paſs'd an act that in twenty years this bank ſhall be ſunk or call'd in, and ſo it will by its own intereſt, which in that time will amount to one hundred and twenty thouſand pounds, I ſay it will—but I ſpeak improperly, the treaſurer will have receiv'd in favour of the province this ſum, and ſtill have in hand ſecurity for ſo much more—put the caſe, this annual intereſt is paid in the bills themſelves, then ſecurity ſtill remains for ſo much more, which muſt be paid in ſilver or gold—or if the annual intereſt is paid in that ſpecie, there is reſerved the ſecurities for calling in the original emiſſion, without the leaſt expence to government——In ſhort, they are to clear the neat ſum of one hundred and twenty thouſand pounds, in twenty years, granting that they are obligated to, and do punctually redeem their emiſſion of bills, ſuppoſing the contrary, twice the ſum——the queſtion is, of whom do they get this money, and what do they give in conſideration? This is eaſily anſwered, of thoſe who borrow, and circulate it, and the value given, nothing more, than their authority, to give an idea of reality, to what is without any in itſelf, or any thing to ſupport it——ſo far as this is confin'd to that province, no one elſewhere is intereſted, but when their inhabitants after borrowing it at five per cent, attempt letting it to thoſe in this colony, whoſe circumſtances are neceſſitous, at a much higher; or paſs it off in payment for our proviſions, it is of the laſt importance to prevent their thus making us tributary to them; or in other words foreign from us, the ſupport of their government, for in caſe one half their emiſſion could have been let out here, and the plan was laid, and agents ready, to have gone farther than that ſum; but ſuppoſing one half, or ſixty thouſand pounds, the intereſt againſt us, muſt be three thouſand annually, which in twenty years, would bring a balance of ſixty thouſand pounds out of this colony, not for ſilver and gold, nor for the neceſſaries of life, and commerce, but for what in itſelf, was of no kind of value, and ſcarcely had the nominal character of a value on it——did they really intend the punctual payment of their bills, at the end even of twenty years, is it not ſtrange they ſhould omit mentioning it on the face of the emiſſion?——Who that views their bills, can imagine it poſſible they ſhould exiſt twenty years? Wrapped in ſilk, and laid away, they may be preſerved; but if uſed in the way of commerce, more than one half of them, muſt periſh unavoidably, in the handling, and conſidering every thing, charity can hardly believe this circumſtance was unobſerved, or undeſigned by the projectors, and managers of this emiſſion.

That the inhabitants of this colony want ſpecie, or its ſubſtitute, paper, to carry on their buſineſs to advantage, I readily grant; but at the ſame time muſt maintain, that the receiving theſe bills, and circulating them, tends to make the evil ſtill greater, they cannot be called a ſubſtitute, with any propriety——they are not the ſhadow of money; but if of any thing, the ſhadow of a ſhade——Is not the credit of Connecticut, as ſufficient to ſupport a loan of one hundred and twenty thouſand pounds, as that of New-York? And is not an annual income of ſix thouſand pounds into the treaſury worth our attention? Or is it better to purſue publicly the cautious maxim, "that it is better not to make uſe of our privileges, than run any riſk of offending them, that may take them from us?"—privately the narrow and ſelfiſh one, "that every man muſt take care of himſelf, and the public of themſelves, that ſo long as it will paſs in payment for ſo much, it is no matter as to its value, or the conſequences of its circulation to the public?—Such, (I am ſorry to ſay it) ſeem to be the principles that actuate too many, both in public and private life——to men in general, general truths are of the moſt conſequence, and have the greateſt effect—I know of no one more general than that intereſt never lies, or that actions ſpeak louder than words—that it is their intereſt to puſh this money into Connecticut, is evident from what I have already obſerved——and though they may pretend it was deſign'd for their own province, the agreement with their celebrated agent in uſury, to loan out forty thouſand pounds of it in this colony immediately after its emiſſion, evidences the deſign, and ſhews the wiſdom, and prudence of the legiſlature in thus early preventing their plan.——What has been advanced reſpecting paper emiſſion in general, may with equal juſtice be applied to the New-Jerſey bills——ſeveral circumſtances indeed, render this money inferior to the other, but the large ſums of it counterfeited and altered, would probably ſtop its circulation, even if no act was againſt it—and if no other reaſon was or could be urged to its diſadvantage——an honeſt induſtrious farmer of my acquaintance the laſt ſeaſon, ſold the produce of his farm to a coaſter, a ſtranger, to the amount of between forty and fifty pounds and took the New-Jerſey bills in payment, every one of which proved counterfeit, to the very great diſtreſs of himſelf and family. This is one inſtance out of many, of the ſame kind, though perhaps few, to ſo great an amount——gentlemen in trade muſt be principally depended on, to enforce this ſtatute effectually; at the ſame time, the authority whoſe peculiar province it is, will undoubtedly exert themſelves to put ſo beneficial a ſtatute in force. NEWPORT, January 20.

Laſt Saturday Night put in here, for a Harbour, the Schooner Betſy, Moſes Allen Maſter, from the Grenades and St. Thomas's, bound for Boſton; the Maſter and Mate being ſick.

The following we received from Grenada, laſt Week, with an earneſt Requeſt that it might be inſerted in this Paper.

GENERAL L' Leyborne arrived here about 5 weeks before he called a council, & when he did call one, it was for no other purpoſe than to ſwear in Mr. de Chanteloupe, one of the old French ſubjects, and a Roman Catholic, by virtue of the Kings Mandamus. Governor Leybourne's commiſſion, which contains a power which no other Governor of a British colony ever had, gives him that of receiving old French ſubjects into the council and aſſembly, commiſſions of the peace, and making them Judges of the courts of common pleas and court of errors, & diſpenſes them from taking the teſts although every other of his Majeſty's ſubjects are obliged by the ſame commiſſion to conform themſelves to the Acts of Parliament. It has been urged that the Teſt-Act did not extend to the colonies, but by Governor Melville's commiſſion, 9th of April, 1764, it was made to extend as well as all the other laws of England, and a conſtitution perfectly ſimilar to that of the other British Iſlands was given to Grenada.——This was the Charter of that Iſland, given the Inhabitants in the moſt ſolemn manner, under the great Seal, and in their opinion as irrevocable as Magna Charta is in England. Then all officers were obliged to take the teſt, and all went on well. An aſſembly was called for one year, and at the expiration of it, another, for the ſame term, but now the aſſemblies of Grenada are to be during pleaſure; and compoſed, in part, of Roman Catholics, ſo that beſides the Illegality, if the people happened to be deceived in their choice, they may ſuffer many years without hopes of remedy; and for the time to come, cannot reckon upon the Enjoyment of one ſingle advantage for any length of time, as the will of the Prince is to be law in poor Grenada.——Tobago and St. Vincents are exempted from Roman Catholic Judges and lawgivers, but their conſtitution is equally unſtable with that of Grenada.

The Gentlemen of the council ſeeing no end of theſe innovations, refuſed ſwearing in Mr. de Chanteloupe.—They repreſented to the Governor, that they were willing to obey any legal orders of the crown, but that they could not, bound as they were by a ſolemn oath, aid and aſſiſt in the putting in Execution any unlawful ones. They repreſented to the Governor, that the King had ſworn to govern the realm of England, and the Dominions thereunto belonging, by the Statutes agreed on in Parliament and the laws and cuſtoms of the ſame.—That it was out of the power of the crown in any part of the British Dominions, to enforce an Act of Parliament on one part of the ſubjects and diſpenſe with it on another Part; that it was as much a law throughout the colonies, that every office of truſt, civil or Millitary, ſhould be filled by ſubjects ſigning the Teſt, as any other law whatever; and if that had not been the caſe, it was introduced into Grenada by General Melville's commiſſion of April 9th, and could not be revoked but by King, Lords and commons.

The Governor was reminded of his own oath, but he ſaid that was his affair and not the council's, that oath was read, ordered by an Act of William and Mary 8th, chap. 22. Sec. 4. and is as follows, "That he the ſaid Governor ſhall be ſworn in Council to the punctual and bona fide obſervances of all the clauſes in that Act," among which is the following, "That all places of truſt in the courts of law, and what relates to the treaſury of the Plantations, ſhall be in the hands of native born ſubjects of England, Ireland, or of the ſaid Plantations." Now, it is to be obſerved, that the council is a court of errors and appeal.

The Governor ſaid he did aſk advice or conſent, that the King's orders muſt be complied with.—He ordered the Provoſt Marſhall to introduce Mr. de Chanteloupe, he was introduced, and the Governor ordered the oaths to be immediately adminiſtered to him.——The Gentlemen of the council were bound, by their oaths, to ſupport the conſtitution, and being all Gentlemen of independent property, ſtopped the putting ſuch an unconſtitutional meaſure into Execution, by retiring.—One and all left council chamber, and the Governor and M. de Chanteloupe remained alone.

It is ſuppoſed they will be ſuſpended, and others named, to do this dirty buſineſs.

The names of the Gentlemen of the council are Judge Maxwell, Judge Wilkes, eldeſt brother of the Alderman, John Melvill, John de Ponthieu, and Major M'Lellan.

This affair is a common one to all the colonies. If this diſpenſing power is not put a ſtop to, what will become of us? Can we ſay we are ſure a ſingle hour?"

GRENADA.

By his Excellency William Leyborne Leyborne, Captain-General, and Governor in Chief, in and over his Majeſty's Iſland of Grenada, the Grenadines St. Vincent and Tobago, Chancellor, Ordinary, and Vice Admiral of the Same, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS Charles Nicholas de Chanteloupe, Eſquire, did preſent to me a Mandamus under his Majeſty's Sign Manual, appointing him one of the members of his Majeſty's council of the Iſlands of Grenada, and the Grenadines: And whereas, at a meeting of the members of his Majeſty's council for the ſaid Iſlands of Grenada, and the Grenadines, held in the council chamber in the Town, of St. George, on the third day of this inſtant December, I did direct the ſaid Mandamus to be ready, and in purſuance thereof, ordered the Provoſt Marſhal to call in the ſaid Charles Nicholas de Chanteloupe, (who was attending for that purpoſe) to be ſworn in a member for the ſaid council: And whereas the honourable Patrick Maxwell, John Melvill, John de Ponthieu, Robert M'Lellan, Iſrael Wilkes, Eſquires, being all the members of his Majeſty's council then preſent in the Iſland of Grenada, did object to, and refuſe to ſwear in the ſaid Charles Nicholas de Chanteloupe a member of his Majeſty's council, in diſobedience of his Majeſty's ſaid Mandamus, and wilfully abſented themſelves from the council, (notwithſtanding they were admoniſhed by me, that the conſequence of ſuch diſobedience would be their ſuſpenſion from being counſellors) for which ſaid diſobedience, refuſal and abſence, I have ſuſpended the ſaid P. M. J. M. J de P. R, M. and J W. Eſquires, and each and every of them, from ſitting in, and being of his Majeſty's council, and they, the ſaid P. M. &c. and each and every of them are, and is hereby, ſuſpended accordingly from being members of his Majeſty's ſaid council.

Given under my Hand this third day of Dec.

Signed WILLIAM L. LEYBORNE.

Extract of a Letter from Montego Bay.

"There is very bad news arrived from the coaſt of Cuba. Two Spaniſh guarda coſtas have taken all the veſſels on the coaſt belonging to this place and St. Ann's none of which made any reſiſtance againſt them, except captain Baird belonging to this place, who fought with them near two hours. The Spaniards delivered the wounded men a long boat they had taken which is arrived here."

SAVANNA, in Georgia, Jan. 1.

By a Veſſel from Jamaica we learn, that Admiral Rodney was returned from the Spaniſh Main, without having the Britiſh priſoners delivered to him by the Spaniards.—It was expected that the Admiral would ſoon be appointed Governor of that Iſland.

CHARLESTOWN, (South-Carolina,) December 31.

This day put in here in diſtreſs, a Spaniſh tranſport ſhip named the Diana, from the Havanna, for Cadiz, between three and four hundred tons burthen, having on board three companies of Infantry of the Royal Iriſh Regiment, in the Spaniſh ſervice, under the command of Don Hugo O'Reilly.

NEW-YORK, February 13.

The Ship York, Capt. Provooſt, arrived here laſt Friday, in 9 Weeks and two Days, from Portſmouth; having ſailed from thence in Company with his Majeſty's Ship the Portland of 60 Guns, for Antigua, but parted with her a few Days after they came out, in a Gale of Wind.

Capt. Provooſt informs us, That his Majeſty's Ships the Royal Oak, Terrible, Worceſter, and Lenox, were to ſail from Portſmouth for Spithead the Day after him, in order to join Admiral Pye, who lay there with 9 Ships of the Line.

Extract of a letter from Mr. Dunlop Adams, merchant, of Trenton, to his friend in New-York, dated February 2d.

"About 2 o'clock in the morning of laſt Thurſday I awoke, hearing the crackling noiſe of fire; I deſir'd my wife to ariſe, for that I thought the houſe in flames! I ran to the ſtore door in the hall, from whence the noiſe proceeded, and on opening it, the ſmoke and flame iſſued out in a torrent;—paſſing up the ſtaircaſe, it prevented my aſcending to the relief of the reſt of my family: I then made all the noiſe in my power to awake them, which ſucceeded, but the ſmoke and flames prevented their deſcending; providence inſpir'd them with preſence of mind and courage to retreat to the back window.——My ſecond daughter jump'd down with her younger ſiſter in her arms; who, with the reſt of the children, a young lad, and ſervant girl, all eſcaped unhurt.—Thanks be to God for opening my eyes at the inſtant he did! in a few minutes after, we muſt all have awoke in eternity! I can ſcarce muſter ſpirits to write to my brothers, but requeſt you will do it, and inform them that I ſav'd neither book, paper, nor any thing, except one bed and a few trifles. The inhabitants came to our aſſiſtance as quick as they could, with fire engines &c. but the flames ſpread ſo rapidly, they cou'd not be ſtopped, 'till the following houſes were deſtroyed, viz. Micajah How's Eſq; Mr. Cummins's, Mrs Mercelies's, Mr. Job Moor's and a ſtable belonging to William Morris, Eſq."

We learn, that a perſon who has for many years paſt been a maſter in ſeveral large manufactories for Linnen, Cotton and Callico printing, likewiſe cutting and ſtamping of the copper-plates for the ſame, intended ſome time laſt month to leave England for America, with ſix journeymen, and all materials for carrying on the ſaid buſineſs.

We hear, that on Tueſday laſt, at a very full meeting of Dr. Cooper's church and congregation, it was determined by a unanimous vote, that it was expedient to erect a new houſe of worſhip; a committee was choſen to make an eſtimate, procure plans, and obtain a ſubſcription for that purpoſe.—In one half day the money ſubſcribed amounted to 1900l. L. money, as we are informed.

On Wedneſday the Rev. Mr. Lemuel LeBaron was ordained paſtor in the ſecond church and congregation in Rocheſter, in the county of Plymouth.

ALBANY. Dec. 30.

On the night of monday the 23d inſt. a large bear, of uncommon ſhape, broke into the ſheep pen of Mr. Adolphus Wolrath, of Conojohary, and killed 13 ſheep.——The pen being built of logs, he found it impregnable below, but on climing up to the roof, which was covered with looſe boards, he made a breach and got down.—In the morning Mr. Wolrath was alarmed by an unuſual noiſe among the ſheep, and having diſcovered the cauſe, he called loudly for the aſſiſtance of his neighbours, who inſtantly aſſembled, armed with axes, ſithes, ſtubbing hoes, guns, &c.——The appearance of ſo formidable an army, thus equiped, enraged the ferocious brute to a degree of fury, eaſier to be conceived than expreſſed; ſeeing no way to eſcape, he ſprung up to the breach which he had made, and ſeizing one of the boards, with his teeth, hung ſuſpended by them; his terrific appearance damped the ardour of the oldeſt veteran in the army, until Mr. Wolrath's ſon, animated with the hope of acquiring immortal glory, intrepidly advanced, and with an axe cut off his under jaw; then the univerſal hoſt made a general diſcharge, and poiſing their well tried weapons high, they pierced the ugly brindled monſter to the heart.

Extract of a Letter from Benningtown Dec. 25.

"A very odd kind of a providence happened lately in our neighbourhood, viz. Mr. Zebulon Stanhope, a farmer, living about five miles N. E. by N of this townſhip; having trained up a couple of large bears to the plough, and other ſervices; clapped them before his ſled laſt week, with 20 ſchipples of wheat, for the New City.—The animals drew extremely well for four miles and an half; when the halter of the near bear giving way, the farmer ſet about repairing it; but whilſt he was thus employed, the inhuman brute ſeizing him by the right leg, tore it miſerably; and both bears halling at once, ran away with the ſled; ſo that with the utmoſt difficulty he got home in four hours on foot.

Meſſengers were diſpatched to look for the ſled and cargo; and two days being ſpent in fruitleſs ſearch, they were given up for loſt: But on the third, at noon, the noiſe of the carriage near the houſe was heard; and young Gad Stanhope jumped up to ſee who was coming; when,——Behold! to his great aſtoniſhment, it proved to be the two bears drawing the ſled into the barn; with no earthly thing in it, except four large bears and three cubs.—The lad, and two men, that happened to be then in the houſe, ran nimbly, and ſhutting the barn door, with my long gun ſhot them all through a crevice.

The wheat has ſince been diſcovered; but the farmer's leg is expected to ceaſe in a day or two.

The 9th inſtant at the Vineyard, one Butler and another young Man agreed to meet at Butler's Houſe, and go early next Morning to kill a Seal, which uſed to frequent a certain Rock near the Shore; but inſtead of meeting Butler, the other went away alone and placed himſelf in a proper ſituation to wait for the Seal;—when Butler found his Companion did not appear according to Agreement, he ſet out alſo in queſt of the Seal; and coming near the Place, obſerved ſomething unuſual on the Beach or Shore, and imagined the Seal had come on Shore, inſtead of getting on the Rock as uſual; ſo took Sight and fired, when, to his great Surpriſe, he found he had killed his friend and Companion. The young Man killed was about 19 Years of Age, his Name we can't learn.

WHEREAS the Communication between the capital Places of New-York and Boſton, is of the greateſt public Concern: The Subſcribers, living in Hartford, have projected a Plan, upon proper Encouragement, for eſtabliſhing a STAGE-COACH, for the Conveyance of Paſſengers through that beautiful Part of the Country of the Upper Poſt Road, to and from thoſe Places; and accordingly have actually built two neat Coaches, for Structure and Convenience equal (if not ſuperior) to the Providence and Portſmouth Stage Carriages, and purpoſe to ſet off from Hartford on the Firſt Monday of May next, the one for New-York, the other for Boſton, to drive four good able Horſes; change the Set at about half the Diſtance between thoſe Places; to arrive in Boſton Wedneſday Night; return out of Boſton Thurſday Noon, and to reach Hartford Saturday Night, ſo as to compleat the whole Diſtance from New York to Boſton in the Courſe of one Week: and for about the Price of the Hire of a ſingle Horſe. To prevent All Altercation and needleſs Delay, every Paſſenger is to enter his name at ſome place that will be appointed for the Purpoſe, and pay half his Paſſage a convenient Time before the Hour appointed for the Coach to ſet off from each Place reſpectively.

And the Subſcribers would inform any Perſon in New-York and Boſton, and if they are diſpoſed to unite with them in their Endeavour to ſerve the Public by furniſhing a Coach to make a Day's Journey out of their Towns upon the Road, they will readily co-operate with them in this Meaſure, and would be glad to receive from them the earlieſt Notice of ſuch Intention, which will render the Purchaſe of an additional Number of Horſes unneceſſary to us.

On the Injuſtice of thinking any Life pleaſing to the Omnipotent Being, that is not uſeful to Mankind.

An Eaſtern Tale.

IT pleaſed the mighty Sovereign Abbas Caraſcan, from whom the Kings of the earth derive honour and dominion, to ſet Mirza his ſervant, over the province of Tauris. In the hand of Mirza the balance of diſtribution was ſuſpended with impartiality ; and under his adminiſtration the weak were protected, the learned received honour, and the diligent became rich ; Mirza therefore, was beheld by every eye with complacency, and every tongue pronounced bleſſings upon his head. But it was obſerved, that he derived no joy from the benefits which he diffuſed ; he became penſive and melancholy ; he ſpent his leiſure in ſolitude ; in his palace he ſat motionleſs upon a ſofa ; and, when he went out, his walk was ſlow, and his eyes were fixed upon the ground : He applied to the buſineſs of the State with reluctance ; and reſolved to relinquiſh the toil of government, of which he could no longer enjoy the reward.

He therefore obtained permiſſion to approach the throne of his Sovereign ; and being aſked what was his requeſt, he made this reply : "May the Lord of the world forgive the ſlave whom he hath honoured, if Mirza preſume again to lay the bounty of Abbas at his feet. Thou haſt given me the dominion of a country, fruitful as the gardens of Damaſcus ; and a city, glorious above all others, except that only which reflects the ſplendour of thy preſence. But the longeſt life is a period ſcarce ſufficient to prepare for death : All other buſineſs is vain and trivial, as the toil of emmets in the path of the traveller under whoſe foot they periſh for ever ; and all enjoyment is unſubſtantial and evaneſcent, as the colours of the bow that appears in the interval of a ſtorm. Suffer me therefore, to prepare for the approach of eternity ; let me give up my ſoul to meditation ; let ſolitude and ſilence acquaint me with the myſteries of devotion ; let me forget the world, and by the world be forgotten, till the moment arrives in which the veil of eternity ſhall fall, and I ſhall be found at the bar of the Almighty." Mirza then bowed himſelf to the earth, and ſtood ſilent.

By the command of Abbas it is recorded that at theſe words he trembled upon that throne, at the footſtool of which the world pays homage : He looked round upon his Nobles ; but every countenance was pale, and every eye was upon the earth. No man opened his mouth ; and the King firſt broke ſilence, after it had continued near an hour :

"Mirza, terror and doubt are come upon me ; I am alarmed, as a man who ſuddenly perceives that he is near the brink of a precipice, and is urged forward by an irreſiſtible force ; but yet, I know not, whether my danger is a reality or a dream. I am, as thou art, a reptile of the earth ; my life is a moment, and eternity, in which days, years, and ages are nothing ; Eternity is before me, for which I alſo ſhould prepare ; But by whom then muſt the faithful be governed ? By thoſe only, who have no fear of judgment ? By thoſe only, whoſe life is brutal, becauſe, like brutes, they do not conſider that they ſhall die ? Or who, indeed, are the faithful ? Are the buſy multitudes that crowd the city in a ſtate of perdition ? And is the cell of the derviſe alone the gate of Paradiſe ? To all, the life of a derviſe is not poſſible : To all, therefore, it cannot be a duty. Depart to the houſe which has in this city been prepared for thy reſidence ; I will meditate on the reaſon of thy requeſt ; and may he, who illuminates the mind of the humble, enable me to determine with wiſdom."

Mirza departed ; and on the third day, having received no command, he again requeſted an audience, and it was granted. When he entered the Royal Preſence, his countenance appeared more chearful ; he drew a letter from his boſom, and, having kiſſed it, he preſented it with his right hand.

"My Lord, ſaid he, I have learned by this letter, which I received from Coſrou the man who now ſtands before thee, in what manner life may be beſt improved. I am enabled to look back with pleaſure, and forward with hope ; and I ſhall now rejoice ſtill to be the ſhadow of thy power at Tauris, and to keep thoſe honours which I ſo lately wiſhed to reſign." The King, who had liſtened to Mirza with a mixture of ſurpriſe and curioſity, immediately gave the letter to Coſrou, and commanded it ſhould be read. The eyes of the Court were at once fixed on the hoary ſage, whoſe countenance was ſuffuſed with an honeſt bluſh ; and it was not without ſome heſitation that he read theſe words :

"To Mirza, whom the wiſdom of Abbas, our mighty Lord, has honoured with dominion, be everlaſting health ! When I heard thy purpoſe to withdraw the bleſſings of thy government from the thouſands of Tauris, my heart was wounded with the arrow of affliction, and my eyes became dim with ſorrow. But who ſhall ſpeak before the King, when he is troubled ; and who ſhall boaſt of knowledge, when he is diſtreſſed by doubt ? To thee I will relate the events of my youth, which thou haſt renewed before me ; and thoſe truths which they taught me, may the Prophet multiply to thee.

Under the inſtruction of the phyſician Aluazar, I obtained an early knowledge of his art. To thoſe who were ſmitten with diſeaſe, I could adminiſter plants, which the ſun had impregnated with the ſpirit of health. But the ſcenes of pain, languor, and mortality, which were perpetually riſing before me, made me often tremble for myſelf. I ſaw the grave open at my feet : I determined, therefore, to contemplate only the regions beyond it, and to deſpiſe every acquiſition which I could not keep. I conceived an opinion, that as there was no merit but in voluntary poverty, and ſilent meditation, thoſe who deſired money were not proper objects of bounty ; and that by all, who were proper objects of bounty, money was deſpiſed. I, therefore, buried mine in the earth ; and renouncing ſociety, I wandered into a wild and ſequeſtered part of the country ; my dwelling was a cave by the ſide of a hill. I drank the running water from the ſpring, and eat ſuch fruits and herbs as I could find. To increaſe the auſterity of my life, I frequently watched all night, ſitting at the entrance of the cave with my face to the eaſt, reſigning myſelf to the ſecret influences of the Prophet, and expecting illuminations from above. One morning after my nocturnal vigil, juſt as I perceived the horizon glow at the approach of the ſun, the power of ſleep became irreſiſtible, and I ſunk under it. I imagined myſelf ſtill ſitting at the entrance of my cell ; that the dawn increaſed ; and that, as I looked earneſtly for the firſt beam of day, a dark ſpot ſeemed to intercept it. I perceived that it was in motion ; it increaſed in ſize as it drew near, and at length I diſcovered it to be an eagle. I ſtill kept my eye fixed ſtedfaſtly upon it, and ſaw it alight at a ſmall diſtance, where I now deſcried a fox whoſe two fore legs appeared to be broken. Before this fox the eagle laid part of a kid which it had brought in its talons, and then diſappeared. When I awaked, I laid my forehead upon the ground, and bleſſed the Prophet for the inſtruction of the morning. I reviewed my dream, and ſaid thus to myſelf ; Coſrou, thou haſt done well to renounce the tumult, the buſineſs and the vanities of life ; but thou haſt as yet done it only in part : Thou art ſtill every day buſied in the ſearch of food, thy mind is not wholly at reſt, neither is thy truſt in providence compleat. What art thou taught by this viſion ? If thou haſt ſeen an eagle commiſſioned by heaven to feed a fox that is lame, ſhall not the hand of Heaven alſo ſupply thee with food ; when that which prevents thee from procuring it for thyſelf is not neceſſity but devotion ? I was now ſo confident of a miraculous ſupply, that I neglected to walk out for my repaſt, which, after the firſt day, I expected with an impatience that left me little power of attending to any other object : This impatience, however, I laboured to ſuppreſs and perſiſted in my reſolution ; but my eyes at length began to fail me, and my knees ſmote each other ; I threw myſelf backward, and hoped my weakneſs would ſoon increaſe to inſenſibility. But I was ſuddenly rouzed by the voice of an inviſible being, who pronounced theſe words :

"Coſrou, I am the angel who by the command of the Almighty have regiſtered the thoughts of thy heart, which I am now commiſſioned to reprove. While thou waſt attempting to become wiſe above that which is revealed, thy virtue has perverted the inſtruction that was vouchſafed thee. Art thou diſabled as the fox ? Haſt thou not rather the powers of the eagle ? Ariſe, let the eagle be the object of thy emulation. To pain and ſickneſs be thou again the meſſenger of eaſe and health. Virtue is not reſt, but action. If thou doſt good to man, as an evidence of thy love to God, thy virtue will be exalted from moral to divine ; and that happineſs which is the pledge of Paradiſe, will be thy reward upon earth."

"At theſe words I was no leſs aſtoniſhed than if a mountain had been overturned at my feet. I humbled myſelf in the duſt ; I returned to the city, I dug up my treaſure ; I was liberal, yet I became rich. My ſkill in reſtoring health to the body, gave me frequent opportunities of curing the diſeaſes of the ſoul. I put on the ſacred veſtments ; I grew eminent beyond my merit : and it was the pleaſure of the King that I ſhould ſtand before him. Now, therefore, be not offended, I boaſt of no knowledge that I have not received ; As the ſands of the deſert drink up the drops of rain, or the dew of the morning ; ſo do I alſo, who am but duſt, imbibe the inſtructions of the Prophet. Believe then that it is he who tells thee, all knowledge is prophane, which terminates in thyſelf ; and, by a life waſted in ſpeculation, little even of this can be gained. When the gates of Paradiſe are thrown open before thee, thy mind ſhall be irradiated in a moment ; here thou canſt little more than pile error upon error ; there thou ſhalt build truth upon truth. Wait, therefore, for the glorious viſion ; and in the mean time emulate the eagle. Much is in thy power ; and, therefore, much is expected of thee. Though the Almighty only can give virtue ; yet, as a Prince thou mayeſt ſtimulate thoſe to beneficence, who act from no higher motive than principle, but mayeſt inforce the practice. Th relief of the poor is equal, whether they receiv with reverence, thou ſhalt be accepted above

Farewel. May the ſmile of him, who reſide in the heaven of heavens, be upon thee ! And againſt thy name, in the volume of his will, may happineſs be written !"

The King whoſe doubts like thoſe of Mirza were now removed, looked up with a ſmile tha communicated the joy of his mind. He di miſſed the Prince to his government ; and com manded theſe events to be recorded, to the end that poſterity may know, "That no life i

NOVEMBER 23.

The great cauſe between Sir James Lowther and the Duke of Portland is certainly finally determined by the trial on Wedneſday laſt. The title of the Duke to Inglewood Foreſt is now eſtabliſhed by the Nullum Tempus act paſſed laſt ſeſſions, which declares an undiſturbed poſſeſſion of 60 years a ſufficient title, and now precludes government from granting a freſh leaſe. The eſtate has been in the Portland family near 64 years.

Extract of a Letter from Eye, in Suffolk, dated October 31, to a Merchant in London.

"We have had this week a very odd affair happened, within Four miles of this Town. Farmer W. whom you know is very wealthy; and a great engroſſer of ſmall farms to the great hurt of many people about him; having three Years corn by him, and the poor being in great want, the parſon of the pariſh, a very good ſort of man, deſired him divers times to ſupply the poor with it, at a moderate price, but in vain. Laſt Sunday the Farmer being at church (a thing not common with him) the Parſon took his text from Prov xi. ver. 26.—"He that withholdeth corn the people ſhall curſe him: But bleſſing ſhall be upon the head of him that ſelleth it." The gentleman handled his diſcourſe ſo well (being an excellent preacher) that it wrought ſo powerfully upon the Farmer, that next day he employed workmen to threſh out his wheat; but to his great ſurpriſe, on opening the firſt ſtack, he found a whole Year's crop deſtroyed by vermin! and they had begun upon the next year: this ſo affected him, that he retired to his bed-chamber and hanged himſelf; but was diſcovered by his wife before he was dead, cut down, and he is in a fair way of recovery. This has ſo much alarmed the reſt of the Farmers, that they are determined to threſh out their corn, by which we hope ſoon to be ſupplied with it at a reaſonable price. But it is to the Parſon's eloquence we are indebted for it, and not to the goodneſs of the Farmers, many of whom are a diſgrace to human nature."

LONDON,

Nov. 16. By a gentleman juſt arrived from Dublin, we are informed, that Dr. Lucas, the late celebrated Iriſh Patriot, died ſo poor, that, like a ſecond Ariſtides, his family muſt be taken care of at the public expence.—A rare inſtance of patriotiſm, when it is well known he has often refuſed 1000l. a year penſion for himſelf, and a majority for his eldeſt ſon, who has been living ever ſince the laſt peace on Lieutenant's half pay.

We hear that Mr. Cunningham is modelling a deſign for a monument to the memory of the late late Dr. Lucas: the deſign of which is the ſtatue of Liberty letting fall her ſtaff, and exhibiting a baſſarelievo on a ſhield, repreſenting the Doctor defending Hibernia from oppreſſion, with other emblems, &c. the expence of which will not exceed 300l.

The Gardner at Wauſworth who lately engaged to drink a butt of beer in fourteen days, has actually effected it in eight.—He performed the ſame about eight years ago.

A gentleman at Wincheſter meeting a friend, told him Vowel was condemned to be hanged. Well, ſays the other, I am glad to find it is neither you or I.

In an inventory of the effects of a Gentleman, who lately died in the county of Donnegal, in Ireland, which has been tranſmitted, by an eminent Attorney at that place, to the heir at law of the deceaſed in this city, is the following curious article:—Item. To an empty candle cheſt, full of old wigs, worth nothing at all, 0l. 5s. 0d.

ANECDOTE.

THE late Captain William Montagu was a commander in the Navy, and brother to the Earl of S—h. He was remarkable for his humour, and went by the name of Mad Montagu. Being at Portſmouth, where he commanded one of the King's ſhips, and where a Dutch man of war then lay; an accident happened to the latter by loſing her boat and all her people at Spithead in bad weather. Word thereof being brought to Montagu, and that ſeveral of the dead bodies were driven aſhore on the beach, he ſent away his Cockſwain and ſeveral of his people, to put the dead men's hands into their pockets. At dinner this misfortune was the ſubject, the Dutch Captain being in company, when Capt. Montagu obſerved, that "they were drowned, Dutchman like, with their hands in their pockets." It nettled Mynheer to ſuch a degree that he threatened to call him to an account. Montagu laughing at his taking offence ſwore "he would be d——d if it was not ſo," and offered to be fifty guineas to five, which being accepted by Mynheer, all the company, by agreement, after dinner, poſted away to the ſpot, where, finding it to be as Montagu had ſaid, the Dutchman was ſo aſhamed, that he went on board his ſhip, and did not come on ſhore again till they had convinced him it was only a piece of Montagu's fun.

PHILADELPHIA, January, 27.

Extract of a Letter to a Gentleman in Burlington, from a Correſpondent in London.

"You will ſoon have a ſtrong proof of the attention of Government to thoſe who have ſupported the power of Parliament in America, in the appointment of Z. H—d, Eſq; to the Government of Maryland, it being now no ſecret that that province will fall into the hands of the Crown.—It is ſaid that Mr. H—s is to ſucceed him in his Office in Penſylvania."

NEW-YORK, February, 20.

From Newburgh, in Ulſter county, we learn, that a few Days ſince, at the Raiſing of a building there, ſome Words happened between one Samuel Moor, and David Horton, which ſoon brought on Blows, when the former was beat to ſuch a Degree that he died in three Days after. Horton, was immediately committed to Goal.

Saturday laſt the Brig Liberty, Capt. Prince, arrived here from Cayanne, in ſeven Weeks. On his Paſſage, touched at the Windward Iſlands, where he was informed, that on the 27th of December laſt a moſt terrible Fire broke out in the Iſland, of Granada, which burnt down no leſs than 600 Houſes; and that not more then 40 were left ſtanding in the whole Town of Grenada.

BOSTON, February 20.

We hear that the Members of Dr. COOPER's Congregation have already ſubſcribed a Sum which is thougt Sufficient for the Purpoſe of Errecting a large and elegant Church; and that among the generous Subſcribers for this Purpoſe, the Honorable JOHN HANCOCK, Eſq; diſtinguiſhed on many Occaſions by his Benevolence and publick Spirit, has given One Thouſand Pounds, Lawful Money.

We are informed, that at the Requeſt of a Committee appointed by this Town, an ORATION is to be publickly delivered next Month by JOSEPH WARREN, Eſq; on the dangerous Tendency of Standing Armies to the Rights of Civil Society; and in Commemoration of the horrid Maſſacre perpetrated on the 5th of March 1770.

HARTFORD, February 25.

At the Superior Court held at Litchfield the 11th inſtant, came on the trial of the notorious John Brown, for the third offence of burglary, when after a lengthy hearing both on the part of the crown and priſoner, the caſe was committed to the jury, who, after a conſultation of three days, return'd with a verdict GUILTY. Whereupon ſentence of death was pronounced upon him, which is to be executed the firſt of July next.

For the CONNECTICUT COURANT.

Mr. Watſon,

THE extortion, oppreſſion, and maſſacre in North-Carolina, under colour of law, and countenance of wicked men in authority, together with the late attempt upon our fellow ſubjects at Hinſdale, &c. brought to my mind Brady and Tates verſion, of the eighty ſecond pſalm; which your inſerting in your next paper, will, I make no doubt, be acceptable to all lovers of truth, juſtice, religion, liberty, and the rights and privileges of Engliſhmen.

Amicus Juſtitiæ.

Connecticut, Feb. 18, 1772.

Pſalm LXXXII.

1. GOD in his great aſſembly ſtands, where his impartial Eye
In ſtate ſurveys the earthly Gods, and does their judgments try.
2. How dare ye then unjuſtly judge, or be to Sinners kind?
Defend the Orphans and the Poor;
let ſuch your Juſtice find.
4. Protect the humble helpleſs Man,
reduc'd to deep Diſtreſs,
And let not him become a Prey
to ſuch as would oppreſs.
5. They neither know, nor will they but blindly rove and ſtray: [learn,
Juſtice and Truth, the World's Sup-thru' all the land decay. [ports,
6. Well then might God in anger ſay,
"I've call'd you by my Name:
"I've ſaid y'are God's, & all ally'd
"to the moſt High in Fame
7. "But ne'ertheleſs your unjuſt Deeds
"to ſtrict account I'll call:
"You all ſhall die like common Men,
"like other Tyrants fall."
8. Ariſe, & thy juſt Judgments, Lord, throughout the Earth diſplay;
And all the Nations of the World
ſhall own thy righteous Sway.

Would obſerve farther, that "thus ſaith the Lord God—the prince ſhall not take of the people's inheritance by oppreſſion, to thruſt them out of their poſſeſſion." *

"They are to govern (ſays a learned writer of an eſtabliſhed reputation) by promulgated, eſtabliſhed laws, not to be varied in particular caſes, but to have rule for rich and poor, for the favourite at court, and the countryman at plough. †

To which I would add, that no man, however dignified by office, has any right to do wrong. And that the greater and more numerous his obligations are, the more agravated or numerous his tranſgreſſions wil be.

As the faithleſs & cruel guardian, that inhumanly butchers his innocent ward, the defenceleſs infant, for the ſake of ſeizing his eſtate, is more guilty than a common robber & murderer. "The very attempting an inſtance of injuſtice, or aſſiſting others in ſuch an attempt, muſt be wrong and evil." "If there be any thing which P can truly and properly call his, then if T takes or uſes it, without the conſent of P, he declares it to be his (for if it was his he could do no more) when it is not his, and ſo acts a lye: in which conſiſts the idea and formal ratio of moral evil." ‡

If eighty or ninety years quiet and peaceable poſſeſſion, under a grant made by one of his Majeſty's general aſſemblies, together with a lawful purchaſe, made of the Indians, the prime occupants, will not create a good property, what will?

POETS CORNER.

Hull ALE, A Poem.

By W. TAYLOR.

LONG time did a ſilly old proverb prevail.
That meat, drink & cloth, were all found in good ale,
Till a lover of truth went on purpoſe to Hull,
And to try an experiment, drank his ſkin full;
He began to ſee viſions, his head it turn'd round,
Till off from his keffel he fell on the ground,
There in trance profound our philoſopher mellow,
Lay all night in the ſnow conſulting his pillow;
Oracular vapours give prophecy birth,
As Plutark reports, ſpringing out of the earth.
Whether this was the cauſe or however inſpir'd,
Our ſage gave a ſentence will e'er be admir'd,
'Twas this," I pronounce that good ale is good meat,
For I find, I have no inclination to eat;
That good ale is good drink, is a lye. I'll be ſworn;
For I ne'er was ſo dry ſince the hour I was born.
The cloth cries a punſter who chanc'd to come by
Muſt be a good drab, if it kept you ſo Dry.

WHEREAS the Communication between the capital Places of New York and Boſton is of the greateſt public Concern: The Subſcribers, living in Hartford, have projected a Plan, upon proper Encouragement, for eſtabliſhing a STAGE COACH, for the Conveyance of Paſſengers through that beautiful Part of the Country of the Upper Poſt Road, to and from thoſe Places; and accordingly have actually built two neat Coaches, for Structure and Convenience equal (if not ſuperior) to the Providence and Portſmouth Stage Carriages, and purpoſe to ſet off from Hartford on the Firſt Monday of May next, the one for New-York, the other for Boſton, to drive four good able Horſes; change the Set at about half the Diſtance between thoſe Places; to arrive in Boſton Wedneſday Night; return out of Boſton Thurſday Noon, and to reach Hartford Saturday Night, ſo as to compleat the whole Diſtance from New York to Boſton in the Courſe of one Week and for about the Price of the Hire of a ſingle Horſe. To prevent All Alteration and needleſs Delay, every Paſſenger is to enter his name at ſome place that will be appointed for the Purpoſe, and pay half his Paſſage a convenient Time before the Hour appointed for the Coach to ſet off from each Place reſpectively.

And the Subſcribers would inform any Perſon in New York and Boſton, and if they are diſpoſed to unite with them in their Endeavour to ſerve the Public by furniſhing a Coach to make a Day's Journey out of their Towns up on the Road, they will readily co operate with them in this Meaſure, and would be glad to receive from them the earlieſt Notice of ſuch Intention, which will render the Purchaſe of an additional Number of Horſes unneceſſary to us.

JONATHAN BROWN,
NICHOLAS BROWN.

Boſton, January 1, 1772.

A Gentleman in England, of diſtinguiſhed character for many munificent deeds to the Public, having ordered his Correſpondent here to ſubſcribe Ten Guineas towards printing a ſecond Volume of Collection of Papers relative to the Hiſtory of Maſſachuſetts Bay, the Work will begin to be printed as ſoon as other Subſcribers ſufficient to defray the Expence ſhall appear. The Volume will be about the ſame ſize and delivered to ſubſcribers at the ſame price of the former. None will be printed for Sale, the Publiſher having principally in view the Preſervation of theſe Papers for the Benefit of Poſterity.

SUBSCRIPTIONS to encourage the Printing of this Collection will be received by E. Watſon, Printer in Hartford.—The Volume will contain about 600 Pages and no money is expected till the Books are delivered.—

☞ As moſt of theſe Papers will, probably, be irrecoverably loſt in a few Years, unleſs preſerved by Printing, it is hoped that a ſufficient Number of Subſcribers will ſoon appear, from a regard to the Public as well as for the ſake of their particular Entertainment.

A few of the firſt Volume of Collection of Papers, may be had at the Heart and Crown in Boſton.

ALL perſons indebted to the ſubſcriber for the Connecticut Courant, are deſired to leave their reſpective ballances at the ſeveral places where their papers have been left, as ſoon as may be, up to No 378, at which time he will diſcontinue riding as a carrier of ſaid paper, as he finds by long experience, that the number of ſubſcribers for ſaid paper, is by far too ſmall to defray the expence.

JOHN GILL.

ALL perſons that have any demands on the eſtate of Capt. Juſtus Taylor of Middletown deceas'd, are deſired to ſend them in ſpeedily for adjuſtment. And all indebted to ſaid eſtate, are deſired to make ſpeedy payment to avoid trouble, to BENJAMIN HENSHAW, Adminiſtrator.

N. B. THE CONNECTICUT COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt and moſt important Advices, both Foreign and Domeſtic.

Ezekiel Williams Esq

To the PUBLIC.

ABSTRACTED from our late political Party conſiderations, it has for a long time paſt been problematical whether Tea drinking ought to be encouraged among us. Some ſay, it occaſions a very unneceſſary expence of time; the anſwer is, that Tea or no Tea the ſame would be ſpent in ſome other amuſement and it may not be more innocent. Others except to the uſe of it as one of our meals becauſe it is expenſive. In anſwer to this objection, many who have made the computation ſay it's leſs expenſive in a large family of children and ſervants than even bread and milk. At the late low price of Tea, if the expence exceeds, it is not ſo much as many imagine. But the great queſtion is, whether it is not a noxious plant to the human frame, and this deſerves conſideration now it is ſo univerſally uſed. In the Countries where it grows it has been in uſe for many Centuries, and it is eſteemed very ſalutiferous. I have drank it moderately all my life and ſo have hundreds of my acquaintance without experiencing any ill effects, and I know it to have been frequently charged with being the cauſe of nervous diſorders without any reaſon. It is however moſt certainly an aſtringent, and when the infuſion is too great may have an ill effect upon weak nerves. It is the practice, in the country eſpecially, to drink the Bohea Tea very ſtrong. This proceeds from a fooliſh affectation of being thought generous, or not parſimonious. When the leaf has been adulterated I am of opinion that Tea moderately uſed tends to preſerve health. It is a moſt happy ſuccedaneum or ſubſtitute in the place of Toddy to which many people of both ſexes have too long been habituated. You will ſeldom ſee a thirſt for RUM and a thirſt for TEA in the ſame Perſon.

The adulteration is generally by drying or ſtraining the old "leaves or what is called grounds" in liquor in which Lignum Vitae or other dry Wood has been infuſed, and then drying the Leaves. The Jews buy up vaſt quantities of theſe grounds all over Europe and ſend them to Holland from whence they are re-exported. You may generally diſcover the adulteration by the old, though not properly muſty taſte, and the high colour of the Tea at the firſt extraction, which is loſt before the ſecond draught or run. What is imported from England is generally pure, in the ſame package as it comes from China. Of the ſeveral ſpecies of Tea, which are ſaid to be all in the ſame plant differently cured, none exceeds the Bohea and it is only the cheapneſs of it makes it leſs eſteemed. I have drank Congo, which is one ſort of bohea, of a fine agreeable bitter, but this is not often to be met with. Moſt of the Congo is faint and inſiped. The Souchong, which ſeems to be a Mongrel of Green and Bohea, is ſometimes very good. Sometimes you meet with fine Green Tea without the diſtinguiſhing flavour of the Hyſon and in my judgment every way preferable. Upon the whole it is my opinion that for a ſingle Perſon whoſe life has been loſt by Tea, thouſands have been ſlain by RUM.

MEDICUS.

Meſſieurs PRINTERS.

IN this degenerate and luxurious age many are the vices which loudly call for the cenſure of the moraliſt; but of all the numerous train, none is attended with more fatal conſequences than that of gaming. It is deſtructive in every ſtage and condition of life; it affects not only the individual, but the community: it ruins as well the health as the fortune of it's followers, and is a worm that eats out the peace and happineſs of families. In whatever light we view it, its baleful influence equally appears, whether in unthinking youth, or in cautious old age. Let us firſt take a view of the unhappy youth, unwarily drawn into the ſnare of the ſharpers, ſee him urged on by the unbridled heat which is peculiar to that age, perhaps fired with wine, plunging into a ſtate that may forever load him with infamy, ſtripped of the ſubſtance which an indulgent father had granted him, and engaging in a debt without a proſpect of diſcharging it; oh! miſerable young man, urged on by the importunities of the creditor, perhaps to rob; at beſt, doomed to a loathſome priſon. Though thy misfortunes have been cauſed by thine own folly, my heart bleeds for thee. Let us next obſerve the man, whom age ſhould have taught wiſdom, and experience to have avoided the fatal gulph, obſerve him at firſt, perhaps led by curioſity, or more likely, by avarice, that ruling paſſion of age, with what caution he engages, with what exactneſs he calculates each chance of the dice, till, irritated by loſſes, he forgets his determined prudence, and ruſhes with all the impetuoſity of youth, upon that dangerous rock from which few paſſengers eſcape unhurt; ſee him in the madneſs of paſſion, in a ſingle moment, venturing upon the caprice of fortune, what whole years of anxiety had been ſcraping together. He inſtantly, ſees his folly, curſes his raſhneſs, is diſquieted in his very ſoul; and every moment of reflection is followed by hours of miſery. His tender wife preſents herſelf to his view in all the miſery of diſtreſs; ſhe, whoſe affectionate behaviour had long endeared her to him, who with the gentle hand of love had always ſmoothed his wrinkled brow of ſorrow; her, whoſe fortune had entituled her to affluence now beholds reduced to want and beggary; and by him who ſhould have aſſiſted and ſupported her. His children too, thoſe dear pledges of their love, whoſe tender years had been ſpent in eaſe and plenty, who had been long flattered with the proſpect of independency are now forc'd to depend on the rough world for a bare maintenance. Now if he ever felt the pleaſures of aſſiſting the indigent, and relieving the diſtreſſed, what would he give if all that he has thus fooliſhly thrown away on the moſt worthleſs of mankind, had been thus applied? He muſt with the deepeſt remorſe and contrition, acknowledge to the great author and giver of all things, that for his abuſe of his gifts, he is moſt juſtly deprived of them. Neither in this wreck of fortune, if his peace of mind is not deſtroyed, does his health eſcape unimpaired? thoſe hours which by nature were alotted for the eaſe and refreſhment of the body are ſpent in tedious watchings, in eagerneſs of expectation, or vexation of diſappointment and loſſes, till, worn out with continual fatigues, he ſinks down a prey to infamy and diſeaſe. From the neceſſary conſequence of the community being injured where the individual ſuffers, it will be needleſs to enlarge upon this peſt of ſociety, farther than to warn my countrymen againſt the danger attending this growing vice which ſeems to have affected all orders of men. Rouſe then, my countrymen, and let ſome generous ſpirit give the fatal ſtroke to this vice, by daring to puniſh thoſe who think they may offend with impunity, and ſhew them that the laws can bind, as well their makers as the vulgar. Then ſhall this monſter ſhrink back to it's wonted night and darkneſs, which now dares venture forth in open day.

LONDON, October 15.

ON Wedneſday laſt, a beggar picking up dead wood in the Grove in Hyde Park, ſaw a gentleman with a ſword by his ſide walking in a penſive manner, and thinking he came to fight a duel, hid himſelf behind a buſh; after the gentleman came near the place where the beggar lay, and taking a paper out of his pocket, read it, and then tore it in pieces; he then pulled out a piſtol, looked at the priming, and beat the flint with a key; after throwing his hat on the ground, he clapt the piſtol to his head, but it only flaſh'd in the pan.—The beggar ran up to the gentleman, laid hold of his piſtol, and ſaid, "For ſhame, Sir, have more courage; I have lived more than twenty years in pain & miſery, but leave God to put an end to them." The Gentleman was ſo ſtruck with this rebuke, that he burſt into tears, and giving a purſe extracted a promiſe from the beggar never to mention it. The gentleman then went off towards Kenſington, and the beggar to Groſvenorſquare gate, and there, notwithſtanding the promiſe told the ſtory.—But it muſt be obſerved, the beggar was a woman.

October 26. The following anecdote of the late Duke of Bedford may, it is ſaid, be depended upon as a fact.—When his Grace negociated the laſt peace at Paris, he ſigned the preliminaries with the French Miniſter Choiſeul, and ſtipulated no farther for the poſſeſſions of the Eaſt India Company than he was adviſed to ſtipulate by the Court of Directors. A gentleman (a Dutch Jew of great abilities and character) hearing this, wrote a letter to the Duke of Bedford, informing him that the Engliſh Eaſt India Company had materially neglected their own intereſt, as their cheif conqueſts were made ſubſequent to the period at which they had fixed their claim of ſovereignty; and if theſe latter conqueſts were to be reſtored, an immenſe annual revenue would neceſſarily be taken from England. The Duke, ſtruck with the force of the fact, yet embarraſſed how to act as preliminaries, were really ſigned, repaired to Choiſeul at Verſailles, and addreſſed him thus.—"My Lord, I have committed a great miſtake in ſigning the preliminaries as the affair of the India poſſeſſions muſt be carried down to the laſt conqueſt in Aſia." To this Choiſeul replied, "Your Grace aſtoniſhes me; I thought I had been treating with the Miniſter of a great nation, and not with a ſtudent in politics who does not conſider the validity of written engagements." "Your reproach, my Lord, is juſt (returned the Duke); but I will not add treachery to negligence, nor betray my country deliberately, becauſe I overlooked her intereſt unaccountably in a ſingle circumſtance; therefore, unleſs your Lordſhip agrees to cede the latter conqueſts in India, I ſhall return home in twelve hours, and ſubmit the fate of my head to the diſcretion of an Engliſh Parliament." Choiſeul, ſtaggered at the Duke's intrepidity, complied; and this country now enjoys above half a million annually, through the firmneſs of a man, whom it is even patriotiſm at preſent to calumniate, but whoſe virtues have never yet received juſtice from the community. On the termination of the affair, to his ſatisfaction, he gave his informant, the Dutch gentleman, the warmeſt recommendations to England, who accordingly, came over, and receives at this moment a penſion of 500l. a year from the Eaſt India Company, as a reward for his ſervices.

L O N D O N December 20.

We are informed that the Engliſh officers and ſailors who conducted the Ruſſian tranſports from Reval in Ruſſia to the Mediterranean, were promiſed a proportioned ſhare of the Captures; but in the diſtribution of the prize money of twenty veſſels taken from the French laden with proviſions for the Turks, the officers received 100l. each, but the common men not a ſingle farthing.

By a Gentleman, a native of Great Britain, lately an officer in the Ruſſian ſervice in the Mediterranean, we are informed that the foreign officers and ſailors of all nations, who have entered into the Ruſſian ſervice, are heartily ſick and tired of the ſame, the Ruſſians being very arbitrary and tyrannical, as well as conceited and ignorant. It was thought this was the principal reaſon why the gallant Admiral Elphinſton, and other officers, quitted that ſervice.

The following we are told of as an authentic Narrative: An Algerine Chebeck of 30 Guns, being taken by the Spaniards, the Captain thereof wrote to the Dey, informing him that he was in no condition to have reſiſted, having received much damage in a ſcuffle with a French frigate with whom he maintained an obſtinate diſpute near four hours. The Dey immediately ordered an embargo on all the French ſhips in the port of Algiers, ſeverely reprimanded the French Conſul, and diſpatched a veſſel to Marſeilles to demand ſatisfaction, for the inſult he received.

The Dutch ſeem to be under ſome apprehenſions, as the States have ordered a general ſurvey of the Barrier Towns.

A Gentleman offered yeſterday at a coffee houſe at the Weſt End of the Town, twenty guineas for one hundred, to be paid on Lady day next, if war was not declared between France and Holland before that time.

We hear by the moſt undoubted intelligence, that all hopes of a peace in the Eaſt of Europe are vaniſhed. The ignorance and haughtineſs of the Ottomans prevent it. They know not their own ſituation; and they will not acquieſce in equitable terms. The intrigues of France carry every thing in the Divan; and Auſtria is the dupe of the weak Politics of Louis the Fifteenth.

They write from Paris of the 4th inſt. that two very eminent perſons in that city had lately been committed to the baſtile for being concerned in a new publication, entitled "A ſurvey of the French finances, or Parliamentary ſupplement."

The breach with Spain ſeems to widen daily, notwithſtanding the pacific meaſures of the Prince de Maſſerano and the Britiſh Miniſtry.

Nov 23. Before the laſt war we imported from our colonies about 70,000 hogſheads of ſugar annually, which, from our acquiſitions upon the peace, is increaſed to 130 000 notwithſtanding ſugar is dear, owing to the luxury of the age, and the vile ſpirit of engroſſing. Mr. Naſh, it is ſaid in this article alone, turns near a million & a quarter every year, and can raiſe the price of that commodity at his pleaſure.

We are aſſured that there was lately a ſharp altercation between the Premier and Lord Sandwich, reſpecting our preſent diſgraceful ſubmiſſion to the injurious treatment of Spain; when the Firſt Lord of the Admiralty nobly declared, that ſhould the next advices from Admiral Rodney not be in every reſpect ſatisfactory, and war was not inſtantly declared he would certainly reſign. He ſaid he gloried in being in the ſervice of his King and Country, but that he would not remain at the head of the Admiralty of England, and ſee the Britiſh Flag inſulted with impunity by Spain.

A letter from Senegal mentions, that a crew of pirates in an armed ſchooner, who had committed divers robberies on the coaſt, finding themſelves purſued by an Engliſh man of war, and that it was impoſſible to eſcape her, blew themſelves up, by ſetting fire to the powder room, and every perſon on board periſhed.

It is reported that Mr. Eyre has received a free pardon, on condition of his diſtributing 2000l. among the different charities in this city.

It is ſaid that three fifths of the ſeamen in the merchants ſervice are Scotchmen.

Character of our late Patriot.

DOCTOR Charles Lucas was born in Dublin, about the begining of the preſent century, and having received a liberal education, was bread an apothecary. He was a gentleman of unblemiſhed honour, and endued with every virtue that could adorn a public ſtation. As a phyſician, he was eminent, humane and charitable; and as a Senator, unbiaſſed in judgment, invariable in conduct, of incorruptible integrity.——In the year 1749 he was voted an enemy to his country, by a venal majority of the moſt, abandoned——that ever gave laws to this kingdom (except the preſent) and, like Chriolanus, became an exile, for having juſtly merited the thanks and approbation of his fellow ſubjects. Several years elapſed, during which he improved his medical knowledge, and became eminent in that profeſſion. In the year 1761 he returned to his native country in conſequence of a Noli Proſequi, obtained from his preſent Majeſty, and a vacancy happening at the ſame time for the city of Dublin, by the diſſolution of parliament on the demiſe of the late King—he was elected a member for this city, by the grateful ſuffrages of a loyal and free people, who were acquainted with his ſufferings, and had the moſt unreſerved confidence in his patriotic virtues. He then entered on the theatre of public life, and has ever ſince continued to diſcharge his duty to his conſtituents, with a firmneſs not to be parallelled; and with an intrepidity, not to be intimidated. He remained unmoved amidſt every change of government, and every revolution of police, and perſiſted to the laſt moment of his life in an avow'd deteſtation of tyranny and injuſtice, and a love to his country, which no threats could diminiſh, nor bribes could purchaſe. In the midſt of venality and corruption, unplaced, unbribed, and unpenſioned, he ſtemmed the torrent of abuſe, the oppoſition of party, and the frowns of power. He was the palladium of conſtitutional liberty, in this kingdom, and one of thoſe few friends to the public, who have kept the promiſes made to their conſtituents, through all temptations of advancement and every ſiniſter artifice of miniſterial craft, or vice-royal influence.

M I L I N, Oct. 22.

On the 16th inſtant, the day after the marriage of the Archduke Ferdinand with the Princeſs Maria Beatrice d'Eſt was celebrated here, 200 young women were married, and each of them received a purſe of 50 crowns, by order of the Empreſs-Queen. The public diverſions upon this occaſion continued for ſeveral days. A ſcaffold fell down one day, with about 50 perſons upon it, ſeveral of whom were hurt, but only one girl loſt her life.

Warſaw, Oct. 19. According to the letter which the Field Marſhal Count de Romanzow lately wrote to Mr. Saldron, the Ruſſian Ambaſſador at this Court, a certain Prince of Walantember, when Lieut. Col. Fabricius defeated, at Rymnick, near Olta, a body of 3000 Turks. This Prince commanded the corps in perſon, of which 600 men were killed on the ſpot, and 40, among whom were two Agas, were made priſoners. The Ruſſians two ſtaffs, two ſtandards, the Prince's turban, with the enſigns of his dignity, his equipages, and all the baggage of the principle officers and Baiards of Walachia; they alſo burnt a large magazine which the Turks had at Rymnick. This action coſt the Ruſſians only 23 killed and 66 wounded.

Vencie Oct. 19. Five ſaiques, laden with proviſins for Conſtantinople, have been taken by two large Ruſſian men of war off the Iſland of Cyprus.

Warſaw, Oct. 30. There is advice that the Plague is broke out again at Prodolia, extends even beyond the Frontier. The Ruſſian Garriſon of Ibrahilow, and alſo that of Iſmael, are ſaid to be infected with the Contagion. This circumſtance may probably forward the negotiation of peace between Ruſſia and the Porte.

G E R M A N Y.

Vienna, Oct. 30. We hear from Prague, that the Jews, who farmed the Tobacco there, have been all arreſted at the ſame moment, and a ſeal put on their papers and Magazines. It is ſaid they were clandeſtinely ſending corn out of the kingdom: Their accomplices in this city are in great conſternation, as a guard is kept over them, till ſome further diſcoveries can be made.

Hamburgh, Nov. 8. The epidemical diſtemper among the horned cattle has entirely ceaſed in our environs; but we learn from the county of Hoya, that it continues to make exceſſive ravage there.

LONDON, November 1.

If a great perſonage had ever read the hiſtory of Tarquin the Proud, it cannot be doubted that he would long ago have given orders for tying up the profligate Duke of Cumberland.

What a pity (ſays a correſpondent) it is, that the Duke of Cumberland, who has expoſed his num ſcull to ridicule at ſo many different places this ſummer, was not made a mecanic inſtead of his elder brother, and taught ſome uſeful trade ſuch as button making or turnery. Nothing but diſgrace can be expected from him in the naval profeſſion, and it would not be ſurpriſing if this gallant commander, who behaved ſo heroically at St. Alban's, ſhould ſhare the fate of Admiral Byng, upon the breaking out of ſome future war; or at leaſt be broke for cowardice and deſertion.

It is not many years ſince his Royal Highneſs was counted the moſt hopeful and ingenius of the royal brethren. If it be true that "a fooliſh ſon is the reproach of his mother," Good God! what diſgraces have fallen to the lot of her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Dowager.

There cannot be a more ridiculous and degrading contraſt, than between the preſent and a late glorious Duke of Cumberland, unleſs it be that between the preſent Duke's brother and a late King.

We hear that the Earl of Bute intends ſoon to ſet out for France, by the advice of his phyſicians.

A REMARKABLE ANECDOTE.

A Noble Lord in the county of , lately falling deſperately in love with one of his tenant's daughters, he took every opportunity of accompliſhing his determined purpoſe of ruining her; but, "ſo coy a dame was ſhe to him," not all his vows of never-ceaſing love, not all the vaſt profuſion of toys & preſents that he profferred her, nor the alluring propoſition of a ſettlement, that would have inſured her ſtate and equipage for life, "could win her to his bed."——Her virtue ſerved but as fuel to his fire. What was to be done? Diſcloſe his unconquerable and unconquering paſſion to her father—hum!—yea, now there are hopes indeed; a father's poverty may ſuperſcede a father's love; a laviſh bribe may annihilate a parent's duty. He ſucceeded to his wiſh. The terms indeed were high——a Thouſand Pounds! but "All for love, or the world well loſt." The father received the wages of his conſent and aid, and (true to his promiſe) introduced his Lordſhip into his daughter's chamber at the dead of night, with a ſolemn promiſe, that no aſſiſtance ſhould be conſequent of any cries of diſtreſs. Cries, indeed, for ſome time were made; but what did they avail? "The cruel ſpoiler triumphed, cropt the fair roſe, and rifled all its ſweetneſs;"—but, "at length the morning came," when, behold! who did the noble enamorato find himſelf embracing? No other than his "wedded wife," whom the juſtly artful & reſenting father had privately acquainted with "the ſtory of her huſbands love."——What followed this diſcovery?—Diſappointment—rage diſtraction—deſperation—ſullenneſs reflection—ſhame—contrition—interceſſion—reconcilement—pardon. The reſcued victim then was led, bluſhing, by her honoured, honourable parent, to the preſence of the noble, and now happy couple: When her Ladyſhip (praiſing her virtue, & folding her in her arms) generouſly doubled to the lovely girl the ſum that had been paid by his Lordſhip to her father, as the intended purchaſe of her honour.

B O S T O N, February 20.

☞ "Moderate men, (ſays a writer in favour of the liberty of the preſs) are apt to cry down the preſent licentiouſneſs of the preſs: let us aſk them, will they hazard all the benefits that ariſe from an open and free publication, merely to ſuppreſs, "the growing evil," as they term it? Will ſuch men be hardy enough to venture upon the deſtruction of ſo noble a fabrick? Will they be ſo daring as to ſtrike immediately at the root, the very foundation of that roof which protects them from the inclemencies of the weather? And all this to get rid of an imaginary inconvenience? Upon theſe terms I think we may ſafely anſwer for theſe men of moderation; for they have prudence too. Shall we attempt to diſengage ourſelves from ſo trifling a miſchief by the entire ſacrifice of our lives and properties? Certainly no; here the queſtion comes home, and nature prompts every individual to ſelf preſervation. If we eradicate the genuine ſtamina of our freedom by chooking up the channels of public intelligence—farewel all the learning, wit and genius of the nation—farewel that generous emulation in the cauſe of liberty and our country, which was wont to animate the boſoms of our glorious anceſtors: we ſhall, by ſuch falſe proceeding, open a ſluice for every ſpecies of corruption and abhorred tyranny."

We hear that the large donation of the late Nicolas Boylſton, Eſq; to Harvard College, was paid by his executors on Tueſday ſe'nnight, to the Hon. Thomas Hubbard, Eſq; Treaſuer of the College, the Corporation being preſent. After the Treaſurer had given a diſcharge for the money, the Preſident delivered to the executors a vote of the corporation, a copy of which is as follows. viz.

"At a Meeting of the Corporation of HARVARD-COLLEGE, February 11th 1772.

"The late NICHOLAS BOYLSTON, Eſq; having given in his laſt will to Harvard College, the ſum of One Thouſand Five Hundred Pounds, lawful money, for founding a Profeſſorſhip of Rhetoric and Oratory; and his executors, Joſeph Green Eſq; and Mr. Thomas Boylſton having this day paid the ſaid ſum into the hands of the College Treaſurer; the corporation embrace this opportunity to expreſs their moſt grateful reſpect to the memory of Mr. BOYLSTON, whoſe name will be diſtinguiſhed in future ages among the firſt patrons and benefactors to the intereſt of Literature in his native country.

"At the ſame time, the Corporation return their thanks to his executors, for the obliging manner in which they have diſcharged this part of their truſt, aſſuring them, and the near relations of the generous founder that nothing in their power ſhall be wanting to render this new and important inſtitution anſwerable to his memory.

"The Corporation alſo aſk the favour of Mr Thomas Boylſton, That he would permit a full length portrait of his deceaſed brother, to be drawn at the expence of the College, from an original in his poſſeſſion, to be placed in the Philoſophy room, with the portraits of Thomas Hollis and the Hon. Thomas Hancock, Eſqrs the founders of the other Profeſſorſhips in this College.

Yeſterday Se'nnight Capt. Buckland of Hartford arrived here in a Sloop from the Weſt-Indies, and on Tueſday laſt the Sloop was left to the Care of the Mate and a Pilot to be carried into Connecticut River; ſhe arrived at Say-Brook the ſame Evening, when the Pilot & Hands went on Shore, leaving the Mate and a Boy on Board. The Veſſel an Hour or Two after drove out of the River, tis ſuppoſed by Means of the Ice, was forced to Sea; and has not ſince been heard of.

We hear that about Ten Days ago, a Schooner from this Place, Crowell, Maſter, was ſeized at Boſton, under pretence of her having 8 Hogſheads of Sugar on Board, which had not been cleared at the Cuſtom-Houſe in this Port.

HARTFORD, March 3.

We have heard that the following bridges were ſwept away by the late flood, viz. the large bridge at Windſor, with one at Pequonnock, one at Suffrage, and one at Farmington, all bridges of great conſequence to the public, together with almoſt all the bridges of leſs importance on Farmington river.

Laſt Friday ſen'night there was the greateſt Freſhet at Norwch-Landing that has been known for 30 Years paſt, occaſioned by a ſudden Thaw and the breaking up of Shetucker-River. The riſe of the Water was ſo ſudden that there was not Time to ſecure but a ſmall Part of the Goods which were expoſed——Upwards of 5000 Buſhels of Salt, a large Quantity of Sugars and other Weſt-India Goods, alſo of European Goods to a conſiderable Amount are loſt: Add to the Loſs the Town has ſuſtained in Bridges this Seaſon, and 'tis ſaid the Town has ſuffered about 3000l. Damage.

Lathrop & Smith,

Who for ſeveral Years paſt have carried on the Apothecaries buſineſs in Hartford.

TAKE this Method to inform their Cuſtomers, that the Copartnerſhip ſubſiſting between them is to be diſſolved this ſpring——And they requeſt that all perſons who have accounts open with ſaid company, or with ſaid Smith, would (as ſoon as may be) bring them in to be adjuſted, that ſo they may be enabled to cloſe their company accounts.

And as ſaid company have lately met with a very heavy loſs they requeſt (as a particular favour) that all thoſe who are indebted to them, would (at this juncture) exert themſelves to make all the remittance they can. And they are under the neceſſity of informing thoſe of their debtors, who are conſcious to themſelves, that they have greatly over run the uſual time of credit, that unleſs they make ſpeedy payment, they muſt be call'd upon in a more diſagreeable way.

N. B. Notwithſtanding the diſſolution of the Partnerſhip, the buſineſs (in all its branches) will be carried on at the ſame place, and (we hope) as largely as heretofore.

POETS CORNER.

The proud FLY, or the judgment of ſenſe expoſed.

A FABLE.

'TWAS in the peaceful month of May,
(No matter which for the day)
When Phœbus had his noon attain'd,
And in the blaze of glory reign'd.
A fly as gay as e'er was ſeen,
Clad o'er with azure get and green,
Gay for his part, as birth day bow,
Whoſe ſoul is vaniſh'd into ſhow.
On a fam'd temple chanc'd to light,
To eaſe his long, laborious flight,
There as his optics gaz'd around,
An inch or two his utmoſt bound.
He thus began, " men vainly tell,
How they in works of ſkill excel,
This edifice they proudly ſhow,
To prove what human art can do.
'Tis all a cheat before mine eyes,
What infinite diſorders riſe,
Here tedious cavities appear,
And broken precipeces there.
They never us'd the plain or line,
But tumbled heaps without deſign."
He ceas'd contemptuous and as flies,
Diſcern with microſcopic eyes,
from what he ſaw he reaſon'd right,
But how inadequate the ſight!
To mark the building from the baſe,
The pillard pomp the ſculptured grace,
The dome the croſs, the golden ball,
Much leſs the grand reſult of all.
So impious wits with proud diſdain,
May heavens myſterious works arraign,
View but a part and then deny,
The eternal wiſdom of the ſky.
But can they then preſumptuous man,
Unfold thy Makers boundleſs plan?
As well may inſects organs view,
Th' harmonious ſtructures raiſed by you,
As their imperfect tube explore,
Thy God, and trace his ſyſtems o'er.

☞ As moſt of theſe Papers will, probably be irrecoverably loſt in a few Years, unleſs preſerved by Printing, it is hoped that a ſufficient Number of Subſcribers will ſoon appear, from a regard to the Public as well as for the ſake of their particular Entertainment.

A few of the firſt Volume of Collection of Papers, may be had at the Heart and Crown in Boſton.

WHEREAS the Communication between the capital Places of New York and Boſton is of the greateſt public Concern: The Subſcribers, living in Hartford, have projected a Plan, upon proper Encouragement, for eſtabliſhing a STAGE COACH, for the Conveyance of Paſſengers through that beautiful Part of the Country of the Upper Poſt Road, to and from thoſe Places; and accordingly have actually built two neat Coaches, for Structure and Conveniency equal (if not ſuperior) to the Providence and Portſmouth Stage Carriages, and purpoſe to ſet off from Hartford on the Firſt Monday of May next, the one for New York the other for Boſton, to drive four good able Horſes; change the Set at about half the Diſtance between thoſe Places; to arrive in Boſton Wedneſday Night; return out of Boſton Thurſday Noon, and to reach Hartford Saturday Night, ſo as to compleat the whole Diſtance from New York to Boſton in the Courſe of one Week and for about the Price of the Hire of a ſingle Horſe. To prevent All Altercation and needleſs Delay, every Paſſenger is to enter his name at ſome place that will be appointed for the Purpoſe, and pay half his Paſſage a convenient Time before the Hour appointed for the Coach to ſet off from each Place reſpectively.

And the Subſcribers would inform any Perſon in New York and Boſton, and if they are diſpoſed to unite with them in their Endeavour to ſerve the Public, by furniſhing a Coach to make a Day's Journey out of their Towns up on the Road, they will readily co operate with them in this Meaſure and would be glad to receive from them the earlieſt Notice of ſuch Intention which will render the Purchaſe of an additional Number of Horſes unneceſſary to us.

BOSTON, February 27.

Laſt Saturday night arrived at Marblehead, Capt Cailey from Falmouth, the News Papers he brought were in regular Order from Nov. 30th to Dec. 21ſt from London which were ſent to the Printer at Salem. Laſt Evening we received the Eſſex Gazette, which contains the following Articles from the ſaid Papers viz.

From the LONDON GAZETTE.

St JAMES's December 11.

THIS day was received from Capt. Stott, Commander of his Majeſty's ſhip Juno, who arrived at Plymouth the 9th inſtant in 70 days from Port Egmont, the following account of the execution of his commiſſion to receive the poſſeſſion of Falkland's Iſland, in his Majeſty's name. On the evening of the 13th of September laſt, Capt. Stott arrived at Port Egmont, with his Majeſty's frigate Juno, the Hound Sloop, and Florida Storeſhip, under his command. The next morning, ſeeing Spaniſh colours flying, and troops on ſhore at the ſettlement formerly held by the Engliſh, he ſent a Lieutenant to know if any officer was there on behalf of his Catholic Majeſty, empowered to make reſtitution of poſſeſſion to him, agreeable to the orders of his Court for that purpoſe, duplicates of which he had to deliver to ſuch Officer. He was anſwered, That Don Franciſco de Orduna, a Lieutenant of the Royal Artillery of Spain, was furniſhed with full powers, and ready to effect the reſtitution. Don Franciſco ſoon after came on board the Juno; when Capt. Stott delivered to him his Catholic Majeſty's Orders. They then examined, together, into the ſituation of the ſettlement and ſtores; adjuſted the forms of the reſtitution and reception of the poſſeſſion; inſtruments for which were ſettled, and reciprocally delivered. On Monday the 16th of September Capt. Stott landed, followed by a party of marines, and was received by the Spaniſh officer who formally reſtored him Falkland's Iſland, Port Egmont, its Fort, and other dependencies, giving the ſame poſſeſſion as his Majeſty had before the 10th of June 1770; on which he cauſed his Majeſty's colours to be hoiſted, and took poſſeſſion accordingly. The next day Don Franciſco, with all the troops and ſubjects of the King of Spain, departed in a ſchooner which they had with them.

Accounts of the Ruſſian Victories.

Warſaw Nov 26. This moment we are informed, that General Romanzow has retaken Giurgewo by ſtorm: there were in the fortreſs a very large magazine and above 150 pieces of cannon. The Count effected this enterprize with a detachment from his army; the main body he ſent over the Danube to oppoſe the Grand Vizir, he declined making his way to Giurgewo through the corps of Ruſſians; the latter, therefore, attacked him, totally defeated him, and took 107 pieces of cannon, beſides a great many other trophies of war; the Grand Vizir then fled towards Adrianople.

HAMBURGH, December 3.

Mr. Groſs, the Ruſſian miniſter here, received the following account of the operations of Count Romanzow's army from his court, dated Nov. 20.

" The 20th of October Major Gen. Geiſman attacked Tulcza, and Major Gen. Miloradowitz attacked Meczin, and after having forced the two Turkiſh retrenchments, they made themſelves maſters of the two towns, and their caſtles, where, they found a great quantity of artillery, ammunition, proviſion, and all the baggage of two Turkiſh corps. The following night Gen. Weiſman marched towards Babadagh, where the Vizir Seliktar Mahomet Pacha had a grand entrenchment, a great quantity of artillery, and moſt part of the military cheſt. After Gen. Weiſman had diſperſed to different Turkiſh detachments, who came to oppoſe his march, he attacked the Grand Vizir and drove him out of his camp, which he took; as alſo the town and caſtle of Babadagh.——The Grand Vizir fled by the Road to Baſarezi ſituated 30 miles from thence in the mountains; Gen. Weiſman taking the advantage of the terror, and having ſent more than 50 pieces of cannon on the other ſide of the Danube, went himſelf, the 23d of October towards Iſaccia, intending to drive the enemy from thence."

At the departure of the Courier, General Romanzow received the agreeable news that Lieutenant Gen. Eſſen had totally defeated the army of Seraſkier Mouſſon Oglou, that he was then purſuing them, and that he had taken all their artillery and baggage.

(A later Account ſays,)

The Victory of Gen. Eſſen over the body of Turkiſh troops which was poſted over againſt the fortreſs of Giurgewo, and the defeat of the Grand Vizir by Major Gen. Weiſman, are now fully confirmed, and the advantages, it appears, are greater than were at firſt known. The conſequences of theſe important events are, the loſs of the whole camp & baggage, & more than 165 pieces of artillery;——The iron cannon were burſt or ſunk in the river, and the 165 pieces of braſs cannon were carried off by the victors. To theſe ſucceſſes may be added the retaking of the fortreſs of Giurgewo, and the demoliſhing the fortreſſes of Iſakczia Babadagi, Tulczi, Medzin and Hieſkows. And what is ſtill better, theſe events have obtained for the Ruſſian troops ſafe and quiet winter quarters, eſpecially as the whole Turkiſh army is now at a great diſtance from the banks of the Danube. A report prevails, that the Grand Signior is dead at Conſtantinople, of the conſequences of ſickneſs.

LONDON, Dec. 3.

The Lord Chamberlain, has ſignified to the Duke of Cumberland, by order of the King, that his Royal Highneſs's preſence at Court will be diſpenſed with; and it has alſo been ſignified, by authority, to the miniſters, and to all the ſervants of the Crown, that if any of them viſit the Duke or Dutcheſs of Cumberland, they muſt not appear at St. James's. The Duke and Dutcheſs are at Windſor.

A letter from Scotland to a gentleman in town ſays, " Your news papers will have informed you of the vaſt inundation in all parts of the North, and the extraordinary movement of Solway Moſs. I had the curioſity to ride to ſee the devaſtation it had made. Many hundred acres of the moſt beautiful incloſures are covered with it, and now appear as wild as any part of Penrith Fell. Ten villages are deſtroyed by it, but no lives loſt. The people, goods, and cattle, were taken out at the roofs of the houſes and walked into the moſs. Before we came to the part in motion, the ground was broke into vaſt chaſms as with an earthquake. We ſtood and ſaw many acres of ground in motion; by my watch it moved 2 yards in a minute."

In the Houſe of Commons in Ireland, on the 25th of November, was a Debate on the Penſion of Jeremiah Dyſon, Eſq; (one of the Buckingham-Houſe Junto, and known in England by the Name of Mungo.) It was urged that his penſion was very burthenſome and unneceſſary, as it was beſtowed on one who had never been of any ſervice in Ireland. The Queſtion was put. For the penſion, 105, againſt, 106, Majority One. Then Reſolved:

That the penſion granted to Jeremiah Dyſon, Eſq; and his three ſons is an unneceſſary charge upon the eſtabliſhment of Ireland, and ought not to be provided for.

Ordered, That the ſaid penſion be ſtruck off the liſt of penſioners, upon the eſtabliſhment of Ireland.

When the numbers were declared, there was as great a plaudit, both in the houſe and in the gallery, as was ever heard in a theatre. So deteſted is every tool in the King's ſervice throughout all his dominions—— except Scotland.

A letter from Dublin ſays, " We cannot ſufficiently admire the incorruptible integrity of Sir Edward Neweham, a placeman who has preferred the cauſe of his country, to the almoſt certain ruin of his private fortune."

A correſpondent at Dublin has favoured us with the following authentic copy of the Speech which Mr. Flood made in the Iriſh Houſe of Commons, on Monday the 25th of Nov. laſt, when the debate on the Penſion of Jeremiah Dyſon, Eſq; came on before the committee of Supplies.——The debate was opened by Sir William Mayee, who obſerved " that he conſidered this penſion as burthenſome and unneceſſary; burthenſome inaſmuch as it was one thouſand pounds per annum—— and unneceſſary, as it was beſtowed upon a man who had never been of any ſervice to that kingdom." This was feebly replied to by a certain Chief Magiſtrate, who was a ſore anſwered; after which Mr Flood got up and ſpoke as follows:

" I cannot help obſerving, on this occaſion, that the ſubject of the preſent debate is one of the moſt intereſting and important to the good of this diſtreſſed kingdom, as (if the honeſt men in the Houſe carry their point) it may ſerve as a precedent for other burthenſome and unneceſſary penſions being ſcratched off our enormous penſion liſt; and at the ſame time I am ſorry to obſerve, that ſo neceſſary an expedient as the eaſing our aggrieved country of the dreadful weight upon its ſhoulders ſhould find opponents in this houſe, and be brought to a debate.

" I have but little to ſay, on a ſubject which ſpeaks ſo amply for itſelf. It is the misfortune of this country, that it has always been ill uſed, and ill uſed by foreign hands too——foreign governors, foreign penſioners, foreign paraſites. With all the natural requiſites of life within our own kingdom, and with all the artificial conveniencies of it within our reach, our countrymen live in beggary, and die in deſpair, while other people riot in our treaſures, and bend under the weight of our ſpoils, we are gaſping for our daily ſubſtance, and treated with all the indignity of a petty province.—Tell me, can it be ſaid that Great-Britain has treated us with the ſame honour and reſpect with which one ſiſter kingdom ought to treat another? Though we have our own legiſlature, our own laws, our own revenues, have we not always been, and are we not ſtill inſulted with oppreſſion and reproach, as an out caſt among the nations? If there is a man on the other ſide of the water who has ſpent his life in court intrigues and court ſlavery, done underhand jobs for the worſt purpoſes, and ſerved all the evil purpoſes an of evil Miniſtry; is he not immediately diſpatched to Ireland with a miniſterial mandate in his pocket, and ſaddled upon our revenue for poſts and penſions, as the reward of his evil doing?——In the midſt of all this miſery, it were ſome comfort, ſince we muſt be preyed upon, if we were preyed upon by the Caterpillers of our own land.—But to be eat up by the vermin of another nation, is the curſe that galls me.

"But of all the burthens which it has pleaſed Government to lay upon our devoted ſhoulders, that which is the ſubject of the preſent debate is the moſt grievous and intolerable.——Who does not know Jeremiah Dyſon Eſq!——We know little of him indeed, otherwiſe than by his name in our penſion liſt; but there are others who know him by his actions. This is he who is endued with thoſe happy talents that he has ſerved every Adminiſtration, and ſerved every one with equal ſucceſs—a civil, pliable, good natured gentleman, who will do what you will, and ſay what you pleaſe——for payment."

[Here Mr. Flood was interrupted, and called to order by Mr. M——, who urged that more reſpect ought to be paid to Mr. Dyſon as one of his Majeſty's Officers, and, as ſuch, one whom his Majeſty was graciouſly pleaſed to repoſe confidence in. However, Mr. Flood went on.

"As to the royal confidence repoſed in Mr. Dyſon, his gracious Majeſty (whom God long preſerve) has been graciouſly laviſh of it, not only to Mr Dyſon, but the friends of Mr. Dyſon: and I think the choice was good: the royal ſecrets will, I dare ſay, be very ſecure in their breaſts, not only for the love they bear to his gracious Majeſty but for the love they bear to themſelves. In the preſent caſe, however we do not want to be informed of that part of Mr. Dyſon's character——we know enough of him——every body knows enough of him——aſk the Britiſh Treaſury—the Britiſh Council—aſk any Engliſhman—who he is, what he is——they can all tell you, for the Gentleman is well KNOWN. But what have we to do with him? He never ſerved Ireland, nor the friends of Ireland. And if this diſtreſſed kingdom was never benefitted by his council, intereſt or ſervice, I ſee no good cauſe why this kingdom ſhould reward him. Let the honourable members of this houſe conſider this, and give their voices accordingly. For God's ſake, let every man conſult his conſcience; if Jeremiah Dyſon, Eſq; ſhall be found to deſerve this penſion, let it be continued; if not, let it be lopped off our revenue as burthenſome and unneceſſary."

Mr. Dyſon is now a Commiſſioner of the Treaſury.

Dec. 7. We are informed that a Great Perſonage has declared againſt all meaſures for rendering a late unpopular marriage void.

The Miniſtry are determined to purſue the moſt vigorous meaſures, if ſatisfactory conceſſions are not made for the late inſult offered to the Britiſh flag.

The ſatisfaction on which it is thought the Iriſh Commons will inſiſt, is a law declaring all penſions totally illegal that are given without the immediate conſent of Parliament.

The Iriſh Houſe of Commons voting the penſion of 1000l. a year to Jeremiah Dyſon, Eſq. and ſons as undeſerved, unneceſſary, and that no proviſion ſhall be made for it, is ſaid to be totally a new manœuvre, and has thrown the Court Party into the utmoſt conſternation; ſeveral of whom are trembling, leſt a reviſal of their own deſervings of the Iriſh Penſions they enjoy ſhould one day follow.

Several privy Councils have lately been held on the preſent proceedings of the Iriſh parliament; and we are told that all the Judges will be ſhortly required to give their opinion with reſpect to the power of the Royal Prerogative over the money of that kingdom.

Letters from Gibralter mention that the Spaniards are embarking 10 800 men, deſigned for the Weſt Indies.

Dec. 5. Yeſterday Earl Temple was at the levee at St. James's.

Though Lord Bute is ſeldom ſeen publickly about St. James's or Richmond, we are aſſured that he is more frequently with a Great Perſonage than any other Miniſter, and in the diſpoſal of places he has more, than all the Miniſtry put together.

It is by ſome conjectured, that the approaching ſeſſion of P——t, will not only be the buſieſt, but alſo one of the moſt important ever known in this kingdom.

Lord North, by the new meaſures with the two noble brothers (if the report of thoſe meaſures are really to be depended upon) is not to remove from his preſent department, nor is Lord Sandwich: In the reſt of the miniſterial arrangements, it is ſaid there will be a very conſiderable change.

It is ſaid that a diſcovery of a Dutcheſs of York, which ſeems to gain much credit, has created a great conſternation among the Luttrels, and damps the hopes which the account of the Dutcheſs of Cumberland's pregnancy had given to that aſpiring family.

Dec. 10. We can aſſure the public, from undoubted authority, that the King of Pruſſia had already advanced the Empreſs of Ruſſia four millions of rubles, all which were coined very ſecretly at Magdeburg, for the uſe of the Ruſſian army in Poland, Moldavia, and Walachia; the ſum is very near 800 000l. ſterl. From this loan of the King of Pruſſia it appears, that he will, in a ſecret treaty, have ſecured to himſelf ſome important acquiſition on the ſide of Poland; as it is well known that this great Prince never was uſed to throw his money away.

Dec. 14. It is apprehended that the Spaniards intend building a fort upon Falkland's Iſland, within gun-ſhot of Fort Egmont.

Since the arrival of Captain Stott, from Falkland's Iſland the miniſterial Runners have induſtriouſly circulated, according to order, "That the Spaniards have given up Falkland's Iſland entirely—The whole iſland—Fort Egmont and all!" It is more than probable the London Gazette will confirm this report. If it does, it will not be the firſt falſhood which the London Gazette has given to the world. The fact is, the Spaniards have ſurrendered Port and Port Egmont ONLY. The Spaniards drove our People from the Iſland; they would not ſuffer them to remain upon any part of it. They took poſſeſſion of the whole; ſaying, "the Iſlands belonged to the King of Spain." The Papers laid before the Parliament laſt winter (which were publiſhed) give us the fact. The Spaniards have reſtored to us the Port and Fort only. But to whom does the Sovereignty of the Iſland belong? Is that to be the ſubject of another negotiation? Or is it to be tamely given up? The ſpeech at the enſuing ſeſſion will doubtleſs be full of this great condeſcenſion in Spain. That ſtate paper the Miniſters think is privilledged vehicle of fallacy. But tho' the North Briton was perſecuted with a rancor that would have diſgraced the reign of a Stewart, for ſpeaking bold truths, yet this LIE, if it is told, ſhall not go undetected.

Dec. 14. A correſpondent ſays that when Capt. Stott arrived in London, neither of the S——ries of S——e were in a condition to preſent him to his Majeſty; one of them being laid up with the gout, the other having two black eyes; he was therefore under a neceſſity of waving ceremonials, and obtained a no leſs gracious than ſatisfactory audience, tho' not agreeable to the common forms.

Letters from France adviſe, that thirteen men of war, and three frigates were fitting out at Toulon with great expedition, they are to be ready for ſea by the latter end of Feb. next.

Yeſterday a gentleman at the Change laid five guineas to one, that preſs warrants would be iſſued within a fortnight.

BOSTON, February 27.

In our laſt we gave an Account of the Opening of the Superior Court and of the Charge given to the Grand Jury for the County of Suffolk.—Since which, viz. on Saturday laſt between Twelve and One o'clock, the Grand Inqueſt came in and delivered their Bills of Indictment; after peruſing them the Court inquired whether they had any other Buſineſs lying before them, which was anſwered in the Negative. The Chief Juſtice then ſaid, Gentlemen of the Grand-Jury you are diſmiſſed—Immediately after, the foreman gave in a Paper, which was delivered to the Court, ſaid to relate to Ebenezer Richardſon, who was convicted of Murder ſome Months ago. The Court then enquired whether that Paper which was ſigned by the Foreman in Behalf of his Brethren, was delivered as from the Grand-Jury, they being diſmiſſed, or as from private Perſons. It was replied that it was intended as from the Grand-Jury——The Court thought it proper to direct their Attendance at four o'Clock Afternoon. This made much Speculation among the People, who crowded to obſerve the Event. At four o'Clock P. M. the Chief Juſtice ſaid to the Grand Jury, that the Court charitably believed they were ignorant that the Caſe of Ebenezer Richardſon was then before His Majeſty.——They declared they did not know it, and the Court was then adjourned.

Saturday Afternoon laſt, the Captain's Clerk of the Beaver Man of War now in this Harbour, and the Gunner of the ſame ſhip, having ſome Words in a Shop in King-Street, ſoon roſe to Blows on the Side of Mr. Bryant the Clerk, and were returned by Mr. Quelch the Gunner, with a Stab by a Spear from a Cane under the Left Pap, which penetrated the Breaſt, but immediately cloſed and the wounded man fainted away.—Dr. Young was brought ſpeedily, who recovered him a little with Volatiles, and Dr. Warren coming directly after, they dilated the Wound and gave Vent to the Blood, on which he came to his Speech, and being laid in a proper Poſture, paſſed the Night, and the Forenoon of the next Day, in a tolerable eaſy Condition: But in the Afternoon Mr. Bryant had a ſlight Delirium with Spaſms, whence the Doctors fear his life is in much Danger. Mr. Quelch readily ſurrendered himſelf, and was committed to Priſon, much concerned for the unhappy Accident, of which probably the Sufferer was but too much the immediate Occaſion.

Laſt Monday Evening one Thomas Dunn, a labouring Man, at the North End, who has been in a delirious Condition, went into his Chamber while his Wife was in Bed, took the Candle and went on the Top of the Houſe, and walked to the Eves, from whence he fell into the ſtreet, whereby his Neck was diſlocated, and he died in about three hours after.

New-London, March 6.

We have received the following Account of the Loſs of the Sloop Mary Ann, Capt. Stephen Buckland, which was mentioned in our laſt to be drove out of the Mouth of Connecticut River, viz. About an Hour after the People went on Shore at Say Brook, a large Cake of Ice parted both the Sloop's Cables, when ſhe drifted on Lyndes's Point, where ſhe lay upwards of an Hour, and then drifted into the Sound, with only the Mate, (Mr. Samuel Cotton) and a Boy named George Cropper belonging to Virginia, about 14 Years old, on Board: They made no Sail during the Night, and in the Morning found the Veſſel to have drifted between Plumb-Iſland and Gardiner's Iſland; when the Mate concluded if Poſſible to puſh her into Newport; but the Wind riſing and blowing a hard Gale from W. N. W. and the Sails and rigging froze ſtiff, found it impracticable to Work the Veſſel to Advantage; ſo that about 4 o'clock in the Afternoon ſhe drove on Brenton's Reef, where the Veſſel in a ſhort time bilged: They lay there till next Morning, being almoſt buried in Water; and the Weather very cold, the Mate held the Lad in his Arms to prevent his periſhing. In the Morning he (the Mate) ſwam on ſhore, and ſoon after a Boat went aboard, when they found the Lad drowned on the Cabin Floor—The Bottom of the Sloop is beat out, and her Cargo, conſiſting principally of Salt, almoſt all loſt.

Capt. Adams from Guadalope, on Friday laſt put into Tarpaulin Cove, where the Gaſpee armed Schooner had in Cuſtody a large Schooner deeply laden from the Weſt Indies, which ſhe had ſeized near the above place, and was bound to Boſton with her. A Sloop was alſo ſeized about the ſame time near Tarpaulin Cove, by one of his Majeſty's Cruiſers, who are uncommonly Vigilant about this time.

TWENTY DOLLARS REWARD.

BROKE out of Litchfield County Goal the night after the third of March 1772, the notorious burglarain John Brown, who was lately condemned and received ſentence of death—is a ſhort thick fellow, about five feet four inches high, has been twice cropped and branded, about 22 years old. Whoſoever will apprehend and return ſaid fellow to ſaid goal, ſhall have Twenty Dollars reward, paid by,

Litchfield, March 4, 1772.

Whereas the buſineſs

of carrying the Connecticut Courant to Litchfield county, has for a number of years paſt been carried on by Mr. William Stanton, of Litchfield, who having engaged in other buſineſs, finds it inconvenient to continue in ſaid buſineſs any longer. THIS is to give notice to all perſons who incline to become ſubſcribers for ſaid paper in that quarter, that Mr. Joſeph Bunce of Hartford, has undertaken to ſupply them therewith, and will ſet out from Hartford on tueſday, and be at Litchfield tueſday evening, from Litchfield he will go to New Milford, and New Fairfield, then to Sharon and the City, in York government, then to Salliſbury and Canaan, then to Goſhen and Torrington, then to New Hartford, and through Simſbury to Hartford, provided a ſufficient number of ſubſcribers appear to ſupport the expence. He will ride once in a Fortnight, & deliver the papers at the places where they ſhall be directed to be left, at the moderate price of Nine Shillings each per year; & as the preſent unſettled ſtate of public affairs, together with the great proſpect of a ſpeedy WAR, renders the papers of conſequence to the public, it is imagined a ſufficient number to defray the expences will ſoon appear. Thoſe who were ſubſcribers when Mr. Stanton rode as poſt, will have their papers left where he left them, by leaving their names at thoſe places. Thoſe who ſubſcribed to Mr. John Hoye, will have their papers continued to them. And as the undertaking will be attended with very great expence at firſt, ſaid Bunce hopes every cuſtomer will not think him unreaſonable to aſk, but will willingly comply with his requeſt of paying four ſhillings at the time of their ſubſcribing, which will enable him to carry on the buſineſs in ſuch a manner as to give them ſatisfaction. This he hopes to merit by his being very punctual as to the delivery of the papers at a particular ſet time.——Any perſon may at any time make payment to him when on his circuit, or to Mr. William Stanton at Litchfield

JOSEPH BUNCE.

Whereas a conſider-able Number of the Proprietors in the Suſquehannah Purchaſe, have applied to us the Subſcribers, Committe for ſaid Proprietors, for a meeting of ſaid Proprietors, to take into Conſideration ſundry Matters of Importance relative thereto: Theſe are therefore to warn all the Proprietors in ſaid Suſquehannah Purchaſe, to meet at the Court Houſe in Norwich on Wedneſday the Firſt Day of April next to take into conſideration ſundry Matters of Importance reſpecting the Settlement of ſaid Purchaſe, and tranſact any Matters relative thereto that ſhall be judged beſt for the peaceable and orderly Settlement of ſaid Lands, and to do any other Buſineſs that ſhall be proper to be done on ſaid Day.

HARTFORD, March 10.

We hear from Holland, that Monſieur De Voltaire, has lately publiſhed a Book called REPENTANCE, in which he publickly confeſſes and recalls the horrible and abominable Sentiments and Vices, he for ſo many Years has been attacked to. Non demoreris in errore impiarum; mortem confiteris.

No. 25614 in the preſent State Lottery, a Prize of £.10,000, is the Property of Mr. Thomas Fiſher, of New-York, Merchant, who ſome time ago it is ſaid, gave a quarter of the ſame to his Brother Mr. John Fiſher, and his Nephew Mr. John Shatford Jones.

From the New York Journal of Dec. 5. 1771.

[Several of our Cuſtomers having expreſſed a Curioſity to ſee the Piece ſigned Mucius Scævola mentioned in our laſt, which was publiſhed in the Maſſachuſetts Spy, of the 14th of November, and gave ſo much Offence to the Governor of that Province and ſome of the Council, that they ſent Summonſes to the ſuppoſed Author and the Printer of the ſaid Paper, to appear before them, who diſregarding the Orders, and refuſing to attend, and the Council, after a Day's Debate, not agreeing to a Motion, made by ſome of their Body to commit the Printer, &c. to Priſon for Contempt, they (the Council) afterwards unanimouſly agreed to adviſe the Governor to Order the King's Attorney to proſecute the Printer at Common Law. The following is a Copy of the Piece complained of viz.]

For the MASSACHUSETTS SPY, Nov. 14.

IF it be true, that the exceptionable clauſe in the late proclamation, was not propoſed by Mr. Hutchinſon, but by one of the council; yet there it ſtands, and is nevertheleſs exceptionable, and muſt reflect diſhonour ſomewhere, even though it were inadvertently inſerted.

It is not denied, even by Mr. Hutchinſon's friends, that the other part of the proclamation was drafted by him; We may conſider him then as triumphing over us as SLAVES or perſons who have no priveledges; and though he well knew it would be a piece of mockery, to lead us to the throne of grace, with thankſgiving for the preſervation of privileges, which, by his means, in part, we have been deprived of; yet he thought fit, with the advice of ſix out of twenty-eight of his council, (if he by his craft, could make their act) to inſert it.

We have need of the wiſdom of ſerpents who are concerned with ſuch rulers; to be conſidered by them as fools, is irritating; for fools they muſt think us, if they can imagine that we can complain of loſs of liberty in one breath, and with the next ſolemnly thank God for the preſervation of it. What account can be given for ſuch conduct conſiſtent with common honeſty, mankind muſt judge.

It would give me pain to harbour one thought that the ſix members, who it is ſaid voted for the inſertion of that impious paragraph, intended thereby to carry favour with the miniſtry; I can not indulge ſuch a thought, beſides, there is no danger that this people will ever receive a council appointed by the KING himſelf: And certainly it is unlikely, that if the repreſentatives of this people ſhould once adopt ſuch a ſentiment of them, that theſe men ſhould ever again be re-choſen into the council. Mr. Hutchinſon may think we are eaſy, becauſe we have ſo long waited for a redreſs of grievances; but our patience is nearly exhauſted. It cannot be that we ſhall bear much longer, to have our money forced from us.—An Engliſhman ſhould never part with a penny but by his conſent or the conſent of his agent, or repreſentative, eſpecially as the money thus forced from us, is to hire a man to TYRANNIZE over us, whom his Maſter cal's our Governor. This ſeems to be Mr. Hutchinſon's ſituation; therefore I cannot but view him as a uſurper, and abſolutely deny his juriſdiction over this people; and am of opinion, that any act of aſſembly conſented to by them, in his pretended capacity of Governor, is ipſo facto, null and void, and conſequently, not binding on us. A ruler, independent on the people, is a monſter in government; and ſuch a one is Mr. Hutchinſon; and ſuch would George the third be, if he ſhould be rendered independent on the people of Great-Britain. A Maſſachuſetts Governor, the King by compact, with this people may nominate and appoint, but not pay: For his ſupport he muſt ſtipulate with the people and until he does, he is no legal Governor; without this, if he undertakes to rule, he is a USURPER.

It is high time then, my countrymen, that this matter was inquired into, if we have no conſtitutional Governor, it is time we had one. If the pretended Governor, or Lieut Governor, by being independent on us for their ſupport, are rendered incapable of completing acts of government, it is time, I ſay, that we had a lawful one to preſide, or that the pretended Governors, were diſmiſſed and PUNISHED as USURPERS, and that the council, according to charter, ſhould take upon themſelves the government of this province.

IT is ſaid the Piece above (from its Nature and Tendency) is the moſt daring Production ever publiſhed in America.

BOSTON.

We hear that the Piece in the Maſſachuſetts-Spy of the 14th of November laſt, ſigned MUCIUS SCÆVOLA, was laid before the Grand-Jury, and a Bill prepared by the King's Attorney, agreeable to an Order of the Governor and Council: But the good men of the County returned Ignoramus thereon, not being able to find upon their Oaths, that it was "FALSE," &c.——

Quere, Whether this is a Proof that ſeven-eighths of the People of this Province deteſt the Writings of our "pretended Patriots," as we have lately been told in the Maſſachuſetts Gazette.

A MODERN TALE.

To J. G—— F, Eſq;

YOU, by ſuſpicion, are a rogue!
A character that's much in vogue!
You are requir'd to come and ſcrape
Before long T—m and every ape,
At vice's hall of fools dependance;
Or you'll be trimm'd for non attendance!
It is on Tueſday, now, remember,
The tenth of that cold month, December:
At ten o'clock before 'tis noon,
If loggerheads can riſe ſo ſoon.
My board of weather-cocks I'll muſter,
And in my chair will make a bluſter:
And then and there with ſmoke and vapour,
You will be aſk'd about a paper,
That's call'd the Maſſachuſetts Spy,
Which doth all villainy deſcry.
Now, G——f, mind this writ, and come,
Or at your peril ſtay at home:
Dated the ſixteenth of November,
A month which tyrants ſhou'd remember,
By order of the public chairman,
With the advice of every layman:
Sign'd in the uſual form and hand
As Prorogations, by command.

The DISMISSION.

A council by their chairman flatter'd,
This work and folly did, and ſcatter'd.

Deceitful Chronos now declares,
With all his miniſterial airs——
That G——f, by ſome former bounty,
Was made a ſquire of Plymouth county:
And thought to have an hand and eye
In publiſhing that thorny Spy!
I only by ſuſpicion go!
Nor law nor evidence I know!
Since he our ſummons don't obey,
To come before ſuch f——s to day,
In order for examination
But puts us off with deteſtation:
And not attending to his ſummon
'Twas thereupon adviſed in common,
That the ſaid G——f be no more,
A juſtice as he was before!
This is new faſhion law and right!
This is a tyrant's boyiſh ſpite!
Now ſpiteful T—m has his deſire,
And G——f is no more a ſquire.

F L O R I O.

An AFFECTING STORY.

THE parents of the unhappy youth, whoſe ſtory we are about to relate, dwelt at S——, a little village in the county of N——, where his father, a man of great merit and ſtrict piety, officiated as curate, with an income of about fifty pounds a year. Florio was their only child, who being a lad of a ſprightly genius, had ſo far improved by the unwearied aſſiduity of his father, as to be, in his twelfth year, a perfect maſter of the Latin tongue, and not entirely unacquainted with the Greek: yet, great as his father's care was in inſtructing him in theſe points, it was ſtill far exceeded by a regard for his morals. He had imbibed the ſeeds of virtue from his birth; and the affectionate father took every opportunity of improving them.

By theſe means, the little family lived in the moſt exalted happineſs, till the youth had attained his fourteenth year, when all their bliſs was deſtroyed by no leſs a calamity than the death of the indulgent father; a misfortune which cou'd only be alleviated by the [illegible] on with which he met the hand of Providence. Nothing can be imagined more affecting than the calmneſs of the father, and the inexpreſſible grief of the mother and her ſon. "The pains of death (exclaims the expiring huſband) bring no terror with them; I die, relying with confidence on my [illegible] Redeemer. My only affliction is the thoughts of your future welfare; perſevere, however, in the ſteps which you have begun, and truſt in the Lord for your ſupport. For you, my dear Florio, (embracing his ſon in an extaſy of joy) I leave you expoſed to the frowns of a malicious world; but I truſt in the goodneſs of your heart to ſupport you under every calamity, but let me recommend it to you, above all things, to remain dutiful to your mother, and, for my ſake, be to her both a ſon and a huſband, that ſhe may experience at the ſame time your duty and protection." He would have ſaid more; but finding his ſpirits failing, he ended with, 'Remember theſe my laſt words when I am gone; a few minutes will remove me from you; adieu, for ever, adieu.' He had ſcarce uttered theſe words, when with a Chriſtian calmneſs he expired.

His widow and her unfortunate orphan conſoled each other as well as their [illegible] grief would permit them. No grief could recal the departed parent; and they now began to turn their eyes on their own condition. A relation, who was a tradeſman in London, and had no family of his own had often deſired to have Florio to town in his father's life time, which the tender father could never be brought to comply with. However, on the news of the clergyman's death, the generous Altamont flew to S——, and prevailed on the afflicted mother to part with her ſon promiſing to adopt him for his own. This was an unexpected ſtroke on her; to loſe her huſband, and now to be deprived of her ſon, was more than ſhe could well bear; but recollecting it was not in her power to make a proviſion for Florio equal to his merit, ſhe at length conſented to Altamont's propoſals, who ſet out ſoon after for town, overjoyed with his adopted ſon.

The mother, as ſhe had lived very frugal during the life of her huſband, had ſaved a little money, which, as her ſon was ſo well provided for, ſhe laid out in an annuity, and, for the ſake of cheapneſs, retired farther into the north, where ſhe kept up a conſtant correſpondence with her ſon, whoſe dutiful letters, were the greateſt comfort of her life.

Florio after his arrival in London, daily experienced freſh inſtances of the diſintereſted friendſhip of his benefactor; and now the bleſſings of proſperity ſeemed again to ſmile upon him. His only ſtudy, was to pleaſe his generous patron, who amply recompenſed his aſſiduity by the moſt grateful acknowledgments; in this manner he ſpent near three years in the moſt perfect felicity; but this bliſs was too great to be permanent.

The affairs of Altamont required his preſence, at a little eſtate he had in the north; and as he knew his buſineſs wou'd be faithfully tranſacted by Florio, he propoſed ſtaying a month or two in the country; but not chooſing to leave the care of his houſe to a young woman, he invited the widow of his friend Lothario to ſtay in it during his abſence, as he was certain he might depend on her prudence in managing his family.

Having thus ſettled every thing to his mind, the generous Altamont ſet out on his intended journey with great ſatiſfaction; but alas! little dreamt of the dreadful chain of miſeries which were ſo ſoon to follow.

The widow of Lothario was left with two ſmall children, both boys, and a very ſcanty proviſion to maintain them; one of them, however, ſurvived his father but a ſhort time; the other was maintained by the generoſity of ſome friends at a boarding ſchool in the country: yet, notwithſtanding the expences of her children being taken off, the unfortunate Raphelia could ſcarcely ſupport herſelf on her trifling income. This Altamont knew and for that reaſon invited her to the care of his houſe.

She was naturally of an agreeable temper; and notwithſtanding all her miſfortunes, the beauty of her face was not totally vaniſhed. Her affability ſoon procured her the eſteem of Florio, which on her ſide was repaid by the moſt affectionate regard. She frequently, with a flood of tears, related to him the happineſs ſhe once injoyed with her loved Lothario, and the miſeries ſhe had ſince his death experienced. This could not fail of working on the benevolent diſpoſition of Florio; he endeavoured to conſole her anxiety, but in vain; he remonſtrated to her the crime of murmuring at the diſpenſations of Providence; but to that ſhe was entirely inattentive; and often, in the innocent ſimplicity of his heart, knelt down before her, and earneſtly requeſted her, in that moving poſture, to deſiſt from her uneaſineſs. This goodneſs ſerved only to increaſe, inſtead of alleviating, the grief of Raphelia. She raiſed up the compaſſionate youth, and tenderly embracing him, returned him, her moſt grateful thanks for his pity, the tears trickling all the while from both their eyes. This friendſhip increaſed imperceptibly into the moſt ardent love, But now, reader, it is time to throw a veil on theſe unhappy lovers. Let it ſuffice to ſay, that in an ill-fated hour they were both ruined, though it is hard to tell which was the ſeducer, or which the ſeduced. In ſhort, they indulged their criminal love till the return of Altamont, who, in his journey, had paid a viſit to the mother of Florio and greatly comforted her with the character he gave of the promiſing youth her ſon.

The intrigue of Florio had never been ſuſpected by the ſervants as the age of Raphelia gave a ſanction to any little liberty taken before them. Upon Altamont's arrival, and enquiry into the ſtate of his affairs, he found all his buſineſs had been exactly performed according to his directions; nor was he leſs pleaſed with a review of the domeſtic care of Raphelia which he acknowledged by a handſome preſent.

Though ſhe was now removed from Florio, he ſtill purſued her to her lodgings, unknown to Altamont or his family; till one evening, when he went as uſual, he found her in tears. This he could not bear and immediately requeſted the reaſon of them: but judge reader, what muſt be his ſurpriſe, when ſhe declared herſelf pregnant! This was a thought which had entered neither of their heads, ſhe thinking herſelf ſecure by age and he by youth. They were now diſtreſſed indeed; but as one crime uſually brings on another, he reſolved to fly from the ſhame which he ſaw approaching. Diſſembling his mind however, before her, (a thing which till then he had never been guilty of) he endeavoured to comfort her as well as he could, promiſing to call on her the next day.

He left the room but without intending ever to ſee it again; and immediately entered on board a privateer fitting out for Weſt Indies. They had not been out long, before they met with a French frigate which the Captain reſolved to board. Florio, deſperate with affliction, was permitted to be of the number appointed to board her, and ſoon appeared upon the deck of the Frenchman, where, overpowered by numbers, he at laſt received a mortal wound, though not before he had given ſeveral himſelf. He had the ſatisfaction, however, before his death to ſee the enemy's flag ſtruck to the Britiſh privateer. The ſurgeon in vain endeavoured to bleed him, he was too far gone for aſſiſtance, and ſoon after expired. On ſearching his cheſt a letter was found directed to Altamont, filled with the moſt grateful acknowledgements for all his kindneſs, and acquainting him with the reaſons of his elopement. This was conveyed to him, as ſoon as they arrived in England, and the news ſoon reached the ears of the unfortunate Raphelia, who looking on herſelf as the cauſe of his death, took the horrid reſolution of deſtroying both herſelf and her unborn infant by poiſon, thinking to expiate her guilt by the horrid crime of ſuicide.

Thus periſhed a youth, an innocent victim to unlawful love, who promiſed to be an ornament to his country; a melancholy proof of the danger of indulging too great a friendſhip for woman however unequal her years may be. And thus likewiſe fell one, who had lived a maiden, and a wife with an unblemiſhed reputation, and was unthinkingly loſt by giving way to too great a ſorrow for the loſs of her huſband; and who, ſtung to the heart with the reproaches of her own conſcience, cloſed the melancholy period of her life by putting in execution the horrid deed ſhe had reſolved on, leaving a wretched orphan to the friendſhip of relations.

AMERICANS!
BEAR IN REMEMBRANCE
The HORRID MASSACRE!
Perpetrated in King ſtreet, BOSTON,
New England,
On the Evening of March the Fifth, 1770,
When FIVE of your fellow countrymen,
GRAY, MAVERICK, CALDWELL, ATTUCKS and CARR,
Lay wallowing in their Gore!
Being baſely and moſt inhumanly
MURDERED!
And SIX others badly WOUNDED!
By a Party of the XXIXth Regiment,
Under the command of Capt. Thomas Preſton.
REMEMBER!
That TWO of the MURDERERS
Were convicted of MANSLAUGHTER!
By a Jury, of whom I ſhall ſay
NOTHING,
Branded in the hand!
And diſmiſſed,
The others were ACQUITTED,
And their Captain PENSIONED!

Alſo,
BEAR IN REMEMBRANCE
That on the 22d day of February, 1770,
The infamous
EBENEZER RICHARDSON, Informer,
And tool to Miniſterial hirelings,
Moſt barbarouſly
MURDERED
CHRISTOPHER SEIDER,
An innocent youth!
Of which crime he was found guilty
By his Country
On Friday April 20th, 1770;
But remained Unſentenced
On Saturday the 22d day of February 1772,
When the GRAND INQUEST
For Suffolk county,
Were informed, at requeſt,
By the Judges of the Superior Court,
That EBENEZER RICHARDSON's Caſe
Then lay before his MAJESTY.
Therefore ſaid Richardſon
This day MARCH FIFTH! 1772,
Remains UNHANGED!!!

Let THESE things be told to Poſterity!
And handed down
From Generation to Generation,
'Till Time ſhall be no more!

Forever may AMERICA be preſerved,
From weak and wicked monarchs,
Tyrannical miniſters,
Abandoned Governors,
Their Underlings and Hirelings!
And may the
Machinations of artful, deſigning wretches,
Who would Enſlave THIS People,
Come to an end.
Let their Names and Memories
Be buried in eternal oblivion,
And the PRESS,
For a SCOURGE to Tyrannical Rulers,
Remain FREE.

BOSTON, March 5, 1772.

We hear the Honorable James Bowdoin, Eſq; has generouſly offer'd to the Committee of Dr. Cooper's Congregation, the Donation of a large Lot of Land in Tremont-ſtreet, together with ſome Materials on it, for the Purpoſe of building a new Meeting Houſe. The Value of both is moderately computed at Seven hundred Pounds ſterling.

We hear alſo that France is not in a State to engage in a War with Great-Britain, and that without the Aſſiſtance of France there is no danger of a War with Spain:——That the Oppoſition in England is at an end, and the Kingdom in a more quiet and pacifick State than it has been for divers Years paſt. (A Hum!)

Letters are received by the laſt Packet, informing that JOHN TEMPLE, Eſq; lately one of the American Board of Commiſſioners, is appointed Surveyor-General of His Majeſty's Cuſtoms in England, with a Salary of 500 £. Sterling per Annum, and Forty Shillings per day for defraying the Expences of Travelling.

We hear from Scituate, that on the 12th ult. a Tree was cut there, and brought to the Mill, which made 2809 Feet of Inch Boards, 2000 ſhingles, and four Cord of Wood.

We hear from Liverpool, in Nova-Scotia, of the following ſingular, unhappy Occurrence. A Number of ſchool-boys, for their Amuſement, in the Abſence of their Maſter, formed themſelves into what they called a Court; and immediately exerciſed their Authority in the Trial of a Boy for wearing remarkably ragged Cloaths, who was firſt ſentenced to be whipped: But as this Puniſhment was ſaid to be inadequate to the Crime, they ordered a ſecond Trial, before what they called the Superior Court; when he was ſentenced to be hanged. They made Preparation for the Execution, ſet him upon a Table, with a Rope about his Neck, one End of which was made faſt to ſomething above; when, pulling away the Table, he was left hanging; and before they could cut him down, he was dead. It is ſuppoſed they were not aware how quick he would die, and intended to cut him down before he received any injury. A number of them were committed to Goal.

BOSTON, March 9.

IT is ſaid, a certain pompoſitous Gentlemen of the Robes, upon hearing a ſuppoſed part of the contents of the paper delivered by the Grand Jury to the Court, that expreſſed their great grief and ſurpriſe that Richardſon ſhould ly ſo long in goal at the expence of this county and delay of juſtice, ſaid, more like an honeſt Teague than a Lawyer, "If I was judges, I'd ſend them all to goal!"—Strange and new doctrine this, even from a friend to government, that a Grand Jury of Inqueſt for the county ought to be ſent to goal, for ſcrupulouſly adhering to their oaths, whoſe virtue and fortitude riſes SUPERIOR to diſtinction of perſons.——Does he find any ſuch rigid doctrines regiſtered, even in the goodly Star Chamber codes; however ſuch an intrepid partizan doubtleſs merits ſome notice of the gods.

It being well underſtood, that the enemies to the rights of America, & ſuch as are fond of ſtanding armies being placed in our moſt populous and trading towns in a time of peace, do ſtrongly wiſh that ſome diſorders may take place to bring a diſcredit upon the public notice which the town has ſo juſtly taken of the wanton and bloody maſſacre, perpetrated in King ſtreet on the evening of 5th of March 1770, by a party of ſoldiers under the order and eye of Capt. Preſton. It is hoped that thoſe who recollect that horrid ſcene with proper feelings, will take utmoſt care that no unknown and diſguiſed perſons may have it in their power to raiſe any tumult or riot, to diſgrace the ſad ſolemnity of this memorable evening.

LONDON, November 26.

The following anecdote is communicated to us for an article of intelligence:—During the adminiſtration of Sir Robert Walpole, a Scotch Colonel, who had aſſiſted Government very frequently in ſome Northern elections, was greatly careſſed by that able ſtateſman, and repeatedly deſired when any office became vacant, that he would immediately apply for it. This was an advice which the bonny Scot held too agreeable to neglect; he therefore applied for place after place, as it fell, but was conſtantly told with a tone of great concern, that it was that moment unfortunately diſpoſed of; however, that he ſhould certainly have the very next which dropped. The Archbiſhop of Canterbury at length dying the Colonel repaired to Downing-ſtreet; and requeſted an audience of the Miniſter. This being granted, "Sir Robert (ſays he) the Archbiſhop of Canterbury is dead, and you promiſed me poſitively the firſt place which dropped." I did ſo, my dear friend, (returned the Knight) but I meant the next place which was fit for you; remember, you are a military man, and the ſee of Canterbury requires an eccleſiaſtic—ha! ha! ha! you Archbiſhop of Canterbury! Excuſe me, my dear friend, I muſt laugh a little, faith I muſt"——"Laugh as much as you pleaſe, Sir Robert (retorted the Scot) ſo you give me the ſee: you have made Judges of jockies, Privy Counſellors of pandars, and may make an Archbiſhop of a ſoldier, eſpecially as the laſt you know, is an employment always executed by deputy." Sir Robert finding the Scotchman was not to be ſhaken off, made him a Gentleman of the Bed Chamber, and he retired perfectly ſatisfied with his 500l. a year.

Extract of a letter from Port-Egmont, in Falkland's, Iſland, Sept. 27.

"On our arrival here, we found the Spaniards in poſſeſſion of the place, and their colours flying; ſince which it has been delivered to our commodore in form, agreeable to the Convention, except the cannon (there were but four) and ſtores, all which they have taken away and ſent to Buenos Ayres. The climate ſeems very healty and agreeable."

The following toaſt is now very faſhionable in Dublin: "May Dr. Clement adminiſter the ſame potions to Counties, as his patriotic predeceſſor Dr. Lucas.

NEWPORT, February 24.

The fore part of laſt week an armed ſchooner (what ſchooner we know not) ſeized a ſmall freight boat, with about ten or twelve hogſheads of rum, &c. on board, which were ſent from Eaſt-Greenwich, in this colony, to be ſhipped from this place to Philadelphia, in order to purchaſe flour, bread, &c. and we are told that this Rum, &c. had been legally imported, and entered at our Cuſtom-Houſe. Alſo, we are aſſured that on Thurſday laſt, a boat going from this port to Prudence, in this Colony, but a few miles from hence, was ſeized by the ſame unknown ſchooner, only for having three hoſheads of molaſſes on board, which molaſſes was legally imported, and the duties paid laſt week:——Theſe three hoſheads of molaſſes, we are told belonged to a poor man, who has now loſt the full value of all he is worth under heaven!——Some ſays, this p-r-t-c-l ſchooner belongs to K G---- the Th--d; but we ſhould think it a little below his Br-t-n-c Majeſty to keep men of war employed in robbing ſome of the pooreſt ſubjects, who are ſcarcely able to procure the common neceſſaries of life; when thoſe men of war might be ſo well employed, eſpecially at this time, againſt Spain, who has inſulted the Br-t-ſh Flag in almoſt all parts of the globe, within theſe eighteen or twenty months paſt, and very lately in the Weſt-Indies and Falkland-Iſland.—America take CARE of your PROPERTIES!! For according to preſent appearances, you may ſoon expect to have your Fire-Wood SEIZED, if it be tranſported by water from one place to another without clearing & entering. The above ſchooner has a number of ſwivel and carriage guns. Since the above account was received, we are informed that his M——y's ſchooner Gaſpee has been cruiſing our rivers for near a week paſt; but for what intent we cannot learn, unleſs it be to meet, and manfully attack, thoſe enemies who have lately treated with contempt the whole Engliſh nation.

It is ſaid the B——h miniſtry think it much ſafer (though a little more diſgraceful, but that is no matter) to keep their men of war, Frigates, Cutters, armed Sloops and Schooners, cruiſing on the coaſts, and plundering the navigation, &c. of their induſtrious, unarmed N. American friends; than to attack their haughty, daring and inſulting enemies, the French and Spaniards!!

HARTFORD, March 17.

A few Days ſince, early in the Morning, a Negro Man, belonging to Mr. Thomas Craulton, Merchant, of Newport, having had ſome Difference with a Negro Wench, his Wife, beat her very ſeverely, and ſat fire in ſeveral Places to the Houſe of Mr. Ebenezer Malbone, Merchant, where ſhe lived.—He immediately afterwards ſat fire to his Maſter's Still-Houſe, where was a large Quantity of Rum, and drowned himſelf in one of the Vats, firſt opening all the Scuttles.—The Fires were timely diſcovered, and extinguiſhed.

Laſt Friday ended the ſitting of the Superior Court for March Term, when the following Perſons received ſentence, viz John Smith of Suffield, for counterfeiting New-York and New-Jerſy Bills, to have his right ear cut off and be branded on the forehead with the letter C, his eſtate confiſcated, be confined to a work-houſe for life, and be kept to hard labour under the care of a maſter, and that he not depart therefrom, under penalty of being ſeverely whip'd.——Alſo, Edward Williams of Eaſt-Windſor, and Phineas Granger of Suffield, for engraving inſtruments for, and appropriating them to the uſe of counterfeiting Coin, to have their right ears cut off, and be branded on the forehead with the letter C, be whip'd 20 laſhes, and be impriſoned ſix months, without bail or mainprize, which ſentence (except whipping, which was ſuſpended on account of the ſeverity of the weather) was put in execution the next day.

The ſmall Number of Cuſtomers that have ſubſcribed for the Courant ſince my laſt Advertiſement not being ſufficient to anſwer the Expence of a Rider and my other Buſineſs preventing me from proſecuting the Matter in a thorough Manner, has determined me to reſign it up to Mr. WATSON the Printer, who is determined to carry on the ſame in ſuch a Way as ſhall be thought moſt beneficial to the Public.

Theſe are to inform the public, that whereas a tranſient Negro man, who calls his name Fortune, to appearance about 50 years of age, of a midling ſtature, who came to Torrington on the 18th day of January laſt, and taken in by Mr. Aaron Auſtin of ſaid town, in a very diſtreſſing condition, on account of his being much froze, where he remains at great charge. And as no intelligence can be had by ſaid Negro, he giving ſo many falſe accounts where he came from, or who his maſter is, (although great inquiry having been made therefor, both in and out of the government. POETS CORNER.

The PHILOSOPHER and the COXCOMB.

A Coxcomb once in Handel's parlour found
A Grecian lyre, & try'd to make it ſound
O'er the fine ſtops his aukward fiſt he flings,
And rudely preſſes on th' elaſtic ſtrings;
Awaken'd diſcord ſhrieks and ſcolds, and raves,
Wild as the diſſonance of winds and waves,
Loud as a Wapping mob at midnight baw s,
Harſh as ten chariots rolling round St. Paul's,
And hoarſer far than all the extatic race,
Whoſe drunken orgies ſtunn'd the wilds of Thrace
Friend quoth the ſage that fine machine contains
Exalter numbers and diviner ſtrains;
Strains, ſuch at once could build the Theban wall
And ſtop the mountain torrent in its fall:
But yet, to make them, rouze them, and inſpire,
Aſks a fine finger, and a touch of fire;
A feeling ſoul whoſe all expreſſive pow'rs
Can copy Nature as ſhe ſinks or ſoars,
And, juſt, alike to paſſion, time, and place,
Refine correctneſs into eaſe and grace.
He ſaid—and, flying o'er each quiv'ring wire,
Spread his light hand, and ſwept it on the lyre.
Quick to his touch the lyre began to glow,
The ſound to kindle, and the air to flow,
Deep as the murmurs of the falling floods,
Sweet as the warbles of the vocal woods:
The liſt'ning paſſions hear, and ſink, and riſe,
As the rich harmony or ſwells, or dies:
The pulſe of avarice forgets to move,
A purer rapture fills the breaſt of love;
Devotion lifts to heaven a holier eye,
And bleeding pity heaves a ſofter ſigh.
Life has its eaſe, amuſement, joy, and fire,
Hid in itſelf as muſic in the lyre;
And, like the lyre, will all its pow'rs impart,
When touch'd and manag'd by the hand of art;
But half mankind, like Handel's fool deſtroy,
Through rage and ignorance, the ſtrain of joy;
Irregularly will the paſſions roll
Through nature's fineſt inſtrument, the ſoul:
While men of ſenſe, with Handel's happier ſkill,
Correct the taſte, and harmonize the will,
Teach their affections like his notes to flow,
Not rais'd too high, nor ever ſunk too low;
Till ev'ry virtue, meaſur'd and refin'd,
As fits the concert of the maſter mind,
Melts in its kindred ſounds, and pours along
Th' according muſic of the moral ſong.

Whereas the buſineſs

of carrying the Connecticut Courant to Litchfield county, has for a number of years paſt been carried on by Mr. William Stanton, of Litchfield. who having engaged in other buſineſs, finds it inconvenient to continue in ſaid buſineſs any longer. THIS is to give notice to all perſons who incline to become ſubſcribers for ſaid paper in that quarter, that Mr. Joſeph Bunce of Hartford, has undertaken to ſupply them therewith, and will ſet out from Hartford on tueſday, and be at Litchfield tueſday evening, from Litchfield he will go to New Milford, and New Fairfield, then to Sharon and the City, in York government, then to Saliſbury and Canaan, then to Goſhen and Torrington, then to New Hartford, and through Simſbury to Hartford, provided a ſufficient number of ſubſcribers appear to ſupport the expence. He will ride once in a fortnight to deliver the papers at the places where they ſhall be directed to be left, at the moderate price of Nine Shillings each per year; & at the preſent unſettled ſtate of public affairs, together with the great proſpect of a ſpeedy WAR, renders the papers of conſequence to the public, it is imagined a ſufficient number to defray the expences will ſoon appear. Thoſe who were ſubſcribers when Mr. Stanton rode as poſt will have their papers left where he left them, by leaving their names at thoſe places. Thoſe who ſubſcribed to Mr. John Hoye will have their papers continued to them. And as the undertaking will be attended with very great expence at firſt, ſaid Bunce hopes every cuſtomer will not think him unreaſonable to aſk, but will willingly comply with his requeſt of paying four ſhillings at the time of their ſubſcribing, which will enable him to carry on the buſineſs in ſuch a manner as to give them ſatisfaction. This he hopes to merit by his being very punctual as to the delivery of the papers at a particular ſet time.——Any perſon may at any time make payment to him when on his circuit, or to Mr. William Stanton at Litchfield.

ALL perſons indebted to the ſubſcriber for the Connecticut Courant, are deſired to leave their reſpective ballances at the ſeveral places where their papers have been left, as ſoon as may be, up to No 378, at which time he will diſcontinue riding as a carrier of ſaid paper, as he finds by long experience, that the number of ſubſcribers for ſaid paper, is by far too ſmall to defray the expence.

LONDON.

Tranſlation of a Letter from Civita Vecchia

"YESTERDAY a felucca arrived here from Corſica. I have only time by this poſt, to ſend you the following extraordinary intelligence: next week you ſhall receive intelligence ſtill more extraordinary, that will ſurprize you much.

"At Oletta, nine French ſoldiers, three weeks paſt, found an old peaſant, in appearance paſt ſeventy, in a cottage in this place much wounded, and in company with his two daughters, who anxiouſly attended the critical ſituation of his health: not doubting but he was wounded in a ſkirmiſh with the French troops they compelled the eldeſt of the daughters to ſhoot the father when bound to a cheſnut tree, and afterwards murdered the two daughters.

"At Sanguino, three Corſican girls, about nine years of age, were yeſterday hanged up by their feet in the market place, by order of a French Major, for having cried, Viva il Coſtro Generale Illuſtriſſimo Signo Paulo Having hung an hour, by order of the officer, their throats were cut, and they were ſuffered to hang bleeding the reſt of the day.

"At Pallorechio, a father and ſon being returned to this place, after the laſt ſkirmiſh with the French, and much wounded, a party of French ſoldiers immediately ſeized the father and ſon; and put them into chains. The next morning they compelled the father, before a multitude of Corſican peaſants, to fire at his ſon, aged 31 years who was inſtantly ſhot through the body.

"At Crocciaci, a Corſican prieſt, worn out with age, and much wounded, found by a French officer and his party near this town; they immediately cut off the old man's legs, plucked out his tongue by the roots, ſtuck his eyes full of pins, and filled his mouth with pebbles; leaving the mutilated body upon the road.

"At Veſcovato, a decrepid peaſant, with every mark of venerable old age, ſupported by his ſon, a youth of 20, paſſing through this town, were laſt week ſeized for ſpies; the old man blind, the ſon deaf and dumb. Theſe objects of univerſal charity were by French penetration inſtantly dubbed ſpies. The unfortunate youth was beheaded, and his head placed in the hands of venerable old age, and who was immediately hung upon a tree.

"The French threaten there ſhall be an avenue formed with Corſican bodies, from Baſtia to Florenzo; nor is it to be doubted, for they have diſtributed two thouſand ſcalping knives among their troops, with a premium of twenty livres for every Corſican ſcalp. A brilliant proof of the politeneſs and humanity of the moſt refined nation in Europe, as the French ſtile themſelves, and who firſt taught the ſavage Americans the uſe of the ſcalping knife; who taught barbarity to the moſt inhuman of ſavages!

Frontiers of Poland, Nov. 16. Koſinſki, who is continually undergoing examinations, has confeſſed, that he was ſent by Pulawſki, with the other conſpirators, to take the King alive or dead; and that he engaged them to the execution of their deſign by the following oath, before the miraculous image of the Holy Virgin:

"We, being excited by an holy and religious zeal, have taken a firm and unſhaken reſolution to revenge the cauſe of the Divinity, religion, and our country, which has been injured by the tyrant Staniſlaus Auguſtus, deſpiſer of laws divine and human, uſurper of the Throne of Poland, promoter of Atheiſts and Hereticks, traitor to his country, oppreſſor of the nation, and a vile inſtrument of foreign ambition and injuſtice, do ſwear and promiſe before the ſacred and miraculous image of the Mother of God, to ſacrifice our fortunes, lives, and families in order to extirpate from the earth one who diſhonours it, by trampling under foot the reſpect due to the Divinity, religion, and the privileges of the nation. So help us God."

Marſeilles, Nov 29. Advice from Conſtantinople of the 3d of this month bring, that Count Orlow had preſented himſelf with all his fleet, on the 12th of October, before the Dardanelles, the caſtle of which, on the European ſide he cannonaded with ſome of his ſhips of war, but without doing it any great damage. The Ruſſian ſquadron afterwards retired, leaving four frigates.

Newcaſtle, Dec. 14. By ſundry letters from Carliſle this week we are aſſured, that the Solway moſs ſtill continues to diſcharge itſelf, and that it has now covered 700 acres or more of fine holme land; alſo that the matter has now got into the Eſk, and it is feared will deſtroy the valuable ſalmon fiſhery near Longtown.

"Laſt Saturday and Sunday there was here the moſt blowing weather I ever remember; large trees were torn up by the roots, barns were blown down, dwelling houſes unroofed, and ſome cottages laid flat; but I hear of no lives being loſt—The ſea ran ſo high, that great part of our low grounds were laid under water, and many head of cattle drowned; but the ſeas along our coaſt preſented to our view a moſt melancholy ſcene, the wrecks of ſhips and dead bodies being every tide thrown up; in ſhort, by what we can here ſee, the damage at ſea muſt be very great"

"The inhabitants of this town have been greatly alarmed by three large Spaniſh ſhips putting in here; the Captains pretended they came to trade with the Boſtonians, for ſome of the woollen goods manufactured in this province, and went to ſeveral warehouſes, where they agreed for divers ſorts, and depoſited ſome money as part of payment.—This took off all ſuſpicion they had any bad deſign; however, in a morning or two, they were diſcovered taking plans of every part of the town and fortifications, which the Magiſtrates thought proper to take from them, and ordered the ſeveral tradeſmen to return their depoſit money; and then told the Spaniſh Captains, that if they did not immediately quit the town they would be treated as ſpies; they accordingly went on board their ſhips, and put to ſea immediately. The ſoldiers have been under arms ever ſince, in caſe they ſhould return with a greater force to attack us by ſurprize."

On BENEVOLENCE.

An Eastern Story.

CARAZAN, the Merchant of Bagdat, was eminent throughout all the Eaſt, for his Avarice and his wealth: his Origin was obſcure, as that of the Spark, which by the colliſion of Steel and Adamant, is ſtruck out of Darkneſs: and the patient Labour of perſevering Dilligence, alone had made him rich. It was remembered, that when he was indigent, he was thought to be generous; and he was ſtill acknowledged to be inexorably juſt. but whether, in his Dealings with Men he diſcovered a Perfidy which tempted him to put his Truſt in Gold or whether in proportion as he accumulated Wealth he diſcovered his own Importance to increaſe Carazan prized it more as he uſed it leſs: he gradually loſt the inclination to do good, as he acquired the Power;—and as the Hand of Time ſcattered Snow upon his Head, the freezing Influence extended to his Boſom. But the Door of Carazan was never opened by Hoſpitality, nor his Hand by Compaſſion, yet Fear led him conſtantly to the Maſque at the ſtated Hours of Prayer. he performed all the rights of Devotion, with the moſt ſcrupulous Punctuality, and had thrice paid his Vows at the Temple of the Prophet That Devotion which ariſes from the Love of God, and neceſſarily includes the Love of Man, as it connects Gratitude with Beniſicence and exalts that which was Moral to Divine, confers new Dignity upon goodneſs, and is the Object not only of Affection but Reverence.

On the contrary, the Devotion of the ſelfiſh, whether it be thought to avert the Puniſhment which every one wiſhes to be inflicted, or to inſure it by the complication of Hypocriſy with Guilt, never fails to excite Indignation and Abhorrence. Carazan therefore, when he had locked his Door, and turning round with a look of circumſpective ſuſpicion, proceeded to the Maſque, was followed by every Eye with ſilent malignity; the Poor ſuſpended their ſupplication when he paſſed by; and though he was known by every Man yet no Man ſaluted him.

Such had long been the Life of Carazan, and ſuch was the Character he had acquired, when Notice was given by Proclamation, that he was removed to a magnificent Building in the Center of the City, that his Table ſhould be ſpread for the Public, and that the ſtranger ſhould be welcome to his Bed. The Multitude ſoon ruſhed like a Torrent to his Door, where they Beheld him diſtributing Bread to the hungry, and Apparel to the naked, his Eye ſoftened with Compaſſion and his Cheeks glowing with Delight. Every one gazed with aſtoniſhment at the Prodigy; and the Murmer of innumerable Voices increaſing like the Sound of approaching Thunder, Carazan beckoned with his Hand, Attention ſuſpended the Tumult in a Moment, and he thus gratified the Curioſity which had procured him an Audience.

"To him who touches the Mountains & they Smoke, the Almighty and the moſt Merciful be everlaſting Honour! He has ordained Sleep to be the Miniſter of inſtruction, and his Viſions have reproved me in the Night. As I was ſitting alone in my Haram, with my Lamp burning before me, computing the product of my Merchandize, and exulting in the increaſe of my Wealth, I fell into a deep Sleep. and the Hand of him who was in the third Heavens was upon me. I beheld the Angel of Death coming forward like a whirlwind and he Smote me before I could deprecate the Blow. At the ſame Moment I felt myſelf lifted from the Ground, and tranſported with aſtoniſhing rapidity through the Regions of the Air. The Earth was contracted to an Atom beneath; and the Stars glowed round me with a Luſter that obſcured the Sun. The Gate of Paradiſe was now in Sight; and I was intercepted by a ſudden brightneſs which no Human Eye could Behold: the irrevocable Sentence was now to be pronounced; my Day of Probation was paſt, and from the Evil of my Life nothing could be taken away, nor could any thing be added to the Good. When I reflected that my Lot for Eternity was caſt, which not all the Powers of Nature could reverſe, my Confidence totally forſook me; and while I ſtood trembling and ſilent, covered with Confuſion chilled with Horror, I was thus addreſs'd by the Radience that flamed before me.

"Carazan, thy Worſhip has not been accepted, becauſe it was not prompted by the Love of GOD; neither can thy Righteouſneſs be rewarded, becauſe it was not produced by Love of Man; for thy own Sake only haſt thou rendered to every Man his Due: and thou haſt approached the Almighty only for thyſelf Thou haſt not looked up with Gratitude, nor round thee with kindneſs. Around thee, thou haſt indeed, beheld Vice and Folly; but if Vice and Folly could juſtify thy Parſimony, would they condemn the Bounty of Heaven? If not upon the fooliſh and vicious, where ſhall the Sun diffuſe its Light, or the Clouds diſtil their Dew? Where ſhall the Lips of the Spring breath Fragrance or the Hand of Autumn diffuſe Plenty? Remember, Carazan, that thou haſt ſhut Compaſſion from thine Heart, and graſped thy treaſures with a Hand of Iron: thou haſt lived for thyſelf; and, therefore, henceforth forever ſhalt thou Subſiſt alone. From the Light of Heaven, and from the Society of all Beings ſhalt thou be driven; Solitude ſhall protract the lingering Hours of Eternity, and darkneſs Aggravate the horrors of Deſpair" At this Moment I was driven by ſome ſecret & irreſiſtable Power through the glowing Syſtem of Creation, and paſſed innumerable Worlds in a Moment. As I approached the Verge of Nature, I perceived the Shadows of total and boundleſs Vacuity deepen before me, a dreadful Region of Eternal Silence, Solitude and Darkneſs! unutterable Horror ſeized me at the Proſpect and this Exclamation burſt from me with all the Vehemence of Deſire; "O! that I had been doomed forever to the common receptacle of Impenitence and Guilt! Their Society would have alleviated the torment of Deſpair and the rage of Fire could not exclude the comfort of Light. Or if I had been condemned to reſide on a Comet, that would Return but once in a Thouſand Years to the regions of Light and Life; the Hope of theſe Periods however Diſtant, would Chear me in the dreary Interval of Cold and Darkneſs, and the Viciſſitudes would divide Eternity into Time." While this Thought paſſed over my Mind, I loſt Sight of the remoteſt Star, and the laſt glimmering of Light was quench'd in utter Darkneſs The agonies of Deſpair every Moment increaſed, as every Moment augmented my Diſtance from the laſt habitable World. I reflected with intollerable Anguiſh, that when ten Thouſand Thouſand Years had carried me beyond the reach of all but that Power who fills Infinitude, I ſhould ſtill look forward into an immenſe Abyſs of Darkneſs, through which I ſhould drive without Succour and without Society, farther and farther ſtill forever and ever. I then ſtretched out my Hands towards the regions of Exiſtance, with an Emotion that awaked me.

Thus have I been taught to eſtimate Society, like every other Bleſſing by its Loſs. My Heart is warmed to Liberality; and I am zealous to communicate the Happineſs which I feel, to thoſe from whom it is derived; for the Society of one Wretch, whom in the Pride of Proſperity, I would have ſpurned from my Door, would in the dreadful Solitude to which I was condemned, have been more highly prized, than the Gold of Affric or the Gems of Golconda.

At this Reflection upon his Dream. Carazan became ſuddenly Silent, and looked upward in an Extacy of Gratitude and Devotion, the Multitude were ſtruck at once with the Precept and Example; and the Caliph, to whom the Event was related, that he might be Liberal beyond the Power of Gold, commanded it to be recorded for the Benefit of Poſterity.

To the PRINTER.

SIR,

YOUR giving a Place in your Paper to the above Hiſtory, may Oblige many of your Readers, and poſſibly be of ſervice to ſome of the lower Claſs of People, by opening the Heart of ſome Miſers, who like Carazan are Honeſt and Appear conſtantly at Public Worſhip, and alſo in Private, approach the Almighty in Prayers and Supplications, and all extends no further than to ſerve their own Intereſts. For they have not the leaſt Spark of Charity, but on the contrary, will let (poſſibly) a Neighbour, who is in the greateſt Miſery by Extreme poverty and want, together with a Wife and Children, all (ſicken nay) even die, rather than part with any of his darling Minion—Gold—And as they are ſo entirely Bound up in themſelves, there needs ſomething to Rouſe them from that inſenſibility in which they ſeem to be buried, and I could Wiſh that they were driven from the Face of every human Being. Nay, where the Foot of any living thing never preſs'd the Earth, and let the Place to which they were driven, be utter Darkneſs, where the weſtern Breeze never viſited, nor Sun ever Shone, nay where Light never Enter'd, nor ever will to the boundleſs Ages of Eternity. To ſuch a Place let them (if on Earth there is ſuch a one) be driven, there to tarry until they ſee the Value of Society and was glad to diſpence with what was not of real Uſe to themſelves for the Benefit of their ſellowCreatures; and would endeavour to advance their Happineſs equally with their own.

I am, Sir Your's,

AS it is inconſiſtent with civil policy to import the Natives of Africa into the colonies, witneſs the Weſt India Iſlands, South Carolina, &c.* ſo I conclude it is inconſiſtent with the ſame, as well as abſolutely repugnant to Chriſtianity to keep thoſe already brought amongſt us, and their poſterity, in perpetual ſlavery; firſt, as ſlaves they do not contribute to the public good equal with other Labourers; ſecondly, the injunction of our Saviour, "do unto all men as you would they ſhould do unto you." But the common objection to ſetting them at liberty is, that but few take a proper care for a livelihood, and the laws oblige the Maſter of ſuch ſlaves to provide for them —— Upon which I argue firſt, their education is generally very low and illiterate; ſecondly, moſt of thoſe, who have been tried with freedom, are ſuch as have begun to feel the decline of nature; I would therefore adviſe thoſe in poſſeſſion of young negroes, to give them an education ſuitable for a rational being; learn them to read and write, which will qualify them for buſineſs; give them the privilege of reading the ſcriptures, and other hiſtory, and then, I doubt not, but they would devote their leiſure hours, in ſearch of uſeful knowledge, which, for want of ſuch education are employed in actions deſtructive to their morals. I am fully of the opinion, were ſuch an education to be given to the young Negroes, and they to be ſet at liberty, from 21 to 25 years of age, that the legiſlative bodies, from principles of ſound policy, might enact laws to maintain ſuch as through the common accidents in life, might be rendered unable to ſupport themſelves, as are already provided for the poor.

ANECDOTE.

AS ſome Chriſtian captives at Algiers, who had been ranſom'd, were going to be diſcharged, the cruiſers brought in a Swediſh veſſel. Among the crew was the father of one of thoſe captives. The ſon ſoon made himſelf known to the father, but their unhappineſs to meet in that place was grievous to both. The young man however, conſidering that the ſlavery his father was going into would inevitably put an end to his life, requeſted, that his father might be releaſed, and himſelf detained in his room; which the Moors readily granted; but when the ſtory was told the Governor, he was ſo affected with it, that he cauſed the ſon likewiſe to be diſcharged, as the reward of his filial tenderneſs.

LONDON, December 10.

Friday the 6th of December, 31 Priſoners were tried at the Old Bailey four Jews, viz. Levi Weil, Aſher Weil, Jacob Lazarus, alias Hyam Dreſden; alias Hyam Lazarus, and Solomon Porter, alias Solomon Moſes, were tried for Murder at Mrs. Hutchins; the Jury in 20 Minutes brought them all in guilty: On Monday the 9th they were executed at Tyburn. Their Wives and Children were admitted into the Preſs Yard to take their leave of them, before they ſet out. The Prieſt did not attend them at the Gallows, but gave each of them a Book in the Preſs Yard. After they were hung the uſual time their Bodies were taken down and carried to Surgeons Hall for diſſection Levi Weil, the Phyſician, is to be anatomized, and hung up in Surgeons Hall.

An Anathema was pronounced on Saturday laſt, at the Synagogue in the Duke's Place againſt all the accomplices in the late robbery at Mrs. Hutchins's.

The Jews taken into cuſtody lately, for being concerned in the robbery of Mrs Hutchin's have we hear, impeached a gang of thirty more in the neighbourhood of Whitechapel, the Minories, &c.

March 16 We hear, three of the priſoners confined in the goal of this city, died during the laſt week and the Coroner's Inqueſt have found that they periſhed through the want of neceſſaries. Think of this, ye who diſſipate the bounty of heaven in idle amuſements—who waſte more money in one night's debauch, than would ſupport a little family for a week! Ye who live in affluence, and who are ſtrangers to the calamities of hunger and cold—Oh! forget not to relieve your unhappy fellow creatures from the anguiſh of them both. Theſe poor ſufferers, like Lazarus of old aſk for nothing but the "Crumbs which fall from your tables" The very refuſe of your kitchens, beds, and wearing apparel would be received by them with joy and thankfulneſs. We hope the humane part of the inhabitants of this city will guard for the future againſt accidents of the like nature and thus wipe off the diſhonour which the above melancholy cataſtrophe has done not only to Chriſtianity but to humanity. The inclemency of the preſent ſeaſon ſtill calls upon the public to afford relief to numbers who are now under confinement, and in great diſtreſs in our goal.

Immenſe his power, in every orb we view;
His goodneſs ſhines in every pearl of dew:
He was e'er he this boundleſs frame had made,
Or the bright canopy o'er all had ſpread;
E'er he in orbits fix'd the ſtars to ſhine,
Was then the ſame all-wiſe and all divine.
When gloomy chaos wrapt in ſilence all,
He gave command, and nature heard his call.
He bid the ſun diffuſe his cheering rays,
And riſing nature hymn'd it's Maker's praiſe.
Ten thouſand ways thy goodneſs, Lord! is ſeen,
In man, in inſects, and in every green.
Nature muſt ſink to nought beneath thy hand,
And fall, as firſt it roſe, at thy command.
The hero's glory, and the ſculptur'd buſt,
With all the pomp of pride muſt ſink in duſt.
Then riſe, my ſoul! adore his awful name,
Who through eternity is ſtill the ſame.

In anſwer to a Queſtion, What is RELIGION?

RELIGION is a generous, lively flame,
That brightens, not deforms, the human frame;
In the cloſe covert of the heart it lies,
Blooms there, nor ſternly threatens in the eyes.
An unaffected eaſe its actions grace,
Known by the motions of the ſoul, not face.
No ſour reſtraint, no forc'd concern it wears,
No bidden ſighs, nor oſtentatious tears;
No ſelf applauding ſhrugs, no cenſure ſtrife,
No ſpleen at all the blameleſs joys of life.
As wide from this are virtue's native charms,
As ſettled courage from confus'd alarms,
As ſolid reaſon's calm conſiderate train,
From the wild phrenzies of a feveriſh brain.

A QUESTION.

A Rakiſh ſpark the other night,
Who'd learn'd ſome Algebra,
Came home half drunk, as well he might,
From tipling all the day.
His guardian chid him, and complain'd,
He'd run through his eſtate;
And aſk'd how much he'd ſpent that day?
To which he anſwer'd ſtrait——
The ſhillings ſquar'd and multiply'd,
By five times their cube root,
Will make pounds four thouſand ninety ſix,
Whence you may find it out.

To Mr ——— on FRIENDSHIP.

BENEATH this cool embow'ring ſhade,
Of thick inwoven woodbines made,
What better theme can charm the hour,
Than friendſhip's life ſuſtaining power?
Say, what could our firſt parent find
In Eden's walks, to feaſt his mind,
Till Eve appear'd with blooming grace,
To crown the pleaſure of the place?
Friendſhip's the bond of bliſs above,
Where all is harmony and love;
And hatred's brand inflames the woe
Of fiends and howling ghoſts below.
Where firſt the all creating ſire,
Beam'd forth this intellectual fire,
Divinely capable to riſe,
And mingle with congenial ſkies,
Friendſhip prevail'd upon his breaſt,
As if in boundleſs bliſs unbleſs'd,
Till ſouls where his bright image glow'd,
Were kindled to commune with God.
Friendſhip her healing luſtre's power,
Are nature in her healing hour;
Or life with rayleſs gloom o'ercaſt,
Would howl a ſolitary waſte.

BOSTON, March 9 1772.

AGreeable to a vote of the Town for that purpoſe, a Meeting was called on Thurſday the 5th of March current; at which the Committee appointed laſt year for that Purpoſe, reported that they had engaged JOSEPH WARREN Eſq; to deliver an ORATION, on the dangerous Tendency of Standing Armies to the Rights of Civil Society, and in Commemoration of the horrid Maſſacre perpetrated on the Evening of the 5th of March 1770; which in Conſequence of the Weekly Lecture falling on the Forenoon, it was voted to begin at Half paſt Twelve at the Old South Meeting Houſe. Doctor CHAUNCY, whoſe Turn it was to Preach at the Lecture that Day, favored a numerous Audience with a Diſcourſe very pertinent to the Occaſion, at the Concluſion of which, the People crowded to hear the ORATION in ſuch Numbers, that it was with much Difficulty the Orator reached the Pulpit, which was covered with Black Cloth. The Oration took up about 35 Minutes; during which Space, we will venture to affirm, no Species of Entertainment could have afforded a more general, ſolemn, and hearty Satisfaction.—At Night a ſelect Number of the Friends of Conſtitutional Liberty, met at Mrs. Clapham's in King-ſtreet, and exhibited on the Balcony a Lanthorn of tranſparent Paintings, having in Front, a lively Repreſentation of the bloody Maſſacre which was perpetrated near that Spot on the Fifth of March 1770. Over their Heads was inſcribed,

"The fatal Effects of a Standing Army, poſted in a Free City."

Eze Williams Esq

WHEREAS the maſſacreing G—— Tryon of New York, has iſſued a proclamation, and cauſed it to be inſerted in the New-York Mercury, in which he attempts to acquaint the public the ſtate of the controverſy ſubſiſting between the numerous families ſettled upon the lands granted under the great ſeal of the province of New Hampſhire, and certain mercenary, intrigueing, monopolizing men of the city of New York and elſewhere, which conſtitute an infamous fraternity of diabolical plotters, after the lands aforeſaid. And whereas G. Tryon in his proclamation, has either through ignorance or deſign, given the public a very wrong narrative of the ſtate & facts of the controverſy aforeſaid, of which every perſon acquainted with the New Hampſhire ſettlements can witneſs—and being fluſh'd with victory over the Carolinians, has breathed through his proclamation the ſpirit of ſlavery and horror to the ſettlers aforeſaid—and having dy'd his feariſh proclamation, and ting'd it with a tincture of the crimſon of North Carolina, horrible ſcene! I do not propoſe to quote the numerous accuſations and falſe repreſentations, contained in the proclamation, and then ſhew at large, the fallacy thereof, for this would be too prolix for a news paper. I ſhall therefore briefly obſerve, that G—— Tryon in his proclamation, affirms the following falſity. (Let this anſwer for a ſpecimen of the reſt.) viz. That the ſettlers aforeſaid, "daily commit acts of violence, openly bid defiance to the authority of this government, by oppoſing the execution of every legal proceſs, &c.". This is notoriouſly falſe. For in caſes of debt upon contract the inhabitants of them lands, have never oppoſed any ſheriff, conſtable or deputiſed perſon in the execution of their office—the truth is, that the inhabitants aforeſaid, ſubmit to every legal proceſs, and refuſe to ſubmit to none, but ſuch as are manifeſtly illegal, ſubverſive of property, and inconſiſtent with the firſt principles of common ſenſe, and which, if complyed with, would terminate in the inrichment of the aforeſaid fraternity of execrable plotters after the lands aforeſaid, upon the property, labours, and final ruin of themſelves.— True, the ſaid inhabitants oppoſed the ſheriff of Albany county when he came to take poſſeſſion of their houſes and farms in order to give the poſſeſſion of them to a number of rapacious wretches, more deſerving the halter. When New York by the handle of juriſdiction, aim at the property of the inhabitants, and that flagrantly, can they expect obedience? Surely it is not due in this caſe. Can the New York ſcriblers, by the art of printing alter wrong into right, or make any perſon of good ſenſe believe that a great number of hard labouring peaſants, going through the fatigues of ſettlement, and cultivation of a howling wilderneſs, are a community of riotous, diſorderly, licentious, treaſonable perſons? Surely they cannot. Among the aforeſaid inhabitants there is no talk or ſurmiſe, whether there be any unloyal perſons or not, but it is taken for granted, that one and all of them are leige ſubjects to George the third King, &c. But there ſeems to be a generation ariſen at N. York, that appear to be extravagant in loyalty to the king, and talk much of implicit obedience to government. This ſeems to be the firſt and greateſt article of their Creed, mighty ſticklers for loyalty and ſubmiſſiveneſs to government! Strange that theſe ſocial virtues thus abound in the city, and the reverſe of this to take place in the actions, and lives of the inhabitants aforeſaid—a wonderful ſettlement of peaſants and ſuch as the world never was acquainted with before! and it is matter of query, whether they did not take the contagion from N. York from the pen of theſe ſcriblers. I know of but one way that theſe honeſt, induſtrious people, can get rid of the New York imputation of diſloyalty and diſobedience, riotouſneſs and the like, and that is to ſubmit to the doctrine of paſſive obedience and non-reſiſtance, and conſequently give up the property of the country they ſettled and made valuable by extream labour and fatigue to theſe loyaliſts. If this ſhould be done, we ſhould hear no more of riotous, licentious, diſorderly peaſants, altho' loyalty and ſubmiſſion to government, is in itſelf eſſential to the good of ſociety, and in it's own nature fit, agreeable and laudable, yet when an arbitrary, tyrannical uſe is made thereof, it degenerates from the good ends for which it was deſign'd, and terminates in the deſtruction of that very ſociety for which it was deſign'd to protect. And though the inhabitants aforeſaid, have made no reſiſtance againſt government at all, not even againſt tyranny itſelf, further than the laws of ſelf preſervation abſolutely require— yet the intrigueing Yorkers have beat it into the head of their Tryon, that they are a perverſe, riotous generation, ſtimulating faction againſt government, &c. And upon this hypotheſis he proclamates, threatning ſevereſt puniſhments to the inhabitants aforeſaid, except they "demean themſelves as good and faithful ſubjects of New York." which in his ſenſe of demeanour, I conclude he means that the inhabitants aforeſaid, quit the property of the country they have ſettled to him and his favourites; ſuch a demeanour as this God forbid! As to obedience and demeanour in any other ſenſe, the brave inhabitants aforeſaid, are ready to comply and always have comply'd, but the curſed doctrine of paſſive obedience and non reſiſtance, is too much for a brave, free people to ſubmit to, it originated from the capricious, mercenary humour of tyranny, and has been cheriſhed from no other quarter, it is the very quinteſſence of tyranny, ſlavery and horror—— no good man would ever aſſume it, and bad men never fail of making a diabolical uſe thereof. But if the famous or rather infamous G—— Tryon, ſhould make another expedition northward, inſtead of ſouthward, to enſlave a free people, he would find them of a different mettle from the ſouthern provinces, and beſides his perfidious ſort of war taliants are now diſcovered, and his word no more to be taken. Inaſmuch as he ſhot upon the Carolinians contrary to his agreement, ſo that the next time, it is ten to one if he get the firſt ſhot, and not at all probable his interprizing genius, would have a chance to try his courage again, by ſhooting a flag of truce man in the back; moſt likely the northern truces will be aware of him. Theſe things conſidered, it looks highly probable his hinted northern expedition will be attended with different conſequences from his former. Among moſt oppreſſions, violence and monopolizing the property of others, there is ſome ſpecious pretence of right, ſet up to vindicate the actors from the imputation of diſhonour and reproach. So in the preſent caſe. The mercenary Yorkers endeavour to draw the curtain of the Duke of York over their knavery, and under pretence of being the ſons of the apoſtate Duke of York, fancied themſelves the owners of towns, fields and houſes, that they builded not. Yet the government of New York as a government, nor any individual therein, has ever had any conveyance of a foot of land from the Duke of York, nor does any landlord or perſon whatever, hold the fee or property of land in the ſaid province, by virtue of any conveyance from the Duke of York, but they hold the fee of their lands on a very different tenor, viz. by conveyances from the crown; yet if as G—— Tryon's proclamation affirms, that K. Charles gave to his brother James Duke of York in fee, the lands weſt of Connecticut river, to the head of Delaware bay, and allowing the fee to be ſtill veſted in him, his heirs or aſſigns—upon this hypotheſis, no perſon in the province of New-York hath the fee or property of the lands they poſſeſs, the fee remaining the property of the Duke of York, &c. And further, upon the ſame hypotheſis, thoſe individual grants under the great ſeal of New York, which lap upon the grants under the great ſeal of New Hampſhire, are in their own nature equally null and void with all other lands in the ſaid province, which has been granted by the crown, the fee or property being in the Duke of York, &c. ſo that the grantees under New York and New Hampſhire are both upon this ſtating of the caſe, equally deſtitute of the property of the lands conteſted for, but upon this ſtating, the grantees under Hampſhire, have the argument of ſettlement, occupation and poſſeſſion on their ſide, which is abundantly ſufficient to give the priority and preference of title to them, ſo that our proclamationer and his Duanes and Kemps, with all their club of lucrative plotters, gain nothing by building their title upon the ſhoulders of the Duke of York, for if there be any thing in it, it defeats their own title as well as that of New-Hampſhire, proving too much for their purpoſe. But if the lands contained in the Duke of York's grant, reverted back to the crown, then the Duke of York's patent became extinct, null and abſolutely void, and is as though it had not been. Whether the ſaid reverſion happened in conſequence of the ſaid Duke's abdicating the throne turning papiſt, or by any formal ſurrendry of the charter to the crown, or if by any means whatever, if the fee or property of the ſaid lands became re-veſted in the crown, then the Duke of York's charter became extinct as aforeſaid—— ſo that whether the fee of the lands in diſpute, ſtill remains in the Duke of York, &c. or reverted, or was ſurrendered back to the crown; none of all this will in the leaſt juſtify the Yorkers in founding their pretention of title to the lands aforeſaid, by virtue of the old obſolete grant from King Charles to the Duke of York: for take the argument one way, and it overturns both the title of N. York & N Hampſhire; alſo, leaving the New Hampſhire grantees in occupation and poſſeſſion of the land, and that only being deſtitute of the fee thereof, and the York grantees utterly deſtitute of the leaſt colour of title whatever. But take the argument the other way, viz. provided the fee reverted to the crown, then the ſaid lands at the time of granting, were crown lands, the ſame as though the Duke of York had never exiſted. However, the truth of the matter I conclude to be this, viz. That the under proprietors, all except William Penn, who had the ſeveral countries parcelled out to them by the Duke of York, which was contained in his pattent, ſurrendered their charters to the crown, whereby New York and New Jerſey became royal governments. This then being the ſtate of the caſe, the lands in diſpute were crown lands, and the governor of New-Hampſhire as well as New-York, crown officers or king's agents, and it is of no conſequence to the crown, which of his officers grants his lands—if ſo be, they to be granted to, and ſettled by loyal and induſtrious ſubjects, thereby adding to the revenue of the crown, and enlarging and ſtrengthening the kingdom. This being pre ſuppoſed, we will now admit for ſuppoſition only, that the governor of New-Hampſhire exceeded his proper limits, in granting crown lands—yet this was a point, his grantees could not be competent judges in this caſe. Muſt the grantees who have ſettled the crown lands, paid one of the crown officers for granting the ſame, and laid out their all in ſettling and cultivating his Majeſty's wilderneſs land, and who are truly loyal ſubjects, be turned off the ſaid lands by thouſands, and reduced to ſtarving poverty, together with their numerous families, becauſe of the crown officers either ignorantly or deſignedly, impoſed upon the people, by granting crown lands over his bounds? This would be extream wrong—the more ſo, as it cannot be ſuppoſed the ſubjects are capable judges of the juriſdiction of governors, and conſequently there ſhould be the utmoſt care taken, to guard the ſubject from injury in all caſes of this nature. The truth of which will more fully appear, from the following conſiderations, viz. that notwithſtanding the ſuppoſed error in granting the ſaid lands, yet the great end of the crown in granting the ſaid lands, is compleatly anſwered, and provided the ſubjects, viz. the ſettlers are quieted in the fee of the ſaid lands, they will not be injured, ſo that upon this hypotheſis, neither king nor ſubject would ſuſtain damage, although it be ſuppoſed there were an error in granting; indeed, no perſon in the realm could have juſt cauſe of complaint. True, the reſpective governors of New-York may inſinuate, that upon this ſtate of the caſe, the governor of New Hampſhire has cheated them out of their fees for granting the ſaid lands——though it is evident if crown officers are faithful to the king and ſubject, they could not take more money for granting crown lands, than a reaſonable compenſation for their trouble, and the other governor being ſuppoſed to grant the lands, ſaves the reſpective governors of New-York the trouble thereof, ſo that the argument is brought to this narrow criſis at laſt, namely, that upon the ſuppoſition, the governor of New Hampſhire exceeded his proper limits in granting the lands in diſpute yet neither king nor ſubject is injured, provided the ſaid grantees under New Hampſhire, held the fee of the ſaid lands, or any perſon in the whole realm except the reſpective governors of New-York, and if they be ſuppoſed to be honeſt men, the trouble of granting the ſaid lands would have been equal to their fees, ſo that they have not been injured a whit more in this caſe, than they may be ſuppoſed to have injured the ſubjects, by taking exorbitant fees for granting ſaid lands, which to them is no injury at all, but a providential check to the exerciſe of their avarice; ſo that the reſpective governors of New-York in an equitable ſenſe, are no looſers in this affair, or at leaſt the privilege would be ſo very inconſiderable, as to make it mear trifling to mention it, eſpecially if we compare it with the ſore and univerſal diſtraction that would overſpread a large country of his Majeſty's good ſubjects, provided they be diſpoſſeſs'd of the lands aforeſaid. This ſeems to be the genuine ſequel of the arguments even upon the Yorkers own ſtating it: not that I ſuppoſe that the governor of New Hampſhire did in fact exceed his proper limits in granting the ſaid lands. The contrary of all this will appear from the following conſiderations, viz. Before and at the time the governor of New Hampſhire granted ſaid lands, they were reputed by common fame, to be in his province, and common people are not capable of judging upon a higher principle—and ſuch were the generality of the purchaſers and ſettlers, and were conſequently innocent in ſo doing. And furthermore, men of the beſt and moſt refined ſenſe and learning, in the ſeveral adjacent provinces at the time ſaid lands were granted, ſuppoſed that New Hampſhire would extend as far weſt, as Connecticut and the Bay province, and extend north upon a parallel line with them governments, and thus we may find it pland in all the antient maps. This was apparently (the common underſtanding of the nation of both learned and unlearned; but there is another more glaring and undiſputable evidence, of the former weſtern extent of New-Hampſhire, on a parallel with the Bay province, namely, the grand diſpute and ſettlement of the line between the Bay province and New-Hampſhire, the facts are theſe, viz. Fort Dummer, lies weſt of Connecticut river, and on the lands in conteſt, was built and garriſon'd at the expence of the Bay province, and that for a number of years. But upon a ſettlement of the line between the reſpective provinces, it fell into the province of New Hampſhire; afterwards the Bay province and New Hampſhire conteſted which of them ſhould garriſon and maintain it. Inaſmuch as the maintaining that fort was thought to be of as much, or more utility in defending and guarding the frontiers of the Bay province, as that of New-Hampſhire, into which it had fallen. This diſpute was judiciouſly determined by his majeſty and council, and the royal determination was, that New Hampſhire ſhould maintain Fort Dummer, which thing was complied with.——This being the caſe, the governor of New Hampſhire by the royal decree, had to maintain Fort Dummer, it being on the weſt ſide of the ſaid river, and on the very identical lands now in diſpute, can he be juſtly charged with granting lands in the province of New-York when a little before, his majeſty and council, had judged the ſame lands to be his government, and ordered him to defend it, viz to maintain Fort Dummer? Surely at that time his majeſty and council adjudged, the province of New Hampſhire, to have extended weſt of Connecticut river, otherways he had ordered the governor of New York to have maintained it. Nothing can be more flagrantly certain, than that the governor of New-Hampſhire had a right to grant crown lands, where the crown compel'd him to defend. From theſe and many other circumſtances too tedious to mention, it appears that the governor of New Hampſhire had a legal right to grant the lands now in diſpute, and that he and his majeſty's good ſubjects, grantees and ſettlers on the lands aforeſaid, acted upon honeſt and honourable principles, in granting, purchaſing and ſettling the lands aforeſaid, and that they will never be diſpoſſeſs'd thereof. But on the other hand, it appears that the infamous G—— Tryon, together with his inſatiable fraternity of mercenary intriguers after, the lands, labours, houſes and property of the inhabitants aforeſaid, are a parcel of mean-ſpirited ſervile wretches, and that arguments from pointed ſwords, and muzzels of firelocks, would be but a proper reſentment of their inhumanity, if they turn a deaf ear to the reaſons before offered. It is true, in the year A.D 1764 which was ſince the governor of New Hampſhire granted the ſaid lands, his majeſty was pleaſed to conſtitute the weſt banks of Connecticut river, to be the eaſt boundary of the province of New York, but this cannot be ſuppoſed to affect any thing but juriſdiction only, it is ſolely at his majeſty's option to alter juriſdiction as he ſees fit, he may cede the ſaid diſputed lands, back again to the province of New-Hampſhire or erect it into a new province or take any meaſures he ſees convenient as to juriſdiction. But upon ſuch like altercations of juriſdiction perſonal property is never ſubverted; this would render a king abſolute and deſpotic, which is not the conſtitution of our kingdom. There is indeed as much odds between perſonal or private property and juriſdiction, as between light and darkneſs, though knaves may try to blend them together, to ſerve ſiniſter and lucrative purpoſes. G—— Tryon in his proclamation, made no diſtinction reſpecting this laſt particular, nor was there any thing but amuſement and ſcarecrow and fallacy in that performance. It appears impoſſible to my view, that he ſhould at this time, puſh his monopolizing views into the weſt part of the Bay province——I ſhould have thought he might have ſtay'd till he had conquered the New-Hampſhire ſettlers firſt;—his own words are theſe "reſpect to the Maſſachuſetts-Bay, they had poſſeſſed themſelves of the lands weſt of Connecticut river by intruſion." This is a home charge upon ſo great a province—nor could he alledge more againſt the New Hampſhire ſettlers, only as they oppoſe the ſheriff in his attempts to take poſſeſſion of their houſes and farms, and thereby acquired the character of licentious, diſorderly, riotous and wicked. And provided the ſheriff of Albany county with his poſſy, ſhould take a tower into the Bay province, to diſpoſſeſs any of their inhabitants, I will warrant the Bay men will give at leaſt as much latitude for complaint of licentious, diſorderly riotous, &c. as the N. Hampſhire ſettlers have done; though it is true, the obſolete claim under the Duke of York, is equally good againſt that part of the Bay province, weſt of Connecticut river, as againſt the New Hampſhire grants, and nothing but a mighty hand and a ſtretched out arm, can ſecure either, from the ravages of New York: unleſs our moſt gracious ſovereign, ſhould interpoſe his royal authority, and ſubject them to their proper bounds. By a lover of Reaſon and Truth.

Ezra Wildman Esq

NEW-YORK, March 16.

We hear from the Manor of Livingſton, that Mr. Juſtice Livingſton is reelected; that the Freeholders are highly exaſperated at being deprived of their moſt valuable Rights for near two Years, ſince they have not only choſen a perſon qualified by Law, but conformed to the late Conſtruction of our Act of Aſſembly for regulating Elections, and contrary to their uſual Practice for many Years paſt, have now choſen a Reſident. They ſay, that they know of no Diſqualification by Vote, and will never conſent to have their Rights illegally abridged. Many of them reſolve, if the Perſon they have now choſen ſhould be again diſmiſſed, to come down and inſiſt on giving their Votes in Perſon, ſince they are not ſuffered to be repreſented.

LONDON, December 6, 1771.

It is ſaid that the eſtabliſhment of this new Board of Commiſſioners would not only increaſe the Expences of the Nation 50,000*l. a year, but would be a great hurt to trade, by obliging Merchants to pay double fees, and go to two Officers to do their buſineſs, which might be done by one.*

The late celebrated Dr. Lucas did not die poor; he died immenſely rich: rich in ſentiment, ſpirit and independence; rich in integrity and public eſteem; rich in true dignity and honour; rich in every refined quality and ornament of the human mind; rich in a poſſeſſion of the whole train of virtues; rich, magnificently rich even in extreme poverty. Living, he enjoyed a ſecret happineſs unknown to the baſe and venal; and dying, (we will preſume) felt "that ſweet hope ſpringing in his ſoul," which, in the laſt fatal moment, every good man feels.

Dec. 7. Lord Sandwich declared at the laſt Council he attended, that he was reſolved to keep the navy in thorough repair, to be always ready for action at three days warning; ſo that if inſults offered to Great-Britain were not properly and immediate redreſſed, it would be no fault of his.

A popular Nobleman has lately received ſeveral letters from Britain in Reading goal, containing a variety of contradictory and abſurd charges, which prove his ſtory relative to ſetting Portſmouth-Dock on fire a mere fiction.

It is confidently reported advice has been received that the French and Spaniards are meditating an important blow in the Weſt Indies.

There were no leſs than thirty Spaniſh men of war in ſight, when the Hawke ſchooner was ordered to ſtrike by the two frigates off Carthagena; ſo that the more the matter is inquired into, the more excuſable we ſhall find the Britiſh Lieutenant.

LONDON Dec. 8.

A few days ago four young women went before a juſtice of peace near Guildford, in Surry and each ſwore herſelf with child by one young man, a Farmer's ſon in the neighbourhood.

Dec. 7. Laſt Saturday his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland and his Ducheſs paid a ſhort viſit to Windſor Lodge. They were both in an open phaeton, drawn by cream coloured horſes, and his Highneſs drove the carriage. Their ſtay was not more than three hours.

Yeſterday her Majeſty paid a viſit to her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Amelia in Cavendiſh Square; her chair was attended by a prodigious concourſe of people, who teſtified their pleaſure at the appearance with repeated huzzas.

An Iriſhman giving his evidence at the Old Bailey, the other day, and ſpeaking of a woman, ſaid, He always found her at home when he was abſent.

ALBANY, Feb. 17.

Extract of a Letter from New York.

"By laſt Poſt I forwarded you an account of ſales of 17 barrels of Pot-Aſhes, as it ſold at the London market, which is undoubtedly much lower than you expected (for reaſons ſet forth in many of the public papers) I would therefore adviſe you to be cautious in the purchaſe of Aſhes this approaching ſeaſon; for I have particular informatien from London, on which you may rely, that Pot and Pearl Aſhes will be ſold there for at leaſt one third leſs this coming ſeaſon than the laſt, occaſioned by the large Quantities daily arriving at that market; ſo much, in ſhort, that it was there thought America could not ſupply the quantity in five years, that is now there landed within a few months paſt."

A ſeaſonable reflection on the EDUCATION of PRINCES, by the Perſian Philoſopher SAADI.

A Wiſe, learned, and prudent governor, preſided over the education of the Son of a Sultan. Attentive to the care of choaking up the ſeeds of vice, and making thoſe of virtue to vegetate in his royal pupil, he often found it neceſſary to arm himſelf with rigour, and to thwart the inclinations and favourite paſſions of the young prince. This prince impatiently bore with a yoke that ſeemed odious to him, and ſought to ſhake it off, by complaining to his father of the pretended ſeverity of his maſter. The Sultan, who was fond of his ſon, reproached the governor with his harſh treatment, telling him, he would have ſhewn more indulgence for the ſon of a private perſon. "Prince, replied the governor, if we ought to inſpire the love of virtue into all men, thoſe who, by their birth, are, deſtined to command ſome time or other of their life, ought to be excited to virtue more than others, becauſe the happineſs or unhappineſs of the people depends on their good or ill inclinations. Princes cannot endeavour too much to make themſelves perfect, if they are even ſo little ſollicitous concerning their reputation: The vices or virtues of private perſons commonly die with them, but the great are held out as a ſpectacle to all the world; their actions, their words, paſs from mouth to mouth, and are tranſmitted from age to age; their lot is either perpetual honour, or perpetual infamy."

NEW LONDON, March 20.

Yeſterday Capt. Niles, in a Brig, arrived here from Surrinam laſt from St. Euſtatia, in 25 Days. Juſt before he failed from the latter Place Letters were received there by a Veſſel in ſix Weeks from Holland, giving a melancholly Account of the Scarcity of Proviſions there; by which Means many of the Poor were dying with Famine——Beef ſold at 16 Stivers a Pound, and a Loaf of the courſeſt Bread of about 2 lb. Wt at 16 Stivers. [A Stiver is the Tenth Part of a Piſtareen.] The diſtilling of Geneva was prohibited on pain of Death.

POETS CORNER.

THOUGHTS on a retir'd, and middle State of LIFE.

RETIR'D from toils, and noiſy ſtriſe,
I ſing the happy bleſſing !
The moſt conſummate ſweet of life,
And joy beyond expreſſing !
The lovely ſcene, where virtue reigns
In pure harmonic meaſures !
Where no falſe fire impels the veins,
To beat corrupted pleaſures.
The mind as ſimple agent free,
May treat with art, or nature ;
And weigh the ſweet felicity
To praiſe her great Creator !
Survey, the giddy world with ſcorn,
Nor mind the courtier's whining ;
To day ambition lifts his horn,
To morrow he's repining.
Tho' wealth and honours crown his brow,
Yet Haman's not contended ;
While Mordecai makes aukward bow,
The nod is ſtill reſented.
The ſtateſman he would be a king,
The king he would be Cæſar ;
Ambition when ſhe's on the wing,
Ne'er finds a place to eaſe her.
Till menacing imperial Jove,
She juſtles for his ſtation ;
For which with ſcatter'd plumes ſhe's drove
To endleſs condemnation.
But he who with contentment dwells
In his retired cottage ;
Receiv'd with birds, or neighbouring bells,
Regal'd with grateful pottage ;
When nature calls, can take a glaſs
Of homebrew'd ale or cyder ;
With faithful wife, or honeſt laſs
Can ſport, if thoughts grow wider.
At night, from debts, and mortgage free,
Can on his bed repoſe him ;
Inſur'd of Britiſh liberty,
No inward guilt to rouze him.
'Tis he the ſweets of life enjoys
With ſpouſe, or ſon, or daughter ;
No bugbear whim his peace annoys,
With woes that may come after.

Venienti occurrite morbo.

IN times when general health prevails,
M'L——n appears and cures all ills.
He travels ſteady to and fro,
And offers health to friend and foe.
My child, he ſays, I am a man,
That tells you more than doctors can—
I'll lay and offer what you dare,
There is not one who'l uſe you fair,
I will convince you for a treat,
That all your doctors are a cheat.
Come let me look, and feel and tell,
My child if you are ſick or well—
Then takes his patient all alone,
My child (he ſays) you are undone,
By ſurfeits, change of heat and cold.
I'm hurt for you you wont grow old :
Your ſtomach and your back is weak ;
Your head is giddy, you are ſick,
Take this receipt, a certain cure,
For all diſeaſes, to be ſure.
I cannot read, nor write a letter,
Therefore I count to print is better.
Six Shillings is my common price,
Do as you pleaſe and take your choice.
But if you wont, what do I care,
I've fifty ſterling pounds a year.
Beſides a wife of twenty two ;
Sometimes ſhe earns a little too,
Yes, forty ſhillings in her ſleep,
She'd blame me much, if I was cheap.
Upon the whole my child, my honey,
I will not cure you without money.
My child, I am but eighty two ;
Think what you will, 'tis certain true.
My teeth are now as ſound as ever—
I'm ſure ſuch doctors muſt be clever.

LONDON, November 21.

The following is a Copy of a Letter from the unhappy Mr. O'Neil, who lately committed an Act of Suicide, to Bingham Ellison, Eſq; at Charing Croſs.

"Dear Friend,

I Am ſorry to part with you in ſo abrupt a manner ; it muſt be done, Providence has decreed it. It is a folly I am going to commit, I ſee it in its proper light, but I am weak ; I have not ſtrength enough to diſpel the gloomy and melancholy tho'ts that continually hover about me. This is no new invention ; I have had it ever ſince I landed in England ; I diſcovered it to you one night in my cups, you behaved as a friend and a worthy one ; you ſtrove to diſſuade me off ſo vaſt an enterprize ; I ſeemed in appearance, convinced in my error, put on a ſmiling countenance, but to no purpoſe ; I never ſet the reſolution out of my head : With this intention I went to the country, but never found a proper opportunity to put in practice, and before-hand wrote a few letters to the very few friends I have. The day you went to London I determined ſhould be my laſt, but your carrying the key of your trunk prevented me, the piſtols being locked up in it ; this was the reaſon that carried me yeſterday to your lodgings in ſearch of them, and this the reaſon I wrote you this morning ſo plauſible a letter, in order to get them ; now I have got them, now I am a going to put an end to this life. Alas dear friend, I muſt in a few days ; the all ſeeing Providence, when He ſent me into the world, foreſaw my end. Scripturarians, Divines, &c. will all condemn me to Hell, for putting an end to my own life ; let them talk and bark, my reaſon convinces to the contrary. Did God ever create a man to be damned ? No. Wherefore did he then ſend me into the world, when he foreſaw my end would be ſuch as deſerved damnation. This makes me eaſy, this makes me depart contentedly, it is a folly to think that men muſt be cracked, or non compos, to put an end to themſelves ; no ſuch thing ; I am as much in my ſenſes now as ever I was in my life ; you may reply, why then you never was in your ſenſes ; I have preſumption enough to be of a contrary opinion ; ſo have fools, you may ſay. Enough of this.

"The trifle I owe you'll not get at preſent ; I have wrote to Mr. Caffary, of Liſbon, to pay it to your order, who will inſtantly do it. I beg, my dear friend, that you will ſee me put under ground ; this is all I requeſt of you. I hope you will meet with all the ſucceſs in the world, a long and happy life, a friend, and a good bottle to give him, and after all, an happy death. I beg you will inſert this unhappy circumſtance in the papers ; it may perhaps, hinder ſome young men of coming to the ſame end ; it will be an example to them, likewiſe an advice to parents not to give their children too much liberty, to avoid letting them have caſh if poſſible ; it was theſe two circumſtances that brought me to this untimely end.

Adieu, dear friend !

I am your, &c.

PHILIP JAMES O'NEIL."

COMPARE the expreſſions lately uttered in in a certain C—— by a certain j——e, " When the people have done complaining, ſomething may be done ; but for my part, am for doing nothing at preſent, "—with other expreſſions ſince uttered by another j—e. " We charitably believe you were ignorant that, the caſe of Ebenezer Richardſon was then before his Majeſty."—The former expreſſion will doubtleſs fairly admit that, the true cauſe here meant to be conveyed, why Richardſon was not ſentenced after he was found guilty of murder, was, becauſe it was not conſiſtent with the honour of the C——t to be directed by the people. Let then my fellow citizens judge too, whether the pretended frends to government, or the pretended-patriots ſtill miſlead the People The true cauſe then of this unprecedented delay of Juſtice has been hitherto kept a profound ſecret.—Why ! becauſe had he in the common courſe of Juſtice received ſentence of death, ſome reaſon would juſtly have been expected why he was non hanged to ſatisfy the law !!! But what will not ſome people do to, cover the moſt attrocious villains, hirelings, murderers, and Friends to Government ? Who if not protected, the great licence, Robbers of the public, know, that they themſelves muſt fall a ſacrifice to the vengeance of the incenſed criminal, by his expoſing the partners, the confederates of his crimes. But the C——s of the C——ms muſt be protected by reſenſeleſs arms, ſheathed in the bowels of innocence. And ſhall not the Preſs cry to the Lord, let the authors be deemed rebels, traitors, libellers of government and what not ?

LONDON, Nov 28

To his GRACE the DUKE of GRAPTON.

WHAT is the reaſon, my Lord, that, when almoſt every man in the kingdom, without diſtinction of principles or party, exults in the ridiculous defeat of Sir James Lowther, when good and bad men unite in one common opinion of that Baronet, and triumph in his diſtreſs, as if the event (without any referrence to vice or virtue) were intereſting to human nature, your Grace alone ſhou'd appear ſo miſerably depreſſed and afflicted ? In ſuch univerſal joy, I know not where you will look for a compliment of condolance unleſs you appeal to the tender ſympathetic ſorrows of Mr. Bradſhaw. That cream coloured gentleman's tears affecting as they are, carry conſolation along with them. He never weeps, but, like an April ſhower with a lambent ray of ſunſhine upon his countenance. —From the feelings of honeſt men, upon this joyful occaſion, I do not mean to draw any concluſion to your Grace. They naturally rejoice, when they ſee a ſignal inſtance of tyranny reſiſted with ſucceſs ;——of treachery expoſed to the world ;——an infamous informer defeated, and an impudent robber dragged to the public gibbet. But, in the other claſs of mankind, I own I expected to meet the Duke of Grafton. Men, who have no regard for juſtice, nor any ſenſe of honour, ſeem as heartily pleaſed with Sir James Lowther's well-deſerved puniſhment, as if it did not conſtitute an example againſt themſelves. The unhappy Baronet has no friends, even among thoſe who reſemble him. You, my Lord, are not yet reduced to ſo deplorable a ſtate of dereliction. Every villain in the kingdom is your friend ; and, in compliment to ſuch friendſhip, I think you ſhould ſuffer your diſmal countenance to clear up. Beſides my Lord.—I am a little anxious for the conſiſtency of your character. You violate your own rules of decorum, when you do not inſult the man whom you have betrayed.

The divine juſtice of retribution ſeems now to have begun its progreſs. Deliberate treachery intails puniſhment upon the traitor. There is no poſſibility of eſcaping it, even in the higheſt rank, to which the conſent of ſociety can exalt the meaneſt and worſt of men. The forced, unnatural union of Luttrell and Middleſex, was an omen of another unnatural union, by which indefeaſible infamy is attached to the houſe of Brunſwick. If one of thoſe acts was virtuous and honourable, the beſt of Princes I thank God, is happily rewarded for it by the other. Your Grace, it has been ſaid, had ſome ſhare in recommending Colonel Luttrell to the King ;—or was it only the gentle Bradſhaw, who made himſelf anſwerable for the good behaviour of his friend ? An intimate connection has long ſubſiſted between him and the worthy Lord Irnham. It aroſe from a fortunate ſimilarity of principles, cemented by the conſtant mediation of their common friend Miſs Davis.

Yet I confeſs I ſhould be ſorry that the opprobious infamy of this match ſhould reach beyond the family. We have now a better reaſon than ever to pray for the long life of the beſt of princes, and the welfare of his Royal iſſue. I will not mix any thing ominous with my prayers ;——but let parliament look to it. A Luttrell ſhall never ſucceed to the crown of England. If the hereditary virtues of the family deſerve a kingdom, Scotland will be a proper retreat for them.

The next is a remarkable inſtance of the goodneſs of providence. The juſt law of retaliation has at laſt overtaken the little, contemptible tyrant of the North. To this ſon-in law of your deareſt friend the Earl of Bute, you meant to transfer the Duke of Portland's property, and you haſtened the grant, with an expedition unknown to the treaſury, that he might have it time enough to give a deciſive turn to the election for the county. The immediate conſequence of this flagitious robbery was that he loſt his election, which you meant to inſure to him, and with ſuch ſignal circumſtances of ſcorn, reproach and inſult (to ſay nothing of the general exultation of all parties) as (excepting the King's brother in-law Colonel Luttrell, and old Simon his father in law) hardly ever fell upon a gentleman in this country. In the event he loſes the very property of which he thought he had gotten poſſeſſion ; and after an expence, which would have paid the value of the land in queſtion twenty times over.——The forms of villainy, you ſee, are neceſſary to its ſucceſs. Hereafter you will act with greater circumſpection, and not drive ſo directly to your object. To ſnatch a grace, beyond the reach of common treachery, is an exception not a rule.

And now my good Lord, does not your conſcious heart inform you, that the juſtice of retribution begins to operate, and that it may ſoon approach your perſon ?——Do you think that Junius has renounced the Middleſex election ?—Or that the King's timber ſhall be refuſed to the royal navy with impunity ?—Or that you ſhall hear no more of the ſale of that patent to Mr Hine, which you endeavoured to ſcreen by ſuddenly dropping your proſecution, againſt Samuel Vaughan, when the rule againſt him was made abſolute ?—I believe indeed there never was ſuch an inſtance in all the hiſtory of negative impudence.——But it ſhall not ſave you.——The very ſunſhine you live in is a prelude to your diſſolution. When you are ripe you ſhall be plucked. JUNIUS.

P. S. I beg you will convey to our gracious maſter, my humble congratulations upon the glorious ſucceſs of peerages and penſions ſo laviſhly diſtributed as the rewards of Iriſh virtue.

From the LONDON CHRONICLE.
To the PRINTER.

THE account lately given in all our public papers, relative to a certain Prince of the houſe of Stuart having been ſeen at Paris and Verſailles, and the particular cauſe of his journey thither, hath been entirely miſrepreſented, and ſeems totally to have been miſunderſtood. To give your readers then ſome inſight into this cabinet ſecret, they muſt be told, that when this unfortunate Prince, after his precipitate and providential eſcape from the mountains of Scotland, had taken refuge at Paris, under the protection of our good friend and ally Louis the fifteenth, it is well known he was ſeized one evening by a military guard, as he was coming out of the opera houſe in Paris, and carried as a traitor to one of the ſtate priſons, not many miles from that capital. Whilſt he was thus made a priſoner, in open violation of the laws of hoſpitality, by his royal, but falſe patron and protector, Louis the fifteenth gave him politely to underſtand, that this was a meaſure entirely againſt his own will, though ſubmitted to by him as an act of abſolute ſtate neceſſity : that to convince him of the ſincerity of this declaration, he told him the priſon gates ſhould be opened to him whenever he pleaſed to go out, with this proviſo only, that he ſhould quit the kingdom of France in twice forty-eight hours after his enlargement. This was the only favour the French King requeſted, and he promiſed his priſoner at the ſame time, upon the word of a King, that whenever there ſhould be a favourable opportunity of advancing him to a throne he would employ his whole power to procure him a crown. Duped by this royal promiſe, Prince Charles quitted his priſon and the kingdom of France with all poſſible expedition, travelling night and day until he arrived at a more hoſpitable territory. Nor ſince that time has he ever been publicly ſeen within the wall of Paris till a few weeks ago, when having learnt of a certainty that the throne of Poland will, in ſix or ſeven months become vacant, he poſted incog to Verſailles, to require a completion of the promiſe made to him as above mentioned by the French King. But where is the man old enough to remember the time when the King of France ever kept his word if it were worth his while to break it ? Scruples, of conſcience are for private individuals not for Kings. Accordingly, Mr. Printer, your readers will readily conclude, that Louis the fifteenth, who is hackneyed in all the tricks of low Kings craft was not long at a loſs for a plauſible excuſe for not keeping his parole d'honneur. You muſt therefore know that he told Prince Charles he had indeed long entertained the pleaſing thoughts of placing him on the throne of Poland, but he was ſorry to inform him, it was not now a fit opportunity becauſe his good and powerful ally, the Emperor, had actually deſtined Prince Albert of Saxony for that royal dignity, and he cou'd not BREAK at preſent with the houſe of Auſtria. There needed no explanatory epiſode to this more than tragical declaration to Prince Charles. He had received in this anſwer his coup de grace ; and as he came to Verſailles incog. ſo he returned in the ſame manner re infecta, to his old and private retreat at Bouillon. This Mr. Printer, is a true narritive of the cauſe of this unfortunate Prince's late, and, moſt probably, his laſt viſit to the Court of Verſailles. Your old Correſpondent at Paris.

To the Printer of the St. James's Chronicle.

SIR, Weſtminſter Nov 15, 1771.

THERE is no man to whom the nation is more indebted for the indefatigable pains he has taken to ruin the conſtitution than Lord Mansfield. No man is more aſſiduous to diminiſh the liberty of the ſubject. He has left no ſtone unturned, no volumes unſearched that might preſent him with a precedent whereby he might deſtroy the freedom of the preſs. If any arbitrary meaſure is in debate at Carlton-Houſe, the opinion of Lord Mansfield determines the execution. There are few unconſtitutional acts in which the name of Lord Mansfield does not claim the principal place ; yet he has the art of appeaſing the multitude ; he profeſſes moderation. When the dog-act paſſed, Lord Mansfield was not preſent ; if it was againſt his inclination, Why was he not preſent to oppoſe it ? It is the duty of every man, eſpecially if he is entruſted with any public office, not to content himſelf with forbearance, but to do his utmoſt to promote the good of his country ; but the upright active Lord Mansfield, when he knew ſuch a meaſure was in agitation, modeſtly withdrew. Perhaps the affair was not of moment enough to require his preſence. What is, or ought to be of greater weight to a member of the legiſlature than the intereſt of his fellow ſubjects ? If a motion had appeared in the houſe to reſtore an injured Senator to his ſeat in Parliament, I am perſuaded this moderate upright man would not have been abſent, but would have exerted his utmoſt abilities to oppoſe it :

LONDON, December 10.

On the trial of Levi Weil (the phyſician) Aſher Weil, Jacob Lazarus, and Solomon Porter, who were capitally convicted on Friday laſt, for being concerned with others in the robbery and murder at Mrs Hutchins's at Chelſea (as mentioned in Saturday's paper) Mrs. Hutchins depoſed, that on the 11th of June, about eleven at night, hearing her Cook maid ſhriek out, and a great noiſe, ſhe went to aſſiſt her ſervant and know what was the matter, when two men, whom, to the beſt of her knowledge, ſhe believed to be Levi Weil (the Doctor) and Hyam Lazarus, ſeized her, forced her into a chair, and turned her upper petticoat over her head, which ſhe put down, when Hyam Lazarus clapped a piſtol to her mouth, and ſwore he'd blow her brains out if ſhe did not ſit ſtill; the Doctor put the piſtol aſide with his hand, and again put her coat up; they then attempted to tie Mrs Hutchin's feet, but on her promiſing not to move, they left her untied, and went up ſtairs; in a few minutes after, ſhe heard a piſtol go off, and ſomething lumbering thrown down ſtairs and immediately another piſtol was fired; upon which ſhe ran to the back door, hoping to get out, but there were two men guarding it, who cried out, "if you are not a friend, we'll blow your brains out."

Upon this ſhe returned to her chair and Levi Weil Hyam Lazarus and a man whom ſhe deſcribed (but who is not yet taken) came down to her; Levi Weil took the buckles out of her ſhoes, and her watch and they were about to ſearch her pockets which ſhe begged them not to do, declaring ſhe would give them ſomething better worth their notice, when ſhe went up ſtairs with them, and gave them a purſe containing 61 guineas; they then came down, demanding where her plate was; ſhe told them; they took it out of the cupboard, and on finding ſo little, a piſtol was again clapped to her mouth, her lip cut with it, and her tooth looſened; —when Levi Weil a ſecond time put it aſide, and thruſt the perſon who preſented it out of the room.

Soon after they left the Houſe, when Joſeph Slew, the deceaſed, came down in his ſhirt to aſk Mrs Hutchins how ſhe did, declaring himſelf a dead man; his ſhirt was on fire where the ball had entered, which was cloſe to the ſhoulder bone, and the blood was guſhing out and ran down his legs in a continued ſtream; Mrs. Hutchins put out the fire on his ſhirt, and he in a few moments fell down on the floor. Upon her being aſked what particular things ſhe had loſt, beſides thoſe before mentioned, ſhe ſaid a piece of lemon coloured ſilk. She ſaid they d'outed (or put out) her candle, and lighted little brown wax candles; and what further induced her to think they were the men, was her obſerving on the examination of Hyam Lazarus, ſome of the very ſame wax on his hat.

John Stone was next ſworn, who depoſed, that about eleven o'clock on the night abovementioned, five men entered the bed room where he and the deceaſed lay; that they waked him with a ſtroke of a piſtol on his breaſt, and on his crying out, "What's that for?" they replied, "Dam your eyes, you ſon of a bitch, lie ſtill, or we'll blow your brains out." On his fellow ſervant's waking and jumping up, they ſhot him through the back and the deceaſed ſaid, "Lord have mercy upon me, I am a dead man." They then ſeized him, drew him out of bed, and dragged him to the ſtaircaſe; in the mean time he, the deponent jumped out of the window, and fell into the gutter (where they fired at him) from whence he got upon the ridge of the houſe, and thence got into the gutter on the oppoſite ſide over the door; where, after ſtaying about ten minutes, he ſaw them all come out ſaying, "Twas time for them to be gone." On being aſked if he recollected whether any of the priſoners were among thoſe who came into the bedroom, he went to the bar, and touched three, Levi Weil, Hyam Lazarus, & Solomon Porter.

Mary Hoſkins (Mrs. Hutchins's cook) ſwore poſitively to the Doctor, as being one of the men who ruſhed into the houſe on her opening the door to ſee what occaſioned the noiſe in the yard.

Levi Iſaacs depoſed, that he was invited by the above priſoners, previous to the robbery at Chelſea, to engage in it, but he declined it. That the Saturday before the information was lodged againſt the priſoners, Dr. Weil, his brother, and Hyam Lazarus, drinking together at a public houſe, the Doctor aſked him whether he had heard how the affair at Chelſea had been [illegible] Iſaacs told him he had, upon which Hyam Lazarus ſaid they had done for one man there, but the Doctor contradicted him, ſaying, none of them had the ſpirit to ſhoot him but himſelf.

Solomon Lazarus, a Pawnbroker, near Goodman's Fields, depoſed, that about the middle of June laſt, Aſher and Levi Weil pawned with him a lemon-coloured piece of ſilk, ſeveral pieces of plate, &c. but afterwards he ſeeing theſe goods advertiſed, he went to the ſaid two Weils, who acknowledged they got them at Mrs Hutchins's at Chelſea.

The priſoners witneſſes ſpoke only to their good character; except one young woman, who endeavoured to prove an Alibi in favor of the Doctor, but without ſucceſs.

Mr. Myers, of the Jews Synagogue ſerved as an interpreter to ſuch of the priſoners, &c. as could not ſpeak Engliſh fluently.

ROSEAU, in Dominica February 15.

Thurſday laſt at the Court of Seſſions, held for this Iſland, came on the trial of Robert Malloun, Eſq; for having killed one Monſ Nicholas Le Cointre, at the town of Portſmouth, on the 25 Day of December laſt, when after the fulleſt and moſt careful examination of the ſeveral perſons who were preſent, when the accident happened; the Jury without the leaſt heſitation found, that Mr Malloun had killed Monſ Le Cointre by miſadventure, and not otherwiſe. The circumſtances appeared to be theſe: At the requeſt of ſeveral Gentlemen in the neighbourhood of Prince Ruperts Bay Mr. Malloun as Lieutenant Colonel, and Mr Ochterlony, as Major of the St. John's Regiment of Militia, directed that Regiment to go upon Duty upon Chriſtmas day laſt, part of them at Colliho, and part at the town of Portſmouth, with a view of providing againſt any Miſchief which might poſſibly have been intended by the Negroes in thoſe parts of the Country; that Regiment did accordingly go upon Duty, and they were directed by the Major, unknown to Mr. Malloun, each man to load his Muſket when he went upon guard, which he did; Mr Malloun ſtaid at home that day 'till towards the Evening, when he went to Portſmouth where the Militia were; the guard gave him the uſual ſalute; and afterwards went through ſome Motions; Mr Malloun obſerving Monſ Le Cointre to be very awkward, in making his motions, propoſed to give him a leſſon; he accordingly took up the firſt Muſket which came to his hand; Monſ. Le Cointre having his own in his; Mr. Malloun then ſhewed Monſ Le Cointre ſeveral motions, when he came to that of preſenting, each preſenting his muſket to the other's Breaſt; and when Mr. Malloun gave the word fire, he unfortunately (ignorant of the Muſket's being loaded) pulled his Trigger and unhappily ſhot Monſ Le Cointre in the right arm; of which wound he died, in two days afterwards. The Court, the Jury, and the Auditors were ſo far from thinking Mr Malloun guilty of any Crime, that they unanimouſly compaſſionated him for having been the innocent cauſe of this young Man's Death.

NEWBERN, (North Carolina) Jan. 3.

In the Aſſembly, December 21. On motion, reſolved that a committee be appointed to draw up an addreſs to his Majeſty, the Lords and Commons of Great Britain, ſetting forth, that this houſe, ever ready to ſupport his Majeſty's honour and dignity have, with ſpirit and liberality, fallen upon a method to pay the great expence of the late expedition againſt the inſurgents, in ſupport of his Majeſty's Government, but being reſtricted from emitting a paper currency, ſo as to be a legal tender in payment of debts the only method they could, in the diſtreſſed ſituation of the country, fall upon, was by ſtamping debenture bills, as a temporary expedient, chargeable on the public treaſury of this province; but as this expedient is attended with great inconvenience to the public, and thoſe individuals who are to receive may ſuffer injury from their depreciation, and as ſuch individuals are thoſe who have, at the hazard of their lives, ſtood in ſupport of his Majeſty's Government and the conſtitution of this Colony, to pray, that in conſideration of theſe people, as well as of the ſituation of this province, labouring under the greateſt diſtreſs for want of a currency the Act of Parliament againſt iſſuing a paper currency may be repealed, as far at leaſt, as reſpects this colony. And that in the addreſs the committee ſet forth that the houſe will frame ſuch law ſo as to prevent Britiſh creditors from ſuffering ſhould ſuch currency depreciate in value. And Mr. Howe, Mr Harnett and Mr. Maurice Moore, are appointed a committee accordingly.

Tho' from my youth ambition's path I trod
Suck'd the contagion from my mother's breaſt;
The early taint has rankl'd in my veins,
And luſt of pow'r is ſtill my darling luſt;
Deſpotic rule my firſt, my ſov'reign wiſh;
Yet to ſucceed beyond my ſanguine hope,
To quench the gen'rous flame, the ardent love
Of liberty in SERVIA's freeborn ſons,
Deſtroy their boaſted rights, and mark them ſlaves,
To ride triumphant o'er my native land,
And revel on its ſpoils—but hark!

The ſtruggles of fair freedom 'tis, I hear,

I ſhudder at the thought—Why this confuſion?
The phantom conſcience, whom long I've bid adieu,
Can ſhe return?—O let me fly!

I'll haſte for comfort to the buſy ſcenes
Where fawning courtiers, creatures of my own,

Will animate each period of applauſe;
I from a fribbling ſuperficial dabler,
A vain pretender to each learned ſcience,
A poet preacher, conjurer and quack,
Rear'd the obſequious trifler to my purpoſe,
Robed him in ſcarlet, dignified the man:
An hecatomb of incenſe is my due,
How grateful to my ear theſe flatt'ring ſtrains,
His fulſome requiem's, ſooth my ſoul to peace.
Who elſe wou'd place in ſuch a ſacred ſeat
Credulity inwove with the extremes
Of ſervile, weak, implacable and proud:

LONDON.

Letters from Poland give us the following anecdote: "ſome of the confederate ſoldiers meeting a Diſſident Miniſter, who had a bible under his arm, they ſnatched it from him, and finding it to be in the Poliſh language, were ſo exaſperated, that they were preparing to murder him; when an officer happily came up, who, at firſt, thought the man whom the ſoldiers were uſing ſo ill, was a ſpy, but on interrogating both parties, ſoon diſcovered how the caſe ſtood. He took the miniſter under his protection, and ordered the ſoldiers to retire. The latter chagrined at this diſappointment, expoſtulated with the officer, and gave him the bible, obſerving to him at the ſame time, that it was in the vulgar tongue, and adding, that the man who made uſe of ſuch a book, deſerved a thouſand deaths. "My friends (replied the officer) God underſtands our language; he is too excellent, & too full of Majeſty, to contemn it. Why ſhould he reject the prayer which is offered him in Poliſh? Believe me, it is ſin only that he hates, and murder is the moſt horrible of all ſins. As to errors, it belongs to him alone to puniſh them. If you think this man is to be damned, would this puniſhment be ſufficient? and ought you to perform the functions of the Devil in this world?" This ſpeech had ſuch an effect on the ſuperſtitious wretches, that they ſwore to their officer they would henceforth turn their vengeance only againſt the enemies of the ſtate.

From the ST. JAMES'S CHRONICLE.

To the PRINTER.

SIR,

AT a Time of almoſt general national Diſcontent, I think it a great Conſolation that the preſent Parliament have proved themſelves the moſt complaiſant and generous that has ever been experienced by a King of England; a King now deſerving will appear from the following Facts, viz.

In the Seſſions of 1769.

"That the Sum of Five Hun" dred Thirteen Thouſand Five Hun" dred and Eleven Pounds be grant-
" ed to his Majeſty to diſcharge the " Arrears and Debts due and owing
" on the Civil Liſt on the 5th of January, 1769."

The above act of Generoſity has had ſo good an Effect, that I rejoce to think the ſame Parliament has now an Opportunity of convincing their Royal Maſter, that the unparelled Diſtreſſes of this Nation ſhall have no Weight ſo as to prevent their joining him whenever they can in humbling the People.

You are requeſted, Sir, to inform the good People of England, that the Civil Liſt is at this Time more than the Amount of the above Grant of Parliament in 1769. The Sum of Eight Hundred Thouſand Pounds which is granted annually for the King's Uſe, has been found more than ſufficient by former K—gs; but in the preſent Reign it is feared no Sum will anſwer the Economy adopted. The K—g ſtands now indebted to his menial Servants in the amazing Sum of Six Hundred Thouſand pounds! This to you, Sir, may ſeem incredible; but believe me 'tis a Fact, that the Civil Liſt on the 5th of next Month will be in Arrears Three Quarters, which amounts to Six Hundred Thouſand Pounds; and I know, Mr. Baldwin, that there is not half Money enough this Day in the Exchequer on the Civil Liſt Account to pay off one Month's Arrears.

If any of the K—g's Friends dare to contradict the above, I ſhall in a ſubſequent Letter decend to ſome Particulars that will make that Man (as Junius calls him) tremble at what he is known to have in Agitation.

We are told that the St. James's Chronicle is read by Princes. Pray inſert this Letter, rough as it is, and you ſhall in all Probility hear again from one who is really

POETS CORNER.

An Enthuſiaſm: Occaſion'd by walking through a Church-yard. [Written by a young Gentleman, for an Exerciſe, in the 18th Year of his Age.]

HAH! not a breath of wind! no gentle breeze
To fan the darkſom gloom!—no ruffled wave
Diſturbs this ſilent port of life, nor moves
The ſleeping calm; a death like ſilence reigns,
Thoſe ſtorms of wrath, that oft, by tyrants breath'd.
Have ſhock the trembling world, now die away
In wiſpers loſt; the froth of heighten'd pride
Beats on the rocks, and beats itſelf to nothing.
The pomp of kings, the panegyric breath
Of ſoothing flatterers and menial crowds,
The voice of ſlander, the deſtructive blaſts
Of envy ſelf diſtracting, ſoftly ſeem
(Like dying thunders in a diſtant cloud)
Gently to vaniſh from th' attentive ear.
Death, rigid death, impartially declares
That man is nothing, but a heap of duſt,
Clay clod, inſenſible. Wipe from thy cheek,
O man! the ſoft, emaſculating tear,
For die thou muſt: juſt as by nature ſtreams
In ſilver mazes roll their eaſy tide,
A tribute to the main; thus art thou born
A ſhort liv'd glory, pre ordain'd to die
The tho't of obſequies, convulſions, groans,
'Tis that diſtracts thy ſoul: the kiſs of death
Is ſoft and harmleſs: golden reſt attends it,
And ſoon diſſolves the fretful dream of life,
Nature's great law, is death.—As riſing flames
Seek their congenial place, and mount to heav'n,
Thus haſte we to our end; the bloom of youth
Expels our infant years, then hoary age
Encroaches on the man, and ſhuts the ſcene.
Alas! th' impartial grave no diff'rence yeilds
'Twixt king and peaſant. Where's the monarch now?
Faſt by the tyrant ſleeps the tyrant's ſlave.
What luſtre now attends the head, that bore
The regal crown enchas'd with India's pearl?
What Machaivel, or what Sejanus, here,
Rules with a nod, or with a whiſper kills?
What cheek impurpled with a roſy bluſh
Vies with the new born glories of the morn?
Ah! where's Lucinda, and that beauteous form
Which boaſted once a paradiſe of charms?
Alas! ſhe's mingled with the vulgar duſt,
Cloſe to what moſt ſhe feared, deformity;
(The life, warmth, ſoftneſs, fragrance of her beauty
Diſſolv'd and moulder'd into putrid earth,
And worms impure) her once enchanting voice
Is vaniſh'd into air; and O adieu,
The dear enliv'ning ſmile and melting eye
That ſtream'd with ſparkling luſtre, now no more!
Black rob'd confuſion ſhades the gloomy void
With raven wings, and ſcatters indiſtinction.
Ceaſe mortal then to boaſt thy tranſient charms
A prey to worms; in vain the glaſs reflects
A well proportion'd harmony of parts,
If thou muſt rot in earth, a corpſe obſcene.
Pow'r, wealth, and beauty are a ſhort liv'd truſt.
'Tis virtue only bloſſoms in the duſt.

Newbern, North-Carolina, Feb. 21.

To the Officers and Soldiers of the Provincial Troops, who ſerved under his Excellency Governor Tryon, on the late Expedition againſt the Inſurgents.

IN a Letter I have juſt received from the Earl of Hillsborough, one of his Majeſty's Principal Secretaries of State, I have it in command from the King to expreſs his Majeſty's Thanks to the Troops who were in the Field on the 16th of May laſt, for their Conduct and Bravery on that Day; by which they have gained ſo great Honour, and have been the means, under God, of preventing that deſolation and ravage with which this Country was then threatened.

It is with the greateſt Satiſfaction, Gentlemen, that I bear Teſtimony of this moſt gracious Mark of his Majeſty's Royal Favour to you, JO. MARTIN.

Newbern, Feb. 20.

To the Colonels and Commanding Officers of the ſeveral Regiments of Militia in this Province.

WHEREAS I have underſtood that a general muſter of the Militia hath been appointed in a certain county of this province, on the Day preceeding the day of Election of Repreſentatives, which I have thought it proper to countermand; and leſt the ſame meaſure ſhould be adopted in other places, I do hereby alſo expreſly order and command, that no general or private muſter of the militia be made within ten days after the Election of Repreſentatives for the Counties and Towns throughout this Province; as I would, by all means, diſcourage every practice that can carry the leaſt appearance of influencing, or in any wiſe tend to reſtrain the Freedom of Elections.

Given under my Hand at Newbern, this 20th Day of February, 1772. JO. MARTIN.

An Extraordinary Inſtance of FILIAL PIETY. From the EXPEDITION of HUMPHRY CLINKER.

By Dr. SMOLLET.

Mr. MELFORD to Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS.

WE ſet out from Glaſgow by the way of Lanerk, the county-town of Clydſdale, in the neighbourhood of which, the whole river Clyde, ruſhing down a ſteep rock forms a very noble and ſtupendous caſcade. Next day we were obliged to halt in a ſmall borough, until the carriage which had received ſome damage, ſhould be repaired; and here we met with an incident, which warmly intereſted the benevolent ſpirit of Mr. Bramble.—As we ſtood at the window of an inn that fronted the priſon, a perſon arrived on horſe back, genteelly, though plainly, dreſſed in a blue frock, with his own hair cut ſhort, and goldlaced hat upon his head. Alighting, and giving his horſe to the landlord, he advanced to an old man, who was at work in paving the ſtreet, and accoſted him in theſe words: "this is hard work for ſuch an old man as you." So ſaying, he took the inſtrument out of his hand, and began to thump the pavement. After a few ſtrokes, "Have you never a ſon (ſaid he) to eaſe you of this labour?" "Yes, an pleaſe your honour, (replied the ſenior) I have three hopeful lads, but, at preſent, they are out of the way." "Honour not me (cried the ſtranger) it more becomes me to honour your grey hairs.—Where are thoſe ſons you talk of?" The antient pavior ſaid, his eldeſt ſon was a captain in the Eaſt-Indies; and the youngeſt had lately inliſted as a ſoldier, in hopes of proſpering like his brother. The gentleman deſiring to know what was become of the ſecond, he wiped his eyes, and owned, he had taken upon him his old father's debts, for which he was now in the priſon hard by.

THE traveller made three quick ſteps towards the jail, then turning ſhort, "Tell me (ſaid he) has that unnatural Captain ſent you nothing to relieve your diſtreſſes?" "Call him not unnatural (replied the other) God's bleſſing be upon him! he ſent me a great deal of money; but I made a bad uſe of it; I loſt it by being ſecurity for a gentleman that was my landlord, and was ſtript of all I had in the world beſides." At that inſtant a young man, thruſting out his head and neck between two iron bars in the priſon window, exclaimed, "Father! father! if my brother William is in life, that's he!" "I am!—I am!—(cried the ſtranger, claſping the old man in his arms, and ſhedding a flood of tears) I am your ſon Willy, ſure enough!" Before the father, who was quite confounded, could make any return to this tenderneſs, a decent old woman bolting out from the door of a poor habitation, cried, "Where is my bairn? where is my dear Willy?" The Captain no ſooner beheld her, than he quitted his father, and ran into her embrace.

I can aſſure you, my uncle, who ſaw and heard every thing that paſſed, was as much moved as any one of the parties concerned in this pathetic recognition.—He ſobbed, and wept, and clapped his hands, and hallooed, and finally ran down into the ſtreet. By this time the Captain had retired with his parents, and all the inhabitants of the place were aſſembled at the door.—Mr Bramble, nevertheleſs, preſſed through the croud, and entering the houſe, "Captain (ſaid he) I beg the favour of your acquaintance.—I would have travelled a hundred miles to ſee this affecting ſcene; and I ſhall think myſelf happy, if you and your parents will dine with me at the public houſe." The Captain thanked him for his kind invitation, which, he ſaid, he would accept with pleaſure; but, in the mean time, he could not think of eating or drinking, while his poor brother was in trouble.—He forthwith depoſited a ſum equal to the debt in the hands of the magiſtrate, who ventured to ſet his brother at liberty without farther proceſs; and then the whole family repaired to the inn with my uncle, attended by the croud, the individuals of which ſhook their townſman by the hand, while he returned their careſſes without the leaſt ſign of pride or affectation.

THIS honeſt favourite of fortune, whoſe name was Brown, told my uncle, that he had been bred a weaver, and, about eighteen years ago, had, from a ſpirit of idleneſs and diſſipation, inliſted as a ſoldier in the ſervice of the Eaſt India Company; that, in courſe of duty, he had the good fortune to attract the notice and approbation of Lord Clive, who preferred him from one ſtep to another, till he attained the rank of captain and pay maſter to the regiment, in which capacities he had honeſtly amaſſed above twelve thouſand pounds, and, at the peace, reſigned his commiſſion.—He had ſent ſeveral remittances to his father, who had received the [illegible] only, conſiſting of one hundred pounds; the ſecond had fallen into the hands of a bankrupt; and the third had been conſigned to a gentleman of Scotland, who died before it arrived; ſo that it ſtill remained to be accounted for by his executors. He now preſented the old man with fifty pounds for his preſent occaſions, over and above bank notes for one hundred, which he had depoſited for his brother's releaſe.—He brought along with him a deed ready executed, by which he ſettled a perpetuity of four ſcore pounds upon his parents, to be inherited by their other two ſons after their deceaſe.—He promiſed to purchaſe a commiſſion for his youngeſt brother; to take the other as his own partner in a manufacture which he intended to ſet up, to give employment and bread to the induſtrious; and to give five hundred pounds, by way of dower, to his ſiſter, who had married a farmer in low circumſtances.—Finally, he gave fifty pounds to the poor of the town where he was born, and feaſted all the inhabitants, without exception.

MY uncle was ſo charmed with the character of Captain Brown, that he drank his health three times ſucceſſively at dinner.—He ſaid, he was proud of his acquaintance; and that he was an honour to his country, and had in ſome meaſure redeemed human nature from the reproach of pride, ſelfiſhneſs, and ingratitude.—For my part, I was as much pleaſed with the modeſty as with the filial virtue of this honeſt ſoldier, who aſſumed no merit from his ſucceſs, and ſaid very little of his own tranſactions, though the anſwers he made to our inquiries were equally ſenſible and laconic. Mrs. Tabitha behaved very graciouſly to him, until ſhe underſtood that he was going to make a tender of his hand to a perſon of low eſtate, who had been his ſweet-heart while he worked as a journeyman weaver.—Our aunt was no ſooner made acquainted with this deſign, than ſhe ſtarched up her behaviour with a double proportion of reſerve; and when the company broke up, ſhe obſerved, with a toſs of her noſe, that Brown was a civil fellow enough, conſidering the lowneſs of his origin; but that Fortune, though ſhe had mended his circumſtances, was incapable to raiſe his ideas, which were ſtill humble and plebeian.

An ADVENTURE recommended to Inconſtant Huſbands, inſerted by requeſt of a Batchelor.

A Gentleman of a very antient family and conſiderable eſtate, was married to a lady of beauty, wit, virtue and good humour; but tho' he knew and acknowledg'd the merits of his wife, yet he was a man of ſo deprav'd a taſte, that the moſt dirty dowdy he could pick up, frequently ſupply'd her place within his arms.

It happen'd when they were at their country ſeat, that riding one morning to take the air, as was his uſual cuſtom, he met a ragged country wench, with a pair of wallets, or coarſe linen bags, thrown over her ſhoulders; he ſtopp'd his horſe, and aſk'd what ſhe had got there,—to which ſhe reply'd, with a low curtſey, after her faſhion,—that it was broken victuals,—that her mother and ſhe had no ſuſtenance but what they got from the charity of the cooks at great gentlemen's houſes, and that ſhe was now going home with what they had given her.—You need not be in haſte I ſuppoſe ſaid he;—if you will go with me into yonder field, I will give you ſomething to buy you a new gown. The poor girl needed not much perſuaſion to bring her to conſent, on which he alighted from his horſe, and threw the bridle over the a hedge ſtake and the girl at the ſame time hung her bags on the pummell of the ſaddle to prevent their coming to any harm;—then followed the gentleman a little way out of the road, where they ſoon commenced and finiſh'd their amour.

The horſe not likeing his ſituation, found means to get looſe, and ran directly home;—the lady by chance was at the window when he came gallopping into the court yard;—ſhe was at firſt a little frightned to ſee him without his rider, but perceiving the bags, called to have them brought to her; and on their being ſo, was not long at a loſs to gueſs the meaning of this adventure. She then order'd the cook to empty the wallets, and put whatever ſhe found in them into a clean diſh, and ſend it up in the firſt courſe that day at dinner, which accordingly was done. The huſband on miſſing his horſe, walk'd home, and brought with him two neighbouring gentlemen whom he accidentally met with in his way, but theſe gueſts did not prevent the lady from proſecuting her intention; the beggar's proviſion was ſet upon the table,—remnants of ſtale fowls,—bones half pick'd, pieces of beef——mutton,——lamb,——veal, with ſeveral lumps of bread, promiſcuouſly huddled together, made a very odd appearance;——every one preſently had their eyes upon this diſh, and the huſband not knowing what to make of it, cried out pretty haſtily——what's this! "what have we got here!" to which the lady with the greateſt gaiety replied, "It is a new faſhioned Olio, my dear,——it wants no variety; I think there is a little of every thing, and I hope you will eat heartily of it, as a diſh of your own providing." The ſignificant ſmile which accompanied theſe laſt words, as well as the tone of voice in which they were ſpoke, making him remember where the girl had hung her wallets, threw him into a good deal of confuſion; which ſhe perceiving, order'd the diſh to be taken away, and ſaid, "I ſee you do not like it, my dear, therefore when next you go to market, pray be a better caterer." "Forgive this, cried he, and I promiſe never to go to any ſuch market more."

The gentlemen found there was ſome myſtery in all this, but would not be ſo free as to deſire an explanation, when dinner was over however, and the lady, after behaving the whole time with all the chearfulneſs imaginable, had retired to leave them to their bottle, the huſband made no ſcruple of relating to them by what means his table had been furniſh'd with a diſh of ſo particular a kind, at which they laughed very heartily, and would have done ſo much more, if their admiration of the lady's wit and good humour had not almoſt entirely engroſs'd their attention.

By ſeveral veſſels lately arrived at Boſton from London, there is the following

FRESH INTELLIGENCE

LONDON, Jan 21 1772.

This Day the Parliament met at Weſtminſter, when his Majeſty opened the Seſſion with the following Speech, viz

My Lords and Gentlemen,

IT gives much ſatisfaction, that nothing in the ſituation of our affairs, either foreign or domeſtic, has obliged me to require your attendance earlier than might have been conſiſtent with your private convenience; and that now you are met together, you will find yourſelves at liberty to give your whole attention to the eſtabliſhment of wiſe and uſeful regulations of law, and the extention of our commercial advantages.

The performence of the engagement of the King of Spain in the reſtitution of Port Egmont & Falkland's Iſland, and the repeated aſſurances I have received of the pacific diſpoſition of that court, as well as of our other powers promiſe to my ſubjects the continuance of peace; and we may, with the greater confidence, hope, that we ſhall not be diſturbed in the enjoyment of this bleſſing, as there is no reaſon to apprehend that we ſhall become involved in the troubles which ſtill unhappily prevail in one part of Europe.

The danger of the farther ſpreading of the infectious ſickneſs in Europe is I truſt very much abated. But I muſt recommend it to you, not to ſuffer our happineſs, in having been hitherto preſerved from ſo dreadful a calamity, to leſſen your vigilance in the uſe of every reaſonable precaution of our ſafety

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

I have ordered the eſtimates for the ſervice of the current year to be laid before you. I make no doubt but you will ſee the propriety of maintaining a reſpectable eſtabliſhment of my naval forces: I am pleaſed however, to find that I ſhall be under no neceſſity of aſking of you, at this time, any extraordinary aid.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

The concerns of this country are ſo various and extenſive, as to require the moſt vigilant and active attention; and ſome of them, as well from remoteneſs of place, as from other circumſtances, are ſo peculiarly liable to abuſes, and expoſed to danger, that the interpoſition of the Legiſlature for their protection may become neceſſary. If in any ſuch inſtances, either for ſupplying defects, or remedying abuſes, you ſhall find it requiſite to provide any new laws, you may depend upon my ready concurrence in whatever may beſt contribute to the attainment of thoſe ſalutary ends.

[The Addreſſes were agreed to without a debate.]

The following is his Majeſty's Anſwer to the Addreſſes of the Houſe of Lords.

My Lords,

I Thank you for this loyal and dutiful Addreſs. I receive with pleaſure your congratulations on the increaſe of my family, and the aſſurances of the attention you will give to thoſe objects which I have recommended to you for the public good. Nothing can be more acceptable to me than the ſenſe you expreſs of my deſire to promote the welfare of my people.

The following is his Majeſty's moſt gracious Anſwer to the Addreſs of the Houſe of Commons:

Gentlemen,

I Thank you very heartily for this moſt dutiful Addreſs. Your affectionate congratulations on the birth of another Prince, and the regard you expreſs for the Queen, are highly acceptable to me.

I receive with pleaſure and approbation the aſſurances you give me of your zealous endeavors for the extenſion and ſecurity of the national intereſt and advantages.

I have nothing ſo much at heart as to ſee my kingdoms flouriſhing in commerce, and my people happy under my government.

Jan. 18. We are told, it is a fixed point, that the affairs of America ſhall be taken under conſideration ſoon after meeting of Parliament.

We hear that the clebrated Dr Dodd, (whoſe pretenſions to a Mitre have been ſo long overlooked in this degenerate age in point of taſte as well as politics) is the firſt, and we hear, the only perſon under contemplation for the new See of America.

Jan. 20. The French Ambaſſador, Count de Guignes, is arrived at his Houſe in Great George Street. It was given out that he would never return, on account of the fire at Portſmouth.

The Lord Mayor, Aldermen and common-council of Dublin, in reſpect to the memory of the late Dr. Lucas, his great merit and behavior in Parliament, have granted a penſion of 50l. a year to his Widow, and three Children, to commence from the fourth of November, on which day he died.

We hear that the Adminiſtration have it in contemplation to create ſome American and Aſiatic Baronets, which, it is ſuppoſed, will greatly conciliate the affection of the natives of the diſtant Colonies to the Mother Country

The Northern Eagle, a Ruſſian man of war is arrived at Leghorn and brings an account, that the Ruſſians have taken Mytelene, in the Levant, where they found an immence quantity of naval ſtores, oil, rice &c. there were two men of war of 74 guns, and ſeveral gallies, on the ſtocks, almoſt ready for launching, which they deſtroyed, and ſuffered the ſoldiers to plunder the town,

Jan. 24. At a Court of Common Council, three Cups one of 200l. value, the other of 100l. each, were voted, the firſt to Braſs Croſby, Eſq; late Lord Mayor, the others to Aldermen Wilkes and Oliver, for the noble ſtand they made in the buſineſs of the Printers, againſt (as it is expreſſed) an arbitrary vote of the Houſe of Commons.

That part of the Royal Speech recommends an attention to abuſes in the remoter dominions of the Britiſh Empire, is peculiarly directed to the Eaſt Indies.

Yeſterday morning ſome diſpatches were ſent down to Goſport to be forwarded by the St. John Schooner, to the Governors of Boſton and South Carolina.

Jan 28. It is thought that two millions of the national debt will be paid off this year.

They write from the Hague, that it is the public report there, that a Pruſſian army is hourly expected to inveſt Dantzick city

Advice is received that the Emperor of Morocco has declared War againſt Spain, having got an army of 80 000 men well trained and exerciſed; that he has likewiſe a good fleet of ſhips ready to put to ſea; and it is ſaid he will be aſſiſted by ſeveral of the Mooriſh Princes adjacent to his country, as many of their countrymen have been cruelly uſed by the Spaniards.

Jan 29. It is ſaid letters from Paris mention that the French King is ſo ill that his life is deſpaired of.

They write from Berlin, that the King of Pruſſia has demanded a Gift of 500,000 Crowns of the Jews, for the privileges they enjoy in his dominions.

Six ſhips of the line are to be got ready for the Weſt Indies, which are to carry over with them four regiments from Ireland, and two from England.

We hear that Lord Hillſborough, ſupported by the Premier, propoſes to bring in a bill for the repeal of the Tea Duty in America.

We are told that Jeremiah Dyſon, Eſq. is to be ſhortly appointed Poſt Maſter General of the Kingdom of Scotland, worth near 2000l per Annum.

Jan 31. On Wedneſday laſt, juſt as the levee at St. Jeames's was going to begin, an expreſs arrived from Copenhagen, with an account that a revolution had happened there. The Queen (ſiſter to our K—g) it ſeems, had, for ſome time, been intriguing with her Phyſician. Her growing power, and flagrant conduct, occaſioned a general alarm and diſſatisfaction, throughout the citizens of Copenhagen. They ſuddenly roſe, and ſurrounded the palace, and as ſuddenly poſſeſſed themſelves of every apartment in it. The Phyſician was inſtantly put into an iron cage. The Queen was made priſoner. And the King was carried directly to the Senate, whoſe deliberations they were attending when the expreſs came away; at which time conditions to the King were preparing; which, as there is no material accuſation againſt him, are ſaid to be moderate. Only two of them are at preſent known, theſe are, that he ſhall ſign an inſtrument diſſolving his marriage, and that the Queen ſhall be impriſoned in one of the Caſtles for life. Upon the news of this event the levee was forbid.

Another account ſays, that the Nobles having the fulleſt information that there had been for time paſt an improper connection between the Queen of Denmark and her Phyſician; and having great reaſon to ſuppoſe, from the King's late illneſs, that poiſon had frequently been adminiſtred to him by the ſaid Phyſician, went in a body to the palace, and inſiſted on the King's repairing immediately to the Senate, to ſign an order for the Queen's perpetual impriſonment, and for the immediate execution of the Phyſician, whoſe head was immediately taken off.

Feb. 1. The Princeſs Amelia was ſo much affected with the news from Denmark, that ſhe has been ill ever ſince

The preſent King of Denmark was born Jan. 19 1749 and married the 1ſt of Octo 1766, to Caroline Matilda ſiſter to his Majeſty, who was born July 22d, 1751.

LONDON, February 1.

Extract of a Letter from Altona, January 24.

"On the 17th inſtant her Majeſty the Queen (of Denmark) with the young Princeſs and Lady Moſtyn, under a guard of 30 dragoons were conducted to the fortreſs of Cronenburg. The Counts Struenſee and Brandt, the Conſellor Struenſee, General Gahler and his Lady, are likewiſe ſent to priſon; the Maſter of the Horſe, Bulow, General Heſſelberg, the Privy Counſellor Wildebrand, the States Secretary Zoege, Panning, and more, are arreſted in their own houſes under ſtrong guards. The papers belonging to the above mentioned perſons are ſealed up, and Commiſſioners appointed to enquire into the affair. His Majeſty gave all his orders relative to the above, after he came from the Ball at one o'clock in the morning, which were directed to be immediately executed."

A Fleet of Men of War are appointed to cruize between Gibraltar and Ceuta, for the Protection of the Engliſh Merchantmen.

LONDON, Feb. 4.

A correſpondent informs us, that Col Keith, the Britiſh miniſter at the Daniſh Court, has ſhewn the greateſt ſpirit and good conduct during the late Revolution: It ſeems the Senate, in the firſt tranſport of their fury, had given orders for putting the Queen to immediate death: They had without hearing her defence, and without any form of trial, unanimouſly declared her guilty of adultry, and of poiſoning her huſband.—Upon which Mr Keith inſtantly repaired to the Senate Houſe, and ſolemnly proteſted againſt any act of violence being offered to the Queen; he in the ſtrongeſt terms urged her innocence and the improbability of the accuſations againſt her, and concluded with denouncing the vengeance of the Britiſh nation and the terrors of an Engliſh Fleet againſt the Senate and people of Denmark if any act of Violence and injuſtice was committed on a daughter of Britain, and the ſiſter of the King his Sovereign.

That the Q—— of D—— for a conſiderable time has behaved exceedingly imprudent (even in public and given looſe to an unhappy paſſion for the Miniſter and Phyſician, Struenſe, a German) may be depended on.—— The connection has been too barefaced to eſcape the notice of the people; and the great preferments heaped on this miſcreant and his family, thro' the Q—'s interceſſion with the K—g, has made them watchful obſervers of the actions, which now plainly are found to be villainous.——The well known acceſs of a Prime Miniſter joined to the profeſſion of a Phyſician muſt have at any Court, will account for Struenſe's opportunities for inſinuating himſelf with the Q——, and impoſing on the K— intoxicating medicines to prevent ſuſpicions of his actions, in which he too long has ſucceeded.

Our correſpondent at Warſaw, of the 11th of January, gives the following authentic and very important advice; namely, that a Turkiſh Prince is now at Peterſburg, having in charge, to deliver the plan of pacification to her imperial Majeſty; one article of which is, that the Grand Signior conſents to acknowledge his preſent Poliſh Majeſty as King of Poland; and by a ſecond article the Ottoman Porte declares, that he will not, for the future interefere with the affairs of Poland. Theſe two articles having been very palatable to her Czariſh Majeſty, an amneſty between the two Courts of Conſtantinople and Peterſburg has taken place, which has been notified in form to the Court of Warſaw.

The Miniſter in the courſe of the debate on the motion for augmenting the navy, aſſigned as a reaſon for that meaſure, that the French have a conſiderable armament in the Eaſt-Indies. How far ſuch a reaſon is conſiſtent with the peaceable declarations contained in a late Speech, is left to our readers to determine.

ST. JAMES's, February 8.

This morning, between the hours of ſix and ſeven, her royal Highneſs the Princeſs Dowager of Wales departed this life, to the great grief of their Majeſties and all the Royal Family, after a very long and painful illneſs, which ſhe bore with the greateſt fortitude and reſignation.

LONDON, Feb. 10.

The Princeſs Dowager in her laſt interview with the King wrung his hand very hard, and in words to this effect took her leave of him:—"My dear Son, you are the King of a great "People, be if poſſible the King of a happy "one; ſtudy the real welfare of your Subjects, "not the wiſhes of the factious; and may you "gain a brighter crown in heaven, than that "with which I leave you here on earth."

The King was ſhut up for ſeveral hours in his cloſet after the death of his Royal Mother, and appeared ſomewhat tranquil about twelve o'clock at noon in conſequence, it is imagined of a copious effuſion of tears.

The Princeſs Dowager has died extremely poor, the charities which ſhe diſpoſed of being too numerous to admit an accumulation of wealth, and her bounty feeding many families who never knew the hand that relieved them, and will now too certainly make a moſt diſagreeable diſcovery.

At Night, a corn mill at Bromley, took fire, which communicated itſelf to two others adjoining, and entirely conſumed them, with all the flour and corn. The damage is computed at 10 000l. beſide greatly damaging the dwelling-houſe adjoining.

A very great man in the oppoſition, in its being remarked to him that the minority ſeemed now to have given up entirely the public cauſe in Parliament, was pleaſed to ſay, "Sir, we are good ſubjects, and feel for the diſtreſſes of our King—the public cauſe is not abandoned, nor injured by a trifling ſuſpenſion—but a man muſt have a heart of ſteel, indeed, not to let matters paſs ſmoothly on (taking care, however, that no real injury is offered the Conſtitution by a corrupt majority) whilſt his Sovereign is racked with tortures, which a man of humanity would ſcarcely wiſh even his greateſt enemy to ſuffer.

Extract of a Letter from Copenhagen, Jan. 21.

All the Houſhold of the Queen of Denmark, except only three Ladies who have been diſmiſſed, ſet out from hence for Kronenbourgh on the 19th inſtant.

Feb. 11. A correſpondent obſerves, that we ſhall now diſcover whether the Princeſs Dowager of Wales really had that influence upon our national Councils the Oppoſition would make us beleive. That ſhe was a woman endowed with a maſculine underſtanding; that ſhe was an excellent friend, a moſt engaging companion, and an affectionate parent, cannot be denied; but whether ſhe was really buſied in forming parties to encroach upon our liberties, or whether the torrent of abuſe caſt upon this Lady aroſe only from the popular prejudices of the vulgar, this, adds our Correſpondent, her death, though in other reſpects a melancholly event, will in ſome meaſure bring to light.

Yeſterday both Houſes of Parliament voted Addreſſes of Condolance to his Majeſty, on the deceaſe of the Princeſs Dowager of Wales, the Lords to go with white ſtaves, and ſuch of the Commons as are of the Privy Council.

A Correſpondent obſerves, that the miniſterial adherents ſeem determined to outdo the dumbfounded Oppoſition in patriotic and beneficent regulations, Mr. George Onſlow having brought in a Bill for the relief of Inſolvent Debtors, and Mr. Charles Fox intending to make a motion for the repeal of the Marriage Act, ſo univerſally complained of by all true lovers of their Country.

The Queen of Denmark was pregnant at the time of the late revolution at Copenhagen, and a report is current that ſhe has ſince miſcarried, and that her health was in a very precarious ſituation when the laſt diſpatches were ſent off.

The Lords of the Treaſury have appointed Lauchlin Maclane, Eſq; to be collector of his Majeſty's cuſtoms at Philadelphia, in North-America.

Feb. 13. By private letters arrived from Dr. Jebb, we have a melancholy account of the Duke of Glouceſter's ill ſtate of health. His Highneſs, it ſeems, is afflicted with an abſceſs in his ſide, on which account the Faculty have given over all thoughts of his recovery: the Duke is only occaſionally ſeized with a flux. The Dr. however adds, that his Royal Highneſs bears his illneſs with a manly fortitude, and ſeems prepared, with all the ſerenity of a Chriſtian for his approaching fate. It is remarkable that the late Prince Frederick died of an empyema in his lungs.

Feb. 13. A Gentleman juſt arrived from Elſenour informs, that her Daniſh Majeſty is in perfect good health and in great ſpirits, and declares ſhe is innocent with reſpect to all the accuſations brought againſt her; and that her only crime is not having chimed in with the Queen Dowager, to make the King a mere cypher, which is her preſent ſcheme, and if it ſucceeds, all the power will be lodged in her and her minions hands.

Feb. 14 A Bill for explaining an Act of the 7th of his preſent Majeſty, for taking off the inland duty of one ſhilling per pound on Black and Single Teas conſumed in Great Britain, and for granting a drawback upon exportation of Teas to Ireland and America for a limited time, &c. and for ſettling certain doubts upon the ſaid Act is ordered into the Houſe.

Feb. 15. The Packets for New York and South Carolina, are detained at Falmouth until Tueſday next.

London Feb. 20. On Saturday laſt the Remains of Her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Dowager of Wales were interred in Weſtminſter Abbey.

The Order for Prayer now is. Our Gracious Queen Charlotte, His Royal Highneſs George Prince of Wales, and all the Royal Family.

LONDON,

Jan. 2. Powell, Burch, and Martin were executed, purſuant to their ſentence; the two laſt for forging the will of Sir Andrew Chadwick. Some means were uſed to bring Powell to life again, but without any effect.

About half after nine in the morning, three powder-mills on Honſlow-heath blew up, by what accident is not known. The exploſion was felt throughout the cities of London and Weſtminſter, and the inhabitants were greatly alarmed, ſuppoſing it an earthquake. It is ſaid to have been felt likewiſe at an incredible diſtance, viz in Glocesterſhire, and the adjoining counties, more than 100 miles off.

About the time the exploſion was felt at London, ſome families at Stockwell were terrified with the rattling and breaking of their china, which they attributed to a preternatural cauſe. A lady of fortune was ſo firmly perſuaded that ſome inviſible agent was concerned, that ſhe diſcharged her maid, whom ſhe ſuſpected of having an intercourſe with the wicked ſpirit; and, when ſhe was gone, as no more miſchief enſued, conſoled herſelf that ſhe had got rid of ſo dangerous an intimate.

BOSTON, April 3.

Extract of a Letter from London, February 7.

"The Revolution in the Court of Denmark by the beſt Accounts is, an Intrigue of State not of Gallanty. An ambitious Queen Dowager, taking Advantage of the King's Weakneſs, and the Inexperience of a young Queen, form'd a Scheme of poſſeſſing herſelf of the Government. The King of Denmark in the beginning of his Travels, took at Hambergh in his Train a young German, who travelled with him as his Phyſician, in that Capacity he was known to many of the Faculty here in London, and attended Dr. Watson at the Foundling Hoſpital to learn the Engliſh method of Innoculation. This Man in the Courſe of his Attendance became the favourite of the King; and when he returned to Denmark raiſed the Jealouſy of the Queen, and was very much diſliked by her. In proceſs of time the Queen found he had too great hold of the King, and therefore thought it better to agree with him, and from that time they two governed the Kingdom.—The Dowager Queen knowing the King was of too weak an Underſtanding to Exerciſe the Government himſelf, and muſt be the Property of any one who got Poſſeſſion of him, form'd, with the officers of the German Guards, a Plot to ſeize the King, the Queen, Count Struenzee and all their Adherents, at the ſame time ſome Suſpicion of the Fidelity of theſe Guards had made the Queen and Struenzee enter into a Deſign to break them into the other Corps. This brought the Plot to a Criſis, and that they might not be broke themſelves, they readily aſſiſted (like true pretorian Cohorts) to break up the Government.

Hartford GOAL broke open!

LAST monday night the goal in this town was again broke up, and the following perſons made their eſcape, viz. John Smith and Phiness Granger of Suffield, and Edward Williams of Eaſt Windſor. They were all confined for coſt on a proſecution againſt them for making and uttering counterfeit coins, at the laſt Superior Court in this town, as has been mention'd. A reward of Thirty Shillings Lawful Money, will be given for each, to any perſon who ſhall take up and return them to ſaid goal, paid by Ezekiel Williams, Sheriff.

Hartford, April 14. 1772.

N. B. They were all found guilty of ſaid crime and ſentenc'd to be crop'd branded and whip'd, the firſt part of which ſentence has been executed upon them.

POETS CORNER.

Mr. Watſon,

Converſing with an intimate friend of mine, on the grandeur and peculiar beauties of that inimitable ODE in the Lyric Poems, compoſed in Latin by Dr. Watts, intitled "Ad Dominum, noſtrum et ſervatorem JESUM CHRISTUM." And knowing his poetic talents, as well as acquaintance with the tongues; I earneſtly deſir'd him to favour me with a tranſlation of it; which without his leave or expectation, I venture in this manner to publiſh—preſuming upon it, that as it is truly literal, and yet retains the true ſublimity and importance of the original, ſo it will entertain and delight many, into whoſe hands it ſhall fall: Pleaſe to give it place in your paper as ſoon as you have room.

Your's, &c.

I.

TO thee, incarnate God, I tune the Lyre,
My Voice & Harp, & Cittern all conſpire,
To ſound the Glories of th' eternal Son,
Plac'd near the Father, on the eternal Throne.

II.

Begin: O Lute! to move thy golden Strings,
While Heaven's high Arch with Love & Vict'ry rings:
Sing of the fractur'd Powers of Death & Hell,
How Jeſus conquer'd and how Satan fell.

III.

Ages immenſe, in boundleſs Circles move,
While Jeſus in the Heights of filial Love,
His Father's Glory, all his Soul employs,
And from his Boſom, drinks immortal Joys.

IV.

He ſaw, from Heights ſublime, where Glories dwell,
A fallen Adam, and a yawning Hell,
And ſaw the ruin'd Race, plung'd deep in Woe;
The Father loſt, the Offspring ruin'd too.

V.

He ſaw the dreadful Threats of burning Wrath,
The flaming Sword & poliſh'd Shafts of Death,
Where the vindictive Angel furious ſtood,
And helliſh Monſters triumph'd in our Blood.

VI.

His ſacred Bowels felt the Flame of Love,
And Wrath, and Fury, all his Vengeance move,
Againſt infernal Hoſts; while boundleſs Grace;
Breaks forth to ranſom our ſelf-ruin'd Race.

VII.

Shall all the Human Race forever loſt,
Support the Triumph's of infernal Hoſts?
Shall they, the faireſt Works of God deſtroy,
And ſport his Image in their ſavage Joy?

VIII.

No: ſooner ſhall the Stars their Orbits leave,
And all their Glories find a watery Grave;
Old Chaos back return; Satan I'll quell,
Or yield my Scepter to the Powers of Hell.

IX.

Paternal Deity to thee, I turn,
And Pledge my Life t' accompliſh what I've ſworn;
Then from Heav'ns lofty Battlements on high,
Down ruſh'd his flaming Chariot through the Sky.

X.

With winged Speed, he left the lofty Throne,
And to our feeble Natures took his own;
And to vindictive Juſtice, gave his Heart,
To ſheathe its Sword, and feel the killing Smart.

XI.

Ah! Pain intenſe, that ſnatch'd his vital Breath;
And Law ſevere, whoſe juſt Demand is Death;
He felt the Weight of thund'ring Wrath Divine,
The juſt Deſert of our firſt Father's ſin.

XII.

O Muſe! where ſhall the ſeek'e find Relief?
Shall mortal Tears aſſwage the boundleſs Grief,
Or dare they ſing with Sacrilege preſume,
To violate the Honours of his Tomb?

XIII.

No: rather end your Grief, and joyous Sing,
In tender ſtrains the Victories of your King;
Tell how he ſtorm'd old Satan's gloomy Cell,
And broke the iron Bars of Death and Hell.

XIV.

Infernal Realms perceiv'd th' almighty God,
And Chaos roar'd through all the dark Abode,
Hells gloomy Monarch trembled as he lay,
And rous'd and ſtarted, at the Beams of Day.

XV.

Proud Tyrant; nought avail's thy impious Flight,
T' eſcape my Vengeance in theſe Realms of Night;
The burning Phlegethon, deep in her Womb,
Ingulph thy Head; there ſhall my Fury come.

XVI.

He ſpake, and ſwift the blazing Lightning flew,
On the arch Fiend and all the helliſh Crew,
Long damn'd, now dread theſe Flames by which they fell.
From Heav'ns bright Frontiers headlong down to hell.

XVII.

Vaſt Thunder roars through all th' infernal Lakes,
Hell's gloomy Vault deep to its Centre ſhakes,
And all that Wrath, deſign'd the choſen Race,
Falls on infernal Hoſts, with fiercer Blaze.

XVIII.

Here ſcatter'd Chains and bloody Weapons lye,
And hateful Racks for Souls in Peices, fly;
Pale Death in deep Deſpair now feels the ſtroke,
And loud bewails her Sting and Scepter broke.

XIX.

From dreary Realms, behold the Victor raiſe
His glittering Carr; the golden axles blaze,
And draggs old Satan, vanquiſh'd by his Might,
And all the Monſters of infernal Night.

XX.

Now ſee the Conqueror mount the Heav'ns on high,
While their bright Portals quick wide open fly,
And joyous Angels raiſe a loftier Tone,
To ſhout him welcome to his Fathers Throne.

XXI.

From Harps ſeraphic, loud Hoſannas ring,
The choſen Race loud Halleluiah's Sing,
And ſtarry Choirs, in their Eternal round,
Raptur'd with Joy reverberate the Sound.

Further Advices by the laſt Veſſels from London.

CONSTANTINOPLE November 18

THE inhabitants of this capital have been in the utmoſt conſternation ſince the arrival of the two Tartars with the confirmation of the overthrow of the Grand Vizier's army, the defeat of Mougzoen Zade's corps, the retaking of Giurgewo, and the total deſtruction of the fortreſſes upon the Danube, with the loſs of all the artillery, magazines, ammunition, and proviſions. Theſe diſaſters are imputed in a great meaſure to the revolt of the Janiſaries, who diſcontented, it is ſaid, at the ſmallneſs of their pay, refuſed to fight, maſſacred their Aga and his Lieutenant, plundered their military cheſt (in which were five million of pieces of eight) ſet fire to the camp &c. and afterwards diſperſed themſelves to different quarters. The Grand Vizier perceiving that every thing was loſt, took flight, accompanied by ſixty perſons, and carried off with him the ſtandard of Mahomet, which, otherwiſe, would infallibly have fallen into the hands of the enemy. In this critical juncture, the Porte, far from loſing courage, continues to exert every nerve to extricate us from our diſtreſs. It is ſaid that the Grand Vizier will be depoſed, and that Mougzoen Zade will ſucceed him.

December 1. The retreat of the Ruſſian ſquadron to ſeveral Italian ports, has opened, our communication with the Straits of the Dardanelles by which great numbers of ſhips, with all ſort of grain, coffee, rice &c. daily arrive; and, as theſe ſhips take the merchandize of this country in return, trade is beginning to be briſk among us, which has greatly raiſed the People's ſpirits.

LONDON, January 13.

All thoughts of a change in Adminiſtration are now ſubſided. Lord N—th, the Duke of Gr—ft—n, and Lord S—ndw—ch, with the aſſiſtance of Lord M—nsf—ld, have ſettled all the great operations of the enſuing ſeſſions. No extraordinary ſupplies will be wanted, and it is thought ſome popular ſteps will be taken with reſpect to the Taxes upon the neceſſaries of life, and ſome articles of luxury will be duly attended to for ſupplying the deficiency.

It is ſaid that no notice will be given to Parliament of the two late marriages in any manner whatever.

It is ſaid that Lord Weymouth will ſhortly ſucceed Lord Townſhend as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

The Spaniſh Ambaſſador has given the ſtrongeſt aſſurances to our Miniſtry, that his moſt Catholic Majeſty never had the moſt diſtant intention of interrupting the Peace of America, or in any other manner violate the articles of the late convention.

Jan. 23. The tumultuous diſpoſitions of the people are greatly altered, if a judgment may be formed from the ſhouts of acclamation his Majeſty received on Tueſday, as he paſſed to, and returned from the Houſe of Lords.

Laughlin Macklane, Eſq; will ſet out in a few days for Penſylvania, where he is appointed Commiſſioner of the Stores, and is charged with the direction of an affair which is expected to return out a matter of great importance to this kingdom.

The Rev. Mr. Coombe, an ingenious American Clergyman, remarkable for his Oratory, having been appointed one of the Chaplains to the Marquis of Rockingham, and taken his Degrees here, is going to embark in a few days for Philadelphia, where he is appointed to a very valuable living.

It is ſaid that a Reconciliation has taken Place between L—d M——d and one of his Brethren on the Bench, through the Mediation of an eminent Council at the Bar.

By advices from Boſton, we are informed, that the inhabitants there are now daily giving proofs of their wiſhes to be upon a pacific footing, and to acquieſce in many reſpects in the meaſures of Government, in conſequence of which, ſay our correſpondents, there is the greateſt probability that all diviſions will ſhortly ſubſide in that part of North-America.

Letters from Boſton declare, that from the preſent peaceable ſituation of public affairs, trade and agriculture begin to flouriſh and that houſe-rent is riſen to ſuch a height, that in many of the principal ſtreets, ſhops only let for thirty and forty pounds each per annum.

Feb. 1. We hear the following removes will be made in the Royal Navy.

John Montague Eſq; Rear Admiral of the Blue, to be Rear Admiral of the White.—Lord Edgcomb Vice Admiral of the Blue, to be Vice Admiral of the White.—James Young, Eſq; Vice Admiral of the White, to be Vice Admiral of the Red.—Thomas Pye, Eſq; Vice Admiral of the Red, to be Admiral of the Blue. His Grace the Duke of Bolton, and Sir Tho's. Frankland, Admiral of the Blue, to be appointed Admirals of the White.

The Earl of Hertford, Ambaſſador from our court to that of France, ſet off on his embaſſy yeſterday

We hear that Lord Chatham intends to remain in Somerſe ſhire till the Month of March, and it is doubtful whether he will come to the Houſe of Peers this Seſſion, unleſs ſomething very material ſhould occur which may require his Preſence.

Advice is received from Mahon, that a Daniſh Squadron have made an unſucceſsful attempt in bombarding Algiers, as they have not been joined by Ships expected from Copenhagen, and therefore have been obliged to take Shelter under the Cannon of Fort St. Philips, being purſued by a Fleet belonging to the Algerines within ſight of the Garriſon.

Feb. 2. Yeſterday Earl Temple was viſited by a great number of patriotic Noblemen and Gentlemen, at his Lordſhips houſe in Pall-mall.

The Duke of Northumberland has declined going to Ireland on any terms, becauſe it was firſt offered to Lord Weymouth.

Lord North is now conſidered by the diſpaſſionate part of the people, as the beſt Miniſter which this country has ſeen ſince the Revolution; and we are informed, that the ſchemes he has in agitation for the next ſeſſion of parliament, will make him univerſally idolized by the people.

Feb 3 The Royal family are inconſolable for the Duke of Glouceſter, on account of his preſent irreparable ſituation. His Royal Highneſs would have been in England long before this period, but for the unfavourable opinions that have been pronounced by his phyſicians; indeed every one that knows any thing of the country, muſt know that a journey through Italy would certainly put a period to his life.

The ſtrict and intimate alliance, which ſubſiſted formerly between the Lords Chatham and Camden, exiſts now no longer. While there was the leaſt proſpect of the latter being reinſtated in power, the former was his faſt and dear friend; but now that there is not the leaſt probability of Lord C—n's coming in, the patriot of Hayes has forſaken him to the ſtorm, and joined his intereſt with a party which is more likely to obtain ſucceſs.

Feb 4. We hear orders are given for four regiments of foot, and a company of artillery, to embark immediately for Ireland.

A great Lady in Pall-Mall was worſe laſt night than ſhe has been ſince her illneſs; her phyſicians have only directed palliatives for ſome days paſt; and it is poſitively aſſerted, there is now no hopes of her recovery.

Jan. 17. This day his Majeſty was pleaſed to fill up the vacant ſtalls of the moſt honourable military order of the Bath, when Sir Charles Hotham, Bart. of the fifteenth regiment, and the Hon William Hamilton, Eſq; were admitted with the uſual ceremonies.

Jan. 8. The following remarkable affair happened lately at Fulham. A gentleman having hired a houſe there, accidentally found a key of uncommon conſtruction, and was determined to find out the place it belonged to.—After ſearching for ſome time, he diſcovered a ſmall door, in a dark corner of one of the garrets, which he opened with the key, and found a place reſembling a well; it proved to be a winding ſtair caſe, 22 feet deep, but with no other way of deſcending than by going backwards. On coming to the bottom by means of a candle he diſcovered a complete ſet of implements for coining. The ſmoke from the melting furnace was artfully conveyed to the main chimney by means of a flue, artfully concealed. By the dyes, it ſeems were counterfeited the old broad gold pieces; and, as near as can be conjectured, it is about two hundred years ſince this curious place was firſt made.

Jan. 21. The Lord Vicount Barrington, his Majeſty's Secretary at War, has appointed Anthony Chamier, Eſq; his deputy, in the room of Chriſtopher D'Oyly, Eſq;

Jan 24 The remains of the late Lord Baltimore, who died abroad, were carried from Exeter Exchange, in the Strand, where they had lain in ſtate, in order to be interred in the family vault at Epſom. His Lordſhip had injured his character in his life by ſeduction, ſo that the populace paid no regard to his memory when dead, but plundered the room where his body lay the moment it was removed.

Jan. 28. Between nine and ten o'clock in the morning, there was a great darkneſs for near an hour throughout London: it came on gradually in a thick fog from the S. E. and, extending to the N. W. went off without either ſnow or rain.

Jan. 31. The Dutch are in the utmoſt diſtreſs for want of bread corn, no wheat having lately come to market from any of the following corn countries, viz. Poland, Warder, Hamburgh, Elbing, Koningſberg, Pomerania, Stettin, Magdeberg, Maaſe, Friezland, Muſcovy, Groningen, Oldampt, Brabant, Great-Britain, Zealand; and what little comes from Foreland, of the red ſort, ſells from 17l. 10s. to 18l. 15s. the laſt, and wheat of the white ſort from 17l. 10s. to 19l. 15s. per laſt. Neither has any rye come either from Pomerania, Colberg, Stettin, Brabant, Flanders, nor Great Britain; and what little quantity has been brought from Pruſſia, ſold from 26l. 10s. to 28l. the laſt; and what rye came from Koningſberg was ſold from 25l. 10s. to 27l. 10s. Barley from Zealand ſold from 13l. to 15l. 15s. Ditto from Groningen and Oldampt from 12l. 5s. to 12l. 10s. Oats for brewing from 7l. 5s. to 9l. Ditto for horſes from 6l. to 7l. 5s. per laſt.

LONDON, January 17.

The following is the humble ADDRESS of the Right Honourable the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament aſſembled, in reply to the King's ſpeech.

Die Martis, 21o Januarii 1772.

Moſt gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament aſſembled, return your Majeſty our humble thanks for your moſt gracious ſpeech from the throne.

Permit us, Sir, to offer to your Majeſty our moſt dutiful congratulations, on the happy event of the increaſe to your Royal Family, by the birth of another Prince; and to aſſure your Majeſty, That every addition to your Majeſty's domeſtic happineſs muſt always afford the higheſt ſatisfaction to your faithful ſubjects.

We beg leave to expreſs to your Majeſty our moſt grateful ſenſe of your Majeſty's regard for our private convenience, in not commanding us to an earlier attendance; and to declare to your Majeſty our determination, to give our moſt diligent attention to the promotion of the domeſtic intereſts of theſe kingdoms, and the extenſion of our moſt commercial advantages, by the eſtabliſhment of uſeful regulations of law.

We return your Majeſty our humble thanks for your goodneſs and condeſcention, in acquainting us from the throne with the reſtitution of Port Egmont and Falkland's Iſland, on the Part of the King of Spain; and with the aſſurances your Majeſty has received of the pacific diſpoſition of Foreign powers. We are made happy by learning, That your Majeſty had no reaſon to apprehend that the peace, which we at preſent enjoy, will be diſturbed by our being any wiſe involved in the calamities of war, which ſtill unhappily prevail in one part of Europe.

Your Majeſty's paternal care in recommending to us a due vigilance in the uſe of every precaution to preſerve this country from that moſt dreadful contagion, from which, under the Divine Providence it has been hitherto our happineſs to remain free, calls for our ſincereſt acknowledgements, and commands our utmoſt attention.

We beg leave to aſſure your Majeſty, That our moſt diligent endeavours ſhall be employed to frame ſuch laws as ſhall, in our judgment, tend to ſupply the defects, and remedy the abuſes, which may appear to have been introduced in any branch of the various and extenſive concerns of this country; and we look upon your Majeſty's gracious aſſurance of your ready concurrence, in whatever may beſt contribute to the attainment of thoſe ſalutary ends, as a freſh proof of the deſire which has conſtantly been ſhewn by your Majeſty, to promote the welfare of your people.

To which His MAJESTY was pleaſed to make the following moſt Gracious Anſwer.

MY LORDS,

"I Thank you for this loyal and dutiful addreſs. I receive with pleaſure your congratulations on the increaſe of my family, and the aſſurances of the attention you will give to thoſe objects which I have recommended to you for the public good. Nothing can be more acceptable to me than the ſenſe you expreſs of my deſire to promote the welfare of my people."

Proceedings in the H—— of C——ns.

This ſeſſion was opened on Tueſday the 21ſt day of January, 1772, by the King, with a Speech from the Throne, which has been publiſhed in all the papers.

In the H—of C——ns, Lord Hinchinbroke moved the Addreſs, which, as uſual, was an echo of the Speech.

The Hon. Frederick Vane ſeconded the motion. He expatiated on the latter part of the King's Speech, which related to laws and regulations for the Eaſt India Company, hinting, that at preſent the Company had not that power over their ſervants, to compel their orders to be obeyed; nor to prevent them enriching themſelves in an arbitrary manner, at the expence of the Company, to ruin the nation, and perhaps, in conſequence, the intire loſs of thoſe dominions to Britain.

The Addreſs carried without diviſion.

Wedneſday. The Addreſs read and voted. An Addreſs of Congratulation voted unanimouſly to the Queen.

Thurſday. The Addreſs carried to the King.

Friday. The Houſe in a committee on the act for prohibiting the exportation of corn. The reſolution of continuing the act agreed to.

Sir William Meredith moved, that it might be a general order, that no bill, or clauſe in a bill, making any offence capital, ſhou'd be agreed to, but in a committee of the whole Houſe. He obſerved, that at preſent the facility of paſſing ſuch clauſes was ſhameful. That he once paſſing the committee room, when only one member was holding a committee, with a clerk's boy, he happened to hear ſomething of hanging; he immediately had the curioſity to aſk what was going forward in that ſmall committee, that could merit ſuch a puniſhment? He was anſwered, that it was an encloſing bill, in which a great many poor people were concerned, who oppoſe the bill; that they feared thoſe people would obſtruct the execution of the act, and therefore this clauſe was to make it capital felony in any one who did ſo. This reſolution was unanimouſly agreed to.

HARTFORD, April 21.

We hear from Orford, an excellent Town, about 16 Miles diſtant from Dartmouth College in New-Hampſhire, that on the 21ſt of March laſt the Lady of Col. Phelps of that Place was delivered of a Son weighing ſixteen Pounds and an half.

Laſt Thurſday Morning a Child of Mr. John Brace of this Town, about three Months old was found dead in Bed by it's Mother's Side—By the Poſition in which it lay when it was diſcovered to be dead, it is thought it muſt have died in a Fit.

The Money Bill paſſed in the Houſe of Commons in Ireland being ſent to England, was returned, with intimations, that an alteration or two had been made, one was, that in the next tax of one ſhilling a barrel on herrings imported, into Ireland, had an Exception in favour of Britiſh herrings. The ſecond alteration was relative to damaſk linnen, a tax was ſtipulated, but no Exception was made to ſuch as were ſent from England. The third alteration appeared ſtill of more conſequence. In the Bill a tax was impoſed on all imported cottons, or cotton and linnen mixed, but this, whether by deſign, or by miſtake in the copying clerk was changed to all cottons, and linnens mixed; by the thus wording of the ſentence, cotton and linnen mixed might have been imported duty free. This, ſays the writer of a Letter from Dublin, would have given the India Company, and the Mancheſter Manufacturers, an opportunity of pouring in their commodities, to the manifeſt and great detriment of our revenue, and the trade of our printed linnens. Theſe alterations ſo plainly calculated to diſtreſs Ireland, raiſed ſuch a ſpirit of reſentment in the Houſe, that they ſeemed to vie with each other in expreſſing their indignation at the meaſure and the conſequences likely to ariſe from it. Such a ſpirit of Liberty, as ſhewed itſelf on the occaſion, would have killed poor Lucas with joy had he been living.—In the Houſe the alteration of the clauſes, and the whole bill, were rejected without a diviſion.—A new bill was propoſed, and paſſed in the ſpace of two hours, in complaiſance the two firſt alterations were complied with.—All the additional duties, which are at leaſt four fifths of the revenue of Ireland, muſt ceaſe till this bill meets with Approbation and returns from England."

The following is a Paragraph taken from a Letter preſented to the Supporters of the Bill of Rights, ſent by the celebrated JUNIUS, to John Wilkes, Eſq;—— JUNIUS

"SINCE the repeal of the Stamp act I know of no acts to tax the Americans, except that which creates the tea-duty and that can hardly be called internal: yet it ought to be repealed, as an impolitic act, not as an oppreſſive one. It preſerves the contention between the mother country and the colonies, when every thing contending for, is, in reality, given up. When this act is repealed, I preſume you will turn your thoughts to the poſt-office of letters; a tax impoſed by authority of Parliament, and levied in the very heart of the colonies. I am not ſufficiently informed upon the ſubject of that exciſe, which you ſay is ſubſtituted in America to the laws of cuſtoms, to deliver ſuch an opinion upon it as I would abide by. Yet I can eaſily comprehend, that, admitting the neceſſity of raiſing a revenue for the ſupport of Government there, any other revenue laws, but thoſe of exciſe, would be negatory in ſuch a country as America. I ſay this with great diffidence as to the point in queſtion, and with a poſitive proteſt againſt any concluſion from America to Great Britain."

JUNIUS.

Mr WATSON,

The ſubſequent would have been tendered to the Public in a more regular Manner, had not indiſpoſition prevented—And as the Liberty of the Preſs, is the Birth Right of a Subject, and now only made uſe of, for the good of the Public;—Beg you'd inſert the following.

Nitimur in Vetitum ſemper Cupimus que nega[illegible]

THE Advertiſement ſigned E. F. [illegible] pen to our View the Phœnix [illegible] move, that obſtinate and genera[illegible] Diſorder, the Epilepſy (or Falling [illegible] And that too, by a ſkill late y pur[illegible] one of his faculty, viz. Dr. Jonathan [illegible] the Famous.—And as I now endeavour to handle that Point, merely for fear of the too credulous part of the Populace giving Credit to, and injuring themſelves, by depending on Phantoms—Hope the Original intention will be compleatly effected, and cordially accepted of—Truth is never aſhamed to ſhow its Head, notwithſtanding the Menaces of its Oppoſers, which reſſerence, I am the rather inclined to make mention of at preſent, on account of the ſpurious draught I'm informed will ſoon follow this friendly admonition—But I hope, neither Will Smart, nor our oracle will be able to diſcourage me from ſuch laudable attempts.—Would now remark, that the above diſorder has been ſearched into by all the moſt famous practitioners in phyſic antient as well as modern, with an accurate ſtrictneſs of examination and ſtudy.—Gentlemen ſkilled in the liberal arts and ſciences—well verſed in the laws of the animal œconomy, & compleat connoiſſeurs in all natural & acquirable accompliſhments, but without a ſufficient ſucceſsful knowledge to make a publication warrantable without impoſing on their fellow men. But it may be obſerved that theſe things are concealed from the wiſe and prudent, and are revealed unto babes and ſucklings (or to the Novus Homo) which, if we may believe our phœnix, is exactly exampled in the genius and portraiture of d—t, and ignorance, his patron and inſtructor. Next the daring preſumtion of our oracle, in laying his late pretended acquired ſkill, before this, and the neighbouring towns for encouragement. Encouragement! What did I ſay?—A barefaced inſult and exaction on our hoſpitality and indefatigable endeavours in firſt inſinuating himſelf into practice, and tacitly paſſing over the ſimple caſe, and inſufficiency of the ſame. Though we were formerly ſuſpicious, he had no hand in depriving his Britannic Majeſty, Charles the firſt, of his head—yet ocular demonſtration itſelf, can ſcarcely be a ſufficient proof to our underſtanding, after the many oblique hints given him, concerning procedures of a like nature, that he would have thus ſuddenly unmaſked, and at one blow, if his ſucceſs be not equivalent to what the people may reaſonably expect, from ſuch an extraordinary ſally in news papers; ingroſſing the ſarcaſms of the learned and judicious, a ſpectacle of odium, and empericiſm to mankind in general. Though his political deportment, and ſhallow finances, were always obvious and clear, yet a mind ever full of prejudice could not have believed his undertaking, in ſuch a conſpicuous manner, in any matter ſo notoriouſly prejudicial to the common weal of mankind, as I apprehend the conſequences of all ſuch quacking ſchemes generally terminate. One matter of great ſurprize to me is, that of our ingenious Fiſh's not recollecting the approbation, and ſucceſs thoſe kind of impoſitions formerly received, which I hope amongſt a diſcerning people, will always be treated with everlaſting contempt, and the authors kept at a diſtance by gentlemen of the faculty. Shall now mention an advertiſement or two, of a ſimilar nature which am confident were paid but very little regard to by the judicious, viz. E. T. condeſcending to retire to the mineral ſpring at Stafford, there to diſpenſe with a laviſh hand, the ſalubrious draughts of the ſame, but on account of its being ſo warmly handled at Boſton, his prudence together with a remorſe (which was approved of by him) founded a retreat, which handling was only done, viewing it as an impoſition on the public. 2d. D. S. the Cancer Curer, as he calls himſelf, advertiſing ſo largely, who, in my humble opinion, ought rather to have been ſtudying Rudimans Rudiments of the Latin tongue, or peruſing the pharmacopia than with quackery endeavouring to eſtabliſh himſelf on the ruin of the too credulous and ignorant part of the people, who from a natural tendency, are too fond of ſuch perſons, till ſad experience has convinced them of their error—while others are tumbled headlong into an endleſs eternity, without perhaps an opportunity of putting up to God, one ſingle pious ejaculation for their miſerable ſouls, thus deluded and diſlodged.—Beware, then I ſay, ye inhabitants of this and the neighbouring towns, of countenancing thoſe vile impoſters, aiding, or in any wiſe aſſiſting them, in thus ignorantly ſporting with mens lives equally dear in the ſight of God and their families, as Fiſh, or the others already mentioned.

J. THOMPSON.

BOSTON, April 3 1772.

HIS Excellency the Governor intends to go into mourning on Sunday next on Occaſion of the Death of Her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Dowager of Wales.

We hear Sir Francis Bernard, Bart was lately taken with a ſlight paralytick Diſorder at Lincoln in England, and by Advice of his Phyſicians was gone to Bath to drink the Waters, and that if he did not recover his Health intended with his Lady to go to Italy or the South of France in the Summer.

Extract of a Letter from London, Jan. 16.

"You doubtleſs have heard that Mr. Temple has got a genteel proviſion: It is Surveyor-General of the Cuſtoms in this Kingdom, under the Commiſſioners of the Cuſtoms in London, worth £. 700 per ann. Salary, and from £. 300 to £. 500 per ann. Emoluments; whether the latter is ſo or not I cannot warrant, but the Appointment may be depended upon—It is quite a new Appointment; there are to be two only for the whole Kingdom."

Extract of another Letter from London, Feb. 7.

"I purpoſely deferred writing 'till the opening of the ſeſſions, and never was any one in this or the laſt Reign more peaceable. The faction is no more. Lord Temple will have nothing to do with them: Lord Chatham ſtays in Somerſetſhire: Lord Shelburne, is going abroad, and Barry on the motion for 25 000 Seamen, ſpoke for the Motion, and is manifeſtly Trimming round, and ſeeking out for a new Maſter on the failure of the old one, all are deſponding; the only Appearance of Life is in the Common-Council and in the News Papers: theſe are written by Wilkes and his Set of like deſperate Printers, who are courting a Jail in order to lift them into public notice, and to keep themſelves from ſtarving—As to the Common Council it has long been ſo King—but is now fallen upon the very loweſt of the Inhabitants. Nothing can be conceived of meaner than the bulk of the preſent Majority; Men of the moſt contemptible underſtandings, whom no one would truſt with £. 20—Think of a Blackſmith and an old Cloathſman ſtanding for a Common Councilman.—the latter carried it, and the former's Father in Law complained to a Friend of him, that he had juſt been forced to pay a Debt of five Pounds for him to prevent his being arreſted; yet this Blackſmith ſtood a pole and a ſcrutiny againſt a Man of £. 30,000 Fortune.——But ſuch low People are the proper Men ſought out for by Wilkes and his Aſſociates, whom they can lead as they pleaſe; nor would any but ſuch have voted Honors and cups to a—— and a——.

Extract of a Letter from London, February 9.

—"It is with the greateſt Difficulty an Admittance into either Houſe of Parliament is obtained. I got in however the 7th of this Month, upon a Debate more general and of greater Conſequence than any which it is likely will come on this Seſſions. It was upon a Petition of about 250 of the Epiſcopal Clergy, ſome Gentlemen of Phyſic and ſome of Law praying that a Subſcription to the 39 Articles for the future might be diſpenſed with; an Account of the whole Debate will be publiſhed in the Papers, ſo that it is needleſs to be particular. It is remarkable however, that not one Member ſtood up in defence of any of the controverted Articles, or ſcarcely of the Church itſelf, upon any other than mere political Grounds:—Lord North even roſe the ſecond Time to explain himſelf, by ſaying he was miſconceived if any one underſtood him to aſſert that the Articles could be defended from Scripture:—In ſhort the Articles, Church and Biſhops, never had ſo ſevere a trimming.—I ſat myſelf very near ſour of the Biſhops during the whole of the Argument. Even the Solicitor General (Wedderburn) was for receiving the Petition: He ſaid as handſome Things of a late Piece called the Confeſſional, as Man could well utter; he ſaid it was in his Opinion unanſwerable, and that the Author ſeemed poſſeſſed of infinitely more Candour than the Gentleman, who had endeavoured at ridiculing the Performance. And although the Petition was voted out, yet the Petitioners met with more Encouragement than they expected, and are determined to perſevere every Seſſion. It will at leaſt keep their Biſhops, &c better employed than in thinking of an American Biſhop, of which I think there is no danger at preſent. The Preſidents of New York and Virginia Colleges are both here, but I believe totally for different Purpoſes, and I have good Reaſon to think ſo. I am confident America muſt wait for ſome conſiderable Time before the Means of her Deliverance muſt ariſe; yet ſhe unavoidably will be relieved; I think they have nothing at preſent to do but to be careful to cultivate Harmony among themſelves, and for each Colony to look upon her Neighbour as her Siſter, and her Diſtreſſes as her own; ſuch a Conduct appearing here will convince Adminiſtration that nothing further can be done with a Proſpect of Effect againſt the Liberties of the Colonies, and Things may at length come nearly as they were. I hope I propheſy truly. And indeed Adminiſtration if they did but know it, have their Hands full at home without fiſhing in troubled Waters. Our King muſt be in a very unhappy Situation; one Brother at a Diſtance in a very dangerous Way, another Brother wounding the Honor of his Family at home; his Siſter the Queen of Denmark in cloſe Confinement under Suſpicion of diſhonourable Conduct, and his Mother now laying dead; add to this the unſettled Minds of his Subjects and he muſt be far from a happy Monarch. How is the Scene changed from the Day, he aſcended the Throne of his illuſtrious Grandfather!—His State is not to be envied."——

BOSTON, April 13 1772

Extract of a Letter from London by the Veſſel, dated from Palace Yard, March 1772

"I have now the pleaſure of informing you, that the remaining Act, impoſing a Duty on Tea, will be repealed, having had the laſt Reading in the Houſe, and is ordered to be engroſſed. The eyes of the Miniſtry are at length open; they acknowledge they have been greatly deceived in American Affairs, and are determined this Seſſion of Parliament fully to redreſs every American Grievance, and break up your Board of Commiſſioners."

Extract of another Letter from London, dated Jan. 18, 1772.

——"I was in Hopes I ſhould have had the Pleaſure of communicating ſomething that might be agreeable to you. But the Conduct, particularly of the C-rt Coun-i-l-rs at Boſton, has baffled the Exertion of the few Friends you had left here. I believe, never was a Country, ſince the World began, ſo injured by its own Children. I will only tell you, that the Repreſentations and Recommendations of your Town-born Child has done more real Hurt to New-England, than you can eaſily imagine. This you may depend upon as ſacred Truth."

AN ÆNIGMA.

SEarch nature's ſtorehouſe ſummon all your art,
If you this wond'rous ſecret would impart :
Various my ſize and diff'rent is my hue ;
A[illegible] armin I am white ; as other blue ;
Red yellow purple green my forms diſcloſe,
And all the colours beaut'ous iris ſhows :
Nor am I to one element confin'd.
Earth air, and water too, produce my kind ;
No wonder ! for if probable you call
What ſome conjecture, I produc'd 'em all.
In antient days as hiſtories relate,
I was careſs'd and favour'd by the great ;
Firſt call'd—to meals with eager haſte I flew,
Stay'd the firſt courſe, and decently withdrew ;
From this reſpect to aggrandiſe my name,
A common proverb I at length became
What's more ſurpriſing, ſtill more ſtrange to tell,
Where'er I am ; or whereſo'er I dwell,
Though I my being to a mortal owe,
To beings I perfection can beſtow.
Ceaſe then, vain man, to boaſt pre eminence,
'Twas I that gave you motion, life, and ſenſe !

PARIS, November 1.

An extraordinary large Wolfe has committed great ravages near the town of Laval. On the 2[illegible]th of October, he ſeized a man about three leagues from that place and tore ſeveral pieces from his face and arms ; but a horſe coming along with a woman mounted on it, he left the man to ſeize the woman, and tore her in ſeveral places ; during this the man made ſhift to get to a little public houſe, where he met with a dragoon, who immediately went with ſabre in hand, to the relief of the woman, whom the wolf had left to attack the horſe. On his ſeeing the dragoon advance, he ran at him, and made an attempt at his left arm, but the dragoon, with his right, thruſt his ſabre into his flank, on which the beaſt fell, but recovering, flew at him again a ſecond and a third time, when the dragoon gave him ſuch a ſtroke on his head with his ſabre, that he cleft it in two, on which he fell dead in a ditch. Both the wounded people are in great danger.

ANECDOTE.

WHEN General S—t (a gentleman who has been as remarkably lucky at the hazard table, as unlucky in a late marriage) was determined on marrying his preſent lady, he conſulted Lord M—f—d, who is his relation, about the propriety of the match. Seeing it was a point he was determined on, my Lord was ſome time for waving his opinion ; but being preſſed very cloſe by the other, he replied, " Why then, General, I would have you put the matter entirely out of your head, for two reaſons : The one is, the probability of your being cuckolded by ſome of the Macaroni ; and the other, that being the caſe, you will be never able to recover damages, as you have already taken care to ſtrip them of the means."

THE
CONNECTICUT COURANT,

Containing the freſheſt and moſt important Advices, both Foreign and Domeſtic.

From TUESDAY, APRIL 21, to TUESDAY, APRIL 28, 1772.

G—— Tryon of New-York, having exhibited a Proclamation in the New York Mercury, in which he very injuriouſly charges the Inhabitants in General, now dwelling on the Lands formerly granted under the Great Seal of the Province of New Hampſhire, of being Riotous, Diſorderly, ſtimulating Faction, &c And further particularly Affirms in the Words following, " That they daily commit Acts of Violence, openly bid defiance to the Authority of Government, by oppoſing the Execution of every legal Proceſs." This is a very heavy and extenſive Charge on ſaid Inhabitants ; and, if true, might juſtify G—— Tryon in executing that ſevere Puniſhment, which in his ſaid Proclamation he threatens to ſaid Inhabitants, except they Demean themſelves as good and faithful Subjects of New York. Now, in Order that the Public may be able to judge whether the ſaid Inhabitants are Guilty of G—— Tryon's ſaid accuſation or not, it will be requiſite that the Truth of the Facts be laid before the Public, which are as follows. The Inhabitants aforeſaid have had a Petition which the Lords of Trade and Plantations have already come to a Reſolution upon, and agreed to report to his Majeſty and Council, that the ſaid Inhabitants ſhall hold the Fee of the Land, but that the Juriſdiction ſhall remain in New York. The Royal deciſion is not yet made Manifeſt. When it is known, it will be the end of Controverſy. The fallacious Policy made uſe of in N. York, to obtain the Juriſdiction, has given great Umbrage to the ſaid Inhabitants. The Yorkers ſent Spies through the ſaid Country, and by one Pretence or other, found out the Names of the ſaid Inhabitants, and then unknown to them affixed their ſeveral Names to a Petition, requeſting his Majeſty and Council to confirm, and annex them to the Province of New York This legerdemain was undoubtedly the Cauſe of their extending their Juriſdiction to the Banks of Connecticut River ; if ſo, it is probable as the Evidence of this Fact was ſent to his Majeſty and Council laſt Summer, it will be the Cauſe why his Majeſty and Council ſhould alter the Juriſdiction to New Hampſhire. Again, be this as it will, the unreaſonable and unhumane uſe the Yorkers have made of the Power of Juriſdiction ſince they obtained it, has given more Trouble, Diſquietude and Uneaſineſs, than their firſt deteſtable way of obtaining it. Certain deſigning Men in New York, having procured Patents from that Province, and lapped them on Patents antecedently granted under the Great Seal of the province of New-Hampſhire which antecedent Patents were ſettled by the New-Hampſhire Grantees, prior to the Date of the ſaid Patents under the Great Seal of the Province of New York, notwithſtanding the New York Grantees have brought ſundry Writs of Ejectment againſt the New Hampſhire Grantees and actual Settlers, and having obtained Judgment againſt them, proceeded further, and took out Writs of Poſſeſſion, as they call them, & by Order of Law, actually diſpoſſeſs'd ſundry of ſaid Inhabitant Grantees as aforeſaid of their Houſes and Farms, leaving them to ſuffer [illegible] inclemency of the Weather, and depriv'd [illegible] the neceſſaries of Life. Their new Ma[illegible] having taken and monopolized their earthly, all to themſelves, theſe indigent Families having in the firſt Place, expended their ſeveral Fortunes in bringing their ſaid Farms out of a wilderneſs State, into that of fruitful Fields, Gardens and Orchards, the whole County conſiſting of more than fifteen Hundred Families, was greatly alarm'd at the Event which had began to take Place was in great conſternation, each Individual reading their own intolerable deſtruction from that which had already began. Still the Writs of Ejectment coming thick and faſter, Women ſobbing and lamenting, Children crying, and men pierc'd to the Heart with Sorrow and Indignation, at the approaching Tyranny of New York ; Mean while a high-ſpirited valient Man, took a ſmall Ox goad, and coldly belaboured one of the Officers who had gloried much in being the Inſtrument of the New-York Oppreſſion. Zeal taking Fire from this Example, in the Breaſts of great Numbers of the People, the Officers perceiv'd it was not ſafe for them to ſerve Writs of Ejectment upon the People, but more in ſpecial they were in hazard if they preſumed to diſpoſſeſs the People of their Houſes and Lands.—Though in any Matters of Debt, by Note Promiſe or Book, or in Fine for any ſort of Exerciſe of Authority, except depriving the People of their Country, or had a direct and apparent Tendency thereto, Officers did and at this Time do officiate in Office, as unmoleſted, Nay, actually aſſiſted when they Deſire it, as in any Plantations in Engliſh America. Strange ! G—— Tryon ſhou'd Tax the ſaid Inhabitants of riotouſneſs, faction and diſobedience, in every Inſtance, " That they Oppoſe every legal Proceſs, &c." as if his Soul doated altogether on ſuch a ſort of Demeanour and Obedience from ſaid Inhabitants, as would give him and his favourites peaſable Poſſeſſion and Enjoyment of their whole Country, which they have by their Money and Labour made vaſtly Valuable having metamorphoſed it from the Condition of a howling Wilderneſs into Villages and fruitful Plantations This is flagrantly that ſort of Loyalty, and this ſort of Juriſdiction aimed at by G—— Tryon, and his Aſſociates, Providence has hitherto Mightily protected Bennington and the northern Settlements, from the Policy and Ravages of New York, when the inviſible Poſſy made their Appearance at that Town laſt Summer. God over rul'd it for good to that People, for the Sheriffs party, when they ſaw the Induſtry of the People, and was informed how they firſtly purchaſed that Land and paid their Money for the ſame, to one of his Majeſty's Governors, the generality of the Sheriffs partly declar'd they would rather be neceſſary to oppoſe the Sheriff, than to diſpoſſeſs the People Furthermore, there were a ſtrong party of Volunteers, well arm'd from the Bay Province, and though they were willing to defend their Settlements from the Jaws of the Yorkers, even by Force of Arms, yet they were much more rejoiced to ſee ſo generous a Spirit in the Sheriffs party ſo that that fray mightily ſerv'd to open the Eyes of great Numbers of People both in the Province of New York and the Bay Province, and convince them of the Juſtice of the Cauſe in which the Settlers were engaged.

There is one more ſort of Cunning made uſe of by New-York, which is to make ſuch a uſe of their Juriſdiction, as to make preſentment of every ſenſible, bold ſpirited Man, who adhere cloſely to the maintaining the Property of their Lands ; and there have been ſo many occaſions to either oppoſe the Sheriff in diſpoſſeſſing the People, or in oppoſing the Officers in their Attempts to take ſuch of the People as they are pleaſed to inrole Rioters, by theſe Means they inrole moſt of the Country. Self preſervation make it neceſſary that the ſaid Inhabitants hold together, and defend themſelves againſt this execrable Cunning of New York, for otherwys the Yorkers would ſo puniſh and bring to Poverty every patriotic, generous and valient Man on their Lands, that the reſidue of the faint-hearted and ignorant People, would be by them inſlav'd into ſuch Meaſures as Tyranny and Avarice ſhould dictate. It is altogether impoſſible for the People that have ſettled them Lands, to demean themſelves as good and faithful Subjects of that Province, in their Senſe of it, ſo long as they refuſe to yield the Property of their Lands to the Intriguers of New York, I am fully of Opinion that the brave People will hold out to the End, and as they have done, ſo for the Future they will Maintain their Poſſeſſions. This is the Facts of the Caſe, and I now Appeal to the judicious Public, to judge whether the ſaid Inhabitants are that wicked, riotous and diſorderly people G—— Tryon has repreſented them to be.

This Inſtant, while I was writing this Piece, being the thirtieth Day of March, at three of the Clock Afternoon, arrived a Meſſenger from Allington, a Town of the New Hampſhire Grants with the following EXTRAORDINARY INTELLIGENCE. In the Dead of the Night of the 22d of inſtant March, being Lord's Day Night, a collected Number of Scotchmen, about twelve or fifteen of them, made an Aſſault upon the Houſe of Mr. Remember Baker of ſaid Allington, broke the Door down, entered the Houſe, Baker awaked from Sleep, ſprung into the Chamber, and there defended himſelf a little ſpace with a broad Ax but being overpowered with Numbers, arm'd with broad Swords, Cutlaſſes and Piſtols fled to the gable End of the Houſe, and with the broad Ax ſtave off a Board, and leaped out but unfortunately lit in a Snow bank which took him in to his Middle, in which Situation he was ſurrounded and taken and bound. No perſon of the Mob, was hurt in the fray nor did they hurt Baker till after they had bound him, then they unhumanly Cut him with their Swords acroſs the Head, and Cut one Arm near half off, and almoſt Split his Thumb off from the Hand of his other Arm—after this they barbarouſly Cut ſaid Baker's Wife acroſs the Head and Neck, & Cut a great Gaſh in her Cheek and alſo Cut a great Gaſh in the Arm of a Boy of ſaid Baker's, who was about twelve Years old—After this they faſtened Baker on a Horſe, and ſet out for New-York but the Country round about Allington aroſe and purſued this Banditti party, and retook Baker, and took him to a Houſe and before they had dreſs'd his Wounds he fainted away three times However they procured a Sleigh, and with much Care brought him back to his Houſe to the inexpreſſible Joy of that Country as well as his wounded Family—He is like to recover of his Wounds.

Mr. Baker has ever been of a Patriotic turn of Mind a Man of Courage and Integrity and well beloved in that Country, for which Reaſon the Yorkers have indicted him as a rioter and it was under that Pretence they took him as above recited ; it is ſaid their Orders were to take him, dead or alive, but the Country are ſo enraged, if they make another Trial for him, they will be ſent back dead or alive.

The Yorkers ſeem to be reduced to their laſt Policy they found by Experience, it alarm'd the County too much to turn the People out of Poſſeſſion, and that Volunteers from the Bay Province, would not allow of that Therefore laſtly, they have indicted moſt of the leading Men as rioters, hoping to privately Ketch more or leſs of them, and make ſuch an Example of them, as to deter the reſt from ſtanding by their liberties and properties ; And I recommend it to the Inhabitants of them Lands, to treat ſuch Banditti Gangs of rioter Ketchers, as open and bloody Enemies.

By a Friend of Liberty and Property.

Freſh Intelligence to March 7.

L O N D O N.

ON the 27th of January the Houſe of Commons voted 25 000 ſeamen. Colonel Barre approved of the demand of Men not on the footing of a peace eſtabliſhment but as having reaſon to think, from the ſilence of the Miniſtry in offering no argument for their preſent demand that affairs did not wear that peaceable aſpect they would wiſh the publick to believe.

Governer Pownal ſaid he agreed to the reſolution; did not mean to go into any debate, but to give his reaſons. Theſe were, that the ſtate of affairs, inſtead of being of all peace and tranquility was all danger and hoſtility &c.

Feb 6 Sir William Meredith, at the bar of the Houſe of Commons, preſented the petition ſigned by 250 of the clergy againſt the 39 articles. It was ſupported by Sir George Savile, Mr Dunning, Mr. Wedderburne Mr Sawbridge, Col. Barre, &c Againſt the petition, Lord North, Mr. Burke, Mr. Fox, Mr. Cooper, Dr Hay, Mr Dyſon, Lord Bellaſyſe &c who objected againſt the petition being brought up to the table. Mr Sawbridge moved for the thirty-nine articles to be read, which cauſed a little confuſion when he agreed to read five or ſix of them Dr. Hay ſaid it was much better to be left to the convocation, and not brought to this houſe; when, after a long debate, which laſted till eleven o'clock the Houſe divided, two hundred and ſeventeen againſt the petition, and ſeventy one for it.

Feb 21 The Houſe having inadvertently thanked Dr. Nowell for his Sermon on the 30th of January, it was delivered to the Members. On reading it, there appeared in all the Members an univerſal deteſtation of the high church doctrines contained in it, it being to all intents a libel on King and People; but as the thanks of the Houſe had already been voted they could not conſiſtently now cenſure it; but as a ſide reflection, it was moved, that in future the Sermon ſhould be printed before the Parſon was thanked for it Lord North though he could not defend the Doctrines of the Preacher, yet moved the order of the day, to get rid of ſuch a reflection as this would have been on him.

The paſſages objected to are theſe:

"It has indeed been frequently aſſerted, that this tempeſt was raiſed by other cauſes; that the deſpotic diſpoſition, the arbitrary proceedings, and the tyranical government of the King, after numberleſs oppreſſions patiently ſubmitted to, rouſed at length the ſpirit of an injured people in defence of their liberty and laws; that they had frequently applied for redreſs of grievances, had often petitioned for their rights, had uſed every method of perſuaſion and remonſtrance without ſucceſs, before they had recourſe to thoſe meaſures which a ſenſe of their injuries inſpired, and neceſſity ſufficiently juſtified But to every unprejudiced perſon this apology for rebellion will appear as groundleſs as it is baſe. Their complaints preceed even their pretended grievances, and continued after thoſe grievances were redreſſed. They felt indeed one, which, to men of their caſt will ever be a real grievance; the eſtabliſhment of epiſcopacy in the church, and monarchy in the ſtate: of both which their levelling principles were equally ſubverſive.

"In vain ſhall we look for the beginning of theſe evils from any real or pretended grievances, from any undue ſtretches of prerogative, from any abuſe of royal power, theſe favourite topics upon which the enemies of our conſtitution ſo vehemently declaim No; whatever colour theſe pretences might lend to rebellion, the ground work of it was more deeply laid in the principles of the times, in the factious zeal, and turbulent ſpirit of men devoted to enthuſiaſm, phrenzy, and madneſs

"And while we behold the bright reſemblance of thoſe princely virtues, which adorned the Royal Martyr, now ſhining forth in the perſon of our gracious Sovereign, let us earneſtly addreſs the Throne of Mercy, that the guilt of an ungrateful, abandoned people may not cauſe this ſun to be withdrawn from us, nor quench the light of Iſreal."

Feb 22 Thurſday the Right Hon. Lord North acquainted the Houſe that he had a meſſage from his Majeſty, which was read by Mr. Speaker, and is as follows,

GEORGE, R.

His Majeſty being deſirous, from paternal affection to his own family, and anxious concern for the future welfare of his people, and dignity of his Crown, that the right of approving all marriages in the Royal Family (which ever has belonged to the Kings of this realm, as a matter of public concern) may be made effectual, recommend, to both Houſes of Parliament to take into their ſerious conſideration, whether it may not be wiſe and expedient to ſupply the defect of the laws now in being and, by ſome new proviſion, more effectually to guard the deſcendants of his late Majeſty King George the Second (other than the iſſue of Princeſſes who have married, or may hereafter marry into foreign families) from marrying without the approbation of his Majeſty his heirs or ſucceſſors, firſt had and obtained G. R.

An humble addreſs was unanimouſly reſolved to be preſented to his Majeſty to return his Majeſty the humble thanks of the Houſe for his moſt gracious Meſſage and to aſſure his Majeſty that they will not fail to take his Majeſty's Meſſage into their moſt ſerious conſideration.

Thurſday a Meſſage to the ſame purport with that ſent to the Commons, was ſent to the Houſe of Lords.

We are credibly informed that the Honourable Charles James Fox Eſq; did on Thurſday reſign his place as one of the Lords of the Admiralty.

The Harriot Packet boat Lee, from New-York in five weeks is arrived at Falmouth

Feb 26 Yeſterday a Motion was made for expunging out of their Journals the thanks that were ordered to be given to a Rev Divine for his Sermon preached before them the 30th of laſt month, which was carried in the affirmative, on a diviſion of 150 againſt 51

His Majeſty has given the Royal Aſſent to the following Bills, viz

The Bill for granting to his Majeſty an aid by a Land Tax to be raiſed in Great britain for the ſervice of 1772

The Bill for continuing the duties on Malt, Mum, Cyder and Perry, for the ſervice of the preſent year.

The Bill for puniſhing Mutiny and Deſertion, and for the better payment of the Army and their Quarters.

HEADS of the ROYAL MARRIAGE BILL

The preamble is the ſame verbatim as the King's Meſſage.

The firſt clauſe enacts, that none of the Royal Family ſhall marry without the King's conſent, before the age of five and twenty

The ſecond clauſe enacts, that any of the Royal Family, above the age of five and twenty, being deſirous to marry ſhall give in writing the name of the perſon to the Privy Council and if neither Houſe of Parliament interfere (that is, addreſs the King againſt it) during twelve months, they may marry notwithſtanding the King may diſapprove.

Any perſon aſſiſting or knowing of any intention in the Royal family to marry and not diſcovering the ſame, to be guilty of premunire

The following is an authentic copy of the laconick Letter which Mr Charles Fox ſent to Lord North, previous to his reſignation:

"My Lord,

"You have groſly inſulted me and I will "reſent it I am juſt now going to ſet out for St. "James's to reſign my ſeat at the Treaſury "Board to the King.

"I am, my Lord,

"Your Lordſhip's humble ſervant.

"Thurſday 12 o'clock. C J Fox."

The reſignation of Mr Charles Fox, we are aſſured, was owing to a diſpute between him and Lord Sandwich, who had diſpoſed of a conſiderable poſt in the Navy, which had been promiſed to a friend of the former.

His Majeſty has appointed Capt. Shuldham, late Commander of his Majeſty's Ship Royal Oak, to be Admiral and Commander in Chief of his Majeſty's ſhips on the Newfoundland ſtation in the room of Commodore Byron, whoſe time is expired.

Several tranſports are taking in ſtores in the River for Boſton, New York, Charles Town, St. Chriſtopher's, &c.

Feb 27. The Lower Aſſembly yeſterday went through the Bill for diſcontinuing the Inland Duties on Single and Black Teas, and for allowing a drawback on Teas exported to Ireland and the Plantations, which is to be this day reported.

Tueſday night an expreſs ſent from the Admiralty to Portſmouth, for the men to work double tides, in order to get the men of war fitting out there, compleated for ſea, as ſoon as poſſible; the ſame orders were ſent to Plymouth and Chatham.

It is ſaid, that the whole military eſtabliſhment of the Britiſh Colonies is to conſiſt of 12000 effective men, excluſive of their militia.

The Polly, M'Cutchon, from Philadelphia to Belfaſt was in the night of the 11th inſtant, drove on ſhore near the entrance of the harbour of Belfaſt; the cargoe is much damaged, but the veſſel it is expected, will be got off.

Extract of a letter from Naples, dated Jan 29

"His Royal Highneſs the Duke of Glouceſter ſeems to grow better daily though he is ſtill, very weak. Dr. Jebb and Mr Adair have done great ſervice, though the fine air, a milk diet, and moderate exerciſe, they, and all the Italian Phyſicians who have been conſulted, ſeem to think are the only things that can produce a change for the better in his conſtitution

Feb 28 An Expreſs arrived at Lord Rochford's Office on Tueſday laſt from Paris, which brought the Canada Bills, the property of Britiſh ſubjects

The diamonds and gold in Mr. Cox's Muſeum are eſtimated at more than a million: and for the credit of our Country, we can aſſert that Mr. Cox has bro't the jewelling buſineſs to a degree not only of perfection, but of excellence among us, which is unknown to any other part of Europe.

Feb. 29. It is now ſaid that the cauſe of our not making to advices received from Mr. Kieth at Copenhagen which ſeem to indicate that the Queen's life is not in danger, as the principle Nobility of the new Council have given the ſtrongeſt aſſurances of their determination to make a fair ſcreting into the charges againſt her; and it is univerſally believed, if ſhe has Juſtice done her, our Court need be under no apprehenſions on her account

March 2. The 60th regiment, commanded by Sir Jeffery Amherſt, is ordered from Canada where it is now on duty, to Jamaica.

March 3 Yeſterday a motion was made in the lower Houſe by Mr. M. for expunging out of the Kalender, the obſervance of the 30th of January in commemoration of King Charles's Martyrdom; the Debates thereon contained upwards of two hours, when the previous Queſtion being put the Houſe divided, and there appeared for the queſtion 97, and againſt it 125, after which the Houſe adjourned to this day.

Yeſterday the Bill for diſcontinuing the Inland Duty of One Shilling per Pound on Single and Black Teas exported to Ireland and the Plantations, paſt the Lower Houſe for their concurrence

The following letter was lately written by the King of Denmark to his Queen:

"MADAM; I pity your preſent juſt fate. Let this prove my adieu. I wiſh you a ſincere and Chriſtian repentance. CHRISTIAN, REX."

It is now confidently reported, that the late Revolution at the Court of Copenhagen proceeded not from any charge of infidelity in the Queen, but only from a ſuſpicion that ſhe had too great an aſcendency over his Daniſh Majeſty by which the conduct of the State was entirely under her regulation ſhe having by that means diſplaced from the Offices of Government thoſe men in whom the People moſt confided, and put others in their ſtead rather obnoxious to them; it was therefore judged neceſſary that the Queen ſhould be removed till affairs are ſettled under the new Government in ſuch a manner, that no ill conſequences may enſue. Prince Frederick, the King's Brother, is no favorite of the People, and therefore any Revolution on his account appears abſurd. Count Struenſee will be tried by the Council, for that he, being the Queen's Favourite, had been the Inſtigator and Adviſer of the Changes ſhe made.

St James's Feb. 20. This day his Majeſty was pleaſed to confer the Order of the Moſt Honourable Order of the Bath on Lieutenant Colonel Robert [illegible] Keith, his Majeſty's Envoy extraordinary at the Court of Copenhagen.

It is imagined that the oppoſition will divide a greater number againſt the ſecond reading of the Royal marriage bill in the Houſe of Commons, in its preſent form, than upon any public Queſtion ſince the Year 1764.

L O N D O N, March 6.

The 4th of March the Houſe of Commons was fuller than it had been this ſeſſion. Mr. Sawbridge made his motion for ſhortening the Duration of Parliaments. He was ſeconded by Mr. Townſend, who ſaid, that his friend had moved it as a great conſtitutional queſtion, and he hoped it would be conſidered as ſuch; for his part he ſhould always conſider that queſtion as one of the greateſt that could come before that houſe, to make elections frequent, would be to make them free: as his worthy friend and brother Alderman had ſaid ſo much upon the ſubject, he ſhould content himſelf with ſeconding it.

Mr. Cox got up and obſered, that he could not think the honourable Gentleman had gone far enough; that it was the corruption of the times that would prevent a free election; that had he moved, or could find out a way to aboliſh that, he would readily join him in the preſent queſtion; but whilſt that ſubſiſted he could not come into the preſent queſtion, as giving any proſpect of a more free election and repreſentation than at preſent. The Houſe divided, Noes, 251. Ayes 83.

The 2d of March the Debates in the Houſe of Lords were upon the Bill "for the better regulating the future Marriage of the Royal Family"

Lord Temple in the courſe of the Debate remarked, with a mixture of ſpirit and concern, that the tone of the bill was exactly in uniſon with the whole ſtrain of politics for theſe laſt nine Years.

The D——— of R——— d begged and prayed, to be ſent to the Tower: Upon which a facetious Member ſaid, that they never gave any thing to beggars in that Houſe.

Lord Rocingham's toaſt is. Succeſs and Security to the Hanoverian Succeſſion

The Lords Rockingham and Temple, and the Biſhops of Lincoln and Peterborough, ſpoke a conſiderable time in the Houſe of Lords on the third reading of the Royal marriage bill. Lord Cambden ſpoke almoſt an hour; he was anſwered by Lord Mansfield, who ſpoke an hour and five minutes, and was replied to by Lord Temple.

W A R S A W, Dec. 21.

The following is the King of Pruſſia's anſwer to the letter wrote to his Majeſty by our Monarch.

"SIR and BROTHER,

YOUR Majeſty [illegible] cauſed me to feel the effect [illegible] my true ſenſibility, by believing that I ſhould be touched to the quick, at the danger you were expoſed to on the 3d of November, by the horrid attempt againſt your perſon and life. I heard the news of it with the greateſt emotion. A plot ſo deſerving of puniſhment, in regard to its atrociousneſs, and ſo ſeditious, by the unheard of circumſtances that accompanied the execution of it, will for ever cover with ſhame the author of it, as well as his accomplices. This is an affair in which all Sovereigns are concerned; and the ſtroke, as baſe as inhuman on the part of the Confederates, deſerves that all the powers of Europe ſhould unite in taking a ſignal vengeance for the enormous deed they have rendered themſelves guilty of. The only comfort and ſatisfaction we have is that your Majeſty's life is out of danger, and that you will ſoon be well. I am glad to have it in my power to congratulate you ſincerely on your deliverance, and to aſſure you again, on ſo important occaſion, of the high eſteem and friendſhip with which I am your good brother.

(Signed) FREDERICK.

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.

Late Letters from London adviſe, that the Lords North and Hillſborough are determined to exert themſelves to effect the Repeal of the American Tea Duty.

Laſt Week Mrs. Rivel, in Front-Street, near the Sugar-Houſe, aged 54, who had been blind of both Eyes for two Years, was couched by Dr. Graham, Oculiſt and Auriſt, in this City, and immediately reſtored to her ſight, which ſhe retains perfect and clear. The Son of Mr. Glaſsford, of Newark, was alſo perfectly cured of Deafneſs, with which he had been afflicted upwards of ſeven Years.—We hear that fourteen perſons have been reſtored to their Sight and Hearing, by the ſame Gentleman, ſince the firſt of this Inſtant April.

BOSTON, April 20.

Monday Night a dead new-born Male Infant was diſcovered in a Bed with its Mother, a young Woman, who had diſowned her being with Child. The Jury of Inqueſt gave their Verdict, that its Death was occaſioned by Neglect.

A Perſon ſent us the following, which he ſays may be depended on as real Truth.—On the 20th of March laſt, Francis Whipple Eſq; of Weſtborough had a Sheep lambed two Lambs which lived about 48 Hours, and on the 8th of April, which was two Weeks and 5 Days after the ſame Sheep had three Lambs more, one of them dead, but two now living: The five all appeared to be well grown.

B O S T O N, April 23.

We hear that in the Storm laſt Thurſday 7 night, a Sloop which ſailed the Day before from Fox Iſland, with Wood for this place, Thomas Stimſen, Maſter, having ſprung a Leak, was run aſhore near Bunſwick, in order to ſave the People's Lives, where ſhe ſoon after beat to Pieces.

NEW YORK, April 23.

On Tueſday-laſt arrived the Duke of Cumberland packet boat, Captain Goodrich, in 8 Weeks and 3 days from Falmouth, but brings no intelligence from Europe, ſo late by a month, as we have had by the way of Boſton.

HARTFORD, April 28.

We hear from Northington in Farmington, that on the 16th of March laſt, the Wife of Capt. Jonathan Miller, and the Wife and Child of his Son Mr. Eliſha Miller of that Place, died of the malignant Pluriſee, and were all buried in one Grave.

On the 26th of March died in the North Pariſh of New-London, Mr. George Dolbeare, in the 57th Year of of his Age, after a long and lingering Sickneſs; on the 28th his Funeral was attended by a very large concourſe of People when a Sermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. Jewett, ſuitable to the occaſion. He was a Gentleman of independent Fortune, open and frank without Diſguiſe, punctual in performing his Engagements, a beneficial Member of the Community; his Death is a great Loſs to the Publick, as well as to his Family.—He has left a ſorrowful Widow and ſix hopeful Children.

We hear that the Rev'd Mr. Leavenworth, of Waterbury, is appointed to preach the anniverſay Election Sermon, on the 14th of next Month.

Laſt Sunday the houſe of Mr. Samuel Olmſtead of Eaſt Hartford took fire in time of divine ſervice, and was intirely conſumed, together with the greateſt part of its contents.

THE creditors of Mr Samuel Cole, late of Farmington, an inſolvent debtor, are hereby notified to meet at the dwelling houſe of Capt. Solomon Cowles innholder in ſaid Farmington on the firſt monday of June next, at one of the clock afternoon to declare their minds to the truſtees on ſaid eſtate, whether they would have the eſtate now in the hands of ſaid Truſtees apportioned among themſelves or otherwiſe diſpoſed of.

POETS CORNER.

The CONTENTED PAIR.

A Cottage, with a Steeple nigh,
A little Brook that babbles by;
A Garden full of Fruits and Flowers,
Of moſſey Beds and ſhady Bowers;
An Orchard richly ſtor'd with Fruit,
That any Daily's Taſte may ſuit;
Daiſies o'erſpread th' enamel'd Ground,
Diffuſing Fragrance all around;
The tender Trees and Shrubs exhale,
Thoſe Sweets that blow with ev'ry Gale;
The fertile Lands and fruitful Fie'ds,
Enlivening all that Nature yields:
Without, you view this lovely Frame,
Within the Scene is much the ſame.
Tho' ſome would call our Cottage mean,
Few Palaces are kept ſo clean.
For ſumptuous Fare we never look
When there's a Flitch upon the Hook.
Bleſt with two lovely Girls and Boys,
Who part our Care and ſhare our Joys,
We chearful paſs the Time away
In Labour all the live long Day:
With Hearts quite open and ſincere,
With no improper Wiſh or Fear,
We ſtudy aim and wiſh to do
Juſt as we would be done unto;
Thinking Content a greater Gain
Than Pride with all her haughty Train,
Or Blaze and ſplendour of a Court,
Where Honour's often but a Sport.
Contented as we ſaid before,
We neither aſk or wiſh for more;
To wiſh for more were but a Jeſt,
To Providence we leave the Reſt.

Mr. DRAPER,

From a Regard many of your Readers as well as others have to the Memory of the late Rev. Mr. Whitefield the following Extract of a Letter, ſuppoſed to be his laſt, he wrote a few Days before his Death to a Friend in England, ſince publiſhed there, I conclude will not be unacceptable.

"Portſmouth, in New Hamſhire, Sept 23 1770. —— "Poor New England is much to be pitied, Boſton People moſt of all, how falſely miſrepreſented! What a Mercy that our Chriſtian Charter cannot be diſſolved —— Bleſſed be God for an unchangeable Jeſus. —— You will ſee by the many Invitations what a Door is opened for preaching the Everlaſting Goſpel: — I was ſo ill on Friday that I could not preach, though Thouſands were waiting to hear —— Well, the Day of Releaſe will ſhortly come* but it does not ſeem yet; for by riding ſixty Miles I am better, and hope to preach here To-Morrow.

"I truſt my bleſſed Maſter will accept of theſe poor Efforts to ſerve him —— O for a warm Heart, O to ſtand faſt in the Faith, to quit ourſelves like Men, and be ſtrong! May this be the happy experience of you, and yours.

"I ſuppoſe Letters are gone for me in Anderſon to Georgia, if ſpared ſo long, I expect to ſee it about Chriſtmas, ſtill pray and praiſe.

"I'm ſo poorly, and ſo engaged when able to preach, that this muſt apologize for not writing to more Friends, it is quite impracticable, hoping to ſee all dear Friends about the Time propoſed; & earneſtly deſiring a continued Intereſt in your Prayers, I muſt haſten to ſubſcribe myſelf.

My very dear Sir, leſs then the leaſt of all,
GEORGE WHITEFIELD."

The SCOTCHMAN. No. I.

London, January 21 1772

Ense velut ſtricto, quoties Lucilius ardens
Infremuit, rubet auditor cui frigida mens eſt
Criminibus, tacita ſudant præcordia culpa.
JUVENAL.

THE moſt corrupt and degenerate times of Greece and Rome, never demanded the pen of a Lucilius, ſo much as the abandoned age in which we live. Engliſhmen heretofore revered and feared by their magiſtrates, and dreaded, like the Romans of old by every foreign ſtate, ſeem now to have loſt all ſenſe of national honour, and are ready to yield up the greateſt of all civil bleſſings to the will of a ty—t, bred in Gothic ignorance and guided by a banditti of SCOTCHMEN. Take Shame to yourſelves my countrymen, and never ſubmit to be enſlaved by an I——T, and a few rebellious ſons of the North. Read the motley groupe and bluſh! Bute, Manſfield, Grafton, Marchmont, Strange, Denbigh, Cathcart, Stormont, Murry, Mitchell, Gordan, Dunmore, Mackenzie, (commodore) Mackenzie, (James Stuart) Frazer, Elliot, Gilmore, &c. &c. Theſe are our Scotch taſk maſters, theſe are the men, whoſe FATHERS and BROTHERS have openly rebelled againſt the houſe of Hanover, theſe are the men, who have deſtroyed our moſt valuable rights, theſe are the men who have butchered many of our fellow ſubjects with impunity, and yet theſe are the only men, whom the preſent King has ſhamefully honoured with his confidence. How are we to account for this barefaced general inſult upon the kingdom? I will unravel the myſtery. G—— was not born a SCOT, but bred one and imbibed in his early days all the curſed principles of the Stuarts. I will appeal to the good ſenſe of the Engliſh nation. Does not every act of this life confirm the truth of this aſſertion? does not the breaſt of every Engliſhman glow with honeſt reſentment? or is the Britiſh ſpirit which animated our forefathers totally annihilated? good God! are we through the obſtinacy of an un——d monarch to be ſlaves for ever to a few proud, falſe, and perfidious SCOTCHMEN: forbid it Heaven! let us not ſo far forget, and diſgrace the patriotic virtues of thoſe brave men whoſe ſwords purchaſed Magna Charta.

Nero is recorded as the moſt infamous of all the Roman emperors, for cruelty, rapine injuſtice, extravagance, and to comprehend all other crimes ingratitude. What ſhall I ſay of G—the t—? if he is not the worſt of all the Brunſwick's, it will be allowed me, he is as gentle as juſt, and and as grateful as Nero was: proofs of theſe are recorded in St George's Fields, the kalender of Newgate, and in the breaſt of thoſe Engliſhmen who cruſhed two unnatural Scotch rebellions.

Nero ſet Rome on fire and murdered his MOTHER, by whoſe means he got the empire. The Engliſh —— has not ſet fire to the capital of Britain, nor murdered his mother, (it wou'd have been a pity indeed) but he has with all the inſidious arts of a baſe born Scotchman paved the way for our deſtruction, and with his Northern Janiſſaries murdered in cool blood, ſome of thoſe men, by means of whoſe anceſtors his family obtained the crown of theſe realms. Here indignation and reſentment take place of reaſon and candor, and every true Engliſhman will with me execrate the monſter in whatever ſhape he appears, who can wilfully, obſtinately and wickedly raiſe the ſtandard of civil war, and endeavour to dye the fields of England with the blood of its ſons.

SCOTCHMEN will flatter, fawn and lye, but it is beneath an Engliſhman, and I will never ſo far diſgrace the name, as to give any falſe colouring to the actions of the ſovereign however dangerous it may be to myſelf, or diſagreeable to him to ſee his picture drawn by the hand of Truth.

What can we expect, my countrymen! of a man, whom neither oaths nor obligations can bind? Who, inſtead of protecting, deſtroys the people that raiſed him to power? Who cou'd promiſe two moſt infamous miniſters in the cloſet, that no deſperadoes employed by them to deſtroy the freedom of election, and the lives of thoſe men who acted in oppoſition to their mandates ſhould ſuffer the puniſhment due to the inexpiable crimes of murder and violating the ſacred laws which alone can preſerve this kingdom from inevitable ruin. Who could declare to the ſame men, and the whole Scotch junto in the ſame place, that he would ſupport and protect them in whatever meaſures they thought proper to purſue, that he conſidered them as his firm and faſt friends, and would abide by their advice in every matter of national importance, however diſagreeable it might be to the general voice of the people. So little does the Beſt of Kings, as his mercenary ſlaves term him, ſtudy the intereſt of this country, or the good of his ſubjects!

What can we expect of a man, who is mean and cowardly, when inſulted by foreign States? who could be baſe enough to ſuffer the cold unfeeling hand of a SCOT, in one moment to reſtore the implacable enemies of his crown and kingdom, the ſpoils of a glorious war, which were purchaſed at the expence of many thouſand Engliſh lives and ſome millions of money? who can ſmile and be boyiſhly familiar with a puppet ſhew man, or low mechanic, and be inſolent, haughty, and reſerved to every Engliſh man of rank and reſpectable character? who has more than once pretended a regard for the laws and conſtitutions of the Britiſh empire which he was ſolemnly ſworn to preſerve, and yet has approved of doctrines and meaſures calculated, nay, deſigned to deſtroy both.

What can we expect of a man, who pretends a regard for religion and juſtice, yet aſſociates with and rewards for their infamy the moſt profligate and abandoned wretches of the age; and pardons the moſt notorious and inhuman murderers? who aſſumes the appearance of virtue, and practices the moſt ſcandalous and ſhameful corruption?

What can we expect of a man, who has placed his whole confidence and power in thoſe SCOTCHMEN, that have all their lives oppoſed the Houſe of Brunſwick, while he he has proſecuted with unrelenting malice and implacable revenge every man, who, in times of difficulty and danger, have ſupported and defended the preſent family on the throne?

What can we expect of a man, who has made the allegiance of his people incompatiable with their own ſafety? who has claimed and exerciſed a power to diſpenſe with the laws, and levied money on the people of Ireland by virtue of his letters only, contrary to a ſpecial act of parliament? who could erect a new board of accounts in that country (to the great oppreſſion of the people, at this time almoſt ruined) for the abandoned purpoſe of gratifying five pimps and paraſites of the court with places, and to ſecure with the greater eaſe a majority in the parliament there, or overturn the laws, and deſtroy the peace and happineſs of that kingdom.

What can we expect of a man, who though ſworn to call free parliaments according to the conſtitution, could aſſiſt in packing the preſent ſuperlatively infamous Houſe of Commons in England? who, by cloſeting promiſes, and other means, has compleatly modelled them to the deſigns of his own SCOTCH Junto? In a word, what can we expect from a man deaf to the calls of humanity, deaf to the petitions and remonſtrances of a loyal and grateful people? who can hug a traitor and ſpurn a friend? I do pronounce from ſuch a man we can expect nothing but miſery, diſgrace and ſlavery.

When the Duke of Cumberland was vitiating the age by his debaucheries, breaking through every ſacred tie, and all laws human and divine, which bind civil ſocieties, and make them happy on earth, then, and only then did our religious and virtuous King countenance and ſupport him, and St James's was the only place where he could find an aſylum from the juſt reſentment of an injured huſband, & the contempt of mankind. Then it was our amiable ſovereign careſſed him while the SCOTCH rebels who ſurround his perſon and throne, flattered and fawned on him. The moment the world had reaſon to believe the Duke was ſtruck with a ſenſe of his crimes, and that he ſincerely intended to reform; that inſtant his righteous brother and king drives him with a vindictive perſecuting ſpirit from his preſence; he is no longer a proper companion for George and his brave friends.

It is apparent to all mankind, from every act of the king and his Scottiſh miniſters that deſpotiſm is ſpreading itſelf throughout the Britiſh empire. It is impoſſible to blind the eyes of the people, with pretenſions to religion, virtue and juſtice, they will expect to ſee them practiſed in a few inſtances at leaſt; otherwiſe credulous as they are in general, ſuſpicion will get the better of their belief and they will execrate themſelves for being deceived by the falſe guiſe of one FOOL and a few SCOTCH knaves.

Men of ſenſe and reflection obſerve with indignation: every ſtep that is taken to prepare the way for the introduction of tyranny and arbitrary power; they ſee, and with concern declare, this kingdom to be in a ſituation as miſerable and deplorable as it was at the laſt revolution. Theſe are the private ſentiments of all men and the public declaration of thouſands; where then ſhall I find words to expreſs the monſtrous wickedneſs of this reign, this total abſence of all virtue religion and tenderneſs to the human ſpecies? What colours can paint it? what pen can deſcribe it.

What can be more cruel, wicked and deſtructive to human ſociety, or a greater blaſphemy againſt the Supreme Being; than to make government, which was deſigned by him, to render men numerous, uſeful, good and happy, an unnatural engine to deſtroy mankind, by millions, and the peace of the world, to make one or a few proud and inſolent.

A queſtion here conſequently ariſes; ſuppoſe a man who has no natural right, ſhould accept great powers, honours, and immenſe revenues, and other advantages to himſelf and his poſterity upon expreſs conditions as in all limited conſtitutions, eſpecially our own, or implied as in all conſtitutions whatſoever; and yet, either by open declarations, or deliberate actions proclaim to the world, that he does not intend to be bound by thoſe conditions, that he will no longer abide by his legal title, but will aſſume another that was never given him, and to which he can have no right at all; that he will govern his people by deſpotic authority; that inſtead of protecting, he will deſtroy them; that he will overturn the laws and inſtead of being a terror to the wicked will be a terror to the good. I aſk in ſuch a caſe, whether his ſubjects will be bound by the conditions, which he has renounced? Do the obligations ſubſiſt on their parts, when he has deſtroyed them on his; and are they not at liberty to preſerve themſelves, and to ſeek protection elſewhere, when it is denied where they have a right to expect and demand it, and to get it by any means, even at the expence of him and his family, when no other method or recourſe is left?

Let that gloomy SCOTCH impoſter Dr Samuel Johnſon and all the mercileſs advocates for tyranny and ſuperſtition, which this bleſſed reign has produced; exert all their quaint eloquence, all their knotty diſtinctions, and anſwer this queſtion in the affirmative if they can. Let them diſtinguiſh if poſſible the caſe of their preſent Idol whom they are paid to worſhip from that which I have repreſented; let them ſhew that he has a right to be a devil, let them do this to the conviction of mankind and I will then believe it is poſſible for SCOTCHMEN to be diveſted of treachery and baſeneſs.

Every virtuous good king will endeavour to protect his ſubjects from the ſnares, cheats, frauds and oppreſſions of deſigning men how ſtrange is it then that the beſt of Kings ſhould refuſe the rule preſcribe his power and public honour and combine with a ſet of wretches who are perpetually forming ſchemes to ruin their ſouls and, when one ſort of oppreſſion can be no longer ſupported, ſet their heads to work to find out another. But we live in the halcyon days of George the third

We read ſometimes in hiſtory of a tyrant ſitting in his ſeat of juſtice once in ſo many days, to hear equally all cauſes and perſons. What a mockery! what a farce to hear the word juſtice come out of the mouth of a tyrant or a button maker who is a ſettled enemy to the laws of juſtice, mercy and common ſenſe.

Experience convinces us neither juſtice, mercy, virtue, religion nor any thing that is good or deſirable can ſubſiſt under an obſtinate, ignorant tyrant: he lives by nothing but what is deteſtable and wicked. He is ſupported by general ruin; and as fraud and villainy and every ſpecies of violence and cruelty are the props of his throne; ſo he meaſures his own happineſs, ſecurity, and ſtrength, by the miſery and weakneſs of his people; and continued oppreſſion & rapine are his ſtudied and neceſſary arts of reigning. I could produce many inſtances in our own hiſtory, to prove every word ſtrictly true, even to the ſatisfaction of the SCOTCHMEN about St. James's but it is unneceſſary as there is ſeldom more than one tyrant & button maker in a family.

LONDON: Printed by W. MOORE

LONDON, January 2.

The following letter was written by the DUKE of CUMBERLAND laſt week, to a popular leader in the Iriſh Houſe of Commons: As its authenticity may be depended on, it cannot be deemed unworthy of publication.

SIR,

I RECEIVED your letter of congratulation on my marriage, I believe them ſincere, and eſteem them from a man of your ſenſe and virtue a full compenſation for the impotent country bulls that are daily thundered out, and the ſtorms of wit that come ſmoaking in loads from the preſs againſt me.

I am ſhunn'd here as a peſtilence, even by my Family, as an apoſtate from royalty. My pious brother readily forgave me for forgetting the Chriſtian and the man, but is inexorable at the breach I have made at that empty bauble.——But let not the King accuſe me of having by my marriage added to the faction and diſreſpect againſt his family and government. Let him accuſe himſelf that the name of Luttrell is odious to the people of England. What is it to me that the father is vicious, if the daughter is virtuous? What is it to me that the brother betrays his country, if the ſiſter is faithful to her huſband? I love her not as the daughter of Lord I—m, or as the ſiſter of Col. Lutterell. I love her for herſelf: And if my paſſion has been miſplaced, I alone am to be the only ſufferer.

The reſentment of his Majeſty as a brother I regret; As a King, I deſpiſe it. I am a true ſubject of Great-Britain, and poſſeſs paſſions and inclinations in common with the peaſant. If I have indulged them imprudently, I wiſh I had always indulged them as innocently.

It has been my misfortune to be believed a fool by the world; and indeed greater abilities than I can pretend to, when totally ſubverted by licentious paſſions, might juſtify the world in the imputation. But I intend now to put on the man and the Prince, and to aſſume a very uncommon character, that of an independant Peer of Great Britain. Whatever conſequence my birth and ſituation may give, ſhall weigh in the popular ſcale againſt the venal ſtrides of deſpotiſm; and if an indefatigable attachment to the intereſts of my country in the ſenate, and the oppoſing my perſon to her enemies on the ſeas, be a ſufficient atonement for the levities of youth, I ſhall hope to be forgiven and loved by a generous and free people.

The King's pride will prevent him from withdrawing my portion of the civil liſt; but ſhould policy or reſentment outweigh it, I do not deſpair to ſee a ſenate, at leaſt in one of the kingdoms, that may baulk his intentions, And here, Sir, let me congratulate you as being the popular leader in ſo reſpectable a body as the Commons of Ireland are now about to prove themſelves. I rejoice with you on the declining ſtate of corruption, and hope from your zeal and eloquence the Throne will be ſhook to the centre. I wiſh the convulſions may reach this infatuated country till the times demand your ſervices. Keep them private. You ſhall be my ſleeping ſtar; for altho' a ſeaman, my brother has ſtartled me from being guided by the North one.

Adieu; believe me yours ſincerely,

(Signed) C——D."

Windſor Lodge, Dec. 19.

PORTSMOUTH, April 24.

We hear from Hale's-Town, That one Day the beginning of laſt Week, Benjamin Whiting, Eſq; High Sheriff of the County of of Hillſborough having taken a Perſon (whoſe Name we have not heard) with a Writ, for cutting the KING's TIMBER, &c. was requeſted by the Perſon for leave to go at large, till the next morning, when he ſaid he could bring Bail.—This the Sheriff granted, and that night lodg'd in a Public Houſe, in ſaid Hale's-Town, with an aſſiſtant or Deputy he had with him: But for his Clemency, and good Nature, mark the Event. Early the next Morning, the ſaid Perſon came to the Chamber Door, and told Mr. Whiting he had got Bail; to which the Sheriff anſwered it was very well, but added, he need not have hurried quite ſo much, but have ſtopped till it was lighter, &c. However, that he would get up, and wait on him. While he was dreſſing, thirty or forty perſons, in diſguiſe with black faces, &c. ruſhed into the room with Clubs, &c. upon which Mr. Whiting retreated back to the Wall, and having got at his Piſtols, declared he would Shoot the firſt man that approached him, and its thought would thus have defended himſelf, but ſome of theſe Fellows having got up into the Garret, took up the Floor, and ſoon overpowered the Sheriff, and his Aſſiſtant, whom they abuſed & beat in a moſt ſhameful Manner, then went to the Barn and cut the Ears, Tails and Mains off both their Horſes, and ordered the Sheriff and his Man to mount, and go off; which they prudently complied with; and immediately proceeded to Col. Goffe, and Col Lutwych's, who gave orders for a ſufficient Number of Men to arm, and proceed with the Sheriff, if poſſible to take and bring the Rioters to Juſtice—which 'tis hoped, will ſoon be accompliſhed.

NEW-YORK, April 30.

We find by the public papers from South-Carolina, that on the 2d of April the general aſſembly of that Province met at Charleſtown, when his Excellency Lord Charles Greville Montague, the Governor, open'd the ſeſſion with a Speech, wherein he complains that the buſineſs of the province was interrupted by the common's houſe of aſſembly perſiſting in a claim to diſpoſe of and iſſue the public money without the conſent or concurrence of the other two branches of the legiſlature, and by impriſoning the treaſurers for refuſing to advance a ſum of money in conſequence of an order of their houſe only; which unconſtitutional and dangerous proceeding, had laid him under an obligation to diſſolve them; but that knowing there are many weighty matters neceſſary to be done by the general aſſembly, he has taken the earlieſt opportunity to meet them, and earneſtly recommends their proceeding with alacrity temper and moderation: At the ſame time he aſſures them, that it has lately been ſignified to him by his Majeſty, that it is his pleaſure, his additional inſtruction of the 14th of April 1770, ſhould be adhered to with firmneſs—and therefore any bills of the tendency of thoſe mentioned in the inſtructions, that do not contain the reſtrictions ſpecified therein, muſt prove abortive——and that any ill conſequences that may reſult from a further interruption of public buſineſs cannot be imputed to him.

The Council in their addreſs, entirely agree in ſentiment with his Excellency, expreſs their gratitude for his majeſty's goodneſs in his additional inſtruction of the 14th of April 1770, which they think wiſely calculated for the preſervation of the public treaſure. They aſſure his Excellency of their confidence in the ſincerity of his intentions to promote the province, in which if he ſhould be diſappointed, they ſhould condole with him; but at the ſame time ſhould ſhare in his ſatisfaction on the reflection that any ill conſequences reſulting from a longer interruption of public buſineſs, cannot be imputed to him or them.

The papers do not contain the addreſs of the Commons Houſe—But by the following letter we find they adhere to the claim of the former houſe, and have been diſſolved by the Governor.

Extract of a Letter from Charles Town. South Carolina dated April 12 1772

"The general aſſembly met here all week, (which you will obſerve by the papers) and they ſtill adhering to their former reſolution (the members being the ſame as in the laſt houſe) with regard to the money bill and the impriſonment of the treaſurers; upon which the Governor has diſſolved them."

"At our laſt Supreme Court was tried the famous Cauſe, Price v. s. Jocvet. The Plaintiff brought her Action for non-performance of a Promiſe, made in the Life-Time of the Defendant's firſt Wife, of Marriage, provided the Plantiff would live ſingle, till his then Wife ſhould die. After a tedious trial of three Days, the Jury went out, and ſoon returned with a Verdict for the Plantiff, and Three Hundred Pounds Proclamation Money Damages.

In the Courſe of the Trial, a great Number of Letters written by the Plantiff to the Defendant, were read, which afforded much Diverſion to a numerous Aſſembly. The Letters are ſo very extraordinary, that 200l. New York Money, has been offered the Lady for the Copy Right of them."——

HARTFORD, May 5

WE are credibly informed that a captain of veſſel, arrived at St. Euſtatia made affidavit, that there were 1500 Britiſh ſubjects at Porto Rico, kept in cloſe confinement and treated like ſlaves under various pretences, by the cruel and ſupercilious Spaniards!

The Houſe of Burgeſſes in Maryland, have concurred with the aſſembly of Maryland, in the expediency of erecting a light houſe on Cape Henry; and appointed Commiſſioners to carry the ſame into execution.——A duty to be paid on the tonnage of all veſſels, excepting thoſe belonging to the two provinces of Virginia and Maryland, coming into thoſe colonies.

THERE are two reaſons that renders the N. York imputation of rioters, &c. againſt the New-Hampſhire ſettlers manifeſtly impertinent. The firſt conſiſts in this, that the matters in diſpute between the ſaid ſettlers & Yorkers, are now lying before a diſintereſted and impartial board, viz. that of the Lords of trade and plantation, who will, if they have not already, make report to his Majeſty and Council, their judgment in the caſe, and his Majeſty's royal determination muſt ſettle the controverſy. Now in the mean while this matter is thus judicially determining, it is very unreaſonable as well as unconſtitutional, for the civil authority of New York to ſend their ſheriffs and poſſy to diſpoſſeſs the ſettlers aforeſaid before his Majeſty's pleaſure be known. It ſeems the Yorkers are jealous his Majeſty will do the juſt part, and not gratify their avarice, and therefore laſt ſummer took it upon themſelves to be judge, party and executioner, ſent the high ſheriff of Albany county with five hundred men, to take poſſeſſion of the country of the New Hampſhire grants and diſpoſſeſs the ſettlers, but the brave ſettlers rallied a ſuperior force, and in the calmeſt manner told him they ſhould not leave that country, or be diſpoſſeſs'd of their houſes and land, till his Majeſty's pleaſure was known as to that particular. The ſheriff ſeeing he was over maned, and that the people would not allow him to take poſſeſſion &c. he and his poſſy departed from that country in peace——but upon this the brave inhabitants, ſettlers aforeſaid, were deemed rioters. But query, whether the Yorkers were not the agreſſors, by preſuming to judge their own caſe, or at leaſt by putting that judgment in execution, when the ſame controverſy was lying before his Majeſty as aforeſaid, which ſupercedes any authority they can boaſt of, according to Engliſh liberty & conſtitution, or the law of reaſon. No man is a proper judge in his own caſe, for intereſt is ſuppoſed to biaſs the judgment, how far the league of intereſt dictates the civil authority in New York, in this matter, I am not able to ſay; there may be honourable men in the ſaid adminiſtration, and undoubtedly there are, and if ſo I preſume they are willing to wait his Majeſty's deciſion of the ſaid diſpute. No perſon of common ſenſe can ſuppoſe that near or quite two thouſand families would calmly quit the New Hampſhire grants except his Majeſty ſhould ſo determine it and the Yorkers very well know his Majeſty will not ſo determine the caſe, which is the reaſon they have recourſe to other means

The ſecond reaſon will more fully illuſtrate the unreaſonableneſs of the proceedings of New-York, againſt the inhabitants aforeſaid, viz. When Sir Henry Moor was governor of New York his Majeſty laid the reſpective governor and governors of that province, under an abſolute prohibition with reſpect to granting any of the lands priorly granted under the Great Seal of the province of New Hampſhire. This plainly indicates that his Majeſty deſigns the N Hampſhire grantees ſhould not be troubled, or the ſettlers ſuſtain damage, till his Majeſty have opportunity to look into the ſtate of the caſe & ſettle the controverſy. And I now earneſtly recommend it to G——Tryon in the interium of time while his Majeſty is ſettling the ſaid diſpute, not to iſſue forth to the public, any more proclamations, taxing the ſaid inhabitants of being licentious, diſorderly, ſtimulating faction and riots againſt government, but as a good and wiſe governor wait the royal deciſion, for I will aſſure you, ſir, the ſaid inhabitants are not regulators.

POETS CORNER.

Meſſieurs Printers,

The afflicting and melancholy death of Mr. St John laſt year. is yet recent in every one's memory It was expected that a public oration would have been delivered on the ſubject that would have rendered all attempts in this way unneceſſary. Some accidents having prevented the execution of that deſign. I determined to ſend you the following elegy and deſire you to inſert it in your paper The author is ſenſible that it is very different from the uſual ſtyle of funeral panegyrics; but if it had reſembled them, he ſhould never have thought it deſerved publication. To characterize a deceaſed a friend in all the extravagance of commendation, declare that he excelled all mankind in this world & pronounce boldly with regard to his ſtate in the other, is neither an entertainment to the living nor an honour to the dead As this elegy was not deſigned for public view. the writer expects not that it will be univerſally commended or underſtood: but he hopes it will be approved by thoſe Gentlemen of taſte who had rather ſee a juſt picture of the amiable character of their Friend, and a ſtriking deſcription of the affecting circumſtances of his death, than all the flatteries of common-place declamation, or the uſual extravagance of funeral elogiums

An ELEGY on the Death of Mr. BUCKINGHAM ST. JOHN Tutor of Yale College, was drowned in his paſſage from New-Haven, to Norwalk, May 5th, A. D. 1771.

THE world now yeilds to Night's returning ſway;
The deeper glooms lead on the ſolemn hour,
And call my ſteps beneath the moon's pale ray,
To roam in ſadneſs on the ſea-beat ſhore.
Now glide th' unconſtant ſhadows o'er the plain,
The broad moon ſwiming thro' the broken clouds!
The gleam of waters brightens on the main,
And anchor'd navies lift their waving ſhrouds.
Deep ſilence reigns ſave on the moory ground
The long reed ruſtling to the paſſing gales
The noiſe of daſhing waves, and hollow ſound
Of ruſhing winds that murmur thro' the ſails.
Far hence, ye pleaſures of a mind at eaſe;
The ſprightly joys that rural ſcenes can yeild,
When ſpring led jocund by the ſoftning breeze,
Wakes the glad morn and robes the dewy field.
Far be the giddy raptures of the gay,
The midnight joys licentious youth can ſhare;
While ruin ſmiling o'er her deſtined prey,
Mid ſweet allurements hides the deadly ſnare,
Mine be the muſick of the rolling wave,
The moonlight ſhadows and ſurrounding gloom
Mine the dread haunts of Contemplation grave,
That lift the ſoul to ſcenes beyond the tomb.
In this dark world, the ſeat of woe and pain,
How fading joys in diſtant proſpect roll!
Ev'n Friendſhip ſpreads her pleaſing charms in vain,
And Death Divides the intercourſe of Soul.
Called in ſucceſſion from this mortal ſtage,
Torn from our Friends to tread the world unknown,
We quit the fleeting ſcene —— In early age,
I ſeek in vain whom once I call'd my own.
Here while dread midnight holds her awful reign,
And Fancy bears the raviſhed Soul along;
Dark Melancholy ſpreads her airy train,
And Friendſhip calls and Grief inſpires my ſong.
As thro' theſe dreary glooms I ſtretch my ſight,
Mid ſounds of death that bids the ſoul attend,
Mid empty forms and fleetig ſhapes of night,
Slowly I view a white rob'd ſhade aſcend;
That ſays, "I once was ST. JOHN! From the bounds
Of unknown realms beneath the dreary wave,
Where ever reſtleſs floods in nightly rounds,
Roll their dark ſurges o'er my wat'ry grave;
From ſeats which, ne'er to mortal ſight diſplay'd
The gates of vaſt Eternity ſurround,
In Night conceal'd and Death's impervious ſhade;
My voice aſcends—Attend the warning ſound.
Oh thou attend; who fluſh'd with early bloom
In Life's new Spring and vernal ſweetneſs gay,
Mindleſs of fate, that muſt thy branch entomb,
Spread'ſt thy green bloſſoms to the morning ray.
With thee how late. how like. alas, to thee,
To mortal joys, by opening youth beguil'd,
I ſtretch'd my airy wiſh, and follow'd free,
Where pleaſure triumph'd, and where Fancy ſmil'd.
Then while fond Hope her glittering pinions ſpread,
Pointing to * Climes beyond the diſtant wave;
Ev'n then unnoticed o'er my deſtined head,
Hung Death's dark form, that ſeal'd me for the grave.
How vain the hope, for many a joyous morn,
To taſte of raptures unallay'd by woe:
At once from life and ev'ry pleaſure torn,
From all I wiſh'd, and all I loved below.
The faithleſs morning on our opening Sails,
Smil'd out ſerene, and ſmooth'd our gliding way,
While the gay Veſſel fann'd by breathing gales
Play'd on the boſom of the Placid Sea:
When ſo, deſcending on the dark'ning wind,
Burſt the dire Storm;—and feeble to ſuſtain
The ruſhing blaſts in warring fury join'd.
The frail ſhip ſinks beneath the foaming main.
And ſee afar the oarleſs boat conveys
The trembling Sailors to a diſtant ſhore;
Alone, of aid bereft, with one laſt gaze.
I ſunk in deeps, and ſunk to riſe no more.
In that dread hour what awful ſcenes ariſe,
What pangs diſtreſs what unknown fears diſmay
When, future worlds diſcloſing on our eyes,
The trembling Soul forſakes her kindred clay.
Before the awful bar, th' Almighty throne,
In dread, I've ſtood th' Eternal Judge to ſee;
And fixt in bliſs, or doomed to endleſs moan,
Have paſſed the long, the unreceiſed decree:
Nor Earth muſt know the reſt"—— Where art thou now,
In youthful Joys my Partner and my Friend?
Of thoſe bleſt hours, thy fortune gave below,
Of all our hopes, is this the fatal end?
Ah what avail'd that energy of mind,
Far diſtant realms of Science to explore
That early led; where Genius unconfin'd
Spreads her gladfeaſt and opes her claſſic ſtore!
Ah, what avail'd miſ earthly hopes ſo frail,
The ſame gay dawning on thine early years!
Ah what avail'd (for what could then avail)
Thy Friends deep ſorrows or thy country's tears
In pleaſure's paths by youthful fancy led.
Mid ev'ry hope that blooming worth could raiſe,
The wings of Death with fatal horror ſpread.
Blank'd the bright promiſe of thy future days.
So from the lowering Weſt, the darkning clouds
Ruſh on the Sun and dim his orient ray;
And hateful night in glooms untimely ſhrouds
The opening glories of the vernal day.
Adieu my Friend ſo dear in vain, adieu,
Till ſome ſhort days their tedious courſes roll;
Soon ſhall our ſteps thine earlier fate purſue,
Moves in the race, and crouding to the goal.
A little ſpace ſhall ſee the Sun no more
Wheel his long courſe or ſpread his golden ray;
Soon the vain dream of mortal life be o'er;
The brightneſs dawning of eternal day.
Then join'd in bliſs, as once in friendſhip join'd,
May pitying Heaven our purer Spirits raiſe,
Each crime aton'd, each virtue well refin'd,
To paſs a long Eternity of Praiſe.

The SCOTCHMAN, No. III.

LONDON, February 1 1772.

AS ſoon as the addreſs of thanks was voted without a DIVISION or OPPOSITON to his Majeſty in the Houſe of Commons, upon his Speech from the throne, Lord North poſted away to St. James's, to communicate to the King the joyful news; George ſeemed highly pleaſed with his own firmneſs, and this unexpected unanimous addreſs of the whole houſe, he thought it a greater victory than that obtained by his uncle, the late Duke of Cumberland over the SCOTCH Rebels at the battle of Culloden, and inſtantly burſt out in the following exclamation. O! I am now happy to think I took the advice of my mother and my faithful miniſters, and treated the remonſtrances preſented to me with the contempt, (you very truely told me) they deſerved; by my firmneſs and perſeverance, theſe factious remonſtrants, as you juſtly termed them, are ſilenced, and I need not now fear any oppoſition to the meaſures of my miniſters. A few days after Manſfield, Grafton and Butler had a private conference with the King, the unanimous addreſs was again the ſubject of converſation, when they poiſoned his ears with the moſt fulſome adulation, and paſſed a thouſand encomiums on his conduct, reſolution, and courage; aſſured him the attention he had paid to their repreſentations and thoſe of his mother, was the only thing which deſtroyed the late FACTION againſt his government, and nothing, Sir, but a determination to ſupport your preſent miniſters can inſure you happineſs, they are your beſt friends.—The reply, "Perfectly ſatisfied with your attachment to my perſon and ſervice. I am reſolved to do it." Slavery ſeems pleaſing to the preſent degenerate ſons of Britain, and they may now ſit down quietly in their SCOTCH CHAINS, and rattle them.

When a place becomes vacant in any department under government, one of thoſe wretched miniſters, with which this nation is curſed immediately repairs to St James's, makes the king acquainted with it, and directly propoſes ſome miſerable PARASITE to fill it up, whoſe abilities and loyalty he expatiates upon for half an hour, or till ſuch time as he has convinced his Majeſty he is the only man in England fit for the employ, who can ſafely be truſted with the ſecrets of government. George liſtens with a ſmile of approbation to the TRAITOR's tale is ſurpriſed at the goodneſs of his miniſter, in being ſo careful to provide a PROPER perſon for his ſervice, but begs to know, what the emoluments of the office may be, if they appear trifling the King is ſatisfied, and all is ſettled; if they are conſiderable, his anſwer is, "I muſt have a little time to conſider of it." As ſoon as the miniſter is gone, the King ſets out for Carlton Houſe, or ſends for the Princeſs Dowager; if Lord Bute is in town, a private meſſage is inſtantly diſpatched, demanded, or rather begged of his preſence at Carlton Houſe or St. James's which ever place they hold the conſultation, if the SCOTCH minion happens to be in the country, an expreſs is immediately ſent to him, every circumſtance is minutely related, and they beg to know whether his lordſhip has any particular FRIEND to recommend, aſſuring him nothing ſhall be done till his anſwer is received. The Thane examines with a critical niceneſs, the liſt of CALEDONIAN REBELS, and a place is ſometimes kept vacant ſix weeks or two months, till one arrives by direction of his lordſhip, from the bleak mountains of the North; indeed Lord Bute upon two or three occaſions, did ſo far condeſcend as to SUFFER the King, or one of his acting miniſters to nominate to an employ, aſſuring his Majeſty, he had no perſon to recommend and therefore wiſhed he would pleaſe himſelf, and comply with the requeſt of ſome perſon in adminiſtration, who might apply for it.

In this SCOTCH manner are the affairs of the BRITISH EMPIRE managed, to the diſgrace of ENGLISHMEN, and the ruin of the nation. It is alſo notorious, that in almoſt every place where we ſend EMBASSADORS, CONSULS, &c. they are rank SCOTCH Jacobites, and ſome of the ſons of rebels taken in arms againſt the late King, witneſs William Gordan at Bruſſels, and the Earl of Dunmore Governor of New York, whoſe father was a priſoner upon parole of honour within the compaſs of five miles during life, for being concerned in the rebellion of 1745.

Will any man be ſurpriſed at the treatment the ſubjects of England meet with in foreign parts, when he reflects upon this ſhameful conduct of the King and miniſters; the farther we examine into the SECRET meaſures of this reign, and the artful contrivances of Lord Bute; the more reaſon we ſhall have to execrate the northern minion, and to lament the ſovereign's weakneſs. as well as his ingratitude, to the Engliſh and partiality to the SCOTCH,

The farther we examine into this reign the more abuſes we diſcover, no ſet of men I believe in any age or nation ever took more pains to ruin their country, than the miniſters of George the third, and I often think there will be great neceſſity for a long living hiſtorian to tranſmit their crimes to poſterity.

Among the many corruptions hardly touched upon, I cannot help taking notice how little they value the honour of the nation in chuſing none but the refuſe of SCOTLAND without fortunes, without abilities to repreſent his Majeſty in foreign courts. The honour of a Prince, till this reign, was always thought to be of more conſequence than that of a private perſon, and with ſo much the more care, thoſe ſhould be choſen and deputed upon all public embaſſes, who are beſt qualified to ſerve their country, and be a credit to their ſovereign. Not to mention the indignity offered to the Prince, in ſending miniſters abroad unfit for that employment, it draws a reflection on the nation becauſe it is natural for potentates to imagine, that thoſe who are ſent to them in public characters, muſt be conſidered at home, and, according to their abilities, to judge of the reſt of their countrymen.

We find too late, by the corruption of thoſe at home, and the weakneſs and ignorance of thoſe abroad, that our enemies find no great difficulty to obtain their ends; and the blood of ENGLAND's BRAVEST ſons, will ſoon be the price of SCOTCH villainy and ROYAL weakneſs. Was a man to form a catalogue to himſelf of the ſeveral (I would call them any thing but) Stateſmen ſent abroad for ſome years, in public characters, he muſt BLUSH for his ſovereign, and at the ſame time conſidering the miſerable ſtate of our affairs, TREMBLE for his country.

Embaſſadors ought to be men of knowledge, prudence, courage, and ample fortunes, not a parcel of needy, beggarly SCOTCHMEN, who are a ſcandal and diſgrace to the nation: It is impoſſible for a rebel SCOT to prefer the glory and welfare of England to his own private intereſt, he cannot withſtand, the force and charms of gaudy promiſes, glittering rewards and dazzling titles, though offered upon conditions big with the ruin of this country. Again, an Embaſſador ought likewiſe to have a proper correſpondence, in order to get the moſt early intelligence of what paſſes in the private cabinet, in the cloſets of other miniſters, and what ſchemes are ready to be put in execution, which he ſhould encourage, or endeavour to deſtroy, as they appear to have a good aſpect towards his country, it being often eaſier to fruſtrate a ſcheme before it is compleated than after. It is neceſſary alſo he ſhould be well verſed in paſt treaties, and have great quickneſs in the application of them; it is ſcandalous for an embaſſador to depend on his ſecretary, to do his buſineſs for him; and yet it is well known that ſome of our SCOTCH miniſters abroad cannot write a diſpatch without aſſiſtance.

Is it not ſurprizing then, that the King ſhould employ ſuch wretches, when it is a matter of the laſt importance to have able men in foreign courts; where there every action and expreſſion is taken notice of, and applied to their advantage or diſadvantage; to the honour or diſhonour of their country. But why ſhould we wonder at any thing a man does, who takes every thing upon credit, and never examines into the affairs of ſtate?

It is a melancholy truth that the King has not choſen one miniſter during the whole courſe of his reign only on account of his ignorance and incapacity, and being proper inſtruments for carrying into execution Lord Bute's plan of arbitrary power. The mercenary wretches, and abject tools employed by the miniſtry, may ſay what they pleaſe to gloſs over the blemiſhes (not to ſay worſe) of this reign, but I do inſiſt on it that a GOOD KING will uſe every reaſonable method to pleaſe his people and gain their affection; we have unfortunately experienced the reverſe for eleven years. Miniſters have been notoriouſly choſen whom the people diſlike and his Majeſty has deſervedly drawn on himſelf the contempt of his ſubjects, and hatred on their adminiſtration. When a ſet of men have made themſelves obnoxious throughout the kingdom, by their arbitrary unjuſt proceedings, and a majority of all ſorts of people call for a change, it is the duty of every King to deliver them up to the puniſhment they deſerve; and he certainly will, if he be not, like Pharoah. hardned to his own deſtruction. When this is not done, diſaffection rebellion, and civil war have generally been the conſequence. A prince, if it was put to him, either to change his miniſters, or loſe the affections of his people; if more generous motives will not influence him, he ought to conſider the unhappy fate of ſeveral princes, who obſtinately protected a wicked deſigning ſet of men.

Our miniſters, ſecure in the confidence of their Sovereign and a corrupt majority in the houſe of commons, are determined to purſue their deſtructive meaſures, ſatisfied that they are at preſent beyond the reach of puniſhment, and much to be lamented it is, that men, by dint of impudence bribery and villainy, ſhould be able to withſtand the reſentment of an injured nation, It is the prayer of all good men, that the time may not be far off, when the King will be no longer able to protect theſe miſcreants, the illjudged objects of royal favour. Princes however obſtinate, wicked or fooliſh, have generally ſooner or later repented of their conduct. I cannot conclude this paper better than giving the character of an evil magiſtrate from the writings of that great defender of public liberty, Algernon Sidney, who fell a martyr to the cauſe of freedom, thro' the inhuman Jefferies, the Manſfield of his time, in the profligate reign of Charles the ſecond.

" When a magiſtrate fancies he is not made for the people, but the people, for him; that he does not govern for them, but for himſelf; that the people live only to encreaſe his glory, or to furniſh matter for his pleaſure; he does not inquire what he may do for them, but what he may draw from them: by this means he ſets up an intereſt of profit, pleaſure, or pomp in himſelf, repugnant to the good of the public, for which he is made to be what he is. Theſe contrary ends certainly divide the nation into parties; and while every one endeavours to advance that to which he is addicted, occaſions of hatred, for injuries every day done, or tho't to be done, and received, muſt neceſſarily ariſe. This creates a moſt fierce, irreconcilable enmity; becauſe the occaſions are frequent, important, and univerſal, and the cauſes thought to be moſt juſt. The people think it to be the greateſt of all crimes to convert that power to their hurt, which was inſtituted for their good; and that the injuſtice is aggravated by perjury and ingratitude, which comprehend all manner of ill; and the magiſtrate gives the name of ſedition and rebellion to whatſoever we do for the preſervation of themſelves and their own rights. When mens ſpirits are thus prepared, a ſmall matter ſets them on fire: but if no accident happens to blow them into a flame, the courſe of juſtice is certainly interrupted, the public affairs are neglected; and when any occaſion, whether foreign or domeſtic, ariſes, in which the magiſtrate ſtands in need of the people's aſſiſtance, they whoſe affections are alienated, not only ſhow an unwillingneſs to ſerve him with their perſons and eſtates, but, fear that by delivering him from his diſtreſs, they ſtrengthen their enemy, and enable him to oppreſs them; and he fancying his will to be unjuſtly oppoſed, or his due more unjuſtly denied, is filled with a diſlike of what he ſees, and the fear of worſe for the future.—Whilſt he endeavours to eaſe himſelf of the one, and to provide for the other, he uſually encreaſes the evils of both; and jealouſies are on both ſides multiplied. Every man knows the governed are in a great meaſure under the power of the governor; but as no man, or number of men, is willingly ſubject to thoſe that ſeek their ruin, ſuch as fall into ſo great a misfortune continue no longer under it, than force, neceſſity, or fear, may be able to oblige them. But ſuch a neceſſity can hardly lie longer upon a great people, than till the evil be fully diſcovered and comprehended, and their virtue, ſtrength, and power be united to expel it. The ill magiſtrate looks upon all things that may conduce to that end as ſo many preparatives to his ruin; and by the help of thoſe who are of his party, will endeavour to prevent that union, and diminiſh that ſtrength, virtue, power and courage, which he knows to be bent againſt him. And as truth, faithful dealing, and integrity of manners, and bonds of union, and helps to good, he will always by tricks, artifices, cavils, and all means poſſible, endeavour to eſtabliſh falſhood and diſhoneſty, whilſt other emiſſaries and inſtruments of iniquity by corrupting the youth, and ſuch as can be brought to lewdneſs and debauchery, bring the people to ſuch a paſs, that they may neither care, nor dare to vindicate their rights; and that thoſe who would do it, may ſo far ſuſpect each other, as not to confer upon, much leſs to join in, any action tending to the public deliverance.

Theſe are the ſentiments of that brave Engliſhman and champion of public FREEDOM, upon the conduct of an ill deſigning Prince.

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.

The late London Papers mention, that a ſecond Revolution is expected to take Place in Denmark—That ſeveral more Perſons have been arreſted there—That the examined Papers of the State Priſoners turn againſt them, notwithſtanding the Court ſhew them all the Lenity poſſible——That had not Count Rantzaw interpoſed, the Queen of Denmark would have fallen a Sacrifice to an enraged Populace.—That her Name is omitted in the public Prayers of Denmark, and that the late Princeſs Dowager Wales ſent Col. Keith £ 2000, for his ſtanding forth in Behalf of injured Innocence——That a remarkable Coolneſs appears between the Courts of Verſailles and Madrid——That the Spaniards have Deſigns againſt Gibraltar——That the French are on the Point of ſelling Corſica to the Infant Duke of Parma——That the Toaſts of the Day in London are, the patriotic Members of the Houſe of Commons of Ireland, (who have again defeated the Britiſh Miniſtry) and the Five patriotic Members of the Council of Grenada——That the preliminary Articles of Peace between the Porte and the Empreſs of Ruſſia are happily adjuſted——That Lord Camden hath gained great Honour in ſome late Debates in the Houſe of Lords——That the Lord Mayor of London hath been greatly cenſured in a Speech delivered before him by Alderman Sawbridge, for his Refuſal of a Common-Hall to the Livery of London——but that tho' the Lord Mayor hath refuſed them, the Sheriffs are ready to gratify them in that Particular, whenever they ſhall call upon them for that Purpoſe, which it was thought they would ſoon do.

NEW-YORK, May 4.

By a Letter from a Gentleman in Fort George, at Madraſs, in the Eaſt Indies, to his Friend in this City, dated the 11th of July laſt, we learn that no hoſtilities had then been commenced in that Part of the World between the French and Engliſh, as has been reported for ſome Months paſt.

Tueſday laſt his Majeſty's 26th Regiment of Foot was reviewed by his Excellency General Gage: The Officers and Soldiers made an elegant Appearance, and went through the Exerciſe and a Variety of Evolutions with the utmoſt exactneſs.——We hear the above Regiment is to go to Montreal in about a Fortnight.

Yeſterday Morning, about Half an Hour after Two o'Clock, a Fire broke out in a ſmall Building adjoining to the Diſtill Houſe belonging to Mr. Hildreth, occupied by Meſſrs. Belitha and Springall; the Flames ſoon communicated itſelf to the Diſtillery, in which there was a large Quantity of Rum, Sugar, and Molaſſes, which burnt with great Fury, ſetting Fire to the neighbouring Houſes, they being chiefly built of Wood, added greatly to the Rapidity of the Flames, ſome of the People having ſcarce Time to remove their Furniture, &c. and before Daylight nine Dwelling Houſes, a Store, and Chair Houſe, were reduced to Aſhes, and ſeveral others damaged. Mr. Hildreth's Loſs is computed at £ 1500. Mr. John Freebon, Ship Chandler, is a great Sufferer, Mr. William Irvin, Tavern Keeper, ſaved very little of his Houſhold Goods, Mrs. Jane Finley, who kept a Tavern, and Mr. Edward Reynolds, Taylor, ſuſtained a great Loſs in having moſt of their Furniture deſtroyed.

APRIL 6.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman at the Illinois, dated at Koſkaſkias Jan. 1716

"ON the 17th of July laſt I went out to your plantation to ſee if your harveſt was gathered in, according to my agreement with the Frenchman I had hired for that purpoſe.—A few minutes after I entered the houſe, eight Kickapoo Indians, who had ſeen me riding thro' the grade Prairie, followed me into the houſe, and as I had no means to defend myſelf, they immediately made me priſoner.—From thence they conducted me thro' the Prairies to Wiotonoo (their town near the head of the Wabache river) where we arrived the ninth day of a moſt fatiguing march.——They rode my horſe by turns, but would never allow me the ſame indulgence.—On our arrival at the town, they ſtripped and painted me black, as is uſual with the ſavages when they intended to burn their priſoners.—The next day they alighted a fire, bound and laid me before it, and were proceeding to exerciſe the moſt cruel torture on me, when ſome French traders from Detroit, touched with compaſſion, interceded for my life, which, after two days conſultation, the ſavages agreed to allow on the payment of a very great ranſom; which, with my expencies to return here, &c. will coſt about three hundred pounds.—The 3d of Auguſt I left Wiotonoo, and arrived here the 15th, from a miſerable and diſtreſſing tour, which was worſe than death to undergo.

" Since we have had poſſeſſion of the Illinois country, the above nation of Indians, with their adherents, have taken ſeven Engliſh men and one woman priſoners, ſcalped one ſoldier of the 18th regiment alive, killed and ſcalped upwards of thirty Engliſhmen from the age of 18 to 30 years, and robbed Engliſh merchants boats and ſtores to the value of ten thouſand pounds—yet no meaſures are fallen on to chaſtiſe their perfidy!"

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.

Extract of a Letter from London, February 10.

" The Buſineſs of Parliament goes on, as I expected it would, exceeding ſmoothly. There was not ſo much as a Word offered in either Houſe againſt the King's Speech. The Commons have voted 25 000 Seamen for the enſuing Year, without a Diviſion. Every thing elſe is carrying on without Oppoſition; occaſioned, in a good Meaſure, from the Doors of both Houſes being ſhut againſt all Strangers whatever; ſo that the Patriots having nobody to declaim to, are quite tired out, and ſeldom give their Attendance. Lord Temple, I am aſſured, and Lord Chatham, I am told, will neither of them enter the houſe this Seſſion. Lord Camden ſeems to lie entirely quiet. In the City we have an excellent Chief Magiſtrate, by whoſe Means, and by the Diviſions among themſelves, the Patriots there are kept under. Even Junius has now fairly written himſelf down. This exceedingly factious Writer (who is ſtill concealed) ſeems to point his Malevolence chiefly againſt the King, the Duke of Grafton, and Lord Mansfield his laſt letter to whom is univerſally decried, as frivolous and groundleſs in the higheſt Degree.—We are at length, I hope, after a violent and tedious Hurricane, on the Eve of as long a Calm in Politics; indeed I can ſee nothing to prevent it. Lord North goes on calmly, ſteadily and firmly; & as his Hands are ſtrengthed by the full Confidence of his Maſter, who delegates to him the Powers neceſſary to his ſerving him with Effect, I really believe our domeſtic Government will acquire ſome Stability, and of Courſe, our Reputation with foreign States will ſoon be reſtored to that Standard, to which our Strength, Riches and Conſideration, ſo juſtly entitle us."

WILLIAMSBURG, April 9.

We are informed that the noted John Eyre, Eſq; who, though a man of fortune, was lately tranſported into this country for ſtealing paper, died about 3 days after his arrival; and that five-and-twenty hundred pounds in Bank Notes, and fifty Guineas, were found in his poſſeſſion. From ſome letters found about him, he appears to have been one of the greateſt miſcreants that ever exiſted; he had loſt a leg, and was of the moſt rueful figure, an index, as it would ſeem, of the depravity of his heart.

PORTSMOUTH, May 1.

We hear the Rioters in Hillſborough County, being ſenſible of their Error, have delivered themſelves up to Juſtice, and appear very penitent; a Court is ordered to bind them over for Tryal, which will come on before the Honorable Superior Court at Amherſt next September: They make great Promiſes, it is ſaid, never to be guilty of the like again, which it's hop'd they will ſtrictly obſerve as their Families are really to be pitied.

LONDON, March 2.

The Queen Dowager of Denmark is a woman of enterpriſe, ſpirit and intrigue. Poſſeſſed of ſtrong paſſions, ſhe leaves no obſtacles unconquered to gratify any deſire that contributes, even in a ſmall degree to promote her felicity. Ambition ſeems her predominant and ruling paſſion. Accuſtomed by long habit to ſtate artifice, ſhe can aſſume the character moſt foreign from her nature. In ſhort ſhe is, in many reſpects, another Empreſs of Ruſſia.

Her ſon, by a former huſband, is a youth of ſtrong natural abilities, and under the tuition of ſo capable a mother, it is no wonder if he imitates, in many reſpects, her example. The ſcheme of placing him upon the throne of Denmark is not a project of yeſterday, but has been long in agitation. The Danes, however, conſcious how much they ſtood in need of a powerful ally, have purpoſed to marry the Queen Dowager's ſon to one of the Princeſſes of Pruſſia. The King of Pruſſia had no objection to the match, provided there was a probability of ſeating the Queen Dowager's ſon upon the throne. How to effectuate this was the point; at length the conduct of the preſent King afforded a pleaſing proſpect to the conſpirators. His Majeſty, notwithſtanding all that has been ſaid to the contrary, very early indulged himſelf in every ſcene of debauchery; he grew fond of liquor to ſuch an exceſs, that was thought to impair his intellects. This furniſhed a pretext for the oppoſite party to put their plans into execution; and there cannot be a ſtronger proof of the King's weakneſs, than his ſigning a warrant for the impriſonment of his amiable conſort; nor a greater proof of his inebriety, than his being, at the time the conſpirators attempted to awake him, far removed from a ſtate of ſobriety. Thus matters ſtand at preſent. Every art is uſed to quiet the King's apprehenſions for his ſafety; but if the match ſhould take place between the Queen Dowager's ſon and the Princeſs of Pruſſia, we may venture to foretel, that ſome methods to remove the King, from an earthly to a heavenly crown, will be adopted and put into execution. The Queen Dowager is a great admirer of the works of Machiavel, and, as well as the Empreſs Ruſſia, is ambitious to become his diſciple.

We are informed, that the laſt packet from Denmark contained a letter from the Queen Conſort to his Majeſty, the contents of which are kept a profound ſecret.

NEW-YORK, May 7

On Sunday evening in 8 weeks from Falmouth, arrived the Harriot Packet, Capt Oake.

Yeſterday the Ship Grace Capt. Chambers from Briſtol arrived in 7 weeks and 3 days.

A Briſtol paper of the 14th of March, by Capt. Chambers, contains the following advices, viz. That on the 21 of Feb. count Struenſee, on his examination burſt into tears, confeſſed his guilt, and begg'd for mercy, owned that the queen had been guilty of infidelity, as well as many high crimes againſt the ſtate; on which ſhe was order'd into cloſer confinement, and all acceſs to her denied; of which, when the King was inform'd, he ſhed tears, and was ſhut up the reſt of the day. That he had deſired to ſee her once more, but was diſſuaded. That many perſons ſuppoſed witneſſes were ſubborned to ſwear againſt her. That the confeſſion of Struenſee had been extorted by the terrors of the rack, and that ſhe would certainly fall a ſacrifice, unleſs prevented by the interpoſition of Great Britain——Which had been declined——That it was reported the Count was beheaded before the window of the caſtle where the Queen was confined, and that head was alſo ſtruck off the 27th of February. That the Royal marriage bill had paſſed both houſes; That the Iriſh patriots, like thoſe of England had quarrel'd among themſelves, that a negotiation highly to the prejudice of Great-Britain, was on foot between the Courts of Denmark and Pruſſia, that the Duke of Grafton was gone on an embaſſy to France—That the famous Dudley, had confeſſed himſelf guilty of purjury in ſwearing that he was privy to the fire at Portſmouth, and was ſentenced to be tranſported.——And that the Duke of Glouceſter is not likely to recover.

BOSTON, May 7.

We hear that the duties on Tea, paid into the revenue cheſt have ariſen ſolely from the colony of the Maſſachuſetts Bay. A great ſign that all the colonies are perfectly acquieſcent in the acts of trade, except the factious Boſtonians!

It is ſaid that the ſeveral ſhips which from time to time have ſneaked out of this harbour, are gone to cruize on the ſouthern governments, to prevent their trading like freemen with people againſt whom the laws of their country have not prohibited their commerce. Query, Whether ſeizures on the above footing are not piracies, for which the captors ought to be HANGED.

The 25th ult. a ſmall ſhock of an Earthquake was felt at Philadelphia.

Laſt Friday morning a new born male Babe was found in a pond at Lynn, with ſeveral ſtones tied round its body; we hear the jury of inqueſt agreed it was wilfully murdered by one Sarah Goldthwait, the mother of the infant, who was thereupon committed to Eſſex goal.

Another new born child was taken up laſt Saturday floating in Charles-River, ſuppoſed to have been lately thrown in there by its unnatural mother.

Sunday morning a man was found drowned in a Dock near Pulling's wharf; he was ſeen the evening before much intoxicated with liquor.

Bridgwater, May 1. 1772.

Laſt Tueſday an Oak Tree of 18 Inches Diameter, ſtanding a few Rods from the Houſe of Capt. Joſeph Gannett, was ſtruck with Lightning; which, from the Effects, is ſuppoſed to have entered the uppermoſt Part of the Trunk, about 15 Feet from the Ground, and ſtriking off the Top of the Tree, which conſiſted of three Branches, pierced downward into the Root, ſhivered the Body into numberleſs Pieces, and ſcattered them all around to the Diſtance of 14 Rods, when the Branches fell, with all their Tops inclining to the Root. At the Time it was ſtruck, Capt. Gannett was walking at about 20 Feet Diſtance from it, and was conſiderably affected by the Lightning, and much wounded in his Arm & Leg by ſome Pieces of the Tree. His Son ſtanding juſt without the Door of the Houſe, was ſtruck to the Ground, and rendered ſenſeleſs: By bleeding he revived, but remains weak and languid.

HARTFORD, May 12.

The 25th Day of April laſt, it was diſcover'd that the Cellar of His Majeſty's Cuſtom Houſe in New-York was open'd by falſe Keys, (as was ſuppoſed) as no Marks of Force appear'd on the Door, and Six Pipes of Wine, then lately ſeized, had been feloniouſly taken and carried away by ſome Perſon or Perſons unknown.——His Excellency Gov. Tryon has iſſued a Proclamation, promiſing his Majeſty's moſt gracious Pardon to any perſon concerned in perpetrating the ſaid felony, who ſhall diſcover any his accomplice or acccomplices therein, that the offender or offenders may be apprehended and ſecured, ſo that they may be dealt with according to law. The Collector and Comptroller have promiſed a Reward of £ 100 New-York Currency, to any Perſon who ſhall diſcover the Perpetrators of the above Felony, ſo that they may be legally convicted thereof.

⁂ As a conſiderable Number of the Subſcribers for the late Rev'd Mr. Hooker's Six Sermons, (lately publiſhed) have not ſent for the Books they ſubſcribed for, they are hereby informed that unleſs the ſame are immediately call'd for they will be ſold to any Perſons who ſhall appear to purchaſe them.

Praiſe of AGRICULTURE.

AGriculture began with our World, and was the Employment of its firſt Inhabitant, who was to get his Bread in the Sweat of his Face:

When Adam dug and Eve ſpan,
Who was then the Gentleman?

The ſecond Parent of our Species enter'd upon the Renovation of it with an Act of Huſbandry and Planting. His Deſcendants, the greateſt Princes and the wiſeſt States, have ever made this the Object of their Inquiries, Studies and Injunctions: They practiſed it themſelves, and made it a principal Point of their Politicks, to reward the improvement and puniſh the Neglect of it.

It is no wonder, Agriculture has been the Buſineſs and Amuſement of the World in every Age and Part of it, ſince it forces itſelf upon us, on Account of its Neceſſity, in conſequence of the Divine Appointment. Other Arts and Employments may ſerve for the Embelliſhment of human Life, this is requiſite for the Support of it.

Happineſs ſeems to have fixed her Seat in rural ſcenes: The Aſſembly, the lighted Room, the Equipage, the Embroidery, do not ſooth and entertain the Mind of Man in any Degree like the verdant Plain, the wavy Field, the artleſs Stream, the enamel'd Mead, the fragrant Grove, the melodious Birds, the ſportive Beaſts, the open Sky and ſtarry Heavens. And the Ladies muſt excuſe my Want of Taſte or Manners in thinking, the clean, tuck'd-up nimble Laſs makes a more pleaſing figure, than the Dutcheſs, who ſweeps half the Mall with her enormous Petticoat; and that the induſtrious Houſewife, who has made nine thouſand Cheeſes, and bred up half a Score luſty Children, is more amiable to the Eye of unprejudiced Reaſon, than the fineſt ſhe, who has made two Millions of inſipid Viſits, and propagated Tittle-tattle from one End of the Town to the other.

The Labours of the Country Life will riſe in our Eſteem, if, beſides their Agreeableneſs to our Nature and Frame, we conſider them as the Source of all the Wealth of a Nation. Trade and Commerce, which are eſteemed the two great Fountains of national Wealth, cannot have a Place, but on the Foundation of this original and natural Employment.

Agriculture not only furniſhes Wealth to a Nation, but Hands alſo able and willing to defend it, and is perhaps the beſt Nurſery of a good Soldiery in the World. And the Country Life, which thus qualifies Men for neceſſary Defence, naturally introduces a Diſpoſition, averſe to civil Tumult, and offenſive War: The Occaſion over, their Swords eaſily convert into Plowſhares, and their Spears into Pruning-hooks:

Agriculture was, perhaps, the Parent of all thoſe Sciences, Arts and Employments, which have ſince carried their Heads ſo far above her. But it riſes ſtill higher, and reads continual Lectures, not only in ſpeculative, but practical Philoſophy; it conducts to Morality and every ſocial Virtue, and inforces a due Regard to and dependance on the ſupreme Being, in which conſiſts the Eſſence of Religion.

Taken up by me the

Meſſ. PRINTERS,

If the following obſervations may be thought ſerviceable, or entertaining they are offered for the uſe of the public.

EVER ſince people's conſciences have been releaſed from the bonds of the non importation agreement, we flow in goods; commerce not only meets with high encomiums, but is practiſed upon as the health and wealth of the country; and ſuch a notion has poſſeſſed the minds of people about trade and barter, that if two men meet and exchange a couple of cart-horſes, but juſt out of the reach of the crows; they think they may afford two or three days, to go about and tell of their gains.

Now while trade meets with ſuch a general approbation, I only purpoſe to ſhew, that ſome particular practices of it, are neither advantageous to the country, nor the practitioners themſelves. And pitch on the particular game of driving the pin as it is called. And for illuſtration, ſhall produce the inſtance of a young man, endowed with a good patrimoney in lands, who unhappily imbibed ſome principles unprofitable for his circumſtances. He drunk in a notion, that the earth might to a conſiderable degree be tilled on horſe back, and that it was cheaper to buy any ſort of creature than to raiſe it; and when any labour was eaſier to hier, than to do it with his own hands, and a penny turned was as good or better then a penny earned.

Upon theſe ſentiments he proceeded, bought him a fine ſaddle-horſe, well equipt; and then team, cows, &c. In a ſhort time there was an urgent neceſſity of paying for the horſe; he ſells the team to pay for the horſe, and cows to pay for the team, ſheep to pay for ſwine, &c. and jockied every horſe he come near, always keeping one for the bing of motion. By this time he began to think his commerce too much contracted, and went and indented with the maſter of a veſſel, for rum and ſugar to pay for ſtock he had bargained for. He made a looſing voyage drawing his rum; but this he aſcribed to ſome worm hole or leak in the caſk. His buſineſs now was to enquire into the captain of the veſſel's circumſtances, that he might make ſome turn; and found out that he had beſpoke ſome houſe furniture of a joiner, to ſet out his daughter, and poſts away to the joiner, and offers him a ſum to take him paymaſter, inſtead of the captain; and next agrees with the joiner to pay him in goods at caſh price, and gallops round the town with an empty purſe, to cheapen goods for caſh; but for want thereof, obliged to take them up on terms that the joiner made an abatement to diſcharge the debt. He was then diſcovered peeping into peoples hog pens to find ſome pork to pay the merchant; and when he had found that, he haunted a man night and day, for a piece of land adjoining to the man he bought the pork of, that he might diſcharge that debt; when he had accompliſhed that enterpriſe, and obliged himſelf to pay for the land, from a Barterer, he turned a borrower. His enquiry now was, who had paid, who had received, and who had got any money; and his buſineſs was peeping into coffers, and feeling peoples purſes;——a man could not open a cheſt, but he muſt know the contents of it; nor pull out his pocket-book, but his eyes were fixed upon it; and poſts from one to another, Have you any money? was his conſtant cry. One tells him, I have no money theſe hard times.—Another, I cant call in my money—Another, that half a dozen had ſpoke for his money—Another, that he was going forthwith to pay away his money—Another ſays, I formerly had money, but my daughters are grown from ſuckers to ſoakers, and have not a penny to ſpare—Another tells him I have married a young wife, and ſhe is proging for cloathes to dance in, when I am dead—Another ſays, the rogues have chated me out of my money--Another, I have been in the law, you know how it is with me.——At laſt one tells him, he had rather keep his money in his cheſt, than let it out at common intereſt.—Here he had ſomething to work upon—they talked for an hour, per cent. half per cent. and ten per cent. At laſt he obtained the money for a ſhort time, with a bond's-man for ſecurity. He was preſently put upon the look-out for more, and being in chace on the road, he met a man with a pair of ſaddle bags ſticking out on each ſide, and ſays to him, ſo friend, you ſeem to be well ſtuffed; have you any thing to trade in? and was anſwered, I am a broker from New-York, I have nothing but paper money to trade with. Good news, ſays the pin-driver, but it is marvelous that Connecticut people, who have ſo much credit and ſubſtance, are obliged to New-York for paper bills. But pray let me know what you would be at with your paper money? I am going to buy up Connecticut people, ſays the broker. The merchants in New-York, have found their Guinea voyages coſtly and dangerous, and have entered upon a plan to ſet up a ſlave-trade nearer home, in neighbouring colonies. They have ſubtilly for many years paſt, drained Connecticut of all their looſe corns of produce and caſh, and now are ſhaking a further advance on their ſubſtance. They well underſtand Connecticut people's foppery, and luxury, and that they carry on a trade but juſt beyond the end of their noſes, to ſupport themſelves in it. And at a coſtly rate ſubject themſelves to inceſſant and perplexing law-ſuits, and repeated duns for money, to carry on a petty merchandize, & are conſtantly whining after any thing that is called money. And therefore the Yorkers have pitched on Connecticut as the chief mart in the ſlave trade. Then ſays the pin-driver, do you give a good price? Says the broker, we ſtand by the ſteelyards. We have ſo begun, but I can't tell how long we ſhall hold out; but according as we find Chaps to deal with. If a man weighs current 200lb. we allow him to be worth 100lb. and then reduct tare and tret; that a man in pretty good caſe, and tolerably fledged, will amount to about 88 pounds. * Says the pin driver, it is hard indeed; but hard or ſoft, neceſſity obliges me to take it, and here he drove his laſt pin, and finiſhed the ſcene.

I ſhall trouble the public only with a few queries.

Firſt, Whether the perſon I have diſcribed would not have done better for himſelf and his country, if he had kept to his proper buſineſs, tilling his land, inſtead of trading and trucking ſuch a manner?

And in the next place, When it is evident that people are generelly ſo plunged in debt, that they are obliged to borrow money on land ſecurity, at high intereſt; whether the colony where they belong, had not better provide them a medium, and take the profit of their intereſt, than to force them to go into another government, for preſent relief?

* The Yorkers require double ſecurity, in lands, ſeven per cent. intereſt; and the broker five pounds for procuring and bringing the money.

And in the laſt place, Whether it is not the concern of the legiſlature, that trade ſhould be carried on to the beſt advantage for the whole body of people to the government?

By the BOSTON POST.

BOSTON, May 14.

By ſeveral Veſſels arrived here ſince our laſt from LONDON, we have the following Advices, Viz.

HAMBURGH, March 5.

THE 25th ult Count Struenſee had his third examination. We are aſſured that the queſtions to be put to him are in number 630, and that in his three examinations he had not given anſwers to above 200. The ſame day his horſes, together with thoſe of Count Brandt, (which are moſtly Engliſh ones and excellent in their kind) were ſold by auction. This gives reaſon to think that the fate of theſe two noblemen is fixed; and there are ſome who ſay, that an eccleſiaſtic had been admitted to viſit the latter.

LONDON,

March 11. The tea bill has paſſed both Houſes, and now lies for the royal aſſent.

A ſpirited altercation paſſed yeſterday, at the levee between the Earls of S—h and H—d concerning the royal marriage bill, which might have produced fatal conſequences, had not a great Perſonage interpoſed in order to conciliate matters.

March 22. The feuds in Ireland are ſubſiding very faſt; it looks as if the patriots could ſtick together no where; but when they come to a certain point of madneſs and abſurdity, to give it no worſe a name, they muſt for the happineſs of the community in which they breed, fall into diſſolution.

It is ſaid that as ſoon as the laſt meſſenger ſent to Copenhagen arrives, all the proceedings relative to the Queen of Denmark and the other priſoners in that Kingdom, will be publiſhed here by authority.

The Earl of Hillſborough had yeſterday a grand levee of Colony Governors, Agents, and Weſt India Merchants, at his Lordſhips houſe in Hanover Square.

March 13. It is privately whiſpered, that the Queen of Denmark's head was ſtruck off the 27th of laſt month.

March 14. The laſt Letters from Copenhagen adviſe that the Revolution which has happened took its riſe totally from the arbitrary & deſpotic Meaſures adopted and purſued by Count Struenſee.

Wedneſday Night at a Meeting of the Society of Arts, Manufactures and Commerce, in the Strand, it was agreed to give a Premium of Thirty Guineas, as an Encouragement to the Planter of the greateſt Number of Vines in America, and to the Perſon who produced the greateſt Quantities of Annatto and Zebra Wood in any of the Britiſh Colonies.

Yeſterday a motion was made in the Houſe of Commons by Mr. Alderman Harley for leave to bring in a bill to reduce the high price of proviſions, and the ſame was ordered accordingly.

LONDON March 14.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman of public Character in London, dated March 17. 1772.

"It is conjectured that the Draw-back upon Tea will not be continued after the 5th of July next."

From the above, we may expect, that the Act laying a Duty on Tea in the Colonies will be repealed the preſent Seſſion of Parliament.

LONDON, March 14.

A Petition was lately preſented to the Lord Lieut. of Ireland from an Officer of that Kingdom, praying for promotion; in which the Petitioner actually urged, as claims to his Excellency's conſideration, that that his brains were knocked out in America, and that he was the father of two orphans, who had not a parent exiſting to furniſh them with the neceſſaries of life.

March 16. We hear that the ſhipwrights in the ſeveral dock-yards are now buſier than at any time the late war; and expreſſes are continually arriving at one or other of them from the Admiralty. It is not even conjectured what the reaſon of this extraordinary expedition is.

We are informed, that ſoon after this Seſſion of Parliament, Lord North is to retire with a penſion, not inferior to that of Lord Chatham, as a ſmall mark of royal favour for his many great ſervices, but particularly for his unwearied induſtry about the royal marriage bill.

Warſaw, Feb 22. Captain Wenzel is arrived here this moment, with advice that the preliminaries of peace between Ruſſia and the Porte had juſt been ſettled and ſigned at the army of Count Romanzow that the general and a miniſter plenipotentiary from the Grand Signior, both duly authorized for that purpoſe by their reſpective courts; and that afterwards the Ottoman miniſter had diſpatched couriers to all the courts in friendſhip with the porte to inform them of this event.

Warſaw, March 4. The important news of ſigning the preliminaries of peace between Ruſſia and the Porte is fully confirmed. We do not yet know the particulars only that they are intirely to the ſatisfaction of the Empreſs of Ruſſia, and were ſigned through the mediation of the court of Vienna. The ratification will take place the next congreſs, but it is not yet known where it will be held.

LONDON, March 19.

Yeſterday the Commons proceeded on the report of the Royal Marriage Bill, and debates ariſing thereon, it was expected they would ſit late.

On Monday the Houſe of Commons reſolved, nemine contradicente, that when any perſon ſhall from henceforth be brought to the Bar of this Houſe, to receive any Judgment of this Houſe, or to be diſcharged from the cuſtody of the Serjeant at Arms attending this Houſe or from any impriſonment inflicted by order of the Houſe, ſuch perſon ſhall receive ſuch judgement, or the order of the Houſe for his diſcharge, ſtanding at the Bar, unleſs it ſhall be otherwiſe directed in the order of the Houſe made for that purpoſe and that the ſaid reſolution be made a ſtanding order of the Houſe.

March 21. The Miniſtry have received certain advice of ſome dangerous deſigns hatching by the Spaniſh Court againſt Jamaica and ſome other places in the Weſt Indies.

The Right Hon. the Earl of Lincoln, is we are informed, to go to Copenhagen to fetch the Queen of Denmark.

LONDON, March 27.

From the frequent curriers that paſs between the Courts of London, Madrid, Verſailles and the Hague our politicians prognoſticate a freſh rupture in Europe, and even the peace lately concluded between the Ruſſians and Turks is urged in ſupport of their opinion, as if the former was deſirous of being at leaſure for a new ſcene of hoſtility.

The Attorney General, we hear, objects to the removal of the 60th regiment from Canada, inſiſting that by act of parliament this regiment is only bound to ſerve in North-America. It is true the Attorney General is right with reſpect to the condition on which that regiment was raiſed, and therefore his oppoſition to its removeal to Jamaica, where it has been lately ordered, is perfectly proper. Former Attorney Generals were not ſo rigid in preſerving the public with our troops as Mr. Thurloe; for this very corps was employed at the Havannah, even when Lord Camden was Attorney, contrary to the ſolemn ſtipulation of the kingdom.

The Duke of Ancaſter, and the Earl of Holderneſſe, are much diſpleaſed that the vacant blue ribbon is to be given to Lord North in preference to either of them.

Yeſterday after breaking up the levee at St. James's, Sir Edward Hawke, who was at Court, had the honour of a conference with his Majeſty; and it is ſaid, Sir Percy Brett, will command the ſquadron to be fitted out on an important expedition.

The Cadets at Woolwich are ſoon to be increaſed from 48 to 100 Men as in time of War.

March 28. The annuity of 2000l. per annum, which a ſociety of Gentlemen who meet at the Globe Tavern in Fleet-ſtreet, have reſolved to ſettle on Mr. Wilkes is to be raiſed in the following manner:—500 members to ſubſcribe 4l. a year each, of which one to be paid by each every quarter—by which they will be able to pay 500l. every month to Mr. Wilkes.

An event has happened within theſe few days which is likely to be productive of a war.—Certain advices have been received by our court that the French are embarking ten thouſand troops for the Eaſt-Indies. Lord Rochford, immediately waited on the French Ambaſſador who declared; that the above-mentioned ten thouſand troops were only intended to relieve the number, now in the iſlands of Mauritius and Bourbon. This anſwer not being ſatisfactory, a courier was immediately diſpatched to Verſailles, with a ſtrong and very ſpirited remonſtrance. Some of the troops, however, are ſailed; and it is ſuppoſed that a great fleet will be immediately ordered to the Eaſt Indies, to watch the motions of the French. The French regular force to the Eaſt-Indies, ſhould the above ten thouſand be permitted to go, will amount to twenty-five thouſand men.

Yeſterday Morning a meeting of ſeveral principal perſons in Adminiſtration was held at Lord Sandwich's houſe at the Admiralty, ſaid to be relative to ſome important naval affairs, which are expected to be very ſhortly the ſubject of parliamentary diſcuſſion.

No change takes place in the mourning till Eaſter Sunday; on the 12th of May, however, the Court goes entirely out of mourning, and on the King's birth-day, a grander circle is expected at St. James's than has been known for many years.

Lord North has received the blue ribbon, vacant by the Death of the D. of Saxe-Gotha. His Majeſty conferred it, without ſolicitation. His Lordſhip is, perhaps, the third garter; or even the ſecond, if Sir John Falſtaff was not a member, whoever ſat in the Houſe of Commons.

Notwithſtanding the ſilence of all the other papers it may be depended upon as a fact, that laſt Saturday evening an expreſs arrived from Ireland, relating to the White boys. The meſſenger did not ſtay above two hours, when he returned with an anſwer. The purport of it is ſaid to be, to put all the ringleaders of the mob to death without mercy. Perſons of greater conſequence are ſuppoſed to be concerned in the late riſing of the White boys than moſt people imagine.

On the 25th of March, the Bill for better regulating the Marriages of the Royal Family paſs'd the Houſe of Commons. [Great Oppoſition and warm Debates were made againſt the Bill after it was bro't into the Houſe.] At ſix o'Clock the Houſe divided, when there appeared 168 for its paſſing, and 115 againſt it. The Bill has alſo paſſed the Houſe of Lords, 90 for paſſing it, and 26 againſt it.

BOSTON, May 14.

A Gentleman arrived in Capt. Hall from London relates, that he was very lately in Scotland, and in many of the principal cities there that he was much ſurpriſed to hear the people in public Companies cenſure the preſent adminiſtration, for taxing the Americans without their conſent, and for attempting to have the Commiſſioners of the Cuſtoms exempted from contributing to the ſupport of government, &c. with the utmoſt freedom. It is not at all incredible that the miniſtry are put to their trumps if even Scotland begins to deteſt them.

We are informed that a fine Addition has been lately made to the noble library of Harvard College, by Thomas Palmer, Eſq; a young Gentleman who lately received his Education at that Univerſity, and has ſince made the Tour of France and Italy.

Monday Morning the Workmen began to take down the Rev. Dr. Cooper's Meeting Houſe.

LEMMONS,

CHOICE Liſbon Lemmons, to be Sold by ISRAEL SEYMOUR in Hartford.

Mr. WATSON,

After I had read your Paper of May 5. I chanc'd to read a Paſſage in a Sermon of the venerable Increaſe Mather, D. D. deceaſed, I have tranſcribed it, and ſend it to you, poſſibly it may be ſomething of an Antidote againſt Poiſon. The Paſſage is this.

"ALL Rulers ought to be pray'd for—pray for all in Authority. It was well ſpoken by "one of the reformed German Divines "that if poſſible, inſtead of cenſuring, and finding Fault with their "Rulers, which they are very apt to "do, would pray more for them, it "would be better for their Rulers, "and for themſelves too." To which I add this Maxim, viz. that they who weaken the ſoverign Power, weaken their own Society.

Your's, A. B.

On DRINKING.

WHEN I drain th' oblivious bowl,
Pleaſures wing my raptur'd ſoul.
My tongue, with love, and wine inſpire,
By turns relieves the ſilver lyre.
When Bacchus fires me with delight,
Grief ſhakes her ſable wings for flight;
And wrinkling cares then wing their way
To winds, that tempeſt all the ſea.
Be it fair abroad, or foul,
All is fair within my ſoul.
When I ſwill the roſy ſhow'r,
Life exerts her ev'ry power.
Bacchus, full of mirthful play,
Ever ſmiling, ever gay,
His round, plump, chearful face does ſhine
Roſy bright with roſy wine.
To the bliſsful bow'r I fly
With the fair to crown my joy.
When the nectar ſtreams I taſte,
With roſy wreaths my temples grac'd,
Smiling [illegible] my ſoul ſerene,
Of life I ſing the various ſcene.
When in wine I drown my woes,
Balmy fragrance round me flows;
While to my breaſt the fair does cling,
Of beauty, and of love I ſing.
When the wreath'd roſy bowl I drain;
Pleaſures dart through ev'ry vein;
My free ſoul at large expands,
In dance I join the choral bands.

LONDON, January 25.

We have been favoured by a correſpondent with the following authentic account of that extraordinary revolt which lately happened amongſt the King of Denmark's guards at Copenhagen: On Thurſday, December 24th, four companies of the foot guards (the fifth remaining on duty at the King's palace, until relieved by the Daniſh regiment) were aſſembled in order to be incorporated into five ordinary marching regiments; but being degraded, Mr. Nunſen's company laid down their arms, and declared, they would never ſubmit to ſerve in any other regiment, upon which this company was committed to the guard houſe. The King's company in order to deliver their comrades, had forced the doors when they thought of a proper method of redreſs, by complaining to remaining companies went to the King's palace at Copenhagen joined the company there on ſervice, and fortified themſelves in the inner court of the palace being reſolved to fight bravely if they ſhould be attacked. The other company being ſenſible that the weſtern gate of the town, as the neareſt to Fridrichſberg, would be ſhut, or well guarded went to the northern gate forced the paſſage, and when they came to the grand avenue that leads to Fridrichſberg they choſe a leader ſuppoſing that the dragoons would be ſent after them; the leader, remembering that they had been taught to oppoſe the attacks of cavalry in a ſquare battalion, formed one, and conducted his little army to the King's houſe, in the greateſt order with their muſkets ſhouldered. Their intention was to requeſt the King, either for diſmiſſion, with only the pay of a common ſoldier. The captain, ſeeing his company going to Fridrichſberg, got before them, in order to acquaint the Miniſter of their intention: the Miniſter ſent him back immediately, when he found they had reached the Aid-de-camp on duty, to tell them, that the King never intended to keep any body in his ſervice by force, and granted them their diſmiſſion. They returned immediately to the town, and wherever they paſſed, the inhabitants gave them money, and extolled them for their intrepidity and firmneſs. The two companies who had fortified themſelves in the inner court of the King's palace were not ſo eaſy to be quieted. Two General Officers went to them, flattered them, and ſhewed them a paper which they had pretended to be an order for giving their diſmiſſion; but they refuſed to leave their place of ſafety before they had ſeen that order with the King's name. All the grenadiers of the garriſon were then ordered to aſſemble, with their muſkets charged, in order to attack them, if they quitted not the palace before two o'clock in the morning; but ſofter means were uſed; the Generals delivered them, at one o'clock in the morning, their diſmiſſion, ſigned by the King. The inhabitants furniſhed them while they were beſieged, with victuals and wine and animated them not to yeild. The mariners were ready at the firſt ſtroke againſt the guards to aſſiſt them, and threatened to murder the whole garriſon. The 25th, in the morning, the carpenters of the King's navy, who are the braveſt of all the mariners, aſked the guards if they were ſtill injured, begged they might be called for whenever they had the leaſt reaſon for complaint, and they ſhould find them brave and faithful fellow citizens.

The Advice of Nabi Affendi, (a famous Poet among the Turks who flouriſhed toward the End of the laſt Century) to his Son.

THE firſt thing a man ought to think of is religion; it ought to be antecedent to the care of his fortune; is it not ſufficient to be informed of the great Truths it contains; theſe Truths ſhould be alſo practiſed.

Conſecrate the morning of your reaſon to the ſtudy of the ſciences; they are of infinite reſource in the courſe of life; they form the heart, poliſh the mind, and inſtruct man in his duties. By them men attain to honors and dignities; they recreate and amuſe us in proſperity; and become our conſolation in Adverſity.—But in vain, without aſſiduous application, will you be able to acquire the ſciences; they are the daughters of labour, and by labour only you will obtain their poſſeſſion.

Endeavour to adorn your mind with all ſorts of knowledge; on a multiplicity of occaſions in life they become highly neceſſary. How immenſe is the diſtance between the learned man and the ignorant! The brighteſt light compared with the thickeſt darkneſs, life with death, and exiſtence with nothing, feebly expreſs the interval that ſeparates the intelligent from him that is not. Ignorance is the poiſoned ſource whence flow all the ills that afflict this world; blind ſuperſtition, irreligion, barbarity, deſtructive of arts, march along with it; and ſhame, contempt, and meanneſs, bring up the rear.

The Arabic tongue, that tongue ſo rich in expreſſion, and at the ſame time ſo ancient that it appears to have begun with the world, that tongue which Abraham and his ſon Iſhmael ſpoke, and which from theſe Patriarchs down to us, has been preſerved in all its purity, ought to be the firſt object of your ſtudies; but you muſt not conſecrate the whole time of your youth to learn it.—Languages are only, as it were, the avenues that lead to the temple, where the ſciences have their reſidence.

Make divine and human laws ſubjects of your meditation. Theſe ſciences once acquired apply yourſelf to logic and phyſicks. Nurture your mind particularly with the reading of the beſt authors. Can a bird, without wings, dare to ſoar in the region of the air? The precious ſhell fiſh that contains the pearl is not found on the ſurface of the water; it is at the bottom of the ſea, and amidſt a thouſand dangers, that it muſt be fiſhed for.

The falſe ſplendour of riches dazzle the eyes of weak and avaricious men; let it not dazzle yours. They inceſſantly ſigh after the things they have not, and their inſatiable heart is a prey to a thouſand uſeleſs deſires. Let their misfortunes warn to make you avoid them.

The tranquility and happineſs of life conſiſts in being ſatisfied with one's condition. God, who placed you in it, is not ignorant of your wants. Put your confidence in his divine providence, and he will prevent them. Why is man ſo paſſionately fond of gold and ſilver? Theſe metals can neither allay his hunger nor his thirſt; they cannot even replace the more ordinary aliments. In vain ſhall the huſbandman hope to gather in an uſeful harveſt from a field ſown with gold and ſilver. Theſe two metals are not real riches; at beſt they are but the ſigns.

Be reſerved and circumſpect in your promiſes, but when once you have given your word, keep it religiouſly. Promiſes are debts, to a man of honor, which he ought faithfully to acquit himſelf of.

Avoid raillery; it often offends him who is the object of it. He that indulges this humour is the ſcourge of ſociety, and avoid him. Sacrifice no man to the paſſion of expreſſing a witty ſaying; like a ſharp arrow it pierces the heart of him againſt whom it is ſhot. Not that I would, as a rigid cenſor, baniſh an innocent pleaſantry, a ſlight trifling. Fine and delicate raillery is the ſoul of converſation, and makes its beſt ſeaſoning; but how few know how to play it off, and not drive it too far?

Keep yourſelf quite clear from all ſorts of detraction; it is baſe and mean to attack him who cannot defend himſelf, becauſe he is abſent. A detractor is univerſally abhorred; known to be ſuch, his company is generally avoided, none thinking themſelves ſecure from the darts of his envenomed tongue.

All men are equal; virtue only and not fortune, ought to place a difference between them. Let no man perceive the ſuperiority of your rank. Be acceſſible and affable to every one; true grandeur is humane. Affect not a diſdainful brow, nor an eye beſpeaking pride, and the contempt of others. Let your face, far from inſpiring terror, ſhow ſerenity wherever it appears, and declare the goodneſs of your heart. Uſe no harſh words to dependants, nor require from them ſervices more than they can well perform. Retain no hatred or animoſity againſt your neighbour; to create to yourſelf vexation, and to harbour reſentment, would be to renounce your own tranquility. The moſt noble revenge you can take for an injury is not to imitate him who has done it. Avoid particularly anger, and its ſubſequent diſorders. Enter into the troubles of your friends, and endeavour to mitigate them by your generous cares.— Profuſe when you oblige them, become very reſerved when, in your turn, you ſtand in need of them, and ſtrive never to burden them; this is the only way to preſerve friendſhip.

Diſſimulation, when not carried to exceſs, is ſometimes allowable in the commerce of life, eſpecially in regard to the wicked. We are not obliged to unveil our ſoul in their perverſe eyes. Too much ſincerity, in treating with them would hurt our tranquility, and trouble our repoſe.

Go not, as a vile paraſite, to preſent yourſelf at a great man's table. Time, like a rapid river, rolls on with impetuoſity, without ever returning, and runs to ſink in the abyſs of ages. What blindneſs, or rather what madneſs, muſt there be in loſing it by making our court to men who receive our homage with an air of ſcorn?

The beſt way of keeping a ſecret would be to reveal it to no one. There are, however, circumſtances wherein one is glad to pour it into the boſom of a friend; but he ſhould be well tried before hand to make ſure of his diſcretion. Fly thoſe who love only pleaſure and diſſipation, and whoſe minds are equally light and inconſtant.

Too great credulity, and extreme diffidence, are two oppoſite faults that ought to be avoided. We ſhould neither believe blindly all that is ſaid, nor doubt of all that is heard. The lamp of diſcernment ought to enlighten and ſhow us where truth is. Shut your ear againſt praiſes, moſt of them are dictated by baſe flattery, or vile intereſt. As to the praiſes of the wicked, we muſt never liſten to them; they never offer incenſe to you but to tarniſh your virtue, and make you criminal.

Never go any where without being invited with a good countenance; particularly, go only to the houſes where honor abides. Let the aſſemblies you may frequent be ſchools of virtues and not of vice.

There is a juſt middle between ſilence and a too great profuſion of words. We fly the ſilent man, and the great ſpeaker is reckoned the tyrant of converſation.—Nature, which has given us but one organ for ſpeech, has given us two for hearing; in order to teach us that we muſt hear more than ſpeak. Be conciſe in your narratives; the true way of pleaſing is to ſay a great deal in a few words, and to inſtruct by amuſing.

Speak to every one with a noble and becoming ſweetneſs, particularly never anſwer with tartneſs. To upbraid others with their faults is to act the cenſor in ſociety; men ſeldom pardon you for humbling them. Do not make too great a ſhew in converſation of the ſuperiority of your genius; it is a great art to put others in a way of making their wit ſhine. Their ſelf-love is flattered by it, and they are ſatisfied with you when they are ſo with themſelves. Be indulgent to thoſe that are leſs intelligent than yourſelf; God has not given to all men the ſame degree of light.

Do not abandon yourſelf to the dark windings of deceit; it is the portion of mean and daſtardly ſouls. It would be much better to give into the other extremity, & to paſs for a ſimpleton. Deceit is a deſpicable vice, and precipitates him into misfortune who delivers himſelf up to it. We are inſpired with deceit by the Devil, who makes us to go aſtray to be partakers with him in his infelicity. Lies dwell on the lips of the deceitful man, and his mouth is not opened but to deceive. He every where ſows ſedition, and kindles the fire of diſcord; but he is ſoon puniſhed for his malicious doings; Becomes the object of the public hatred and contempt, not one of his enterprizes is crowned with ſucceſs; and, as he is every man's enemy, every man ſtrives to thwart his deſigns. His days are poiſoned by trouble, and he dies at laſt in diſhonor. You are not ignorant of the proverb that ſays, "That ſooner or later, the "man of deceit is taken in the toils he had "ſtretched out for others." Deceit, lies, and calumny, are three monſters that have eſcaped from hell to ravage the earth. The goods, the life, the honor of our neighbour, are ſacred depoſites confided to us by the Almighty. To dare touch them would be to commit a horrid ſacrilege.

LONDON, Feb. 10.

AN Officer, who had a conſumptive complaint in his breaſt, was diſſolving ſome time ago, over a chaffing diſh of fire, in a very cloſe room, an equal quantity of white pitch & yellow bees-wax, with an intent of ſoldering ſome bottles; and after having breathed in for ſome time the vapour ariſing from it, he found the complaint in his breaſt greatly relieved. This obſervation (extremely intereſting to himſelf) determined him to continue for ſome days the ſame fumigation. He ſoon perceived a very conſiderable amendment, and at length was entirely cured.—This cure was very much talked of. Madame la Margrave de Baden was informed of it, and ſhe was deſirous that a trial might be made of this remedy in Dourlach's hoſpital, upon a ſoldier whoſe life was deſpaired of; the ſucceſs equaled every hope that could be conceived, and the patient was perfectly cured. In conſequence of which the Princeſs gave orders that this fact ſhould be put in the

Ezekiel Williams Esq

Carlſahue Gazette of July laſt, 1771, and the 14th of the September following. The ſame public paper confirms this recital, adding, that this remedy has been experienced with equal efficacy upon different people who were attacked with complaints in the breaſt; and that very many when even the lungs were ulcerated, and who were entirely given over, had been cured by this ſingle remedy.——It muſt be obſerved that the room in which the fumigation is to be performed, ought to be very cloſe ſhut up, and that the perſon ſhould walk about to ſuck in the vapour by degrees.

Mr. Watſon,

As the quotation from Dr. Mather, in your laſt, ſeems to me, ſomewhat ambiguous and defective, ſhall through the channel of your next paper communicate to the public, a ſecond edition with the neceſſary additions & remarks.

"ALL rulers ought to be prayed for—pray for all in authority," "that we may lead quiet and peaceable lives in all godlineſs and honeſty. For this is good and acceptable in the ſight of God our Saviour, who will have all men to be ſaved and to come unto the knowledge of the truth." ſubjects as well as rulers. "The end of ſociety is the common welfare and good of the people aſſociated," ſays the learned Wollaſton.*

"Laws, (ſays the great Mr. Locke) ought to be deſign'd for no other, and ultimately but the good of the people." †

"The end of magiſtracy, (ſays a learned writer) is the good of civil ſociety."

Indeed it ſeems plainly to appear from reaſon, revelation, human and divine teſtimony, that government is of divine authority, deſign'd by God, to promote the perfection, glory, and happineſs of the human nature. It is likewiſe a maxim of the common law, that "the king can do no wrong." and this maxim I humbly conceive holds equally true, of every other inferior officer and ruler as ſuch, all being limited by law and oblig'd to promote the public good. And therefore, ſo long as they act agreeable to the nature of their ſeveral offices; and the great end and deſign of their inſtitution, they ought not only to be pray'd for, but ſupported, reſpected and obey'd. And if rulers find it poſſible to diſcharge their duty, make no doubt, by their example and authority, they will perſwade their ſubjects to follow their ſteps. And then if the people cenſure, that is, judge them, they will find no fault in them.

And if that Rev. German Divine had conſulted the Engliſh hiſtory, he might have been eaſily convinced, that people are not very apt to find fault with their rulers.

Millions of ſubjects have been injured and oppreſs'd under colour of law, and countenance of wicked men in authority, while perhaps it might be difficult to produce a ſingle inſtance of a good ruler, in the execution of his office, ſuffering much, either from the ſwords or tongues of his ſubjects————the people are not apt to complain till they are hurt. And then they have commonly born the oppreſſion of their rulers, long before they have actually been engaged to right themſelves. And for the truth of theſe obſervations, I appeal to the Moſt wicked, infamous reign of the Steward family, and the hiſtory of all nations.

"At Rome, (the baron Monteſquieu writes) magiſtrates of all denominations were accountable for their adminiſtrations, except the Cenſors." ‡ So that it ſeems to "cenſure" their rulers was not criminal at Rome. Right reaſon tells us, that the formal ratio, or rule of moral virtue, conſiſts in treating every thing as being what it is; or agreeable to its nature. And conſequently to ſpeak of, and treat a cruel tyrant and oppreſſor as ſuch. And a late elegant writer upon the common law ſays, "tho' there may be damage ſufficient accruing from it, yet if the fact be true, it is damnum abſque injuria; and where there is no injury, the law gives no remedy. And this is agreeable to the reaſoning of the civil law: eum, qui nocentem infamat, non eſt æquum et bonum ob eam rem condemnari; delicta enim nocentium nota eſſe oportet et expedit." which for the ſake of the Engliſh reader, I ſhall render thus, "It is not juſt and reaſonable, that he that mentions the wicked deeds of a wicked man, should be condemned for that; becauſe it is neceſſary and expedient, that the wickedneſs of the wicked ſhou'd be known." § "He that ſaith unto the wicked, thou art righteous, him ſhall the people curſe, nations ſhall abhor him. But to them that rebuke him ſhall be delight, and a good bleſſing ſhall come upon him." ¶ "When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice: but when the wicked bear rule, the people mourn." ‖

And now I freely own it appears to me, that we have a good warrant, from reaſon, revelation, and the laws of our country, to ſpeak of, and treat our rulers according to their works.

NEWPORT, May 18.

We hear from Grenada, that great Numbers of the Freeholders of that Iſland make a glorious ſtand againſt admitting Roman Catholicks, as Members of their Aſſembly, whom the Governor has miniſterial Inſtructions to admit; alſo that Numbers of the Proteſtant Members have refuſed to ſit with Roman Catholick Members, and that ſeveral Pariſhes have abſolutely refuſed to ſend any Deputies at all.

Laſt Saturday arrived here, the Sloop Hope, Capt. Grinnell, in 18 Days from Nichola Mole.——While Capt. Grinnell lay at the Mole, on the 26th of April, at 12 o'Clock at Night, after he had cleared out and got all his Papers ready for ſailing, Two Officers from the Fort, with their Swords drawn, entered the Veſſel attended by a Soldier, with his Muſket loaded with a Brace of Balls, his Bayonet fixed &c. Capt. Grinnel and his people being all aſleep, the Officers, &c. went into the Cabin, and demanded a Light immediately, and ordered Capt. Grinnell out of his Cabin, and ſearched the Veſſel; after which they confined him in Jail, and placed a Guard aboard the Veſſel: In the ſame Manner they treated Capt. Eſema Davis from Boſton, Capt. Brown from New London, Capt. Tucker from Salem, and Capt Martin from Philadelphia; and the next Day, when Victuals was ſent from the Veſſels for the Captains, it was not permitted to be given to them, till Application had been made to the Governor, reſpecting the Cruelty of depriving them of Food——All the Reaſon for this ill Treatment was the Governor's ſuſpecting thoſe Veſſels had taken in ſome Articles not allowed to be exported; but finding no ſuch articles, the Captains were diſcharged, after being obliged to give the Governor conſiderable, & pay the Charges of keeping Guards on board, &c.

ANECDOTE.

THE Pretender, in 1745, with great ſucceſs, made his way from Scotland into the north of England. The young Chevalier was much elated with expectation of finding the nation ripe for a revolt—imagined his arrival at the metropolis was daily expected—that the nation was in the utmoſt confuſion—and that his enemies were ſtruck with ſo great a dread, that they would hardly dare to oppoſe him. Fluſhed with theſe expectations, he advanced, with a party of horſe faſter than the body of his army, and arrived in Derbyſhire. The poſt, in the evening, arriving from London he ordered the news papers to be brought him; little doubting but that his moſt ſanguine expectations would be confirmed by news-paper intelligence. After looking them over, he could find little reſpecting him, excepting the following extraordinary advertiſement.

ADVERTISEMENT with a REWARD.

RUN away from their maſter in ROME, in the dog days of laſt Auguſt, and ſince ſecreted in France, two young lurchers, of the right Italian breed, being of a black dun colour, with ſharp noſes, long claws, and hanging ears; have been taken abroad for KING CHARLES the Second's breed, but a bitch from Italy unfortunately broke the ſtrain in 88 by admitting into the kennel a baſe mongrel of another litter; they are ſuppoſed to be upon the hunt for prey in the North; they go a full dog trot by night, for fear of being catch'd; they anſwer to the names of Helter and Plunder, and will jump and dance at the ſound of the French horn, being uſed to that note by an old dog maſter at Paris; they prick up their ears alſo at the muſic of a Lancaſhire horn-pipe; This is to give notice, that whoever can ſecure this couple of curs and bring them to the Pope's-head at Rome, near St. Peter's Church, or to the Cardinal's-cap at Verſailles, or to the King's-Arms at Newcaſtle, or to the Thiſtle at Edinburgh, or to the Three Kings at Brentford, or rather to the ſign of the Axe on Tower-Hill, ſhall have the reward of thirteen pence halfpenny, or any ſum below a CROWN, and the thanks of all the powers in Europe, except France, Spain, and the Pope.

N. B. They have each of them a French collar on, ſtamped with their father's arms, a WARMING PAN, and a Fleur de lis, with this inſcription, "we are but young puppies of TERNEY'S pack."

Beware of them, for they have got a ſmack of the Scots mange, and thoſe that are bit by them run mad, and are called JACOBITES.

This advertiſement ſo chagrined the Chevalier, that he retired immediately to his army, ſoon after retreated back into Scotland, & on the 16th of April, 1746, the King's forces, commanded by his Royal Highneſs the late Duke of Cumberland, obtained a compleat victory, near Culloden Houſe, which put an end to the rebellion.

Copy of a Letter written by Princeſs Charlotte of Mecklenburgh (now Queen of Great Britain*) to the* Pruſſian Monarch when he entered the territories of her couſin the Duke of Mecklenburgh Schwerin, which is deemed a royal literary curioſity, and will ever be new on account of its manifold beauties.

To the KING of PRUSSIA.

"May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

"I AM at a loſs whether I ſhall congratulate or condole with you on your late victory, ſince the ſame ſucceſs that has covered you with lawrels, has overſpread my country with deſolation.

"I know, Sire, that it ſeems unbecoming my ſex, in this age of vicious refinement, to feel for one's country, to lament the horrors of war, or wiſh for the return of peace. I know you may think it more properly my province to ſtudy the art of pleaſing, or to turn my thoughts to ſubjects of a more domeſtic nature; but, however unbecoming it may be in me, I cannot reſiſt the deſire of interceding for this unhappy people.

"It was but a few years ſince this territory wore the moſt pleaſing appearance; the country was cultivated, the peaſant looked chearful, and the towns abounded with riches & feſtivity: What an alteration at preſent from ſuch a charming ſcene! I am not expert at deſcription, nor can my fancy add any horrors to the picture; but ſure even conquerors themſelves would weep at the hideous proſpect now before me. The whole country, my dear country! lies one frightful waſte, preſenting only objects to excite terror, pity and deſpair. The buſineſs of the huſbandman and the ſhepherd are quite diſcontinued; the huſbandman and the ſhepherd are become ſoldiers themſelves, and help to ravage the ſoil they formerly cultivated. The towns are inhabited only by old men, women and children; perhaps here and there a warrior, by wounds and loſs of limbs, rendered unfit for ſervice, is left at his door; his little children hang round him, aſk an hiſtory of every wound, and grow themſelves ſoldiers before they find ſtrength for the field. But this were nothing, did we not feel the alternate inſolence of either army as it happens to advance or retreat, in purſuing the operations of the campaign. It is impoſſible to expreſs the confuſion even thoſe from whom we might expect redreſs, oppreſs us with new calamities:

"From your juſtice, therefore, it is that we hope for relief: To you even children and women may complain, whoſe humanity ſtoops to the meaneſt petition, & whoſe power is capable of repreſſing the greateſt injuſtice.

"I am, SIRE, &c.

SAXE-GOTHA, (GERMANY) March 10.

THIS Morning about five o'clock died, at the palace of Friedenſtein, after a long and painful illneſs, in the 73d year of his age, his ſerene Highneſs Frederic Duke of Saxe Gotha, to the great grief of his ſubjects, over whom he had reigned near forty Years, univerſally beloved and reſpected.

LONDON, March 11.

The following anecdote of the Earl of Northington, when on his death-bed, may be depended upon.——Lady Northington being by the bed ſide, in converſation on the preſent ſtate of his illneſs, his Lordſhip told her "He muſt be d——d—he knew it very well he was ſure he ſhould be d—d." —Her Ladyſhip begged he would not talk in ſuch a manner—intreated him not to add to her diſtreſſes, by ſuch an affecting aſſertion of deſpair—it was too much for her to ſupport. —The dying Earl, however, kept repeating that "he ſhould be d——d —that the ſentence was irrevocable," and to that effect. The poor afflicted Lady implored him to be more compoſed, and, with great earneſtneſs, ſolicited that Dean F—— (who was one of the Noble Lord's jovial companions, and had been promoted by his influence) then below ſtairs, might be permitted to come up and pray by him: "There now" (replied the Earl) "that is the very thing—you have juſt hit the mark, my Lady—I ſhall certainly be d——d for making that fellow a Dean."

It is ſaid that no leſs than fifty Divorce Bills have paſſed this Seſſion of Parliament, and that an hundred more are preparing.

PHILADELPHIA, May 14.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in London to his friend in Philadelphia, dated Feb. 8, 1772.

"Cooper and Horrax have preſented a petition for an American Biſhop, and are moving every ſpring to ſupport this pious inſtitution. Counter petitions ought to be forwarded from every opponent of this deſign. Lord North wiſhes to know upon what grounds to oppoſe it, and Hillſborough is not friendly to it; but the virtuous Duke of Grafton is, I am told very zealous. Something ſhould certainly be done, but I think no one denomination of Diſſenters, ſingly take the weight of the matter on them."

NEW-YORK, May 21.

Extract of a Letter from Newry, in Ireland dated March 31.

"The north of Ireland is in the greateſt confuſion it ever was ſince King James's time, [occaſion'd, it is ſaid by the landlords raiſing their rents ſo high that the poor cannot live, by ſome late laws for incloſing the common lands, and other impoſitions] There are it is ſuppoſed, in each of the northern countries, above 15,000 men who call themſelves Hearts of Steel, aſſemble in the evening at the ſound of horns, march in the night thro' the country, take all the arms and ammunition they can find, go among the great gentlemen and land holders oblige them to ſwear never to ſet their lands at above twelve ſhillings an acre, deſtroy all the leaſes taken at a higher rent, and oblige the landlords, to give new ones at that rate. All who join them, they ſwear to be true to the King and Hearts of Steel, with ſome other articles which are kept ſecret; each party has a poſt office for their letters: The whole army of the kingdom, both horſe and foot, are ſent againſt them, but cannot ſubdue them tho' many of their out ſcouts and all perſons that are ſuſpected, or have even been heard to talk of the Hearts of Steel, have been taken and ſent to priſon, ſo that the gaols are as full as they can hold, and the country is lying perfectly waſte, for not one labourer is to be had, except old men and women: God knows how the matter will end."

BOSTON, May 14.

FROM Turks Iſlands, we learn, that there is a great plenty of ſalt, both large and fine, that the price is low, and daily falling.

Yeſterday the inhabitants of this town met at Faneuil hall agreeable to their adjournment, when the committee appointed to prepare inſtructions for the repreſentatives reported a draft which was unanimouſly received.

The town have ordered an additional inſtruction to be reported on Friday next, whereby it is ſuppoſed to make the Judges of the Superior Court, independent both on the crown and on the people. Shou'd the deſign be effected, it would be productive of great good to this people.

The meeting ſtands adjourned to Friday next, at 4 o'clock P. M. when this important affair will come before the town; and it is hoped that people will generally attend.

Laſt Thurſday night about 11 o'Clock, a male child about four months old, carefully wrapped up in blankets, &c. was taken up on the Neck leading out of town, and the next day carried to the Alms-houſe to be taken care of.

The addition mentioned in our laſt made to the library of Harvard College by Mr. Thomas Palmer conſiſted of an "Account of the pictures, ſtatues, &c. found among the ruins of Herculaneum." This work was publiſhed a few years ſince, by order and at the expence of the King of Naples; and has been with great eagerneſs ſought after by the moſt reſpectable literary Societies in Europe; but was not to be procured without great difficulty. The ancient city of Herculaneum ſtood at the foot of Mount Veſuvius, and was deſtroyed by an eruption of that Volcano, 1700 years ago; ſuppoſed to be the ſame in which Pliny the natural hiſtorian periſhed. Being buried at a great depth, it remained unknown until about two years ago. Since the diſcovery, the ſearch in it for antiquities has been carried on at an immenſe expence; and a vaſt number of ſtatues, and inſtruments of various kinds brought to light; and what is more extraordinary, pictures, the colours of which are as freſh as if but newly painted.—Of all theſe curious remains of antiquity, which fill fourteen large apartments, there are elegant engravings in the work now mentioned, accompanied with particular explanations and learned notes. Mr. Palmer ſent at the ſame time, a complete ſet of the views, ſections, and elevation of all the remaining monuments of Roman grandeur, and of the moſt magnificent modern ſtructures, now ſeen in and about this city of Rome. This work is allowed by Connoiſſeurs to be executed with an elegance and exactneſs to ſatisfy the moſt curious obſerver.——The whole donation conſiſts of twenty large volumes in folio. It was accompanied with a fine painting of the laſt eruption of Veſuvius, in 1767.

Laſt week another fine preſent was made to that ſeminary of learning by the Hon. John Hancock, Eſq;——This Gentleman, who ſome time ago ſignalized his bounty to it, by preſenting to the library ſo great a number of the beſt authors as completely filled one of the alcoves, has now covered the floors of the library, the apparatus and philoſophy chambers with moſt elegant carpets, and the walls of the latter with a rich paper. Theſe coverings are ſuitable to the valuable treaſures there depoſited, and will not only ſerve to decorate thoſe beautiful apartments, but will conduce to the preſervation of the books and philoſophical inſtruments, which were in great danger of being injured by the duſt unavoidably raiſed in rooms ſo much frequented. By the munificence of benefactors, theſe apartments are probably made to exceed any of the kind in America.

HARTFORD, May 26.

On the Morning of the 19th of May Inſtant, departed this Life at Farmington, aged 40 Years, Mrs. TEMPERENCE PITKIN, the amiable Conſort of the Rev'd TIMOTHY PITKIN, and youngeſt Daughter of the late Rev. THOMAS CLAP, Preſident of Yale College. To the God of Nature indebted for her ſuperior Powers of Mind, for whoſe Glory it was her Aim to employ them. A Perſon of ſingular Underſtanding, remarkable for Meekneſs, Prudence, Sobriety and Calmneſs of Mind; conſtant in her Devotion to her God; in Friendſhip cordial; to the poor ſhe had a pitying Heart, and an open, generous Hand; the beſt of Wives, and the tendereſt of Mothers. She has left eight Children, one an Infant. Her Remains were decently interr'd on Wedneſday the 20th Inſtant, attended by a great Number of Friends and Acquaintance. A Sermon was preached on the Occaſion, by the Reverend SAMUEL NEWELL of New-Cambridge, from Pſalm xxxix, 9.— As ſhe liv'd greatly deſir'd, ſhe died equally lamented.

OH, prime of life! Oh, taſte of joy!
Whither ſo early do you fly?
Scarce half your tranſient ſweetneſs known,
Why are you vaniſh'd e're full-blown?

The beaut'ous progeny of ſpring,
That tinge the zephyr's fragrant wing;
Each tender bloom, each ſhort-liv'd flow'r,
Still flouriſh till their deſtin'd hour;
Your winter, too, too ſoon will come,
And chill in death your vernal bloom.

On my wan cheek the colour dies,
Suffus'd and languid roll mine eyes;
Cold horrors thrill each ſick'ning vein;
Deep broken ſighs my boſom ſtain;
The ſalient pulſe of health gives o'er,
And life and pleaſure are no more.

Mr. PRINTER,

The following Paſſage extracted from Plutarach's life of Focion, may Perhaps be agreeable to your Readers and without farther Introduction poſſibly not ill-timed.

"ASTronomers tell us, the Sun's " Motion is neither exact- " ly parallel with the reſt of the Orbs, " nor yet directly and diametrically " Oppoſite to them; but deſcribing " an oblique Line, with inſenſible " declination, he ſteers his Courſe, ſo " as to diſpenſe his Light and Influ- " ence in his annual Revolution, at " ſeveral Seaſons, in equal Proporti- " on to the whole Creation; ſo it " happens in political Affairs, that if " the Motions of Rulers be conſtant- " ly Oppoſite and Croſs to the geni- " us and inclination of the People, " they will be ſtomached as Arbi- " trary and Tyrannical, as on the " other ſide, too much deference and " indulgence to the Subjects, levity " and wantonneſs, has often proved " dangerous and fatal; but the gra- " tifying them in reaſonable and fair " Requeſts, when they are not maſ- " terly and inſolent, may Prove for " the Honour and Safety of the Go- " vernment: yet it muſt be confeſſed " it is a nice Point, and extreme " difficult ſo to Temper this lenity, " as to preſerve the Authority of the " Government, that it may not be " expoſed to the Affront and Con- " tempt of the People. But if ſuch " a bleſſed mixture & temperament " may be obtained, it ſeems to be " the moſt Regular and Harmoni- " ous of all others; for thus we are " taught, even GOD governs the " World, not by irreſiſtable Force, " but by perſuaſive Arguments and " gentle Inſinuations into our Minds, " bending them to Compliance with " his Eternal purpoſes."

L O N D O N,

March 27. What follows is a fact well known in the neighbourhood of Berkhamſtead; A few Sundays ago ſome choice ſpirits from London were regaling at an inn, when after dinner the liquor introduced the love of frolick, after the burning of hats and wigs it was propoſed to draw lots which of the company ſhould be hanged, and during the courſe of the bottle it was demonſtrated to the ſatisfaction of the whole company, that it was a death without pain. The lot fell upon a young man who had but juſt entered upon the fortunate eſtate of a bankrupt, however, whether he thought the advantages of bankruptcy not ſo great as it is in general believed, or he wiſhed to be in the faſhion of going out of the world in a ſtring, he determined to die hard, to die like a cock. A convenient place in the room preſented itſelf, and in an inſtant his own garters furniſhed the nooſe, the knot was fixed and the chair in a minute knocked from under him, but whatever was the opinion before about this death being without pain, the volunteer criminal made ſuch a kicking againſt the wainſcot, that the Landlord was brought into the room by the noiſe: where he ſaw the companions almoſt as black in the face with laughing as the young man with the agonies of death. The Landlord aſtoniſhed and diſtreſt at the ſight, cut down the almoſt expiring youth, and with the aſſiſtance of a Surgeon, and proper care he is ſince recovered, and it is remarkable that the firſt word he ſpoke after he recovered was, I'll be hanged if I ever do the ſame again.

CONNECTICUT COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt and moſt important Advices, both Foreign and Domeſtic

From TUESDAY, MAY 26, to TUESDAY, JUNE 2, 1772.

From the BOSTON GAZETTE.
To all true Engliſh American PATRIOTS, both of the CLERGY and LAITY.

They have caſt fire into thy ſanctuary O God plead thine own cauſe.—the voice of thine enemies, the tumult of thoſe that riſe up againſt Thee, increaſes continually, Pſalm 74.

The tongue——a world of iniquity——ſetteth on fire the courſe of nature, and is ſet on fire of hell. James 3. 6.

GENTLEMEN,

THE candor and nobleneſs of your character aſſures me that you will forgive my aſſuming the part of a Monitor, when you conſider the fervor of the paſſion which animates your hearts and mine,——the love of our Country, which continually ſtimulates me to do ſomething to ſave it from ruin. The fire which is kindled in our habitations, by notable incendiaries, Bute and his maſter, and his ſervants Bernard, H———n, Tryon, &c is far more detrimental than the late conflagration at Portſmouth, effected by partiſans of the ſame gang, and will infallibly conſume the whole fabrick of our conſtitution, unleſs we duly exert ourſelves to extinguiſh it. If the flame be ſlow, it will be nevertheleſs ſure. And, truly if the progreſs had been ſwifter, our danger, in my humble opinion, would not have been ſo great as it is. But now, you ſee, it ſpreads and and rages: the man is blind who cannot ſee it, and even abſolutely inſenſible who does not feel it. The important things which are humbly recommended to your attention, are exemplary union, mutual free correſpondence, invariable ſteadineſs and conſtant endeavours, in the circles of your reſpective ſtations, to illuminate and excite the People. Theſe are the proper engines which you know how to uſe. Your light and flame, my reſpected fathers and brethren, your light and flame is infinitely different from that infernal fire which we are now neceſſitated to oppoſe. Yours is of the etherial kind. It is your duty, therefore, to keep it alive and increaſe it by mutual reflection from face to face, and from heart to heart; and make it appear, in its genuine force and beauty, to all mankind. There is nothing imaginable can have a better tendency than the ſtricteſt harmony among the real friends of liberty. Therefore our enemies are plotting with all their craft and aſſiduity, to deſtroy it. Let us, in the name of GOD, let us diſappoint them. For which purpoſe it will be of ſpecial utility to converſe often, by ſpeech as well as writing,——to enlighten and ſtrengthen one another in the common glorious cauſe. And it is freely 'declared my darling wiſh' that you may thus prepare the way for another Con——n, (when requiſite)—and a Con——ſs too, in which it is hoped the Pr——t will not betray his truſt and his country.—As unity is always our ſtrength & glory it is now of the moſt intereſting moment, as we are engag'd in defence of our ineſtimble liberty, againſt adverſaries who are moſt firmly and faithfully united,—for our deſtruction;—for ſuch muſt be the extirpation of our liberty. Why, in the name of ſound policy, why ſhould we not be as cloſely compacted and as zealous in the beſt cauſe in the world, as others are in the worſt? In this one thing (unity) let us imitate and even exceed them. By ſuch emulation we ſhall beſt expreſs our abhorrence of their execrable purpoſe. And they will be mortified, even to the abyſs of deſpair, when they find all their attempts to divide us are in vain. The vengeance of Heaven muſt fall on the irreclaimable enemies of their country; for they are the greateſt of criminals——more worthy to be 'delivered into the hands of the executioner' than private robbers, aſſaſſins or murderers. One who is an enemy to his country, eſpecially after he has ſworn to be a friend, is ſuperlatively guilty and deteſtable. And ſhall we be ſo falſe and wicked to ourſelves, and ſo abandoned of Heaven, as to call ſuch a one our G———r? God forbid! Confuſion awaits ſuch men: juſt vengeance is in ſtore. May the righteous proſpect thereof incite us to reſolution and perſeverance. And let us truly love all true patriots becauſe they love liberty—the prime favourite of Heaven—Divine Liberty. And let us be quite as earneſt and vigorous to ſave, as ſome are to ruin their country——reſemble the eternal Patron as much as they do the infernal deſtroyer. It is not poſſible to be too ſtrenuous, or hold out too long againſt the ſervants of the original tyrant, who are determined to enſlave and brutalize us and our poſterity to the end of time. This fundamental doctrine you ought to deliver to your children, by your example as well as precept, to be tranſmitted inviolate, as the moſt valuable patrimony, and communicated by ſucceſſion to all future generations.

Let me now addreſs myſelf particularly to gentlemen of the clerical order. Sirs, tho' you well know the duty of your ſacred function, you will kindly ſuffer me to exhort you. Not only the ſouls of your preſent auditors are committed to your charge; but the univerſal welfare of all poſterity is now virtually become your religious care. And you may be inſtruments in the hand of God, to ſave all Americans, and conſequently all Britons too, from abject ſlavery for many centuries. It is demonſtrably incumbent on you now to be inſtant (in ſeaſon——out of ſeaſon) in public and private, in explaining and aſſerting liberty. And if ever there was a time to cry aloud and elevate the voice like a trumpet, it is now. Set your faces like a flint. You will not be enſnared by the fear of men; for you are ſervants of Chriſt. Some will upbraid you as preachers of politicks; but their diſpraiſe will be your honor. To preach politicks is ſo far from being matter of juſt reproach, that it is now a moſt laudable, becauſe a moſt neceſſary employment. Would to God that all his people were politicians:—ſo far as to know the things which belong to our civil peace and ſalvation. Every man, if not every woman, of common ſenſe, ought to underſtand the moſt eſſential Rights of the community, and to diſcern when they are manifeſtly invaded,——to judge whether our privileges are all continued thus, and to apprehend when there is an evident deſign formed to deprive us of all. Every one ſhould be taught the ineſtimable worth of good government, and, conſequently, that ſettled tyranny is worſe than even anarchy itſelf; tho' the latter is truly horrible. The divine Author of Liberty requires you thus to teach and exhort: and to this point our perfect law of liberty is full. And therefore I muſt profeſs it to be my fervent wiſh, and the favourite deſire of my heart, that you may all perſuade your people to come into the moſt firm, unanimous, explicit, and ſolemnly ſubſcribed agreement and covenant to ſtand faſt in the public libery to the laſt drop of their blood. For then 'we ſhall live if they thus ſtand faſt: And then we may alſo depart in peace having ſeen the ſalvation of this great People. It is now high time for them to awake out of ſleep; for now is our ſalvation, or our deſtruction, near; and the only way to prevent the latter is by the vigilance, united ſtrength and vigorous activity of the people. Therefore, Gentlemen, you are, as members of the Common wealth, and even as good ſoldiers of Jeſus Chriſt, obliged, in promoting ſound policy to encourage the growth of the military art;—the neglect of which is extremely abſurd and dangerous. Of this you need no proof; but you may prove to the people that it is their indiſpenſable duty to learn this art. In the preſent moſt critical ſeaſon, the Military is part of the armour of God. And we ſhould all, as one man, be in utmoſt readineſs to reſiſt, even unto blood, the cruel enemies of our liberty. To this important point, our attention ſhould be particularly directed, by obſerving that thoſe enemies, (ſome of them in contempt of the oath of God) aim to obſtruct that readineſs. Hence it is that ſome are advanced in the militia for their attachment to deſpotiſm, rather than real merit and capacity. We ſhould all be prepar'd for war;——except our good chriſtian friends the Quakers; whoſe conſcience, however, muſt allow them to hire us to fight for their freedom and property, lives and fortunes. You will, by your counſel and exhortation, be aſſiſtant to that ingenious friend the Military Countryman. I cannot forego this occaſion to thank that gentleman as well as Solon, Candidus, the American, the Elector, and other fine writers, whom all the friends of truth and virtue highly eſteem in love for their work's ſake. Their writings warm our hearts and animate our ſpirits, like the charms of poetry and the beſt concerted muſic. Their generous attempts to inſtruct and ſave us, ſhall be had in everlaſting remembrance and Heaven itſelf will reward them. It is ſurely the will of Heaven that we all be compleatly prepared for all events. The dreadful criſis haſtens with great rapidity; therefore it is parricide to neglect preparation to meet our enemies in the field. If we are unprepared, they will know it, & will not fear to attack us. If they attack us there muſt be a moſt horriable ſcene of ſlaughter and garments rolled in blood; or, which is ſtill worſe, we muſt immediately beat the chamade & ſubmit to everlaſting chains. There is no other poſſible alternative. That ſlavery by conſent of the enſlaved is more miſerable than that which is forced, is exceeding evident; for the former muſt be attended with ſtings of conſcience prepetually accuſing the ſlaves, of the baſeſt and moſt unnatural villainy, which infers a double weight of wretchedneſs; whereas they who are ſubjugated by abſolute irreſiſtable force, will be free from that excruciating conſciouſneſs of the moſt criminal ſelfmurder and of the higheſt treaſon. If therefore a civil war proſecuted to prevent ſlavery, proves unſucceſsful,—the war and ſlavery both, conſidered in connexion, is a leſs evil than the latter can be in a diſtinct and ſeparate view. If the Americans, including every future generation as well as the preſent, had a Repreſentative truly as well as virtually appointed to decide for us this important queſtion, whether it be better, for fear of a fierce and ſanguinary rencountre, to ſurrender all our rights and annihilate all freedom forever; or elſe to endure the trial of 'tribulation ten days', or ſo many years, or even a century, in hope of ſecuring liberty at laſt;———he would doubtleſs chooſe the latter, if he were wiſe and faithful to his conſtituents. To prevent, however, both war and ſlavery, we muſt be ready for war. But where, ſays an objector, are thoſe future generations? I ſee them not. True, we ſee them not now; but we ſhall ſee them hereafter, and they will behold us either with eyes of gratitude, or of indignation. We are now, by the will of the Creator, their Repreſentatives. If we betray not this ſacred truſt, we ſhall, in

His glorious preſence, receive their univerſal applauſe,—they will riſe up and call us bleſſed. Surely that muſt be infinitely better than to be objects of their juſt eternal execration.

The black cloud now riſing fraught with balls of fire and menacing and horrible tempe[illegible] ſoon be over our heads!—You, Gentlemen, who conſider famine, peſtilence and earthquakes as motives to excite your people to religion and virtue:—But the preſent calamity is certainly worſe than all that ever befel this country from the firſt ſettlement to this day. When particularly in the late war our foreign enemies, for a conſiderable time prevailed againſt us, it was far from being ſo dark and diſmal a day as the preſent. This truth you will, with all your zeal and wiſdom, urge on your beloved pariſhioners to induce them to forſake their vices which are their great reproach and danger; and to practice all virtue as that which exalteth a nation.

Your people all profeſs the greateſt abhorrence of Popery. Let them know, therefore, that our unnatural foes, our falſe brethren, intend to eſtabliſh that wicked helliſh religion, as well as civil arbitrary government, among us:——and let them clearly ſee the intimate affinity and exact reſemblance between thoſe tartarean twins, civil and eccleſiaſtical tyranny.

But, to increaſe their abhorrence, and that they may deteſt the thing full as much as the name, let them have a true deſcription of that multiform bloody monſter popery. And let them know effectually what it is to judge and act agreeable to the true proteſtant character. This you will exemplify before them in its entire beautiful ſimplicity. Thus you may engage them to hate bigotry and ſuperſtition, and to love liberty and virtue, and to exerciſe mutual concord and charity. May the pleaſure of your Lord and Maſter ſo proſper in your hands,——and may you all lead your flocks to the glorious liberty of the Sons of God.

We conclude with preſenting a very humble petition to all true Patriots.

To increaſe the People's knowledge and conſequently their ardent and determinate love of liberty civil and religious, it has been propoſed to the Public by ſome of your number, that there be ſtated political Lectures, not only in every County, but in every Town and Pariſh. That this may be accompliſhed, is the preſent earneſt requeſt,——if your influence can effectuate it and, in your wiſdom, you ſhall think it ſuitable.

I am, Gentlemen, your very reſpectful
Friend, and humble Servant,
Maſſachuſetts, April 1772. FERVIDUS.

Mr. WATSON,

If the following appears in your next Courant, One of your Friends, at leaſt, will be obliged,

AS Rayment adorns the Body, ſo does Literature the Mind: And as Intelligence is the Glory of human Nature, and its diſtinguiſhing Character from Creatures denominated irrational, ſo it ought to be our higheſt Ambition to meliorate and cultivate the ſame, it being the only Principle in the compound Nature of Man, analogous to, and reſembling its Creator, and dignified with a Capacity of eternal Duration and Bleſſedneſs. But theſe ſublime Truths are at preſent much cultivated in our Land. I purpoſe to take a curſory View of Hiſtory, and political Learning—the Hiſtory of brave Actions, of which none are truly ſo except they are victorious, have a mighty Tendency to mould our Minds into a Spirit of Emulation and Likeneſs thereto; and on the other Hand, mean Actions have an equal Tendency to create in our Minds a Deteſtation and Abhorrence of them, as well as the Actors. But, as the labouring Part of Mankind in ſpecial, for whoſe Inſtruction I now chiefly write, cannot attend to read Libraries, and voluminous Books; yet I recommend it to every Farmer, Tradeſman, &c. thoroughly to acquaint themſelves with Salmon's Geography, which is a ſhort and compendious Hiſtory of the World, its Manners, &c. and would further intimate my Opinion to the Public, that the political, as well as many other Parts of Knowledge in this Country, has been promulgated, eſpecially among the Commonality, by News-Papers, better and more general than by any other Way; the Expence is moderate, and the Advantage great; moſt of the Knowledge of our own Conſtitution of Government, Liberty and Property, and the political Meaſures made Uſe of, reſpecting theſe Particulars, have been communicated to the Public, more eſpecially to the Commonality, by this very Mean: Beſides the Contents of a News Paper are ſo ſhort, that it will not intrude upon the induſtrious Part of Mankind, in their ſeveral Callings, at proper Times, to read them. They are a ſucceſſive Hiſtory of ſucceſſive Affairs, and Tranſactions of Mankind, which is a mighty Prerequiſite for the Growth and Progreſſion of human Knowledge. In fine, without the Advantage of Hiſtory, of which News-Papers are a Part, Mankind could not be converſible or ſociable but in a very ſhort Circumference, for Want of external Objects for the Mind to reflect upon, the Deficiency of which is amply ſupplied by Hiſtory.

Again, we would beg leave to repreſent, that thoſe few of us, who have ſome ſmall pittance of land, are great ſufferers by land of the ſame kind being all taxed alike, without any regard had to its value; as the land that falls to your petitioner's ſhare is generally of the pooreſt kind. Many times it ſo happens, that the land of your poor petitioners, not worth above 10 or 15s. per acre, is tax'd as high as the land of their wealthier neighbours, worth 20l. or more per acre. And further, we cant but think that cattle ſtand high in the liſt beyond all proportion to lands: This indeed does the leſs injuſtice, becauſe land and ſtock are generally proportionable: However, we can't but think the poorer ſort of people ſuffer ſomewhat by this; ſince many a one who has not a foot of land, keeps a cow to give milk for his children; whoſe daily labour pays for her paſture——Now, to have this cow ſtand in the liſt as much as eight acres of his rich neighbour's meadow, which is of more value than ten cows, is certainly oppreſſive to the poor. Again, houſes worth 5 or 600l. which will rent in ſome places for 30 or 40l. per year, ſtand no more in the liſt than 3l. and till a late law was made, nothing at all——no more than a cow or poor horſe worth ſcarce 20s. Was ever ſuch an unequal method of taxation heard of?

These are very obvious grievances your poor petitioners labour under, from the ſingular method of proportioning taxes uſed in this colony. And that your Honors may have a clearer view of the diſtreſſes our preſent mode of taxation lays us under; we would beg leave to repreſent to you the caſe of one of our number and that compared with one of his neighbours.—He lives in a ſmall houſe he hires at the rate of 40s. per annum He has eight children, the two eldeſt of which are boys, and more than 16 years of age: theſe he cant put out to learn trades, as he wants their help to ſupport the younger ones, one of which is an ideot, and another very ſickly. He has one cow (which he hires paſtured) and a hog, which is all his ſubſtance; his liſt therefore the year paſt is 61 pounds. The ſeveral rates he has to pay amount to ſixpence halfpenny upon the pound; ſo that his ſeveral taxes are 38s. he and his ſons have had to work five days each the year paſt at making and repairing high ways; which at but 2s. per day, is in the whole, 32s. two days each have been obliged to ſpend at training, which, with the neceſſary yearly expence of arms, ammunition, &c can't be leſs than 18s. ſo that this poor man is oblig'd to contribute four pounds one ſhilling to defray the charges of the public.—A near neighbour of his has 60 acres of choice land, all under improvement: he has no head but his own and tho' his farm be well ſtock'd, beſides ſeveral oxen and cows he has let out to ſome of his poorer neighbours his whole liſt amounts to but 85l. his rates are therefore 46s. add to this for five day's work at high ways ten ſhillings; as to training, having another choſe over his head while a ſerjeant, he has been excuſed for ſeveral years; ſo that all he contributes to the defraying the public charges, is 56s. not ſo much as his poor neighbour by 25s. and there are a thouſand other caſes almoſt as glaring as this. Sure if your Honors have any compaſſion, you will pity our caſe, and grant, in your Wiſdom, ſome effectual relief: tho' we are willing to contribute our Mite to ſupport the public charges; yet we can't but eſteem it a hard ſhip to pay more than ſome of our wealthy neighbours, and beyond all proportion to our abilities above others. We would not preſume to dictate to your honors in what way to grant us relief; allow us however (tho' in two low a ſphere to be petitioners) to ſuggeſt whether a land tax levied according to a valuation, either of the yearly rents, or real value, with a tax upon houſes, according to their value, together with exciſes on all articles of luxury and ſuperfluity would not be the moſt equitable method of raiſing the neceſſary ſupplies. But if your Honors think it would not be expedient ſo wholly to alter the mode of taxation, we would pray that the polls might be either wholly exempted, or ſet at ſome ſmall ſum, which would afford a very great relief to your poor petitioners—who, as in duty bound, ſhall ever pray.

The POOR.

WILLIAMSBURG, May 14.

Capt. Troop, from Glaſgow, is arrived in James River. By Capt. Troop we have papers to the 2d of April, which contain very little news. The Royal Marriage bill has paſſed both Houſes of Parliament; peace is concluded between the Ruſſians and the Turks which it is thought will only pave the way for freſh diſturbances in Europe; there has nothing tranſpired from Denmark only their Ambaſſador at our Court is recalled, which is looked upon as no good omen.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.

From Savannah, in Georgia, we learn that on Tueſday the 21ſt of April, the General Aſſembly of that Province met, and twice made choice of Noble Wimberly Jones, Eſq; to be their Speaker but he was rejected by his Honour the Preſident; and next day the Houſe choſe him a third time when he declined taking the chair; then Archibald Bullock Eſq was elected, who being preſented to the Preſident, was approved of, and his Honour was pleaſed to diliver a Speech: And that on the Saturday night following, between eight and nine o'clock the Aſſembly was diſſolved.

BOSTON, May 23.

YESTERDAY being the anniverſary of the day appointed by the Charter for the Election of Councellors for this province, the great and general Court or aſſembly met at Harvard-College in Cambridge, at nine o'Clock in the morning; when the uſual oaths were adminiſtered to the gentlemen, who were returned to ſerve as members of the honorable houſe of repreſentatives, who alſo ſubſcribed to the declaration:—The houſe then made choice unanimouſly of Mr. SAMUEL ADAMS for their clerk; after which they choſe the honorable THOMAS CUSHING, Eſq; their ſpeaker.

About nine o'clock his Excellency the Governor, with thoſe Gentlemen, of the Council who reſided in town ſet out from the Province-Houſe, being eſcorted by the troop of guards and about half after ten o'clock arrived at Harvard College, and being in the chair, a committee of the Houſe preſented the Speaker elect to his Excellency, who afterwards, ſent a meſſage in writing, agreeable to the Royal Explanatory Charter, that he approved of their choice.

About 12 o'clock his Excellency the Governor, accompanied by the honorable his Majeſty's Council, the honourable houſe of repreſentatives, went in proceſſion to the meeting houſe where a ſermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. Moſes Parſons, of Byfield Pariſh in Newbury, from Prov. xxi. 1.

In the afternoon the two houſes proceeded to the choice of the follow- gentlemen as Councellors for the enſuing year, viz.

For the late Colony of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

The Honorable Samuel Danforth, Eſq; Iſaac Royal, Eſq; John Erving, Eſq, William Brattle, Eſq; James Bowdoin, Eſq; Thomas Hubbard, Eſq; Harriſon Gray, Eſq; James Ruſſell, Eſq; James Pitts, Eſq; Samuel Dexter, Eſq; Thomas Sanders, Eſq; Artemas Ward, Eſq; Benjamin Greenleaf, Eſq; Stephen Hall, Eſq; Caleb Cuſhing, Eſq; Timothy Woodbridge, Eſq; * John Hancock Eſq; * Samuel Phillips, Eſq;

For the late Colony of Plymouth.

A SONG.

WHEN to the ſea the ſun returns,
How univerſal nature mourns!
A ſable ſhroud o'er all is ſpread,
As if this lower world lay dead.
In louder murmurs flows each flood;
In darker horrors waves each wood;
Echo of ſlighted love complains,
While ſilence ſits on all the plains.
So, when my fair is from my ſight,
My ſun is ſet, with me 'tis night,
Forſook by every chearful grace,
Then ſorrow ſaddens all my face.
My boſom heaves with frequent ſighs,
Tears burſt unbidden from my eyes;
Alone I mourn my abſent love,
And tell my grief to ev'ry grove:

Mr. WATSON,

SIR,

By inſerting the following in your paper you will do a deed of charity to a great number of poor people, too poor to become your cuſtomers, which is a petition got ready to prefer to the General Aſſembly, but have no money to bring it forward.

THE CRY OF THE POOR.

To the General Aſſembly of the Colony of Connecticut now ſitting at Hartford.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONORS,

YOUR petitioners, the Poor of the Colony of Connecticut, beg leave humbly to repreſent to your Honors, that they labour under very great and grievous burdens, from the very unequal method of levying taxes, that takes place in this colony: by which your petitioners, are greatly diſtreſſed and diſcouraged;—many times ſtrained upon and their little ALL taken away to pay their taxes:——Yea many of us are ſo poor, we have not ſubſtance enough in the world to pay the taxes laid upon us in a ſingle year. Our caſe is the more diſtreſſing, as we have none that can feelingly repreſent our grievances in the General Aſſemby; that body being generally compoſed of men of intereſt; who muſt be ſo far from perſonally feeling the burdens we groan under, that they are eaſed by the taxes laid upon us. But we have that confidence in the juſtice and clemency of your Honors, as to reſt aſſured, that it is rather owing to an inattention to the real grievances we labour under, that we have not had redreſs in times paſt, than to any ſordid conſiderations of intereſt; and we cant but entertain the moſt ſanguine hopes, that upon hearing our caſe fairly repreſented, you will grant us the relief we pray for.

The mode of proportioning taxes now practiſed in this colony, we would beg leave to repreſent, is very unequal and oppreſſive to the poor.

Your Honors very well know, that full one third at leaſt of the liſt of the colony is made up of polls: ſo that full one third of the Colony, County, Town and Society charges is defrayed by a poll tax. The mending, repairing and making high ways, which is a very conſiderable public charge, is ſupported wholly by a poll tax, in moſt places it requires four or five days work from every perſon in a year, which is near or quite equal to the whole Colony tax this preſent year. Again the maintaining and ſupporting the militia is wholly by a poll tax. Every man, however poor, is obliged by law to ſpend two days in the year in military exerciſes, and to provide himſelf with arms and ammunition at his own expence; which cannot be eſtimated at leſs than a poll tax of ſix ſhillings per annum, to every one that trains: now as very few of the poor can be exempted from training, this tax is levied much more generally on them than on the rich. Thus we ſhall find that more than half of our public expences are defrayed by a poll tax; as will evidently appear from the following calculation: the Colony, Town, Faculty, &c taxes, take one place with another, will this preſent year, amount to about ſix pence on the pound, nine ſhillings will then be raiſed upon each poll, while eighteen ſhillings is raiſed upon eſtates; as the polls make full one third of the whole liſt. Add to this nine ſhillings, two days work at high ways, (which eſtimation, ſo far as we can learn, is below what generally takes place) which cant be reckoned leſs than ſeven ſhillings and ſix pence, conſidering they muſt find themſelves: add to this ſix ſhillings for training, arms, ammunition, &c. and it will make twenty two ſhillings ſix pence raiſed upon the polls to eighteen ſhillings raiſed upon eſtates. Now we your Honours petitioners, whoſe low condition allow us but little acquaintance with things abroad, have been credibly informed, that heavy poll taxes are laid only in tyrannical and deſpotic governments; and that there is no Free ſtate in the world that raiſes any very conſiderable ſum by a poll tax; that in Great Britain no ſuch tax is known, or has been known, ſince Liberty has been ſettled upon a firm baſis; and that when the arbitrary power in ages paſt, have preſumed to levy ſuch a tax, it has never failed to produce great uneaſineſſes and even convulſions in the ſtate; witneſs the rebellious Wat Tyler, In the days of Richard II. &c —— We cannot therefore but greatly wonder, that there ſhould be ſuch a contradiction to the very ſpirit of our conſtitution in the levying of taxes, in one of the freeeſt governments in the world; one of the moſt Deſpotic methods of levying taxes ſhould be ſo much in uſe: and only let us obtain of your honours to think how it would ſound in the ears of a Britain to be told, that in one of the Colonies, above half their public charges were ſupported by the poll—and that the poor eſt man paid as much for his poll in the moſt favourable taxes, as was paid for thirty ſix acres of the beſt plow-land; or for forty eight acres of common meadow, beſide his equal ſhare in other taxes raiſed wholly upon the poll.

The laying ſuch a great proportion of the taxes upon the polls we cant but think both Impolitic and unjuſt.——'Tis Impolitic, as the taxes are not half ſo eaſily raiſed—for none are ſo difficulted to pay their taxes, as they whoſe liſts conſiſt mainly of polls; the wants of the public are not half ſo ſpeedily and readily ſupplied, as if the taxes were laid wholly or almoſt wholly upon eſtates. 'Tis Unjuſt; for though it ſhould be conceded that ſome ſmall tax might juſtly be laid upon polls, (which might very well admit of diſpute; as it ſeems hard that they, who have nothing and whoſe daily earnings afford but a ſcanty pittance for their own and their families ſupport, ſhou'd be obliged to pay taxes;) yet it can never be juſt that more than half the taxes ſhould be paid in this way. For waving the conſideration of their want of abilities; the very end of taxation ſhews the Injuſtice of it. Taxes are or ſhou'd be raiſed to ſupport civil government, and defend the ſtate againſt external enemies; or in a word, to ſecure our lives and property from violence either from within or with us: now the benefit the poor receive from civil ſociety bears no proportion to what the rich receive: they have no property to ſecure, and their lives would be much more ſecure from violence without the help of civil government, than the lives of the rich; ſince hopes of plunder would be the uſual incentives to murder. They are in much leſs danger from external enemies; they have no property to loſe, and unleſs animated by pure benevolence to their fellow ſubjects, have nothing to induce them to expoſe their lives by oppoſing the enemy——they may ſubmit upon the enemies firſt approach, without being ſufferers thereby; for their Lives they may as well enjoy under one government as another. Now as the benefits They receive from civil government are incomparably leſs, than what the Rich receive; Juſtice requires their taxes ſhould be beyond all compariſon leſs, and charity doubtleſs that many, if not all, who are poſſeſſed of no real property, ſhould be exempt from taxes: for the neceſſaries and ſome degree of the conveniences of life, charity requires the rich ſhould allow to the pooreſt, when their poverty does not ariſe from ſome crime for which juſtice requires they ſhou'd ſuffer: if they have not more than this, charity allows us not to exact from them their juſt dues——if they have not this; charity requires that the rich contribute to their relief:——The ſame charity then doubtleſs requires that rulers ſhould not depreſs them below this ſtate, by laying heavy taxes upon them: but we can aſſure your Honors, that many of us cannot pay the taxes laid upon us and enjoy for ourſelves and our families even the neceſſaries of life; much leſs thoſe few conveniences which charity would allow the pooreſt. And if ſome few of us by hard labour procure a little more than is neceſſary for our bare ſubſiſtence, why ſhould we be obliged to part with the whole overplus, any more than our rich neighbour be obliged to part with all his income, above what is ſufficient for a tolerable ſubſiſtence?—Yet ſuch is the law of our colony; that whether we have any ſubſtance or not:—whether we cant procure more than the neceſſaries of life or not; In half our public taxes we muſt bear an equal part with the rich, as the poll tax raiſes full half of the whole: conſidering the large ſhare the poor bear to ſupport the military eſtabliſhment, and that in caſe of war, their lives would be, more than others, expoſed in defence of their country: we beg your Honors would conſider whether it would not be reaſonable polls ſhould be wholly left out of the liſt.——We can't but think the reaſonableneſs of our mode of taxation to be intirely altered ſince the making the law relative thereto: In the firſt ſettling a country, a man's abilities to pay taxes will be very much in proportion to his number of labourers;——land is plenty, and of little value; every man may eaſily obtain as much as he can till; ſo that no great injury would have been done in the firſt ſettling the country, had the whole tax been laid upon polls—But now the times are ſo altered, that a man's abilities to pay taxes are almoſt intirely according to the land he is poſſeſſed of:—The labour of a ſingle perſon is not now nigh the value, as when there was much more land than labourers; and as the poor increaſe, labour muſt cheapen; conſequently our abilities to pay taxes grow leſs; ſo that though our law reſpecting the proportioning taxes might have been reaſonable once; yet doubtleſs it is far from being ſo now; and the times altering gradually, muſt be the only reaſon it has not been yet deemed an inſupportable grievance.

THE
CONNECTICUT COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt and moſt important Advices, both Foreign and Domeſtic

From TUESDAY, JUNE 2, to TUESDAY, JUNE 9, 1772.

The following contains a true Narrative of the Sufferings and Abuſes, receiv'd by Mr. Remember Baker, his Wife and Family, on the 22d Day of March, A.D. 1772, at his own Dwelling-Houſe in Arlington, and on the Lands granted by his late Excellency Benning Wentworth, Esq; late Governor of the Province of New Hampſhire, (See Courant No. 383.

THIS wicked, inhuman, moſt barbarous, infamous, cruel, villainous and thieviſh Act, was perpetrated, committed and carried into Execution by one John Munro, a reputed Juſtice of the Peace living near that Place, with a Number of Ruffians his Neighbours——Who, after a Lord's Days conſultation, in Plotting this wicked and horrid Deſign, ſurpris'd the ſaid Baker in his ſaid Dwelling Houſe, about the firſt Appearance of Morning Light, on the ſaid 22d Day of March, and after making an Attempt to diſcharge their Fire Arms, through the Door of the ſaid Baker's Houſe, and finding their Arms miſ-fire, ſaid Munro with his Attendants, did with Axes, forcibly Break and Enter the ſaid Baker's Houſe, and with Weapons of Death, ſpread Deſtruction round the Room, cutting with Swords and bruiſing with Fire Arms and Clubs, Men, Women and Children—ſwearing by G d, he would have Baker dead or alive, and that he would Burn the Houſe, Baker, Wife and Children and all the Effects, and to compaſs and bring this villainous Scheme into Execution, did with his own wicked and rebellious Hand, convey Fire from the Hearth in the ſaid Houſe, to a Cupboard in the Room, it being the moſt convenient Place for anſwering his Intention, when all on a Sudden, as quick as a Flaſh, a Judas Spirit, that of Gain and Plunder, overballanced his wicked Noddle. This being agreed on, he inſtantly thruſt his Sword at Mrs. Baker, with an Intention to have ended in that inſtant, her Life, (as he has ſince confeſs'd) when her right Arm, near her elbow Joint, for that Time, happily preſerved her from the intended MURDER. Others in the mean Time, his Attendants, were Mawling, Beating, and Bruiſing his Children. Mr. Baker having at that Time, poſted himſelf in his Chamber, for the better ſecurity of himſelf, family and effects; finding their Malice, Oaths and Imprecations, were principally levelled at his Perſon, thought moſt Proper to leave his Chamber, thinking thereby to draw the Murderers after him, and ſo give his Family, in their wounded Circumſtances, a better Opportunity to ſave themſelves from impending Ruin & utter Deſtruction—accordingly Burſt a Board from the gable End of his Houſe, and leap'd out at the Window he had by that Means made, when Part of the Ruffians, by the ſaid Juſtices Command, were ordered (after firing on ſaid Baker, and ſaying three Times ſucceſſively, D—n him, he is Dead) to ſet on him a large, ſpiteful, wilful, and very malicious Dog, educated and brought up, agreeable to their own Forms and Cuſtoms, who, being like thoſe other Servants of the Devil, at that Time ALL OBEDIENCE, ſeiz'd the ſaid Baker, and being inſtantly join'd by thoſe his cruel Partners, Bound and Pinion'd him ſo Faſt, that he was unable to uſe or make even the leaſt Reſiſtance, in defence of himſelf, his unhappy, wounded Wife, or his poor, helpleſs, diſtreſs'd Children.

And not being as yet ſatisfied with their unlawful Proceedings, and their thirſt for Blood not being quenched, the better to Enhance and Increaſe their horrid Crime, and procure a full Draught of human Blood, to quench their unnatural Thirſt, did convey ſaid Baker to the Carriage in which they Rode; where in his confin'd Eſtate, the ſaid John did, with his Attendants, Tomahawk, Cut and Slaſh in Spots, that their Eyes might ſee a Life languiſh out by Degrees in ſtreams of Blood, while they did, with a G d D—n at almoſt every Breath, laugh him in the Face, to expreſs their Satiſfaction in his agonizing Groans.

In this awful and lamentable Situation, almoſt on the Verge of Eternity, by means of the Bruiſes, Cuts, and great Effuſion of Blood, ſaid Baker with a Voice according to his Strength, called for his Cloaths, as he was yet naked from his Bed, who was denied them from the ſaid Juſtice, which, after ſeveral ſtrokes with his naked Sword over ſaid Bakers naked Face and Eyes, and breaking the ſame in three Pieces, gave him this Reflection, that G d D—n him he would Cloath him, a G d D—'d Traitor; which aggravating Threats, gave them a new ſip to their belov'd Revenge. Thus they continued him naked in his Journey, for the ſpace of four miles and a half, with many cruel Words & hard Blows, ſtopping his Breath with Handkerchiefs, till almoſt ſuffocated, leaſt he ſhould apply to ſome Perſon for Relief.

The ſaid Juſtice and Attendants, had taken what of the Effects belong'd to the Houſe, he and they thought worthy their preſent, affrighted Notice; although they would in probability have been more faithful in the Proſecution of Self and worldly gain, had not they have fear'd a Surpriſe in ſo unchriſtian an Act.——They purſued their Journey with ſevere Words and cruel Threats, as though Reſolv'd to take a full Swing and make an ample Feaſt of human Cruelty, until purſued by three Perſons, loyal and faithful Subjects to the Crown of Great-Britain, whoſe Banner they mean ever more to live and die under, and, after inquiring for the Preſervation of the Life of ſaid Baker, were immediately fired on by ſeveral of Munro's Party, and ſeveral ſent from the Carriage in which they Rode, to ſeize the three ſaid Perſons in Purſuit, when two with much ado, made their Eſcape, the third being taken by ſaid Munro and Party, and rob'd of what Intereſt he had with him to the Value of Forty Dollars, as a freſh Sip and Recruit to their helliſh Demand. Thoſe diſtreſſing Tidings being ſoon ſpread on the Premiſes, enhanced the innocent Inhabitants, and for the Preſervation of Baker, his Family, & their own perſons Families and Effects, ſome of them did Purſue the ſaid Carriage about thirty Miles, and when ſaid John with his Attendants was overtaken by ten True Britains, he and thoſe his wicked Attendants, being Savage like, Conſcience ſtruck and condemn'd, run and hid themſelves ſo Private, that it is not known by his and their Acquaintance, where they have ever been ſeen ſince; leaving the ſaid Baker with very little remains of Life, unable to fight for himſelf, who willingly in his Capacity, accepted of Mercy, which he had been ſo long a ſtranger to.

The foregoing contains but a very ſhort, though true Account, of the barbarous Conduct of the ſaid John towards the ſaid Baker and Family—and ſuch conduct exerciſed by a pretended civil Magiſtrate, or ſuch a Magiſtrate rather muſt be diſhonorable.——A Reproach, Shame, Diſgrace, &c. on the Laws, Reſtrictions, Regulations, Peace, Manners, good Order and Œconomy, both of the Laws of God and Man.

The above and much more, can be atteſted with good Authority, as many worthy Perſons were eye Witneſſes of the ſaid Tragedy.

The Robbery has ſince been Confeſs'd by the ſaid Juſtice, and he has promis'd to make part Amends,

BOSTON, June 1.

By Captain Hooper who arrived at Marblehead from Falmouth, Captain Gardner and Capt. Ackworth arrived here from London, & Capt. Collier from Briſtol, we have the following Advices, viz.

LONDON, March 28, 1772.

BY a letter from Newry, which arrived Yeſterday, we are aſſured, that the Hearts of Steel daily Increaſe, and that they were attacked near Crumlin, on the 23d of this inſtant, by a part of General Strode's regiment of foot and a body of the Yellow Horſe, with a party of the royal artillery, amounting in all to 560 men, whom the inſurgents defeated with conſiderable loſs and afterwards deſtroyed two gentlemen's houſes on the eſtate of Lord Donegal. Their number now is ſaid to be near 11,000 men all proteſtants, and acquainted with the uſe of fire arms; a body much ſuperior to the military at preſent in that part of Ireland.

March 30. Advices from Ireland give an account of the inſurrection growing more formidable every day. The people who are in arms are not a raw, undiſciplined mob, but rather a regular army, being compoſed chiefly of deſerters from different regiments, who have fled to the north of Ireland for refuge, and are now got together with the country people, headed by diſcharged veterans, whoſe experience qualifies them for able commanders. The force ſent againſt them is compoſed of 5 battallions, the 5th, 34th, 42d, 55th and 62d, Drogheda's Light Horſe, and two ſquadrons of heavy dragoons, all under the command of General Giſborne; and two more regiments are cantoned in and about Port Patrick, to be ready for embarkation, in caſe their aſſiſtance ſhould be wanted. From ſo formidable an appearance, we have but two much reaſon to fear bloody work in that part.

March 31 Yeſterday died the Right Hon. Robert Knight, Earl of Catherlough, Viſcount Barrells, and Lord Luxborough, of Shannon, Member of Parliament for Milbourn Port, Dorſetſhire.

Extract of a Letter from Belfaſt, in the North of Ireland, by way of Port Patrick March 24.

"Yeſterday in the afternoon, about half paſt three o'clock, the 62 regiment of foot, and five companies of highlanders, came up with a party of about 2000 of the Hearts of Oak, &c. who entirely compoſed of diſbanded ſoldiers, and the militia that ſo bravely diſtinguiſhed themſelves in Thurot's invaſion in 1760, when a general engagement immediately enſued, in which the regulars were obliged to retire with the following loſs, viz 62d regiment. Killed 1 captain 2 lieutenants, 2 enſigns, and 109 rank and file. Wounded 2 captains, 1 lieutenant, and 147 rank and file.—Highlanders. Killed 2 captains, 3 lieutenants, 1 enſign, and 90 rank and file. Wounded 2 lieutenants, 2 enſigns, and 14 rank and file.—Killed, wounded, and priſoners of the inſurgents 500."

April 1. This day his Majeſty went to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the royal aſſent to the following Bills, viz.

The bill for regulating the future marriages of the royal family.

The bill for puniſhing mutiny and deſertion, and for the better payment of the army in America.

The bill for defreying the charge of the pay and clothing of the militia.

The bill to diſcontinue the inland duty of one ſhilling per pound on ſinglo and bleak teas, and for allowing a drawback on teas exported to Ireland and the plantations,

By the BOSTON POST.

BOSTON, June 4.

Yeſterday Morning Capt Coffin arrived here from London, by whom we have public Prints to the 13th of April, from them we have the following Advices, viz

WARSAW, February 26.

THE advices we received in relation to the ſignature of the Preliminaries for a peace between the Ruſſians and Turks are not confirmed; neither has Count Saldero, the Ruſſian Ambaſſador, publiſhed any thing in Relation to it. On the contrary, the Ruſſians are making the greateſt Preparations for another campaign.

It is certain that very diſagreeable advices are arrived from the Eaſt Indies. Our people diſcovered that there was a treaty of alliance between the French and the King of Tanjour, hoſtile to the Engliſh, they had taken an Opportunity to attack that Prince, and are actually beſieging the capital of his country. Tanjour is one of the fineſt provinces of the Eaſt; it is as large as Bengal, and much richer, having many gold mines, and all the diamonds. But it is not probable the natives who are acquainted with our oppreſſions, will ſubmit to our government. A greater power than we can oppoſe may be ſelected, and it is feared, will be employed againſt us. Leagues between the Country Princes and the Court of Delhi are forming, in order to diſpoſſeſs us of Bengal at leaſt: And, if whiſpers are true, ſeveral very intelligent perſons belonging to the Company, confeſs the ſituation of their affairs in the Eaſt Indies to be very precarious, if not dangerous.

April 2. A letter from Sudbury in Suffolk, mentions, that the poor are in the utmoſt diſtreſs, on account of the high price of proviſions: that beef, mutton, veal, &c ſell at 6d per pound, ſalt butter at 8d. freſh ditto at 1s. 2d. and that bread corn is uncommonly dear, and ſo ſcarce that the poor cannot purchaſe it.

April 3. It is certain that Lord Towſhend has declined having any reinforcement from Scotland. This ſtep of his Lordſhip's has given birth to much ſpeculation, as we have yet no authentic accounts of the motions of General Gisborne, much leſs that any thing deciſive has paſt.

Letters from Copenhagen adviſe, that Col. Keith, Envoy extraordinary from England at that Court, having demanded a private audience of the the King of Denmark, in order to communicate to him certain overtures he had received from the King his Maſter relative to the late Revolution, and a day being appointed for that purpoſe, Mr. Keith was much ſurpriſed, upon coming into the audience chamber, to find, inſtead of the King, ſome Members of his Council of ſtate who intimated to him, that his Majeſty not being very well, he had charged them to receive what he had to communicate, and give him an account of it. Mr Kieth made anſwer, that the orders he had received from his Maſter were to ſpeak to the King in perſon, and not to the Miniſters; and that he was not a little ſurpriſed that after his Daniſh Majeſty had conſented to give him the audience he demanded, he ſhould refer him to his miniſters, which he ſhould not fail to acquaint the King his Maſter with; after which he retired very much diſſatisfied with his reception. Theſe letters add, that Mr. Keith had declared in a very ſpirited manner, that if the Queen of Denmark is not treated with all the reſpect due to her birth and rank, the King his Maſter will not fail to reſent it.

April 7. It is a fact, that the Danes are ſo enraged againſt the Engliſh that all the meſſengers who have of late gone from this Court to theirs, have by the expreſs orders of Col Keith, kept within his Excellency's doors during their ſtay at Copenhagen, and never once entered into the ſtreets, for fear of being inſulted by the mob.

In the month of July laſt, a French ſhip came into the road of Madras. The commander was in debt; and he mortgaged his veſſel for a part of her value to obtain money to clear himſelf. Mr. Whittle, a member of the Council, was the perſon who advanced the money, to the amount of 4000 pagodas: He therefore ſent a perſon on board the ſhip to take charge of her till paid, and the mortgage redeemed. The Frenchman went, a few nights after, on board, and ſlipping his cable, went out to ſea.—Mr. Whittle, upon this, applied to Sir John Lindſay, who gave an armed force, under Mr Whittle's direction. The party conſiſted of an officer and twelve men. They ſet out in a veſſel overtook the ſhip upon the high ſeas, boarded her and ſtruck the French colours. Mr. Law, and the French in India, conſider this as a declaration of hoſtilities, there being goods on board the ſhip belonging to merchants in Pondicherry.——The correſpondence is hot between Admiral Harland and the French Governor. The Court of France are informed of the whole, in the moſt ſtriking colours; and if the French have really any deſigns on the Eaſt Indies, this will ſerve them as a plauſible pretext.

Whitehall, March 28. The King has been pleaſed to appoint John Fenton, Eſq; Provoſt-Marſhall of the Province of Nova-ſcotia, in America.

CONSTANTINOPLE, February 17.

NO leſs than five Fires have happened here within the ſpace of fifteen days, by which ſeveral thouſand houſes have been reduced to aſhes.

Rome, March 7. The Duke of Gloceſter, after having kept his apartment three days on occaſion of the death of his auguſt mother went laſt Wedneſday to the Quirinal to pay a viſit to the Pope, with whom he had a long conference, after which the Holy Father charged his Majordomo to make a preſent in his name to his Royal Highneſs, conſiſting of two magnificent pictures, and a compleat ſet of copperplate cuts repreſenting the different views of antient and modren Rome, engraved by the celebrated Piraneſi.

Warſaw, March 7. Tho' we are aſſured preliminaries are ſigned between the Ruſſians and Turks, yet both ſides are equally buſy in preparing for War. However, we flatter ourſelves, that it is only making peace ſword in hand.

Warſaw, March 14. Since the arrival of two couriers to the Ruſſian ambaſſador here, the hopes of peace ſeem to vaniſh and it is feared to be further off than it was tho't to be ſome time ago. A foreign court ſeems much inclined to favour the peace, but the propoſals of the Ruſſians are very difficult to be accepted.

Copenhagen March 14. Count Struenſee is very much caſt down, he talks little, and lies in bed near all day. Several religious books have been put into his hands by Dr Muenſter, who often viſits him.——The Count has gone thro' all his examinations, but his fate is not yet known.

LONDON, April 1.

Died aged 88 Lieut. General Laſſelles, Colonel of the 47th Regiment of foot, one of the oldeſt Officers in the Army.

Married. Capt. Symmes of Boſton, in New-England to Miſs Stevens of Margaret Street.

Appointed. Col. Keith, now Sir John Murray Keith, his Majeſty's Ambaſſador at the Court of Denmark, to be Colonel of the 47th Regiment of Foot.

Thomas Beneet was ordered for tranſportation for ſtealing ſeveral ſilver Spoons at an Entertainment. He is poſſeſſed of an eſtate of 200l. a year and 4000l. in caſh, whom he has aſſigned over in truſt to his ſon.

The Pope has made a Preſent to the Duke of Gloceſter conſiſting of Prints of antient and modern Rome, engraved by the celebrated Piraneſi.

His Royal Highneſs is expected the 28th of May. Part of his Baggage is arrived in the Venus frigate.

Sir James Lyndſay is arrived from the Eaſt-Indies, it is ſaid 100,000l! richer than when he went out.

In Norwich ſome hundreds of families of the poor Weavers and Woolcombers are in a ſtarving condition, having but little work to do. Mutton, beef, pork & veal are ſold for 6d. per pound; ſalt butter 8d. and freſh butter 1/ & 2d. per pound.—In Suffolk it is the ſame.

Letters from Dublin, ſay, that the liſt of Regulars, killed and wounded, which lately appeared in a letter from the North of Ireland, was extremely incorrect; very few officers, and not 150 men having been killed and wounded in the late ſkirmiſh with the Hearts of Steel.

LONDON, April 8.

We hear from the Iſle of Sky, on the Weſtern coaſt of Scotland, that near ſeven hundred of the inhabitants of that Iſland are now preparing to emigrate for America. One veſſel is already freighted to carry out three hundred perſons, and the remainder are to follow them in June and July, after they have diſpoſed of their cattle and effects. The great advance in rents of late has occaſioned their taking the reſolution of leaving their native country for ever.

LONDON, April 9.

On Tueſday the Houſe of Commons granted the following ſums to his Majeſty:

400 000l. from the Eaſt India Company, to go towards the ſupply for the preſent year.

13 000l. for repairing the Britiſh Forts in Africa.

2 400l. for repairing Cape Coaſt Caſtle.

4 000l. to be applied as an encouragement for proſecuting diſcoveries towards the South Pole.

On Tueſday the Bill for the better relief of the Proteſtant Diſſenters was read the firſt time, and ordered to be read a ſecond time on Friday next, and to be printed.

The Bill for the better obſervation of the Lord's Day was read the firſt time, and ordered to be printed.

Notwithſtanding the rumour ſpread of a peace between Ruſſia and the Porte, there are more Ruſſian men of war now equipping, and others ready to reinforce their ſquadron in the Mediterranean; and ſome tranſports with ſtores are lately gone thither.

April 10. Some diſagreeable accounts were received from Ireland on Saturday laſt, which occaſioned a council to be called: the diſturbances are daily increaſing, and are now indeed very alarming.

A correſpondent ſays he applauds the judgment of thoſe who were inſtrumental in having the bill for the better obſervation of the Lord's day printed for the uſe of the members of the Houſe of Commons, for no ſet of people in the Kingdom ſtand more in need of it than they do.

It is reported that matters are at length accommodated between our Court and that of Copenhagen; and that the Queen, who is releaſed from her confinement, is viſited twice a-day by Colonel Keith, the Engliſh Ambaſſador.

It is alſo reported that the Count de Struenſee will be pardoned through the powerful mediation of a reſpectable maritime power.

The amount of the public debts ſtanding out on the 5th day of January laſt, was 127 497,-619 3s 2d.; and that of the annual intereſt or other charges payable for the ſame, 4 536,-392 8s 8d.

London, April 13. The Budget will be opened, and the Affairs of America will come on in the lower Aſſembly in Courſe of this Week.

The principal Inſurgents, called Hearts of Steel, or Oak Boys, have been apprehended and ſent to Dublin.—It is ſaid upwards of 1000 Families are preparing to ſet off for America, from Ireland on Account of the troubles in that Kingdom.

It is thought the Parliament will not break up till the latter End of June.

It is ſaid the 400,000l. to be paid this Year to Government by the Eaſt India Company, is not to be applied to the State; but his Majeſty has directed that ſum for the exigences for the numerous poor.

Letters from Peterſburgh mention, that the caſtle of Muſcow was lately burnt down. The damage is computed at 500,000 roubles.

A cauſe of great importance, relative to the property of an Iſland called Mill iſland, has for ſome days been heard by a Committee of the Privy Council at the Treaſury. This place lies near Philadelphia, in the river Delawar, and has been ſettled for many years though it is alledged that the property has never been legaly granted by the Crown; in conſequence of which Lord Rochford has petitioned for and obtained it, as far as the King's right extends, and the trial now turns on theſe queſtions; whether it has not been granted by his Majeſty's predeceſſors, and whether after the term of a certain poſſeſſion, the Crown has a power to diſpoſſeſs the inhabitants?

NEW-YORK, May 28.

Tueſday, May 19 (being the Day appointed for the annual Commencement of the Graduates of King's College, in this City) a numerous and reſpectable Audience, honoured by the Preſence of his Excellency Governor Tryon, and General Gage, aſſembled at Trinity Church.

After Prayers, and an elegant Latin Oration by the Rev. CHARLES INGLIS, A. M. Pres. P. T. the Salutatory Oration was delivered with great Propriety of Pronunciation, and gracefulneſs of Geſture, by Mr. Ogden.

The Audience was next agreeably entertain'd with a judicious Compariſon of modern and antient Learning, and an accurate Eſtimate of the peculiar Excellencies of each, by Mr. Bowden; whoſe elegant Compoſition and animated Delivery, did him much Honour.

Mr Stene, next, diſcovered much Brilliancy of Fancy and refin'd Taſte, in an Engliſh Oration on the Beauties of Poetry, pronounced with Spirit, and recommended by the Accuracy of his Geſture.

A Forenſic Diſpute then ſucceeded. Mr. Wanterton ſupported the Character of an Empiric with much Spirit and Humour; and Mr. Muirſon, in his Reply, pointed out, in a ſtriking Light, the ſuperior Advantages of a regular Application to the Study of Phyſic, and rallied the Pretenſions of Empiriciſm with much Wit and Pleaſantry.

Mr. King, next, gain'd much Applauſe, by an animated Latin Oration, On the Love of Glory.

The bold Hypotheſes of preſumptuous Philoſophers, and the rediculous Conſequences of Confidence and Dogmatiſm, in the different literary Profeſſions, were placed in a ſtriking Light, by Mr. Roebuck, in an humourous ironical Panegyric on the happy Effects of Preſumption and Aſſurance; which, joined with the Propriety of his Delivery, occaſioned much Mirth, and met with the higheſt Applauſe from the Audience.

The Degree of A. B. was then confer'd on on Meſſrs. Ogden, Skene, Bowden, Barclay, King and Roebuck. The following Gentlemen, who gave ſingular Marks of their Improvement in medical Knowledge, at their public Examination, were graduated Bachelors in Phyſic: James Muirſon, Charles Doughty, A. M., William Winterton, John Auguſtus Graham, Uzal Johnſon, Richard Udall.

Col. Edmund Fanning, Eſq; A. M. of Yale College and of Cambridge, New England, was admitted ad eundem.

The Exerciſes of the Day were then concluded with a very ſenſible Valedictory Oration on Sociability, by Mr. Barclay; whoſe judicious Obſervations, and modeſt Addreſs, gained him univerſal Approbation. The Attention paid by the Audience, and the Satisfaction they expreſſed during the Courſe of the Exerciſes, did much Honour to themſelves and the Speakers; and muſt give Pleaſure to every Lover of Literature, and every true Patriot, who wiſhes to ſee the Sciences diſſeminated and widely flouriſhing in this happy Country.

NEWPORT, June 1.

The Brig Dolphin, Capt. Henry Weeden, bound on a Voyage of Wood, to bring to this Market, was caſt away Yeſterday Se'nnight, at the Town of Weſterly, in this Colony, the Veſſel loſt, Rigging, Sails, &c. ſaved.——'Tis ſaid the Loſs of this Veſſel was occaſioned by being detained a conſiderable Time by one of the Board of Commiſſioners Cruiſers, of which we hear there are, at this Time, ſeven on this Coaſt, including the Beaver and Gaſpee now in this Harbour.

Poor New England!——The Spaniards taking your Whale Men in the Weſt Indies, and your (pretended) Friends taking and harraſſing your Trade on your own Coaſts, and even in your Harbours and little Coves and Creeks!

NEW-LONDON, June 5.

Laſt Thurſday Night the Houſe of Mr. Joſeph Way, of Cheſterfield Society, in this Town, was ſtruck by Lightning, which came down the Chimney, burſt open all the Doors and windows in the Houſe, ripped off the Window Caps, raiſed the Chamber Floor and Roof, and removed one of the main Poſts of the Houſe ſeveral Inches from it's Place burſt down the Partitions, entered a Bed Room where a Child lay in Bed, and deſtroyed a Caſe and Sett of Bottles therein, and killed a Dog.——Altho' a Number of Perſons were in the Houſe, providentially none of them received any Hurt.

BOSTON, May 28.

It appears by the papers, brought by Capt. Hooper, that the high price of proviſions in England occaſions great diſtreſs among the poor inhabitants: But calamity ſeems, by ſome accounts, to be owing rather to an artificial than natural ſcarcity, ariſing from that ſame principle deteſted avarice in monopolizing the neceſſaries of life, in the ſubjects of this ſame righteous government, called Britiſh, which the late deplorable famine in Aſia, where millions of our fellow creatures ended their days in ſuch a manner as muſt have excited commiſeration in every obdurate animal, but the unfeeling miſer——A London paper of the beginning of laſt month, ſpeaking of the late famine in Aſia ſays, "The hoarders of rice raiſed fortunes, and two millions of people died of famine——It is to be believed that the monopolizers made juſt five ſhillings ſterling a head of the Slain"!——How uniform in the adminiſtration of juſtice does government appear! puniſhing with death a poor perſon who ſteals two or three ſhillings ſterling, and at the ſame time protecting the villains who, by with holding ſuſtenance for their brethren, murder, millions! (SPY)

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.

Sunday laſt arrived here Capt. Inkſon, in 16 days from Grenada, by whom we learn—That every thing was in the utmoſt confuſion, that Governor Leybourne had iſſued a Proclamation, commanding all the French in the Iſland to be naturalized or depart in 25 days; that the fort and ſeveral parts of the town of St. George's had been ſet on fire ſuppoſed by ſome of the French; and that a French frigate had arrived and anchored in the harbour, who took on her the ſtate of regularly firing evening guns.

New-Haven, May 5.

Laſt Tueſday Evening between ten and eleven o'Clock the Ship Polly, lying at the Pier in our Harbour, was diſcovered to be on Fire, between Decks, which had got to ſo great a Head, that it could not be extinguiſh'd——It being high Water, and the Veſſel light, ſhe was towed by a Number of Boats, near the Shore, where ſhe was almoſt entirely conſumed. It is not certainly known how the Fire began, but it is ſtrongly conjectur'd, that it was occaſioned by a Spark from a Coal, which was carried below to light a Candle. Had the Accident happened at low Water, (when the Ship could not have been remov'd) ſeveral other Veſſels, with the Pier, would have been very much expoſed.

The Ship was own'd by Mr. Ralph Isaacs, of this Town, and was almoſt new, having made but one Voyage.

HARTFORD, June 9.

LAST Saturday the General Aſſembly of this Colony broke up. During the Seſſion a Petition was preſented to them from the notorious John Brown, now in Litchfield Goal, under Sentence of Death for Burglary, praying for a new Tryal; which Petition was heard, and granted.—The Execution of the Indian, under a like Sentence in New-Haven Goal, for the Murder of Mr. Moſes Cook, as has been mentioned, is put off till the laſt Day of September next.

Laſt Thurſday Mr. Roger Bulkley of Colcheſter, was married to Miſs Lucey Root of the ſame Place, a moſt agreeble young Lady.

TAKEN up in the firſt Society of Chatham in Connecticut, in the Year 1770, late in the Spring, a likely Mare Colt, two Years old, without Mark, paces and trots, of a ſorril Colour, the ſaid Mare was privately Sold. POETS CORNER.

Written on the SEA-SHORE. By a LADY.

THOU reſtleſs fluctuating Deep,
Expreſſive of the human Mind,
In thy for ever varying Form,
My own inconſtant ſelf I find.
2. How ſoft now flow thy peaceful Waves,
In juſt Gradations to the Shore ;
While on thy Brow unclouded ſhines,
The Regent of the Midnight Hour.
3. Bleſt Emblem of that equal State,
Which I this Moment feel within :
Where Thought to Thought ſucceeding rolls,
And all is placid and ſerene.
4. And o'er thy ſmoothly flowing Tide,
Their Light the trembling Moon Beams dart,
My lov'd Eugeca's, Image ſmiles,
And gaily brightens all my Heart.
5. But ah ! this flattering Scene of Peace,
By neither can be long poſſeſs'd,
When Eurus breaks the tranſient Calm,
And riſing Sorrows ſhake my Breaſt.
6. Obſcur'd thy Cynthia's ſilver Ray,
When Clouds oppoſing intervene :
And ev'ry Joy that Friendſhip gives
Shall fade beneath the Gloom of Spleen.

To the Printer of the Public Advertiſer.

S I R, London, March 26.

THE entrance of Satan into Paradiſe was hardly more fatal to the human race than that of the arch-traitor and B—e into the Royal Family ; who by perverting the mind, and tainting the principles of one Prince, and cauſing the others to be totally neglected, laid the foundation of that deſpotic plan of government which is now advancing with haſty ſtrides to the ruin of this kingdom. Had the preſent Parliament the public intereſt and happineſs in view inſtead of their own, they would make this infernal plot againſt the minds of the Royal Family a matter of the moſt ſerious inquiry, and if it ſhould appear that his M——y's education has been ſuch as tended to alienate his heart from the Engliſh ſubjects, and their excellent laws and conſtitution, and to lay the foundation of an arbitrary Government ; if it ſhould appear that his royal brothers are not naturally deficient in underſtanding, but that they have been purpoſely and traiterouſly kept in ignorance, to render them uſeleſs to the State, and to prevent their counteracting the plan of deſpotiſm, the whole weight of public vengeance ought to fall on the guilty heads of their governors and tutors ; and their partizans and abettors ſhould be branded with indelible infamy, and forever cut off from the confidence of the nation.

JUS HUMANUM.

S I R, London, March 26.

I AM ſhocked beyond meaſure at the inattention of parliament to the barbarities committed by the ſervants of the Company in the Eaſt Indies : Barbarities as unparalleled in themſelves, as they are unknown in any former period of our hiſtory. The name of an Engliſhman till of late was admired, as comprehending all that was humane and generous, over the whole world. But now it has become more odious in Aſia than even that of Spaniard was formerly in Mexico and Peru. I muſt, however, own, that till of late we were kept in the dark as to facts. It was not the buſineſs of the guilty to publiſh their own crimes ; and, I am ſorry to ſay it, the directors at home ſeem, by their ſpeculation, to wiſh that the affairs of India may remain in ſuch a ſituation as to occaſion fluctuations in the price of the company's capital ſtock. There have lately appeared ſome publications which do honour to their authors as honeſt men, as well as men of abilities ; and I hope the nation will be rouzed, by the facts produced, to a proper indignation againſt the perpetrators of oppreſſions unheard of before in any age or Country. Mr. Dow, in his ſtate of Bengal, prefixed to his very elegant and maſterly hiſtory has, though I think too favourably to the Company, given facts at which the reader muſt ſhudder. "The civil wars," ſays he, "to which our violent Deſire of creating Nabobs gave riſe, were productive of tragical events. The Country was depopulated by every ſpecies of oppreſſion. In the ſpace of ſix years half the great cities in an opulent kingdom were rendered deſolate ; the moſt fertile fields in the world were laid waſte ; and five millions of harmleſs and induſtrious people were either expelled or deſtroyed. Want of foreſight became more fatal than innate barbariſm ; and men found themſelves wading through blood and ruin, when their object was only ſpoil." And in another place he has the following remarkable reflection : "The diſtemper of avarice in the extreme, ſeemed to infect all, whom the wrath of God againſt a devoted people had placed in power."—He alſo relates, that many of the poor farmers in Bengal "were bound to ſtakes, and publickly whipped. Their complaints were heard in every ſquare of the capital city : and many of them expired in agonies under the laſh.——This, I am told by others, is by no means an exaggeration of Mr Dow's. Many facts, if poſſible worſe than theſe, have come to my hands ; and I will give them to the publick, in order to raiſe a becoming ſpirit againſt ruffians who deſerve not the name of men. Yet this company ſays, that they have a right to torture their ſlaves.

Z E N O.

From the Gentleman's Magazine for Feb. laſt.

In the CODICIL annexed to the laſt bill of ROBERT NORTH, late of Scarborough, Eſq; deceaſed, proved in October 1765 among other things therein contained, are as follow :

To wit,

I Give to Mrs R. G. my Engliſh walnut bureau, made large to contain clothes but hope ſhe will not forget when ſhe makes uſe of it, that Graces and Virtues are a Lady's moſt ornamental dreſs, and that that dreſs has this peculiar excellence, that it will laſt forever, and improve by wearing.

I give to Lieutenant W. M. my godſon, my ſword, and hope he will (if ever occaſion ſhould require it) convince a raſh world he has learnt to obey his God as well as General, and that he [illegible] any thing into the character of a good Soldier, which is inconſiſtent with the duty of a good Chriſtian.

And now having, I hope made a proper diſpoſition of my Lands and Money, theſe pearls, of great price in the preſent eſteem of men, let me take this opportunity of expreſſing my gratitude to the grand original Proprietor ; and here I muſt direct my praiſes to that benign Being, who through all the ſtages of my life, hath encompaſſed me with a profuſion of favours, and who by a wonderful and gracious Providence, hath converted my very misfortunes and diſappointments into bleſſings ; nor let me omit what the buſineſs juſt finiſhed ſeems more particularly to require of me, to return him my unfeigned thanks, who, to all the comforts and conveniencies of life, hath ſuperſeded this alſo, of being uſeful even in death, by thus enabling me to diſpoſe of a double portion, namely, one of love to the Poor, and another of gratitude to my Friends.

All my faults and follies, almoſt infinite as they have been, I leave behind me, with wiſhes, that, as they had here their birth and origin, they may here be buried in everlaſting oblivion. My infant graces, and little embrio virtues, are, I truſt gone before me into Heaven, and will, I hope, prove ſucceſsful meſſengers to prepare my way. Thither, O Lord, let them mount up with unintermiting conſtancy, while my ſoul, in the mean time, feaſts herſelf with extatic reflections on that raviſhing change, when from the nonſenſe and folly of an impertinent, vain, and wicked world, ſhe ſhall be ſummoned to meet her kindred ſpirits, and admitted into the bliſsful ſociety of Angels and men, made perfect ; when, inſtead of ſickneſs, gloomineſs, and ſorrow, (the melancholy retinue of ſin) and a houſe of clay, glory and immortal youth ſhall be her attendants, and her habitation the palace of the King of King's : This will be a life worth dying for indeed ! Thus to exiſt, tho' but in proſpect, is at preſent joy, gladneſs, tranſport, extacy! Fired with the view of this tranſcendent happineſs, and triumphant in hope, theſe noble privileges of a chriſtian, how is it poſſible to forbear crying out, O Death! why art thou ſo long in coming; why tarry the wheels of thy chariot?

To that Supreme Being, whoſe treaſures and goodneſs are thus infinite and inexhauſtible, be all Honour and Glory forever, Amen, Amen.

A remarkable Anecdote, recorded by Dyodorus Siculus.

THE affectionate King Sabacon, ſhocked at the uſeleſs effuſion of blood, in thoſe capital puniſhments which were ſo frequently inflicted in his country, and finding the number of robbers no otherwiſe diminiſhed than by the loſs of his ſubjects the cauſe ſtill remaining converted their puniſhment to ſlavery, and that had ſo happy an effect, that robberies were ſcarcely heard of, while the Public imperceptibly grew enriched by thoſe very hands which had formerly plundered private perſons; and ſtrong uſeful limbs were confined in chains to ſerve thoſe with whom they once enjoyed privileges in common, which now they had ſo juſtly forfeited.

L O N D O N April 6.

It is not uncommon for perſons who have long acted againſt the conviction of their conſciences, to be at laſt given up as reprobate, and ſeized with a fatal blindneſs, like that of the Jews. Thus hardened in erroneous, impolitic and diſtructive conduct, the Miniſtry contemn the cries of the poor, and rely upon that infamous corruption for their ſupport which hath been the cauſe of the people's complaints. On the very brink of a pricipice they ſee no danger. Nothing can open their eyes. Quos Deus vult perdere, prius dementat. The blackeſt clouds from every quarter are collecting, and yet they ſeem to apprehend no ſtorm. But when the thunder of popular reſentment ſhall roll, and its avenging lightnings flaſh, where will they fly for ſhelter? From the diſregarded grievances of the people, and their intolerable want of the neceſſaries of life, what dreadful commotions may we not fear? In Ireland, popular inſurrections, ariſing from the ſame cauſes, have already commenced. The people there are up in arms, and have, it is ſaid, fought and beat the military. [illegible] the ſame cauſe will have the ſame effect in this kingdom? The people, now ſtarving here may probably think they may as well die by fire and ſword as by famine; and yet, what ſteps have the Miniſtry taken to relieve preſſing neceſſities of the poor, and prevent the terrible calamities of a general commotion? Is not ſuch a conſideration of infinitely higher importance, and much more wanted, than ſtretching the prerogative of the Crown, and paſſing a bill for the future marriages of the Royal family? If the Miniſtry have any regard to their own ſafety, they would, one would think, hearken to the cries of the people, and immediately take ſuch ſalutary meaſures as may relieve their urgent neceſſities: ——For dreadful will be the conſequences if they are left to the law of nature, and ſhall carve out a cure for themſelves.

Waterford, April 7. By a private letter from a Gentleman in the North, to his Friends in this city, we learn, that whole villages have embarked at the different ports there for America, and that numbers of others were preparing to follow their example; ſo that in a ſhort time we ſhall ſee that once flouriſhing province reduced to beggary, and entirely depopulated.

L O N D O N March 24.

One of the moſt extraordinary cauſes was heard this week in the Court of Chancery. Some few years ſince General Stanwix, his lady and daughter, were all loſt (by the ſinking of the veſſel) in their paſſage from Dublin to Parkgate. The lady was his ſecond wife and the daughter was by his firſt wife. At his ſecond marriage it was ſtipulated in the ſettlement, that if the General ſurvived his lady the perſonal eſtate was to deſcend in ſuch a line; if the lady ſurvived the General, then in ſuch a line; and if the daughter ſurvived both of them, then in ſuch a line. The party whom the General's ſurvivorſhip was to have benefitted contended, that the ſhip being loſt in tempeſtuous weather, it was more than probable that he was upon deck, and that the ladies, (as is ever the caſe in theſe ſituations) were down in the cabin, and of courſe (ſo confined) were ſubject to a more early loſs of their lives than the General; who, as a man of arms and courage, was, they aſſerted, more able, and more likely, to ſtruggle with death than women, and in which he might probably have been aſſiſted by broken maſts, and other parts of the rigging. Thoſe who claimed on the ſuppoſal of the wife ſurviving her huſband, conteſted that the General was old, and conſequently feeble; by no means ſtrong enough to reſiſt the ſhocks of ſuch a terrible attack; that the lady was conſiderably younger, and (though of the weak ſex) proportionably ſtronger than her huſband; and, fond of the General, not improbably, was with him at the time; therefore, in every reaſonable ſuppoſition, ſurvived him. The third party advanced, that the daughter was younger, and of a more hale conſtitution than either the General or his wife; that undoubtedly the uncommon mutual affection of the two latter rendered them inſenſible of their own reſpective danger, in their feelings for each other, ſo that it was on the ſide of probability that they ſunk down in death together: That the daughter, on the contrary, though a dutiful, and perhaps affectionate child, yet, being ſtill younger than the mother in-law, and having no ſuch violent attachment to any ſecond perſon, as the General and his lady reciprocally had for each other; and being tho, from the circumſtance of youth, to be ſuppoſed ſtill more unwilling to part with life than either father or mother, the probability of being the laſt ſurvivor was infinitely in favour of the daughter. The decree is not yet pronounced. —The Chancellor recommended it to the parties to compromiſe the matter, or if they perſiſted in their ſeperate claims, declared he would call in the aſſiſtance of ſome of the judges.

Extract from the inſtructions given by the Town of BOSTON, to their Repreſentatives, in the General Aſſembly of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay.

UNDER the influence of an inſtruction, the Governor has refuſed his conſent to a tax bill, for defraying the neceſſary charges of government, because ſuch perſons as the Britiſh miniſter was pleaſed to point out, were not expreſly exempted from bearing their due pro- [illegible] pleat our misfortune is, that an inſtruction is pleaded for refuſing a grant for the payment of our agents at the Court of Great Britian. Thus we are to be cut off, even from complaint, that laſt reſource of the wretched.

His Excellency is inſtructed not to ſign any grant for payment of agent, unleſs he is choſen by three branches of the legiſlature. He cannot conſent to the choice of any one who is preſcribed in this inſtruction. It is againſt an adminiſtration in which Lord Hillſborough and his dependants are principal actors, that we complain; but no one whom he diſapproves muſt be allowed to manage our complaints. It is difficult to reſtrain our indignation at the groſs affront offered to our underſtanding in this affair. A capacity but little remote from idiotiſm, is ſufficient to diſcover the fatal conſequences of this miniſterial plot.

The town have in times paſt declared to their repreſentatives their ſenſe of the burthen laid upon the commercial intereſt of the community, by the extenſion of the powers of the court of admiralty. A juriſdiction, in its very nature, repugnant to our conſtitution, and contrary to Magna Charta, as it inveſts one judge, appointed by the crown, with authority to determine concerns the moſt important to the property and liberty of the ſubject.——And they expreſſed their ſenſe of this grievance, as ſharpened by the contraſt which appears in the ſame ſtature, between the mother country and the colonies.——For however it may be urged, that the court of admiralty is eſtabliſhed by the charter of this province, yet by the ſame charter the people of this province are entitle to all the liberties privileges and immunities of free Britiſh ſubjects. And to ſee the Britiſh Parliament, by one and the ſame ſtatute, taking from the colonies, an important right, namely, TRIALS BY JURIES, and ſecuring that right to themſelves, in caſes of the ſame nature and importance, muſt be deeply affecting to us. We take this opportunity of renewing our proteſtation againſt the powers of that Court, which have already proved ſo vexatious to perſons concerned in trade; & in a very recent inſtance, according to the beſt information we are able to obtain, have been made uſe of to diſturb and haraſs the induſtrious farmer and which, not reſtrained, bid fair to render all property, either real or perſonal, to the laſt degree precarious.

Thus gentlemen, have we exhibited to you a view of many of the grievances which diſtreſs this people. And we expect that you will uſe your utmoſt influence, in the enſuing ſeſſions of the general court, to have them radically redreſſed; not doubting but you will receive the moſt ready and effectual aſſiſtance from theſe wiſe patriots who are, or ſhall be choſen to repreſent our brethern in the ſeveral towns of this faithful province.——In particular, we deſire, that you would uſe your influence that a remonſtrance be preſented to his Majeſty, (whoſe elevated ſtation denominates him the father of his people, and the tenure of whoſe throne is the protection of his ſubjects) againſt the oppreſſions which we ſuffer: Laying open to his view, in the fulleſt and plaineſt manner, the true ſtate of this his province of the Maſſachuſetts Bay, and pleading with him, with that freedom and firmneſs which the juſtice of the cauſe, and the exigencies of your country demand. And that you may not fail of reaching the Royal Ear, we inſtruct you to exert yourſelves to procure a proper grant from the houſe of repreſentatives, for the payment of the agents who have ſerved the honourable his Majeſty's council, and the honorable houſe of repreſentatives for ſome years paſt; and that you take timely care to know whether the ſame is concurred with, and conſented to by the other two branches of the legiſlature. And if it is not, that you endeavour to obtain a reſolve of the houſe for a brief, for raiſing a ſum ſufficient for defraying the charges of an agency for the year enſuing that ſo we may at leaſt in this way, make uſe of our own money, to purchaſe an acceſs to the ear of our King.

A Method to deſtroy Caterpillars.

THEY always lay their eggs in the fall, in a ſmall bunch, of the colour of the tree, near the end of ſome twig.—This neſt conſiſts of a number of little cells, from each of which a young one proceeds. As ſoon as the trees begin to ſhoot forth their leaves, they begin to hatch, and immediately weave themſelves into a large viſible neſt, on the ſame limb where their eggs are laid, but nigher the trunk of the tree; all therefore you have to do is, to look near the end of that branch, where they make their firſt appearance, and you will certainly find their eggs, from whence they continue to hatch almoſt all ſummer; than by killing thoſe that are already hatched, and carefully ſcraping off their eggs, you will, without damage to the trees, and without the expence of uſing oil, effectually deſtroy them.

B O S T O N, June 11.

Tueſday laſt arrived here Capt. Lyde in 7 Weeks from London, from the public Prints to the 18th of April we have the following Articles, viz.

L O N D O N, April 13.

THE death of a great Lady who was ſuppoſed to influence all the political operations of the kingdom, having produced no change whatever of a ſalutary nature in the cabinet, the moſt furious patriots are now beginning to perceive that all the reports propagated againſt her were downright calumnies, and ſome even imagine, that badly as affairs have been managed, they would have been managed in a manner ſtill worſe if her royal highneſs had not frequently interpoſed in behalf of the people.

April 15. Yeſterday the Earl of Hillſborough, Secretary of State for the Plantations, had a great levee at his houſe in Hanover Square, at which ſeveral Merckants and colony agents attended.

Yeſterday a committee of thirty-one members were choſe, by Ballot, to enquire into the nature, ſtate and condition of the Eaſt-India company and the Britiſh affairs in the Eaſt-Indies.

April 18. We hear that orders were ſent on thurſday night to Portſmouth to prepare immediately thirteen ſail of the line, five frigates and bomb ketches. The deſtination of this fleet is no ſecret; it being intended to lay the capital of Denmark in aſhes. [Lond. Packet.

It is reported that Struenſee, being put to the torture, confeſſed all: and his confeſſion being carried to an unfortunate great perſonage, ſhe in the confuſion of grief, ſhame and diſpair, ſigned it; ſo that a divorce is to proceed immediately upon this event.—The Britiſh ambaſſador has made a demand of the perſon of the queen, but no anſwer is yet given.

Notwithſtanding France has long ſince oſtenſibly abandoned the family of the Pretender, it is aſſerted that the late marriage of the Chevalier St. George is the fabrication of the French court; and that the purpoſes of its originating there will ſhew themſelves in a few months, as ſoon as ſome matters can be previouſly ſettled with the court of Madrid.

They writh from the Streights, that 16 Turkiſh men of war are cruizing without the Streights of the Dardenelles, to intercept the Ruſſian fleet.

A L B A N Y.

We hear that David Ramſey, an Indian Trader; who has reſided ſome Time paſt to the weſtward of Niagara; happened ſome time laſt Spring to be aſſaulted by, or had a Difference with ſome of the Natives, a Scuffle enſued in which three of them were killed; theſe he buried under the Snow, and imagining it was not ſafe for him to remain longer there he put his Effects into a Canoe, and retreated with his Brother and an Indian Child their Attendant, to a Place nearer to the Fort at Niagara; he had not been long there until a Party of Indians came to trade with him, to whom (as he underſtoode the Indian language) he overheard his attendant relate his Adventure with their Brethren; as it was not poſſible for him to eſcape, he ordered his Brother to give them as much Rum as they would drink, hoping they would get intoxicated and give him the Opportunity to get off; however they ſeized, bound and poured a Pint of Rum down his Throat, then ſate down to deliberate in what Manner they ſhould put him to Death: his Brother ſupplied them plentifully with Rum, and taking the Advantage of its Operation upon their Intellects, ſecretly conveyed a Knife to him, with it he ſoon diſintangled himſelf and diſpatched four of his Antagoniſts, together with the Urchin who betrayed him; the reſt eſcaped; he then came and delivered himſelf up to the Garriſon at Niagara, from whence a Party of Soldiers went and brought in his Goods.

A Gentleman, who lately came from Cherry Valley, informs us, that coming down the Mohawk River, he fell in with a Company of Indians, who were on their way to complain to the honourable Sir William Johnſon, of the above related Affair: It is hoped, that Sir William's extenſive Influence, among the Indian Nations, will produce an Accomodation, and prevent their making Repriſals upon the defenceleſs Traders and Settlers upon the Frontiers; and, in fine, the unſpeakable Calamities of an Indian War.

On Sunday the 24th Ult. James Lipſeed, a Grenadier of the 26th Regiment (the third Diviſion of which was then on their paſſage from New-York to this City) ſtanding on the Gunwale of the Sloop Beggars-Beniſon, dandling a Child in his Arms, unfortunately fell overboard: the Sloop being under Way, the People could give him no aſſiſtance; he kept the Child above Water and ſwam a great Way; but his Strength failing he let the Child go and immediately ſunk: The Child was ſoon after taken up by a Canoe, and having Blood let, perfectly recovered.

NEW-HAVEN, June 12.

One John Orman, a Labourer, who lodg'd in the Garret of Samuel Thacher's Houſe, at the Long-Wharf, laſt Sunday Evening, went to Bed, (ſaid to be in Liquor) was the next Morning found dead on the Ground, under the Garret Door, which is in the Gable End of the Houſe, and from whence it is ſuppoſed he fell ſome Time in the Night. The Coroner's Inqueſt brought in their Verdict Accidental Death. We are told that he was a Perſon of a Liberal Education, and underſtood many of the learned Languages, but that an unlucky Amour with a Girl in Ireland, (from whence he came) together with an immoderate Love of ſtrong Liquor, was the Occaſion of his being reduced to the ſervile Employment, in which he had for ſome Time before his Death, ſupported himſelf.

The Execution of the Indian, is to be on the Second of September, and not the laſt, as was by Miſinformation mentioned in our laſt.

HARTFORD, June 16.

On the 20th of February laſt, Mr. Baſtion Weatherwax, of Rhynebeck in Dutcheſs County, was cut for the Stone in the Bladder, by Dr. William Jepſon of this Town, and a large Stone extracted; and, in ſeven Weeks from the Operation, was healed up well and ſound.

Laſt Wedneſday the Rev. Mr. John Keep was ſolemnly ordained to the paſtoral Office over the Church and Congregation in Sheffield. The ſolemnity was introduced by Prayer by the Rev. Mr. Strong of New-Marlborough——Rev. Mr. Williams of Springfield preached the Sermon from, Exod. xxv. 8.—Rev. Mr. Farrand, of Canaan made the ordaining Prayer—Rev'd Mr. Bidwell of Tyringham gave the Charge—Rev. Mr. Allen of Pittsfield gave the Right Hand of Fellowſhip, and the Rev. Mr. Collins of Lainſborough made the concluding prayer. The whole performed with great Decency and Order. There was preſent a concourſe of people far the moſt numerous that ever appear'd together on any Occaſion in that Country.

We hear from Leiceſter, That laſt Tueſday two little Boys were at Play in the Houſe of Mr. William Henſhaw of that Town, one of them took up a loaded Gun, and pointed at the others Head, the Gun went off and took off the upper Part of the Scull with the Brains, the Child died Inſtantly. He was only Son to Mr. Henſhaw, about ſix Years old. This ought to be a Caution to all not to leave Guns charged in their Houſes, and eſpecially within the Reach of Children.

†*‡ A. B. came too late for this day.

DARTMOUTH COLLEGE, 21ſt May, 1772.

YESTERDAY the Rev'd Meſſieurs DAVID MACCLUER and LEVI FRISBIE, (both educated by Dr. WHEELOCK) were ordained here to the Work of the Miniſtry, with a ſpecial View to a Miſſion among the Indians at Muſkingum beyond the Ohio about 800 Miles from hence, where GOD in his Providence has opened an encouraging Door for the propagation of the Goſpel of the Redeemer among them.—Which Miſſion is in Conſequence of a Requeſt, and to be carried on in Concert with the honorable Board of Correſpondents in New-Jerſy, who propoſe ſending a Miſſionary and Interpreters in Company with Meſſieurs MACCLURE and FRISBIE.

The Rev'd Mr NOBLE made the introductory Prayer; The Rev'd Mr OLCOTT the Prayer before Sermon; The Rev'd Dr. WHEELOCK preached a pertinent Sermon from Matthew xxiv 45 and gave the Charge; the Rev'd Mr. POWERS made the Prayer before, and the Rev. Mr. BURROUGHS after the Charge; and the Rev'd Mr. WELMAN gave the right Hand of Fellowſhip.

The Solemnity which was performed with Decency and Propriety, was concluded with an Anthem, ſung by the Students, ſuitable to the Occaſion.

 In our laſt we informed the Public that the General Aſſembly in their laſt Seſſion, had granted the notorious John Brown under Sentence of Death in Litchfield Goal a new Tryal, which is a Miſtake, occaſioned by Miſ-information—The Execution of the Sentence being only put off till Wedneſday the ſecond Day of December next.

John Cable,
BAKER from GERMANY,

HEREBY informs the Public, that he is (in a ſhort Time) going to New York where he intends to Purchaſe a conſiderable Quantity of Flower for the Purpoſe of ſupplying his Cuſtomers as uſual. And as his undertaking requires CASH, he Deſires all Perſons indebted to him, to make Immediate Payment.

The Subſcriber ſtill carries on the Buſineſs of Chaiſe and Chair making in all Branches, near the North Meeting Houſe, where any Gentlemen may have their Work done in the beſt and neateſt Manner. And as he purpoſes to have a Stage Coach going from this Place to Boſton every Fortnight during the Summer, will be able to procure his Trimmings, &c. Cheaper than they can be here, and by that Means able to ſell his Carriages much lower than heretofore.—He hath now on Hand ſundry Carriages of different Kind and a Set of Blackſmith Tools which he will ſell very Cheap.

The Frailty of HUMAN LIFE.

All Men think all Men mortal, but themſelves,
YOUNG.

FOND Man to deem thyſelf Immortal go and View,
The burſting Bubble and the fleeting Dew,
Behold the Smoke in curling Volumes riſe,
The humid Fog inveloping the Skies!
See the ſwift Eagle cut the liquid Air,
And the red Lightning Flaſh the ſudden glare;
Hear the fierce Whirlwind ſcouring o'er the Fields,
Or murmuring Echo bound along the Hills;
The Bubble breaks, Dew melts beneath the Sun,
Vaniſh the Smoke, the humid Fog is gone.
Quick as our Thought the Eagle leaves our ſight,
More quick the ruddy Lightning's ceaſe their Light,
The Whirlwind dies, the murmering Echo's fall,
Weak, mortal Life, is frailer than them all.

[JUNE. M.DCC.LXXII.] NUMBER 391

THE CONNECTICUT COURANT.

Containing the freſheſt and moſt important Advices, both Foreign and Domeſtic.

From TUESDAY, JUNE 16, to TUESDAY, JUNE 23, 1772.

LONDON, April 13.

A Correſpondent aſſures us, if the Parliament would have allowed the importation of grain, &c. from the American Colonies, that an eminent Merchant in the City would have engaged to have imported 800 000 buſhels only, into the Port of London, and that the returns thereof ſhould be in goods the product of this kingdom.

Foote being lately in company with a Scotch Gentleman, where Dr. Cadogan's treatiſe on the gout was the ſubject, "Yes, yes," ſays the Scotchman, "Engliſhmen eat more ſolids than any other people upon earth; why, even ſo near home as Scotland, they are called pale puddings." "It may be ſo," replied the wit, "but I think your countrymen much better entitled to that epithet than we are, for I'll be h——d, if they have not a finger in every Pye."

Mr. Moſſop, the celebrated Tragedian, who was bred in the Univerſity of Dublin, has, we hear, thoughts of entering into Holy Orders, as the profeſſion he has hitherto follo[illegible] attended only by miſfortune.

April 14. Advices lately from Geneva ſay, that Voltaire is dead, and has bequeathed legacies to ſeveral eminent perſons, as Rouſſeau, Hume, D'Arpour, D'Alembert, and to his ſervants annuities, and the remainder to the congregation De propaganda fide.

April 17. His Majeſty attended yeſterday to the Houſe of Peers by his Grace the Duke of Ancaſter and the Earl of Denbigh, when the Royal Aſſent was given to fifty public and private Bills.

On Wedneſday was reported to the Houſe of Commons, the following Reſolutions from the Committee appointed to conſider of the preſent ſtate of the Corn Trade, viz. That the Importation of Wheat and Wheat Flour, Rye and Rye Meal, into this kingdom, be admitted, for a limited time, free of duty.

That the Importation of Rice, from any of his Majeſty's colonies in America, into Great Britain, be admitted, for a limitted time, free of duty.

Upon which a Bill was ordered to be brought in upon the ſaid reſolutions.

Sir Fletcher Norton, highly to his credit, is, we hear, very anxious for tracing the miſeries of the Eaſt to their fountain head.

The Houſe of Peers are adjourned to Thurſday the 30th inſt and the Houſe of Commons to Tueſday the 28th inſt.

The French Ambaſſador was on Wedneſday at St. James's. It is reported that he has lately received advices, which contain freſh and ſtrong aſſurances from the King his maſter of the pacific inclinations of that Monarch and his ſteady reſolution to adopt no meaſures againſt his Britannic Majeſty, which may tend to interrupt the mutual peace of the two kingdoms.

Lord Holland, it is ſaid, will ſpeedily be appointed Preſident of the Council, in the room of Lord Gower, who goes to Ireland in the room of Lord Townſend, who comes over to preſide at the Ordnance Board of this kingdom.

It is now currently reported that Sir William Young, Bart, Governor of Dominica, will be created a Peer of Ireland, and get the firſt vacant Red Ribbon after his return to England, which is ſoon expected; as alſo, that he will be promoted to ſome conſiderable employment in the State, as a reward for his great and diſintereſted ſervices in the Weſt Indies.

We hear that the intrepid Mr. Stephen, by the recommendation of his Countryman Lord Mansfield, notwithſtanding their political differences, is to go over to Denmark, to demand a reſtitution of that amiable Queen, together with her fortune. His figure and ſtern countenance may have ſome effect on the timid, cowardly Danes.

It is ſaid the plan for ſetting up Scripture as the only Rule of Faith is favoured only by three Right Reverend Divines, but, notwithſtanding their great inferiority of numbers on the Bench, the Clerical Petitioners have great hopes, that in the long run, Scripture will carry it againſt the Thirty nine Articles.

On Tueſday evening the celebrated and facetious Ned Shuter, attended by ſeveral of Lord Mansfield's ſervants, arrived in perfect health at the King's Bench Priſon. He appears highly pleaſed with the different ſcenes that preſent themſelves to his view, enters with great ſpirit into the genius of the Inhabitants, and, accompanied by his bottle and his favourite JACK ASS, is happy himſelf, and contributes to promote chearfulneſs amongſt his drooping Fellow Sufferers.

April 18. We are aſſured that there is not the leaſt Foundation for the Report of Col. Keith being ordered to leave Copenhagen.

Notwithſtanding France has long ſince oſtenſibly abandoned the Family of the Pretender, it is aſſerted, that the late marriage of the Chevalier St. George is the fabrication of the French court; and that the purpoſes of its originating there will ſhew themſelves in a few months, as ſoon as ſome matters can be previouſly ſettled with the court of Madrid.

In the county of Suffolk as well as Eſſex the poor have committed many outrages in regard to the high price of the neceſſaries of life. The Magiſtrates in Ipſwich have had all the locks taken of the muſkets belonging to the militia, as the mob it is ſaid, intended to have ſeized upon them, in caſe they had been attacked by a military force; but as the legiſlature have taken meaſures to reduce the price of proviſions, it is hoped theſe riotous proceedings will ſoon be at an end.

The price of Suffolk butter has fallen 10s. in the firkin within a week paſt.

There are, at this time, 10 000 tons of North country butter unſold in London.

Laſt week the bellman of Belford in Northumberland gave the following notice, verbatim: "Loſt where it was dropt, yeſterday afternoon 'tween nine and ten o'clock at night, 'twixt Warnford and this town, an empty poke with a cheeſe in it.——The poke was marked I. D. but the letters are wore out. Any perſon or perſons having found the ſame, ſhall be handſomely rewarded for returning them to the owner.—The man who loſt it never miſs'd it till it was gone."

Lord Mansfield, being aſked lately how he reliſhed literary abuſe, and particularly what he thought of Junius's attacks upon his character, laughingly replied, "I am glad that the Patriots have got ſomething to pleaſe them, and if they only leave the Government of the Nation to the King's friends, we ſhall never diſpute with them about the Government of the News-papers."

The Bill for the further Relief of his Majeſty's Proteſtant Subjects, diſſenting from the Church of England, has had a ſecond Reading in the Houſe of Commons. The only Qualifications required in this Bill from diſſenting Miniſters, are, that they ſhall take the cuſtomary Oaths of Alegiance, ſubſcribe the Declaration againſt Popery, and alſo a Profeſſion that they believe the Scriptures of the Old and New Teſtament to contain the Mind and Will of God, and that they receive them as the Rules of Faith and Practice. In order to prevent Perſons from fraudulently qualifying themſelves as diſſenting Miniſters, every Perſon offending ſhall produce a Teſtimonial ſigned by ſome Proteſtant diſſenting Miniſters, to the Juſtices of the General Seſſions, purporting that he is a Man of a good Moral and Chriſtian Character, and they are willing to receive him as a diſſenting Miniſter. The ſame Qualifications will entitle a Man to teach or inſtruct Youth in the Capacity of a public Tutor or Schoolmaſter. If this Bill ſhould paſs, it is hoped that by removing every Obſtacle which may affect tender Conſciences all Contentions and Strife may ceaſe, and nothing but mutual Forbearance, Toleration, and Chriſtian Goodwill prevail.

But ſome Writers in the public Prints ſay, That it is diſcovered that this ſplendid Shew of granting further Liberty to Diſſenters, and this ſpecious Indulgence to them is intended to be followed by the Eſtabliſhment of a Biſhop in America.

The London Papers ſay That there is a great Dearth of political Subjects now in England.

EUROPEAN INTELLIGENCE.

LONDON, April 13.

The petition that was preſented from the City of London on Tueſday laſt, for an act to allow the importation of corn, &c from the American colonies, was ordered to lie on the table; as were alſo all the other petitions from other parts of the kingdom; from which it is inferred, that the importation will not be allowed this ſeſſions.

There are no leſs than twenty ſix appeals now waiting to be heard by the Houſe of Lords, five of which are againſt decrees of the preſent Chancellor.

The act lately ſigned by his Majeſty, ſaid to be an act to take off one ſhilling per lb. on all black and ſinglo teas, is a miſtake, it ſhould have been ſaid an act to explain and amend an act for taking off one ſhilling per lb. on all black and ſinglo teas, which expires on the 5th of July next, at which time the ſhilling per lb. will be again laid on.

An account of the difference between Britiſh and Iriſh pay of the 64th and 65th regiments of foot, ſerving in the year 1768 is laid before the Houſe of Commons.

COPENHAGEN, (Denmark) March 28. The Attorney General Uhldall, who is appointed to Act for the Qu[illegible] and defend her cauſe, has already had ſe[illegible] conferences with her Majeſty at Cronenbourg. We are informed, that her Majeſty is greatly indiſpoſed, and that ſhe has been twice blooded. The Queen Dowager is entirely recovered from the hurt ſhe met with in her leg.

VIENNA, (Germany) March 28 The Court has ſent to the Porte, the laſt propoſals of Ruſſia, without which that power will not conſent to a treaty of peace, viz. 1 that Crimea ſhall be independent. 2 That the Empreſs ſhall remain in poſſeſſion of Aſoph, with liberty of trade and navigation on the Black Sea. 3. That all the provinces conquered by the Ruſſian arms during the war ſhall be reſtored to the Grand Signor.

LONDON, April 14. The Engliſh maſters and pilots of the Ruſſian ſquadron, who went from England under the command of Rear Admiral Elphinſtone, and are returned, have not been able to obtain their wages.

We are authoriſed to aſſure the public that an experiment is ſhortly to be made of a machine invented by Dr. Dominiceti, of Chelſea by which he engages to prove that proviſions may be dreſſed for one thouſand perſons in three hours time, with leſs fire than is commonly uſed in a parlour grate, and all the various methods of cookery. It is ſaid to be conſtructed on the moſt ſimple principle and to be one of the moſt ingenious inventions ever ſeen in this kingdom.

April 15. We hear the Secretaryſhip of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland has been lately, more than once, hinted to Mr. Burke which he unheſitatingly refuſed, except Lord Rockingham was to be the Viceroy.

The Ducheſs of Cumberland, it is ſaid, ſupports the dignity of her ſtation, having all ceremonies performed on the knee, and her Gentlemen holding the privy purſe behind her.

Upon the eſtate of a nobleman in adminiſtration ſeveral ſmall veſſels attend every night to convey ſheep to the coaſt of France.

A correſpondent recommends the following as a ſhort way to reduce the price of proviſions: hang the engroſſers, drown the ſaleſmen, burn the carcaſe butchers, tranſport the mealmen, put the bakers in the pillory, impriſon the butter factors, and compel every farmer to bring his whole ſtock of grain to market, within ſix months after it is threſhed.

The Pretender was married the 28th of laſt month at St. Germain's, in France, by Proxy, to a Princeſs of Stolberg, who ſet off immediately for Italy to join him.

Extract of a letter from the Counteſs of M—n now reſiding at Paris, to her friend in Scotland.

" A number of people of rank and faſhion in this capital have been miſſing from time to time; ſome of them were found in the river, from which it was concluded that they had made away with themſelves. However one night as a gentleman was walking along the ſtreets, he was accoſted as he imagined, by a woman of the town; ſhe conducted him to her lodgings; entering the outer door, ſhe locked it, and put the key in her pocket; after which ſhe led him through ſeveral entries uſing the ſame ceremony at each; arriving at laſt at her chamber, ſhe left him on purpoſe to fetch wine or other cordial; in her abſence he began to reconnoitre the room, and peeping into a cloſet diſcovered two dead men who he ſuppoſed had been newly deprived of life. You may imagine what his feelings were on ſuch an occaſion; whatever they were, they did not bereave him of a noble preſence of mind, which ſuggeſted to him the only expedient that in all probability could have ſaved him. At her return he told her, that he tho't a ſmall collation would be proper for him before he went to bed, for he ſtood much in need of ſomething to eat, and, if ſhe pleaſed, he would go to a neighbouring tavern, and give orders concerning it: ſhe oppoſed his going; he ſtill inſiſted, and added, that ſhe need not be afraid of his leaving her, to convince her that he had no ſuch intention, he would let his watch and purſe remain until his return; and, throwing them upon the table, ſhe permitted him to walk off; he ſoon returned with a party of men, and, upon ſearching the houſe, two ruffians were with arms hid in a large cheſt, who being apprehended, and put to the torture, confeſſed that they had robbed and murdered all that were miſſing; that the two men who were found in the cloſet, were ſo lately murdered, that they had no time to conceal them; and that the gentleman who made the diſcovery would alſo have been made away with, if he had ſtaid a few minutes longer in the houſe."

April 16. On Friday died, at Streatham, Elizabeth Ruſſel, aged 108. Upon ſtripping the body of the deceaſed, to the great ſurprize of the beholders, the characteriſtics of manhood were found in goodly proportion.——

——The manner of the deceaſed's life furniſhes ſtrong hints for what purpoſe the feminine appearance was aſſumed. Fortune telling was the chief buſineſs of this hic vel hæc homo.

Extract of a Letter from the Hague, April 10.

" According to the laſt advices from Copenhagen ſentence of death will ſoon be pronounced againſt the Counts de Struenſee & de Brandt, Counſellor Struenſee, the Count's Brother, Colonel Falkenſchild, and the Profeſſor Berger. These advices add, that Colonel Keith, the Britiſh Miniſter, having very little hopes of an accommodation between the King and Queen, waited only for an anſwer to ſome diſpatches to return to England.

April 17. The bill for enforcing the payment of tythes from the people called Quakers, is deferred till the 29th inſtant.

When the diſſenting miniſters lately waited upon Lord North at the Treaſury, for the Regium Donum, the annual royal bounty of two thouſand pounds for the relief of their clergy, Lord North offered on his part voluntarily on their part unſolicited, a repeal of their ſubſcription. This offer occaſioned a meeting at their library in Red croſs ſtreet, where it was not the moſt cordially received, it being obſerved, that government never granted any favour to Diſſenters, without ſome ſecret view to their own intereſt and emolument, leſt alſo ſuch favour ſhould prove, in any manner, injurious to the eſtabliſhed Church, with the friends of whom they lived in harmony and peace. This compliment of Lord North to the Diſſenters will it is thought, be a powerful and leading argument next winter for the repeal of the Thirty nine Articles; by which refined ſtroke of policy the partition wall between the Church and Meeting will be thrown down.

Notwithſtanding the many inſults that have been offered to the Britiſh nation, in different parts of the Globe, a war ſeems to be as far off as ever.

A correſpondent ſays, that the following taxes are paid for bread; a land tax on the ground the wheat grows on, a land-tax on the ground the wood grows on it is backed with, a tax on the very water it is made with, a tax on the yeaſt it is worked with a tax on the ſalt uſed in it, beſides a reaſonable allowance the baker hath, or ought to have, for houſe-keeping being doubled. For beer he ſays are paid the following taxes; a land tax on the ground the barley grows on, a land tax on the ground the hop grows on, a tax on the water it is brewed with, 3 different taxes laid on malt at three different uſes, 3 different taxes on the coals it is boiled with, a tax on the copper it is boiled in, 2 different taxes on the ſtaves the barrels are made of to put it in, a tax on the hoops the ſtaves are bound in, a tax on the yeaſt it is worked with, a tax on the candles the brewers ſervants uſe in brewing, 3 different taxes laid on the publican at three different times for his licence to ſell and 2 taxes for the tankard we drink out of; in all 26.

From Scotland we learn that ſeveral villages are in neceſſity and diſtreſs, having neither cheeſe, butter, corn, nor fiſh.

Letters received by the laſt Dutch Mail remark, that his Britannic Majeſty had actually ordered all the Electoral Troops in Hanover to aſſemble immediately at Hamburg. This advice was received from the River Elbe, on the 27th of laſt month; and as the town of Hamburg is ſituated ſo that a few thouſand troops quartered there and in its neighbourhood, may, with great facility, take poſſeſſion of all his Daniſh Majeſty's dominions in Germany, it is generally conjectured that the Elector of Hanover will avail himſelf of the troubles reigning at preſent in Copenhagen, to ſeize and make himſelf maſter of ſuch Daniſh dominions as may lie contiguous to the Electoral Dominions of Hanover.

It is beyond a doubt, that Prince Maſſerano, Ambaſſador from the King of Spain, has, on the part of his Royal Maſter, moſt ſtrongly remonſtrated againſt any Britiſh ſhips of war entering the South Seas, on the ſcore of making diſcoveries in that part of the globe; and has even gone ſo far as to declare, that after ſo juſt and amicable a remonſtrance, the King of Spain will be under the abſolute neceſſity of vindicating his own Sovereign rights to thoſe ſeas, and conſequently ſhall give orders to ſeize all ſhips of war that ſhall be found making diſcoveries in or through the South Seas, without a ſpecial licence from the Crown of Spain. Notwithſtanding this hectoring, bluſtering, Quixotic language, Captains Cook & Fourneaux have received their final orders for ſailing, and moſt probably will meet with a warm reception from the Spaniards after they ſhall have paſſed the Streights of Magellan. Spain, it is known, has for this twelvemonth paſt, had a ſtrong and almoſt indubitable propenſity to go to war with Great Britain; and that event moſt certainly would have happened many months ago had it not been for the debility of France; doubtleſs the King of Spain cannot pitch upon a fairer opportunity than what has been offered him by the Engliſh nation.

The bill brought into the Houſe of Commons for the further relief of his Majeſty's Proteſtant ſubjects, diſſenting from the church of England, diſpences we are told with that part of the act made in the firſt year of William and Mary, which requires ſubſcription to ſundry articles, mentioned in the ſtatute, made in the thirteenth year of Elizabeth.——

Briſtol, April 16. We are informed that Britain, who is in our goal to take his trial at the next aſſize for forgery, ſtill perſiſts in his being a principal in ſetting Portſmouth Dock on fire, and that he has ſufficient materials at his command to make a full diſcovery of the ſame.

April 18. Thurſday laſt an expreſs was ſent to the War office from Chelmsford for a military aid to protect the proviſion carts travelling to the market, and the mills in that county, from the outrages of the populace, who have committed great exceſſes not only there, but in many parts of the kingdom.

BOSTON, June 18.

On Saturday the 6th Inſtant the Houſe of Repreſentatives appointed a Committee to wait on His Excellency the Governor with the following Meſſage, and on Tueſday delivered the ſame

May it pleaſe your Excellency,

THE Houſe of Repreſentatives beg leave to acquaint your Excellency that a motion was made on the firſt Friday of this ſeſſion, to aſſign a time for the conſideration of a ſuitable Grant for the ſupport of his Majeſty's Governor of the province But it being ſuggeſted to the Houſe that your Excellency was not pleaſed the laſt year to give your conſent to a bill which paſſed both Houſes of Aſſembly in their firſt ſeſſ[illegible] granting the ſum of Thirteen Hundred Pounds for the ſupport of your Excellency, the Houſe thought proper to direct the attendance of the Secretary to give information touching this matter; who expreſsly ſaid that your Excellency did not give your conſent to ſaid bill.

This Houſe is wholly at a loſs to account for that meaſure, unleſs proviſion is made for the ſupport of your Excellency, otherwiſe than by the Grants and Acts of the General Aſſembly of the Province.

By the Royal Charter it is incumbent upon the General Aſſembly to make adequate proviſion for the ſupport of his Majeſty's government of this province and every act for the making ſuch proviſion, is to be originated by the Houſe of Repreſentatives.

The ſupport of his Majeſty's Governor of the province is an important part of the ſupport of his Majeſty's government here.

If proviſion is made for the ſupport of your Excellency otherwiſe than by the Grants and Acts of the General Aſſembly, it is abſolutely requiſite that this Houſe ſhould be acquainted with it. They therefore pray that your Excellency would be pleaſed to inform them, Whether proviſion is made for the ſupport of your Excellency as Governor of this Province, in any way and manner other than has been heretofore uſed and practiſed, to wit, by the grants and acts of the General Aſſembly; and if it is ſo, in what way and manner that proviſion is made.

The GOVERNOR's Anſwer.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives,

BY inſpecting the Journal of the Proceedings of the Houſe of Repreſentatives in April 1771, you will find that, in Anſwer to a Meſſage from that Houſe, I then obſerved that his Majeſty had been enabled, by an Act of Parliament, to make a certain and adequate Proviſion for the ſupport of the Civil Government in the Colonies as his Majeſty ſhall judge neceſſary.

I am now able to acquaint you that his Majeſty has been graciouſly pleaſed to make Proviſion for my Support in the Station in which he has thought fit to place me, and, as this is judged to be an adequate Support, I muſt conclude it cannot be his Majeſty's Pleaſure that, without his ſpecial Permiſſion, which has not yet been ſignified to me, I ſhould accept of any Grant from the Province in Conſideration of the ordinary Services of Government done or to be done by me.

T. Hutchinſon.

Council Chamber, Cambridge, June 13, 1772.

Extract from the Minutes of Council for the Province of the Maſſachuſetts-Bay.

At a COUNCIL held at the Council-Chamber in Cambridge, June 13th, 1772.

HIS Excellency acquainted the Board that he was reſtrained from removing the General Court to Boſton whilſt the Aſſembly continued to diſpute the Authority by which he was directed to cauſe it to be held in any place except Boſton: And laid before them the Signification of his Majeſty's Pleaſure made to him by one of his Majeſty's principal Secretaries of State, together with his Speech to the two Houſes, on the ſeveral Meſſages which had paſſed between him and them the preſent Seſſion, and required the Opinion and Advice of the Council upon their Oaths as Councellors, whether conſiſtent with this Signification of his Majeſty's Pleaſure to him he may now remove the Court to Boſton: The Council thereupon gave their Opinion and Advice unanimouſly in the Affirmative.

A true Copy, atteſt. Tho. Flucker, Secr.

His Excellency then directed the Secretary to acquaint both Houſes reſpectively that it was his Pleaſure the Great and General Court be adjourned to Tueſday next, then to meet at the Court Houſe in Boſton, which was done accordingly.

Laſt Week Felix Meigs, of Connecticut, was committed to Goal for paſſing ſeveral Counterfeit 3l. Bills of the laſt Emiſſion of our Currency; He has been examined & 'tis ſtrongly ſuſpected he is an Accomplice of Hooker Smith's, now confined in Dutcheſs County Goal for the like Crime.

HARTFORD, June 23.

On the 11th inſt. the naked body of a man who appear'd to be a foreigner, of about 30 years of age was found, murdered, in Steck bridge about a mile diſtant from Col. Willams's iron works, and a few rods from the road.—— His teeth were all ſtanding in his head, his fleſh almoſt eat off his body, his bowels almoſt conſumed, and his ſcull bone broke over one of his eyes. A brown ſurtout, a duroy waiſtcoat, a double breaſted ditto, and a pair of mittens marked round the wriſt, 1771 I. M. were found about four rods from the body, very bloody; an ax was alſo found a few rods from the cloaths, which was very bloody, and a few hairs were found on it, which were exactly like the hair on the head of the body. The coroner's inqueſt brought in their verdict, Wilful Murder!

The perſon who is ſuppoſed to have committed the above murder, was ſeen with him in New-Canaan and Richmond the latter part of May laſt; he had with him a ſmall pack, tied up in a handkerchief, which he carried hanging down his back on the above ax helve. He is a large bodied man, with ſandy colour'd hair, and is ſuppoſed to be a High Dutchman.—The deceaſed had a watch in his pocket, and ſilver buckles in his ſhoes.

The following few Paragraphs were brought by the Halifax Packet, arrived at New-York, and a Maſt Ship arrived at Caſco Bay, from London, viz.

LONDON, April 9

A letter from Warſaw, dated March 31, brought by yeſterday's Holland mail, concludes thus:—" This moment advice is arrived, that Ruſſia and the Porte have agreed to a ceſſation of arms."

April 18. Yeſterday the Houſe of Lords broke up at three o'clock, & adjourned till Thurſday ſ'ennight.

April 20. On Friday ſome diſpatches were received at St. James's, from the Electorate of Hanover, ſaid to contain ſome important intelligence, relative to the operations of the Pruſſian and Imperial Monarchs. The following are the powers who, in all probability will be involved in a war, ſhould our Court take ſo raſh a ſtep as to ſend a fleet to the Baltic, France and of courſe Spain & Naples, Pruſſia, Sweden, if not the Emperor and Empire, beſides the principals.

They write from Paris, that the Duke of Fitz James, an Officer in the French ſervice, acted as proxy there for the Chevalier Edward Stuart, in his late marriage with the Princeſs of Stolberg; and that there were rejoicings for three whole days in that capital on the account. Does not this augur ſomething hatching againſt Great-Britain?

It is ſaid, that a certain great perſonage in the north, was threatened with the torture to induce her to ſign the confeſſion extorted from Struenſee.

The public Prints contain, Accounts of the Scarcity of Proviſions in many Parts of England; the Poor being in great Diſtreſs for the Means of Subſiſtance.—At Deal it is ſaid, that even the Game which uſed to be brought from France and Flanders, is entirely ſtopped, as the Inhabitants of thoſe Countries are alſo in great want.—At Northampton, a hind Quarter of Mutton has not been to be purchaſed for ſome Months paſt, they being all ſent to London. In a ſmall Town within ten Miles of London, all the Sheeps Plucks being bought up by a Gentleman for his Cats and a Lady for her Dogs, ſo that the Poor of that Place cannot get ſo much as a Bit of Sheeps Liver or Lights; much leſs will theſe humane People ſuffer their Animals to be defrauded of their Hearts—At Sunderland, ſeveral Gentlemen, made a Viſitation to the different Diſtricts of that Town: In proſecuting this work, they became Witneſſes of ſuch Scenes of human Woe as can ſcarcely be ſuppoſed to exiſt in a Chriſtian Country. —Many Families had for ſome time ſubſiſted on Bran and Bullocks Blood mixed together, and ſome for want of Bran ſufficient, added a little Saw-duſt to their ſcanty Pittance, and it was thought that had it not been for this timely Viſit many ſcores would literally have periſhed for want, as the induſtrious Poor were unemployed, owing to all the Ships being laden, and prevented by contrary Wind from proceeding on their reſpective Voyages.

Mr. WATSON,

MR. Amicus Bonorum, &c is right in ſaying " The quotation from Dr Mather is ſomewhat ambiguous and defective;" for inſtead of poſſible (line 13) ſhould have been people: and inſtead of ſociety (line 21) ſecurity. Theſe were errors of the printer or tranſcriber, not of the Doctor. Any that preſerve the papers for future uſe are deſired to correct as above. I am in no temper for a political diſpute with a gentleman of ſuch vaſt erudition who can quote from the learned Wollaſton, the great Mr. Lock, the Baron Monteſquieu the elegant Judge Blackſtone, and other learned writers, to prove, that " the end of ſociety is the common welfare," that " laws are deſigned for the good of the people" and " the end of magiſtracy is the good of ſociety." However, I hope there is nothing in the above mentioned quotation which appears to him inconſiſtent with theſe maxims. I converſe but little with political writers; but rather read practical pieces upon religion, and eſpecially the holy ſcriptures; from which I have collected ſome ſuch maxims. It is not fit to ſay to a King thou art wicked. Thou ſhalt not revile the Gods, nor curſe the ruler of thy people (which Paul applies to himſelf in reference even to an unrighteous, perſecuting ruler) Fear God and honor the King. Obey magiſtrates. Speak evil of no man &c. I was ſhocked at ſome paſſages in the piece entitled the Scotchman in your paper of May 5 ſuch as " Ty——t, obſtinacy of an un——l monarch, G——the t——, G—— was bred a Scot, and imbibed the curſed principles of the Stuarts, &c" I thought the paragraph from the ſermon of the famous Mather might be worth people's reading. I am in ſentiment ſtill with the German divine, That if people would cenſure their rulers leſs, and pray for them more, it would be better for both.

I will venture to ſubjoin another maxim, that government is the greateſt ſecurity of freedom.

Your's, A. B.

POETS CORNER.

A NEW SONG, of OLD TIMES.

WITH Swords on their Thighs the bold
Yeomen are ſeen,
For their Country they arm, their Religion and Queen;
How glorious their Ardour to lay down their Lives,
In Defence of their Freedom, their Children, and Wives!
Ye Tyrants, ye know not what Liberty yields,
How ſhe guards all our Stores and protects all our Fields;
As Hebe ſhe's fair, and as Hercules ſtrong,
She's the Queen of our Mirth, and the Joy of our Song.
To Liberty raiſe then the high cheerful Strain,
Fill the Goblets around to the Lords of the Main;
Eliza is Queen, and her brave loyal Band,
Shall drive each Invader far out of the Land.

The Riſe and Fall of RUFINUS: Extract from a late Author.

RUFINUS was a native of Gaul, but ſo obſcure, that none of the Hiſtorians have been able to deduce his Pedigree; and we find little mention of him, till he procured a conſiderable Employment under Theodoſius the Great; by what Ways and Means he was advanced into that Poſt, we are not told with any Certainty: Perhaps they were too flagrant to be named. However that be, he at laſt became Premier Miniſter, and ſole Favourite.

His Perſon was tall and well made; his Addreſs ſmooth and affable; his Converſation ſubtle & inſinuating; which fitted him wonderfully for the intrigues of a Court. But His Elevation quite turn'd his Head; and inſtead of making a right Uſe of it, by conducting himſelf with Gratitude and Acknowlegement to the Perſons, who rais'd him with Regard and Decency to his Superiors; he grew treacherous to the one, and inſolent to the others. He began to forget his Original; to neglect his old Friends; to talk loudly of his Services and Deſerts; and to flatter his Ambition and Avarice with unbounded Proſpects.

In order to accompliſh his Deſigns, he found it neceſſary to remove Men of Worth and Probity from the Court. Men above the Temptation of Money, who ſerved their Country and Prince without mean and ſordid Views, were the great Objects of his Rage. Fatianus and Proculus, Perſons of high Rank and conſiderable Families, were Eye ſores to him. Their juſt and impartial Behaviour in their Reſpective Stations was a conſtant Reflection on his evil Adminiſtration. He therefore took Care to miſrepreſent them to the Emperor, and by falſe accuſations accompliſhed their Ruin, to the great Detriment of the Publick; who, when depriv ed of them loſt a Patriot in the One, and a General in the Other.

But his Malice was not confined to ſingle Perſons. He was the Adviſer of the moſt arbitrary Meaſures, and the Promoter of Schemes moſt detrimental to the Publick; ſuch as were dangerous even to his Maſter Theodoſius, by expoſing him to a general Odium. He exerciſed at large an unlimited Power over the Nobility and Populace, who were now both miſerably degenerated. The Dignity of the Patrician Order was in a great Meaſure extinguiſhed. The Rights and Privileges of the Plebeians were groſly invaded. The Laws of the twelve Tables, the Magna Charta of the Romans, were no longer held ſacred, but openly and ſcandalouſly violated. The Conſtitution, and even the Roman Name itſelf was in danger of being totally aboliſhed.

The Senate, that is the Majority of it, was become little better than a Collection or Aſſembly of Penſioners, Preferment Hunters, Boy Politicians and Court Slaves; who, being veſted of their original Senatorian Authority, had loſt all Senſe of Juſtice, all Freedom of Voting, all that Force of Eloquence, and that Spirit of Liberty, which animated the old Romans, and made them the Terror of arbitrary Power. No Proceedings were too violent, no Decrees too unjuſt, no Reſolutions too abſurd, no Actions, no Managements too profligate for them, when they were executing the Commands of their great Lord and Maſter Rufinus. Tiberius had not more Reaſon to laugh at the baſe Compliances of the Senate in his Time, when he cried out, O Homines ad Servitutem paratos! O Beaſts of Burthen! than Rufinus had at the ſlaviſh Condeſcenſion of this.

Nor was the Eccleſiaſtical Policy leſs corrupt than the Civil; for tho' the Church had at this Time a St. Ambroſe, and ſome few more Fathers, both in the Eaſt and Weſt, who were Champions for her; yet moſt of her chief Paſtors apply'd their Minds ſolely to temporal Concerns, and ſacrific'd the Duties of their Function to the ſordid Views of worldly Intereſt.

Thus Rufinus every where is oppoſed, every where prevail'd. All Preferments, Eccleſiaſtical, Civil, and Military, were at his Diſpoſal; and even the Determinations of private Property began to partake of the general Corruptions. No private Law ſuit between Man and Man could be carried on without exorbitant Expence, and in all State-Proſecutions there, hardly remain'd the outward Appearance of Juſtice. He had Informers and Evidences in conſtant Pay, who were inſtructed to ſwear any Thing, and accuſe any Body; by which Means he ſcreen'd himſelf from the juſt Reſentment of thoſe, who ſought to redreſs the Injuries of the Publick. In a Word, his whole Adminiſtration was one continued Scene of Rapine; and tho' it laſted but a few Years, he had by his Grants from Arcadius (who ſucceeded Theodoſius, and by whom he was continued in Employment) with his Extortions from the People, heap'd together an immeaſurable Maſs of Wealth.

But this inſatiable Avarice and abominable Oppreſſion could not be borne for ever. His Power began viſibly to decline. The People freely arraigned his Miſmanagements, expoſed his Corruptions, and called aloud for reſtitution and Juſtice. Some uttered bold Speeches in publick Aſſemblies; others wrote invectives againſt him; and even his own miniſterial Slaves defended him with leſs zeal and Alacrity than uſual.

All this Rufinus obſerved with a ſtrict and watchful Eye. He was ſo conſcious of his own Guilt, that he apprehended every Thing from a Party, which was now gaining Ground upon him every Day: a Party, which was not only ſuperior to his own in Number, but much more conſiderable in Eſteem; being compoſed of Men of the firſt Rank, the largeſt Properties and the greateſt Abilities; who could not, without Horror, reflect on the Conſequences of and exhauſted Treaſury and an endanger'd Conſtitution; who preſerved the Principles of Liberty, Honour, and Loyalty, in the worſt of Times; even under his moſt deteſtable Miniſtry.

In Order therefore to ſtem the Torrent of popular Hatred, he made a ſecret League with the barbarous Nations, who were then over-running Europe, and threw himſelf as his laſt Reſort into the Arms of Alaric the Goth.

But this Behaviour only rous'd the Indignation of his Oppoſers. The Meaſure of his Iniquity was now full. This laſt, treacherous Step incens'd the Multitude againſt him beyond all Bounds. They could not contain themſelves any longer; but reſolved to deliver and revenge themſelves on ſuch a Monſter; which they did by tearing him into a thouſand Pieces.

Thus fell the infamous Rufinus a Sacrifice to popular Rage; and tho' his Death was violent, yet was it natural; for however wiſe Men may condemn ſuch extrajudicial Puniſhments, it is impoſſible to reſtrain the Fury of the People, when they find themſelves grievouſly oppreſſed, and depriv'd of all other Means of Relief.

I ſhall conclude (ſays the Letter Writer) this little Piece of Hiſtory with obſerving, that tho' it does not appear exactly parallel, in every Circumſtance, to the character of any one Man now living; yet if your Readers will give themſelves the Trouble to look round the World, it is not impoſſible that they may ſome where or other find a Perſon in Power, who bears a near Reſemblance to it, in many Particulars.

The art of Modren Converſation.

From a late MAGAZINE.

THE Topicks of Modern Converſation turn generally on what is univerſally known, or what is ſcarce known at all; that is, the Diverſions of the Town, or the private Scandal of it; for ſuch Subjects require neither much Knowledge nor much Truth; hence it is that the pretty fellows of the Town have ſomething to ſay, and the Ladies an Opportunity to pour out that Flow of Eloquence which is ſo natural to them: And how happy is it that theſe Subjects ſhould be the Mode for otherwiſe the fineſt Aſſemblies in this Nation would be little better than a ſilent Meeting; the Coquette would loſe her pretty ſmart Liſp, or dear affected Drawl, the Prude her cruel Pleaſure of murthering reputations, and the Audious Beau muſt give up the Art of opening and cloſing his Lips gracefully to a Pack of uncouth, unpoliſh'd Fellows, who think their Mouths were made only to ſpeak, without that graceful Grin, ſo neceſſary for the Diſcovery of the Teeth and enlivening Converſation.

To lay a Foundation for this Science of modern Converſation I would prohibit all Reading, except modren Plays and Pamphlets, which may be allow'd, as they will not give too ſtrong a Tincture of Wit & good Senſe. To make Amends for the Prohibition of Books, I earneſtly recommended the Learned the Dancing Maſters of this Metropolis, who, with their judicious Allies the Taylors and Mantuamakers, will perfect their Pupils in the Art of Dreſs; two very important Points, which are introductory to the Art of Behaviour, and Art of Converſation.

A Diamond Ring is the moſt neceſſary Qualification, in my Opinion, for a Polite Orator: But tho' the Thing itſelf is neceſſary, yet the Art of uſing it is much more ſo. The Diſplaying a fine Brilliant glittering on the little Finger, when the Hand waves gently along with a ſoft, ſmooth Sentence, adds an irreſiſtible Force to whatever you deliver, gives it the Stamp of Sterling Wit, and makes it paſs current. In a Controverſy it has an equal Power; for if your Antagoniſt ſhould puſh you home with Mode and Figure, Major and Minor, there is no more neceſſary, but to make an Extenſion of that Hand on which you wear your Diamond, and you'll infallibly dazzle his Underſtanding, confute his Syllogiſm, and confound his Logic.

The Ruffle, if properly handled, is no weak Auxiliary to the Art of Speaking, as the plaiting it, pulling it down, and adjuſting it, may ſupply a Pauſe, expreſs Joy, Anger, or ſeveral other Paſſions, according to the Action you uſe. A late celebrated Player, who always had the good Fortune to pleaſe, on any Emergency on the Stage had immediate Recourſe to the expreſſive Ruffle, and never without Succeſs.

There is one Art in Converſation, which tho' it has been cenſur'd by my ingenious Predeceſſor, the Spectator, is ſtill ſucceſsfully made uſe of; I mean the Art of properly introducing a green Purſe and 50 or 100 Guineas into a Diſpute, and by a judicious Chink confounding an Opponent who may not have above as many Shillings. If you'll contend it with Mr. Plumb, he will lay you, or any of your Wits about Covent Garden 500 Pieces on it, provided you ſtake the Money down. And ſure this Way of Converſation ſhould be allow'd to your Logicians of the City and Wits of St. James's, they having no other Method to refute an Argument.

Ezechiel Will:

In all Converſations where your Men of Honour are concern'd the Sword has an uncommon Influence; Action has a ſtrange Force; for one of your militant Diſputants about the Tilt-Yard and Charing croſs, only by moving his right Hand in a croſs Line down to his left Side, will take off the moſt ſubtle Syllogiſm that can be urg'd againſt him; but ſhould not avail, he will, in the Twinkling of an Eye, convince his Opponent of his Error, by running him through the Guts.

But to return to the Inſtructions of my mere peaceful Pupils: The Rhetoricians allow that there is dumb Kind of Eloquence. According to this Maxim I've ſeen Perſons confute an Argument without ſpeaking a Word: This Eloquence is much in Uſe in the Coffee houſes about the Temple and Pall mall, where, if you ſhou'd inadvertently offer your Opinion in a Debate, one of theſe ſilent Orators, furniſh'd with a well comb'd Toupee and immutable Countenance, advances up to you with a jauntee Trip, oppoſes his Front to yours, ſtares ſedately, nor will he give up this his ſurprizing Argument, till he has ſtar'd you out of your Reaſon and out of the Coffee-Room.

By the Ship Jupiter, Capt. Ewing, arrived at Philadelphia, from Londonderry, and Capt. Stevens arrived at Boſton from London there is the following Intelligence, viz.

LONDON, April 11.

It is thought extremely ſingular by many ſenſible people, that preparations ſhould be made for war without his Majeſty's once condeſcending to come to the leaſt explanation with his parliament. It is hard, numbers think that the domeſtic diſunion of his relations ſhould plunge the nation into blood, and harder ſtill that ſo immenſe load of public debt ſhould be contracted without any communication of the purpoſes to the people.

Large ſums are doing at the various coffee-houſes round the Change, on the deſtination of the fleet lately ordered in the Downs, but ſince ſaid to be countermanded.

We can aſſure the public that Sir Charles Hardy is to command the ſquadron fitting out for the Baltic.

Sir Charles is to demand the Queen in form, and in caſe of a refuſal, is to bombard Copenhagen. There is no doubt but the fleet may come near enough to bombard the town. In the year 1718 Sir John Norris brought a ſquadron of ſhips of the line cloſe to the very walls.

We can aſſure the public, that the ſquadron fitting out for Copenhagen, after finiſhing the object of its deſtination before that city, is to proceed to Dantzic to protect it againſt the deſigns of the King of Pruſſia.

Extract of a Letter from Copenhagen, March 26.

"You have frequently deſired me to write you ſome particulars of the very intereſting proceedings at preſent carrying on in this country. The reports propagated on this occaſion are ſo many and various, that it was impoſſible hitherto to ſend you any thing in the leaſt to be relied on. The proceedings of the commiſſions, however, being now finiſhed, herewith you will receive the contents of the ſpeech made by the Attorney General Uldahl (the Norton of this country) in defence of the Queen, on the 16th of the preſent month, the day the ſaid Commiſſion ſat.

'IN an advertiſement prefixed to this ſpeech, mention is made of the late revolution in Denmark on January 17; of a Commiſſion being appointed by his Daniſh Majeſty, to try the perſons charged with having projected a revolution to the detriment of the King, &c. Alſo that ſeſſions and trials have been held almoſt every day ſince on the parties accuſed; that ſeveral members of the Commiſſion have been to Cronenburgh, to hear the defence of the Queen on certain imputed articles; that as there are perſonages concerned that cannot abſolutely be ranked with the ſubjects of her Majeſty, there ariſes a problem. "Whether a ſubject of the kingdom can be appointed their judge"— The names of the gentlemen of the Commiſſion are next mentioned, being in number 30; and the advertiſement concludes with informing the public, that during the ſitting of the Commiſſion his Majeſty diſcharged Mr. Uldahl from his oath in order to enable him to perform, with the greater ſpirit and impartiality his duty to his clients; and Mr. Attorney General acquitted himſelf well. For this purpoſe he had previouſly been at Cronenburgh, to confer with his great client, on this affair; he afterwards made a ſpeech in that aſſembly, with which he entered on the defence.

'The ſpeech to which the foregoing is an introduction, does not contain any particulars of the Queen's examination or defence, but rather ſome obſervations on the nature of the buſineſs then before the great Commiſſion, and a recommendation to them of a ſtrict adherence to impartiality, preparatory to the Attorney General Uldahl's defence of the Queen. The moſt material paſſages are as follow:

'The King himſelf now ſubmits his own conduct to your judgment; his moſt gracious condeſcenſion allows you in certain reſpects not to conſider the Monarch; you are allowed an unlimited liberty to examine, approve, or cenſure all actions; and the ſame condeſcenſion allows me alſo to ſpeak all my thoughts, and ſo undertake the vindication of the defendants.

'In whatever light I conſider this affair, I find ſo much matter for reflection in the proceedings againſt the perſon of the Queen, that I cannot abſolutely approve the whole. Equity bids us now to conſider the King's and his R. Conſort's perſons in a two fold point of view. in the ſame inſtant in which the order for her impriſonment was given and executed; we muſt conſider them either as Majeſties, or as a married pair; and the former view I think to be now the chief object under our conſideration.

'One of the moſt important queſtions neceſſarily and immediately ariſing from the very name of Majeſty is this; 'How far a crime of State can be imputed to the Majeſty of a Queen, without degrading her to, and treating her like, the claſs of the ſubjects of the kingdom and the King." And how is it poſſible to admit ſuch a degradation? The connection in which ſhe ſtands as a Royal Conſort, cannot give the leaſt right to ſuch a ſtep. To mention but one of the ſlighteſt arguments: as after the King's demiſe, and during the minority of his ſucceſſor, the law allows a Queen Dowager's Majeſty to be entruſted with the helm of the ſtate; this very ſame right alſo tacitly implies for, and adjudges to a Queen, a total exemption, even during the life of her Royal Spouſe, though a Queen is very far from being entitled to guide the helm of the ſtate during the life of her Conſort. And does not her high birth, as a Princeſs of a foreign ſtate, alſo directly and abſolutely exempt her from that ſubjection; I think, yes, it does. Can then ſuch a perſonage lawfully be proceeded againſt like a ſubject of the ſtate? Not even to mention here, that it is to a Queen's perſon the whole ſtate owes the preſervation of the Royal Line, does ſhe not give us lawful heirs to the throne? She therefore cannot poſſibly be treated in the ſame manner as one who is a native of the ſtate, or an acquired ſubject to the Crown, and whoſe ſubjection only depends on the Monarch's Majeſty.

'But we muſt not content ourſelves with having here conſidered the ſide of Majeſty; we will direct our attention to another point of view; we will conſider her only as a married Conſort, we will paſs over all theſe rights, of which an abſolute Monarch may avail himſelf, rigorouſly to proceed againſt his ſubjects, and to adjuſt his ſentence on them to his own wiſdom. Yet even here alſo I am far from finding, that a huſband has an unlimited power over his wife's perſon: Marriage being only a "Covenant whoſe end conſiſts in mutual help and propagation of their race" Are then not eccleſiaſtical courts inſtituted for the welfare of a ſtate, on purpoſe only to protect theſe rights, to maintain their order, and to ſee juſtice done to the party who brings her complaints againſt the other before theſe courts? and can then any ſentence be determined upon before both parties have been heard, and that equitable maxim "audiatur et altera pars," been obſerved?

'Conſider well, Gentlemen, whether in hoc ſtatu, and in this inſtance, the reverſe has not already happened. That violence with which Queen C. has been treated, notoriouſly ſhews her degradation from her rank, her birth right as a Royal Conſort; nay, in general, from that tie by which ſhe is connected with the Monarchy; and the only way of reſtoring her in ſome meaſure to the ſplendor of her condition and prerogatives, is to reſtore her to liberty; and how far matrimonial obligations can be aboliſhed, may moſt ſafely be judged by the eccleſiaſtical laws of our ſtate.

'Your own wiſdom, Gentlemen, your love for juſtice, and your impartiality, make me hope, that the arguments which I am now laying before you, and ſuch as I ſhall further alledge, will meet with your unbiaſſed and mature conſideration. It would be needleſs here to recapitulate all what that great perſonage has alledged in her own defence. All theſe papers are in your hands. Read and judge yourſelves, and then your own ſentiments cannot but coincide with my thoughts, and approve of my arguments, of which I will lay before you a deduction, more ample and I hope, much more ſolid, than what the few minutes I am allowed to ſpeak before you can admit.

'The King has appointed you Judges, and on your determination alone the protection of monarchial power, and the ſupport of the kingdoms liberty, will depend. In conſequence to your ſentence only offences will be viewed in a ſtronger or milder light; and you are entruſted with the power of degrading a perſonage from her high birth, her prerogatives, and her rights of Majeſty, nay entirely to diveſt her of them. You only are now to act as definitive judges between a Royal Huſband and his Conſort, whoſe rights and obligations in this reſpect have always been equal. We can only defend ourſelves, and our defence can be derived from no other arguments than thoſe of juſtice and of equity.

It is ſaid that a Great Perſonage has ſignified, that if upon examination his ſiſter ſhould appear to be innocent, he is determined to have ample ſatisfaction for the cruel treatment ſhe has already ſuffered.

LONDON. April 16.

A noble Lord has declared that a war with both France and Spain cannot be avoided many months longer.

A letter from Cadiz ſays, that 6000 troops, with a ſuitable quantity of military ſtores, &c. embarked in Cadiz Bay, on the 26th ult. for South America.

Since laſt ſummer no fewer than ſeven veſſels have been ſeized by the Spaniards off Cuba on pretence of illicit trade.

The progreſs of Spain's inſulting behaviour to Great Britain is worthy of remark. They begun gently, and have ſince gradually aſcended, till they at laſt bit us directly in the teeth. —The firſt ſtep was excluding Britiſh ſhips from Carthagena, on the flimſey pretence of an illicit trade. The ſecond attempt was at Cadiz where they dared to fire on a Britiſh veſſel, and mal-treat its maſter with his majeſty's commiſſion in his pocket. They then ſeized ſeveral Engliſh ſailors, in different ports, on various frivolous pretences, and confined them in priſon where they ſtill (to the eternal diſgrace of Britain) remain.

Yeſterday ſome diſpatches were received, at St. James's from the Electorate of Hanover, ſaid to contain ſome important intelligence relative to the operations of the Pruſſian and Imperial monarchies.

April 21. Yeſterday noon a courier arrived at St. James's from Lord Grantham at Madrid with ſome advices of great importance.

Accounts are ſaid to be received in town, that a Spaniſh fleet conſiſting of 27 ſail, have taken three of our men of war in the Weſt Indies, and carried them into the Havanna.

An additional number of the military we are told, is to be ſtationed for the future in the North of Ireland, to prevent diſturbance.

We hear Lord Cathcart will ſoon be recalled from the court of Peterſburgh.

It is ſaid that the ſeizures made ſince the firſt of laſt Auguſt, on the coaſts of Great-Britain and Ireland, amount to 96,000l.

Orders were laſt week ſent to Ireland, for the ſtricteſt guard to be kept, to hinder the raiſing of recruits by the French and Spaniſh emiſſaries, which are now ſaid to be ſwarming in that kingdom.

An edict was publiſhed at Copenhagen the 9th inſt. by his Daniſh Majeſty, ſtrictly commanding upon ſevere penalties therein mentioned, the immediate return of ſuch of his ſubjects as are mariners, and in the ſervice of foreign powers.

One day laſt week in an interview that paſſed between the Engliſh miniſter and the Spaniſh ambaſſador, the former demanded of the latter categorically, whether there was any real foundation for the various reports circulated of the warlike preparations making in the different parts of their dominions; and to this his Lordſhip required an honeſt and explicit anſwer. To which the ambaſſador immediately replied, "that it was true his Royal maſter was making preparations throughout his dominions, but that they were not WARLIKE; that he only intended to eſtabliſh his naval and marine forces on a reſpectable footing, and to keep them ſo for the future."——This he affirmed upon his honor.

April 25. All the marine, both officers and men, in and about London, are ordered immediately to join their reſpective diviſions. The above mentioned order muſt very materially affect the Dutch, as it is ſuppoſed on a moderate computation, that not leſs than 6000 Danes are conſtantly employed in that republic in the whale and herring fiſheries.

A letter from Copenhagen, by yeſterday's mail ſays, "The trial of the Queen is over; ſhe is confined in the Caſtle of Aalbourg, to bear the title of Majeſty, and her children are declared legitimate. Her Majeſty is allowed to take the diverſions of the country under a guard but not to cohabit with the King. Count Struenſee and Count Brandt are found guilty; the former will be executed, and the latter baniſhed.

Accounts from Corſica inform us of a moſt cruel war carried on in that iſland between the French and miſerable natives; a war reſembling the hunting parties of ſavages on the one ſide, and the brutal reſiſtance of enraged beaſts of prey on the other; who as ſoon as the bloody conflicts are over, retreat again to their dens, caſtles, and inacceſſible fortreſſes.

SHERBORNE, April 27. A correſpondent deſires us to inform the public, that Britain declares in the moſt ſolemn manner, that he will ſeal the truth of his teſtimoney relative to the fire at Portſmouth with his blood—that all he requires is a public hearing on that affair, and if he cannot prove every tittle of his information, he is content and will chearfully ſubmit to any puniſhment he may be thought to deſerve —that if any gentleman of Character will inſure him a hearing, either at the bar of the houſe of Commons, or in a public court of juſtice, he will immediately deliver up all his papers into their hands.—But it is too evident that the preſent trial for petty forgeries is deſigned to ſuppreſs an enquiry into the great National Concern, the Portſmouth Conflagration.

PHILADELPHIA, June 18.

Extract of a letter from London, April 10.

"The Cruelties exerciſed upon the innocent Natives of Bengal, for ſome Years paſt, and the Scene of Rapine that has been carried on there, by the Servants of the Company, call aloud to Heaven itſelf for Vengeance, and demands the utmoſt Attention of the Legiſlature, to prevent the Evil from becoming irremidable. I wiſh ſomething effectual may be accompliſhed, before the Houſes ſeperate; but I muſt doubt they will not be able to get at the Bottom of the Miſchief and of courſe be obliged to leave Things as they are. There are many rich Villains to be dragged out into Day, but their very Plunder ſkreens them, and, will enable them to evade the Blow. The Iſſue of this important Affair the Public expect with impatience.

"In regard to the Miniſtry in general, I think them upon a very permanent Footing. Lord North riſes in the general Eſtimation every Day. He is confeſſedly the moſt able Man in the Houſe of Commons, and conducts the public Buſineſs there with great Candor, Moderation and Firmneſs; never looſing his Temper in the Midſt of the greateſt Oppoſition, but preſerving that Dignity of Behaviour, ſo becoming his Station, and diſcovering, upon all Occaſions, that Courage and Equanimity, which a Conſciouſneſs of acting with a pure Intention can alone inſpire. The King unſolicited, has given him the Garter, and I believe even his political Enemies (for perſonal Ones he has none) will allow it is well beſtowed."

HARTFORD, June 30.

Laſt Wedneſday the Rev. Thomas Brockway was ordained to the paſtoral Care and Charge of the Church and Congregation in the ſecond Society in Lebanon. A greater Concourſe of People attended the Solemnity than was ever before known to convene together in that Place on any Occaſion whatever.

Wedneſday of laſt Week was the annual Convention of the Church of England Clergy, when more than 20 Gentlemen of that Character met at Fairfield, to whom a Sermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. Viets of Simſbury.

Laſt Thurday Evening died at Suffield in the 99th year of her Age Mrs. Doritha Auſtin, relect of Capt. Richard Auſtin, late of that place deceas'd—ſhe was mother of 9 Children, 73 grand children 118 great grand children, and 5 of the fourth generation, in all 205—ſhe was Remarkably healthy the greateſt part of her life ſo as to be able to walk a Mild to Meeting a few days before her death, when ſhe was taken with a fit of the Epileptick kind and expired in a few hours. The Saturday following, her remains were decently inter'd.

To the PRINTER.

SIR,

PRIDE and folly generally, ſome time or other, meet a juſt reward. An inſtance of this kind lately fell under my notice. One of our modern fine ladies, alias a farmer's daughter, was very deſirous of dreſſing her hair in the tip of the preſent ridiculous mode. For want of better materials, ſhe made a rowler of new hay, and placing it on her head turned her hair up over it ; after which the neceſſary quantity of powder, &c. &c. &c. was puffed on, and ſhe roſe eminently ſuperior to her butter-making ſiſterhood. Thus attired, forth ſhe went exulting, to pay a viſit to another fine lady of the ſame rank, who ſold bread. On her arrival at the door, hung a baker's horſe loaded with panniers. Theſe obſtructed her paſſage, and ſhe had no other mode of entrance but to ſtoop, and go under the horſes neck. She did ſo ; but when her head approached the chin of Roſinante, the effluvia of the hay made a ſenſible impreſſion on his fancy. He therefore faſtened his teeth on that part of the towering ſtructure whence the grateful odour came, and inſtantly diſlodged the rowler of hay, together with a conſiderable quantity of the hair that covered it, to the no ſmall pain, and greater mortification of the lady, whoſe head now appeared as deſtitute of ornament without ſide, as it really was of ſenſe within.

I relate this anecdote, as a warning to that part of the creation, which nature has been ſo profuſe in adorning with real comelineſs and beauty, that they may ſee the folly of attempting to improve it ; by ridiculous modes of dreſs, and the idle fopperies of faſhion. The charms of genuine beauty infinitely ſurpaſs thoſe of art, and can receive no aſſiſtance from them.

Reflections on the Character of Rufinus, inſerted in our laſt. From a late MAGAZINE.

WHO can reflect, withot Horror and deteſtation, upon a Faction grown up, by long Diſappointments, to ſuch a Maturity of Wickedneſs, that they ſeem capable of perpetrating any Villainy which they can find Opportunities to put in Practice? We have, however, one Thing to comfort us, that this Patriot Rage ſeems to flow from a State of Deſpair; they know that their Cauſe is gone, and their Game is up; the Majority is every where, but amongſt the Mob, abſolutely againſt them. Affairs at Home are in a good Situation, as will be honourable to his Majeſty, and beneficial to the People.

This our Patriots know; they feel the Strength of the Government, and their own Weakneſs, while they vainly boaſt of their Powers Not one Word of what they ſay about this is true; They are not a Party gaining Ground; for they loſe Ground every Day, and have done ſo for a Twelve month paſt; they are not ſuperior in Number, nor more conſiderable in Eſteem; they are much inferior in Number, and have loſt all Eſteem among impartial Men of Senſe, and hearty Lovers of their Country: They are not men of the firſt Rank the largeſt Properties, and the greateſt Abilities; for, excepting one or two Families, they are generally Men of ſmall Properties decayed Eſtates, and as deſperate in their Fortunes as they are in their Minds.

But they ſay further, that the Miniſter hath forgot his Original, neglected his old Friends, and removed Men of Reſolution, Worth, and Probity from the Court; this alſo happens not to be true: The Hon. Perſon whom they mean, hath not forgot his Original; his Original was that of a Gentleman, of an antient and worthy Family; and he owes his Succeſs in the World as much to his own abilities as any Miniſter ever did. He has not forgot his old Friends: But if ſome of his old Friends imagine that they are not diſtinguiſhed enough, and ſo turn new Enemies; 'tis not he forgets them, but they forget him. He never removed Men of Reſolution, Worth, and Probity from the Court: But whatever Men of Reſolution, Worth, and Probity were once in Favour at Court, and are now removed they removed themſelves; they formed themſelves into a Cabal; they entered into an Aſſociation, & vowed to oppoſe the Court in every Thing, till they had obliged his M—— to change his Miniſtry; and after ſuch a Reſolution, 'twas the wiſeſt Thing that ever was done, to turn them all out. This is the Truth of the Caſe. I dont ſay, that ſeveral of the Gentlemen who are diſmiſſed, were not Men of Worth and Probity; but, I ſay, in this inſtance, their Underſtandings and their Virtue left them; they are not Patriots, nor are they weak enough to think themſelves ſo: But they are angry, peeviſh, proud, ambitious Men, who cannot be at reſt till the Power of the Nation is delegated into their Hands. This is the Truth, and this Truth the Public ought to know. There are, indeed, ſome Gentlemen among theſe Anti Courtiers whom I eſteem and value; not excepting Fatianus and Proculus; But their preſent Behaviour I deteſt and abhor, as diſhonorable to his Majeſty, and detrimental to their Country: The Part which theſe Whigs act at preſent, is, in my Opinion, a Part infinitely worſe than that of the Jacobites; for theſe may juſtly be ſuppoſed to have Principles againſt the Government; but here are a Set of Men principled for it, and yet acting in the moſt deteſtable Manner againſt it.

MR. WATSON,

AS what I publiſhed in your paper was from a ſincere deſire to contribute my mite for the glory of God, the preſervation of the Engliſh conſtitution, and the good of my country, without the deſign to offend any mortal, or carry on a controverſy with Dr. Mather, or Mr. A. B. for whoſe good ſenſe, religion, and orthodoxy in general, I have the greateſt veneration. But as it is truth and juſtice—not perſons or parties that I am engaged for, ſhall once more venture to make a ſhort, and I hope inoffenſive appearance in your paper.

GOVERNMENT, which as I underſtand it, conſiſts in wiſely making, and faithfully executing good laws——is, as it appears to me, of divine authority, deſigned by God, for the good of Man; therefore a righteous and impartial adminiſtration ought to be held in the greateſt veneration. Upon this, all the comforts of life, all the ſecurity of human laws depend. From hence it comes to paſs, that "we may ſit down, every man under his own vine, and under his own fig tree, and that there ſhall be none to make us afraid." And our bible, for which I am glad to hear Mr. A. B. has ſo great a regard, declares, "that it is by God that kings reign, and princes decree juſtice." And ſuch magiſtrates as rule by God's authority, are in the language of the ſacred ſcriptures, "able men, ſuch as fear God men of truth, hating covetouſneſs—— juſt, ruling in the fear of God——a terror to evil doers, and a praiſe and encouragement to ſuch as do well——the miniſters of God for good." 'Tis for this reaſon that St. Paul "exhorts that firſt of all, ſupplications, prayers, interceſſions, and giving of thanks be made for all men, for Kings, and for all that are in authority, that we may lead quiet and peaceable lives in all godlineſs and honeſty."

And now I ſhall readily grant my worthy friend, Mr A. B "that government is the greateſt ſecurity of freedom"——and further, "that it is not fit to ſay to a king, thou art wicked." becauſe (in the preceeding verſe of the ſame tranſlation) it is ſaid "that he that hateth right ſhall not govern"—and again, "it is an abomination to kings to commit wickedneſs; for the throne is eſtabliſhed by righteouſneſs——righteous lips are the delight of kings; and they love him that ſpeaketh right ——it is not for kings——to drink wine, nor for princes ſtrong drink, leſt they drink and forget the law, and pervert the judgment of any of the afflicted.

And now I think we may venture to aſſert in aſſirmance of the common law, that ſuch a "king can do no wrong:" And while this is his character, and thus he conducts, the reaſon of the command is plain, "thou ſhalt not revile the Gods, nor curſe the rulers of thy people." Or according to St. Paul—"it is written thou ſhalt not ſpeak evil of the ruler of thy people." This is all, namely, that thou ſhalt not ſpeak "evil," that is, "falſly," and my bible no where, as I can find, ſays, "thou ſhalt not ſpeak truth of the ruler of thy people," nor does St. Paul if rightly underſtood, as I apprehend, intimate any ſuch doctrine.

The quotation of this text by St. Paul, by no means forbids our ſpeaking truth of our rulers; and complaining, when they are guilty of cruelty, tyranny and oppreſſion. Though I am ſenſible that this text, and the quotation of it by St. Paul, has been preſs'd into the ſervice of tyrants and oppreſſors, by ſome Romiſh, Jeſuitical writers; and that though ſome very worthy, honeſt, though infallible men, have been miſlead by them. St. Paul is on all hands, allow'd to be divinely inſpired, when he ſaid to Annanias, "God ſhall ſmite thee, thou whited wall;" which prediction was exactly fulfilled by his being ſlain about five years after, according to Joſephus. And will any mortal believe when St. Paul adds, "for ſitteſt thou to judge me after the law, & commandeſt me to be ſmitten contrary to law?" That St. Paul did not know that Annanias was a nominal High Prieſt? by no means. So that when St. Paul ſays, "I wiſt not, brethren, that he was the High Prieſt." St Paul plainly intimates, that as Annanias did not act as Gods High Prieſt ought, he did not own or acknowledge him to be the High Prieſt.

Though as St. Paul was not only divinely inſpired, but alſo a man of great addreſs, (as plainly appears, by the diviſion he made in the council, by crying out, "I am a Phariſee, the ſon of a Phariſee: of the hope of the reſurrection of the dead, I am call'd in queſtion.") St. Paul did not think it a proper time or place, to diſpute his being High Prieſt, before ſuch a court.

And thus underſtood, St. Paul will appear perfectly conſiſtent with himſelf, and with the whole tenor and current of inſpiration, right reaſon, and the laws of our country: as to the point under conſideration.

Am with the moſt profound reſpect, for the Bible, St. Paul, Dr Mather, Mr. A. B. and every wiſe and good man.

Extract of a Letter from the Hague, April 27.

According to the laſt advices from Copenhagen, the Attorney General having drawn up the charge againſt the Queen Carolina Matilda, and delivered it to the Committe of Enquiry; and the Queen's defence being likewiſe produced, Commiſſioners were ſent with both of them to Cronenburg to ſhew them to the Queen—Her Majeſty received them very amiably.

Copenhagen, April 4. Laſt Tueſday Dr. Munter paſſed ſeven hours with Count Struenſee, who then wrote a letter to the Queen. After he had finiſhed it, he ſaid to that Eccleſiaſtic, "Now we will take in hand ſome affairs of the greateſt importance; I mean thoſe of my poor ſoul." His converſations with the Officer of his Guard, always have the divine worſhip for their object.

BOSTON, June 2.

Monday Evening laſt arrived Capt. Hoſea from London, Capt. Roſs from Falmouth, and Capt. Bowden from Scilly; by the two former we have London Papers to the 2d of May, which contain the following Freſh Advices.

LONDON, April 27. 28.

ADVICES fromCopenhagen dated the 11th of this month inform us that Sir Robert Kieth the Britiſh Miniſter, departed from that city the 9th inſtant for Elſineur.

They write from the Hogue, that his Pruſſian Majeſty has at this time an army conſiſting of 50 000 Infantry and 7,000 cavalry fit for immediate ſervice.

We are informed from good authority, that peace in the eaſt of Europe, notwithſtanding the late ceſſation of arms is far from being ſo certain an event as has been imagined. The Empreſs of Ruſſia will not permit the Tarters of Crimea to return to their dependances on the Porte; and the Turks, if they permit the Ruſſians to navigate the Black Sea, may give up at once Conſtantinople.

The court of Berlin has undertaken to join the Ruſſians in reducing the Confederates, and in reſtoring tranquility to Poland.

Late on Saturday night an expreſs arrived from Ireland at St James's, ſaid to contain more diſagreable accounts than any that have been received from that kingdom

An order has been lately iſſued out by the French commandant at Dunkirk, which obliges all the Engliſh ſubjects many of whom are of good character and in capital buſineſs, to leave that kingdom immediately

May 2. A correſpondent ſays the following may be depended on: Every thing is accommodated with the court of Denmark Two men of war are ordered to ſail immediately to Copenhagen with ſeveral officers of his Majeſty's houſhold on board to conduct the Queen of Denmark to Patatz, from thence to Hanover, where ſhe is to reſide during life.

Copenhagen April 7. The Queen Julia appeared in public Yeſterday for the firſt time.

Warſaw, April 8. General Elmpt has entered Lithuania with a body of light troops conſiſting of between 15 and 16000 horſe, and 10 and 1100 foot.

Mr. Bencit, Envoy from the King of Pruſſia, has declared that his Maſter's troops had orders now to act againſt the Confederates; and the Ruſſian Miniſter has in like manner declared, that from the preſent time they will no longer ſet at Liberty any of the Confederates who may be made priſoners.

A nobleman lately arrived in the neighbourhood of St. James's from Rome, is greatly ſuſpected to have come here on a ſecret embaſſy; it is known he had ſeveral audiences of a great perſonage, and that he does not ſend his diſpatches to Rome by the poſt, but by ſpecial meſſengers.

We hear that the Spaniſh ambaſſador now here, is ſhortly to be recalled, and that he will be ſucceeded by the Duke de Villbarmoſſa, lately arrived here.

[Other Articles by the above Veſſels, omitted now, will be publiſhed in a Supplement on Thurſday next.]

BOSTON, June 29.

We hear the Honourable His Majeſty's Council and the Honourable Houſe of Repreſentatives have made Choice of the Rev. Mr. John Hunt for their Chaplin, reſpectively.

Wedneſday laſt being the Feſtival of St John the Baptiſt, The Moſt Worſhipful Joſeph Warren, Eſq; Provincial Grand Maſter of Ancient Free and accepted Maſons, attended by his Grand Officers and the Maſter Wardens and Brethren of the Lodges, under his Juriſdiction, viz. St. Andrew's & Maſſachuſett's Lodges held in this Town, The Tyrian Lodge held at Glouceſter, and St. Peter's Lodge held at Newbury Port, Cloathed in the Jewels and Badges of their ſeveral Offices, marched in Proceſſion from Concert Hall to Chriſt Church, where a very ſuitable and pertinent Diſcourſe was delivered by the Rev'd Brother Fayerweather of Narraganſett, from 1ſt. of Corinthians, 5th Chap. 11th Ver which was received with univerſal Approbation by a numerous and polite Audience.

When the Service was ended they proceeded to MASON HALL, where an elegant Entertainment was provided in the Garden adjoining ſaid Houſe, under a large Canopy erected for that Purpoſe and the Remainder of the day was dedicated to Purpoſes of Benevolence and ſocial Feſtivity.

The Unanimous Thanks of the Lodges were voted to the Rev'd Mr. Fayerweather, and a Copy of his Sermon deſired for the Preſs—The Thanks of the Lodges were alſo voted to the Rev. Dr. Byles, Rector, The Church Warden's Veſtry and Proprietors of Chriſt's Church, for their polite Behaviour in granting the free Uſe of their Church on the Occaſion.

BOSTON, July 2.

We are informed that the 'INDIANS' in "the only loyal colony (Rhode Iſland) have returned like a dog to his vomit, and a ſow to her wallowing in the mire; it is ſaid, that two Cuſtom houſe officers at Newport, went on board an inward bound veſſel from the Weſt-Indies, and were pretty buſy, in their way, when unluckily ſome of theſe Savages came on board, bound the Cuſtom houſe officers, and blacked them, then unloaded the veſſel, and after whipping their priſoners, let them at liberty.

Quere, Whether eight or ten regiments and ſix or more ſail of the line may not ſoon be expected to quell ſuch a daring (if it had been in Boſton) rebellion!!!

By a gentleman arrived from Waterford in Ireland, in eight weeks we learn, that the diſturbances in Ireland were almoſt ſubſided.

NEW-HAVEN, July 3.

Capt. Ebenezer Bartram, who arrived a few days ſince from Barbados informs that a large ſhip (—— Twine, Maſter) lying at that iſland, was on the 27th of May laſt in the evening entirely conſumed by Fire, together with the whole of her cargo, which conſiſted of four hundred and twenty hogſheeds of clay'd and muſcovado ſugar, ſixty pipes of Madeira wine, one hundred puncheons of rum, with a large quantity of ginger and cotton; alſo the baggage of ſeveral gentlemen and ladies, who were going paſſengers to Briſtol in the ſhip, and for which place ſhe was to have ſail'd the next day.

The loweſt computation of the loſs, is eſtimated at 16 000*l* ſterling

The accident was occaſioned by a Boy's drawing rum by candle light. The boy was ſo terribly burnt that he expired the next morning.

We hear that Capt. Andrew Burr, formerly of this place, died at the iſland of Tortola, a few months ſince.

HARTFORD, July 7.

The Embargo on Grain, which by Act of Aſſembly was to continue to the 1ſt Day of July inſtant, is, by Proclamation from his Honour the Governor continued to the 15th, Inſt.

The public may be aſſured upon the beſt authority, that the petition lately preſented to his Majeſty for an American Biſhop was rejected, it having been conſidered in its true light, as the deſire of a few meddling prieſts, and not of the people.

We hear that James Farral, lately murdered at Stockbride, belonged to Greenwich, in New-Jerſey, where he left a Wife and ſeveral Children. And that one James Harvey a tranſient perſon, is the ſuppoſed murderer who a ſhort Time before he committed the murder, broke Albany Goal, where he was confined for Theft.

Elijah Williams, Eſq; Sheriff of Berkſhire County, has publiſhed an Advertiſement promiſing a Reward of Ten Dollars to any Perſon who ſhall apprehend the above James Harvey, and commit him to the Goal in ſaid County—the advertiſement contains the following Diſcription of him, viz That he is about ſix feet high, about 24 Years old, very meanly cloath'd of a fair complexion, very light colour'd Hair, and ſuppoſed to be an Engliſhman. He rob'd the deceaſed of two pair leather Breeches, one brown camblet Waiſtcoat, ſundry Shirts, a Pair Shoes, one Pair large Silver Shoe Buckles marked I F and a neat ſilver Watch.

DIED, at Middletown, a few Days ſince, Joſeph Southmayd, Eſq; aged 76 Years. At North Branford the Rev. Jonathan Merrick, ſenior paſtor of the ſecond Church of Chriſt in Branford. At Glaſtenbury, on Thurſday laſt, Jonathan Hale, Eſq; in the 76th Year of his Age.

TAKEN up by the Subſcriber of Windſor, about three Weeks ſince, a Cheſtnut colour'd MARE, about 8 Years old, about 14 Hands high, natural Pacer, no Brand, not ſhod, and is conſiderable large bodied. The Owner on proving his Property, and paying Charges, may have her again by applying to

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.

One of the ſhips which ſneaked out of Boſton harbor, is watching for prey in our river, where, in a manner, below the dignity of any thing but ——, they fire at, bring too, board, ranſack, ſwear and tear at every veſſel, ſhallop, flat; &c. that they can lay their eyes on; ſtopping men in their lawful buſineſs, and putting his Majeſty's ſubjects in fear of their lives and liberties, and in a moſt underhand manner, take every low method to obtain intelligence. Laſt week they ſeized a ſhallop belonging to Cheſter, loaded with flour and lumber, and maltreated the ſkipper, on which the owner ſued the officer, and he was taken by the Sheriff when the Captain and ſeveral hands from the man of war came on ſhore, reſcued the offender, and the Captain took the writ from the Sheriff and carried it, together with the man on board his ſhip.

JUNE 18

Extract of a Letter from London, April 11

"A very extraordinary Application has been made to the Crown, by the Earl of Rochford for a Grant of all the Iſlands in the River Delaware. — This Petition has gone ſo far as to paſs the Board of Trade, and a Report has been made from thence, ſetting forth, that there is no Reaſon why his Majeſty ſhould not allow the Petition, as thoſe Iſlands do not ſeem to be included in any of Mr. Penn's Grants of the Province; that they are chiefly in a State of Nature, unimproved, without the Juriſdiction of any Court in the Province; and that they are a Refuge for Felons and Outlaws. Mr. Penn has exerted himſelf a good Deal in this Matter, and it is now before the Lords of the Council, where Teſtimony has been adduced to invalidate every Thing ſet forth in the Report of the Board of Trade, in the Judgment of every candid Byſtander. The Thing will be concluded on Tueſday, and it is much to be feared, will paſs the Council in the noble Lords Favour, greatly againſt the Rules of Juſtice and perhaps to the total Ruin of many Poor Families, who depend ſolely on their Poſſeſſions in theſe Iſlands for their Support"

Extract of another Letter from the ſame Place, April 15

"The Application reſpecting the Iſlands in the River Delaware, which I mentioned in the other Letter I wrote by this Opportunity, was to have been determined this Day. But Lord Rochford, much to his Honour, withdrew his Petition upon the Principle, that thoſe People who firſt poſſeſſed themſelves of thoſe Iſlands, while they were in a State of Nature, and raiſed them to their preſent State of Culture and Improvement, were beſt entitled to the Royal Favour, ſuppoſing the Iſlands not to be within any of the Grants made to the Penn Family."

JUNE 25

Laſt Week Captain Hammond arrived here from the Coaſt of Africa, but laſt from Nevis, who informs that he left Seraloon about three Months ago where he heard there had been a very ſickly Time in the River Gambia, that Governor De Bert, and all the Traders at James's Fort, on the River, were dead, and that the Doctor was the only white Man living belonging to the Fort. He alſo, informs, that a few Days before he ſailed, Capt. Savery, in a Brig belonging to London, trading at Camaranco, having got about 65 Slaves on board, they roſe upon the white People killed the Capt. Mate, and all the Crew, except a Boy; and that the Veſſel was afterwards retaken by one Mr. Cleveland, a Trader who recovered about 20 of the Slaves, and intended to ſend the Brig Home for the Benefit of the Inſurers.

NEWPORT, June 22.

Laſt Tueſday James Bud and Lemuel Guſtine, were apprehended and committed to goal in this town, on ſuſpicion of being concerned in counterfeiting and paſſing New York and Jerſey paper Money. About a week before, they, with ſome others, came from Nantucket in a ſloop, and anchored in Mackerel Cove, a little within our light houſe, where theſe two left her and came to this town, and agreed with an engraver to cut them a plate for the eſcutcheon or border of a New York forty ſhilling bill, for which purpoſe they cut out the printed part of the bill, and gave the engraver the other part cut into three or four pieces. But before the engraver had quite finiſhed the plate, he accidentally ſaw a New York bill, which Bud had paſſed to another man, by which he diſcovered the real buſineſs he was about, and immediately informed Judge Hazard of the ſame. After Bud and Gulline were examined, the ſloop was brought into this harbour, and being ſearched, upwards of fifty pounds of York and Jerſey money was found, including a ſmall ſum Bud and Gulline had about them. They confeſſed but little on the examination: But it might be eaſily perceived that one Wilis of Connecticut, one Smith of New York, and a number of others were concerned in this affair.

The money above mentioned, conſiſts of ſixty, twenty, ten and five ſhilling bills, principally of New York currency, moſt of which are well known to be counterfeits; the Jerſy bills doubtful, and may probably be ſome of thoſe taken out of the treaſury when robbed. There is one five pound bill not ſigned: The forty ſhilling bill, by which the plate was to have been made, is a true one.

By what could be drawn out of theſe men there muſt be a very conſiderable amount of New-York bills counterfeited to the Weſtward; as Bud confeſſed that he ſaw a great number lying on Wilis's table the firſt time he went to ſee him.

NEW-LONDON July 3.

We learn from South Haven, on Long Iſland, That laſt Monday Se'nnight, Samuel Brewſter, Eſq; of that Place, being in the Woods with one of his Negroes, attempted to correct him for ſome Miſdemeanor, which the Negro reſented, and wounded his Maſter by giving him ſeveral ſuch violent Blows on his Head with a Billet of Wood, that he expired the next Morning. The Negro was tried the next Day found Guilty of the Murder, and was hanged and drawn in Quarters.

PROPOSALS,

For printing by SUBSCRIPTION,

An Eſſay on Moral Agency: Containing

Remarks on a late anonymous Publication, entituled, "An examination of the late Reverend Preſident Edwards's Enquiry on Freedom of Will."

By STEPHEN WEST, A. M.

Paſtor of the Church in STOCKBRIDGE.

WHEREIN moral agency or liberty is particularly and carefully defined——the POWERS of human nature critically examined, and a juſt and rational idea endeavoured to be given of the term power—the nature and influence of MOTIVES upon the human will, carefully conſidered—virtue and vice, ſhown to conſiſt in the nature of the internal diſpoſitions and inclinations of men, in diſtinction from their cauſe; and, therefore, conſiſtent with a previous, infallible certainty of all events—the doctrine of an antecedent certainty of all events which ever take place, proved to be both rational and ſcriptural—the idea of a power of ſelf determination in men particularly and critically examined, and ſhown to be inconſiſtent and abſurd—the objection againſt a connexion of all human volitions with ſome antecedent, extrinſic cauſe, that ſuch an opinion makes men but mere machines, obviated and refuted—the examiner's reaſonings in various parts of his performance, ſhown to be inconcluſive and unjuſt: and the great and popular objection againſt an infallible antecedent certainty of all events, as well moral as natural, that ſuch a doctrine reflects reproach upon the moral character of GOD, and ſuppoſeth him to be the author of ſin, largely and very particularly conſidered; and a humble and careful enquiry made into the extent of the divine agency, with reſpect to the event of the taking place of ſin.

It is ſuppoſed the Eſſay will contain 15 ſheets. The price to the ſubſcribers will be two ſhillings, or in that proportion, as it ſhall be larger or ſmaller.

It is now in the preſs, and will be publiſhed at the enſuing commencement, in New Haven.

Subſcriptions are taken in by the Printer hereof; and by the Author.

POETS CORNER.

The Proſpect of DELIA.

AT fair Aurora's ſmiling Dawn,
I ſpy'd my Delia on the Lawn;
The Lark aſcended to the Sky,
And Sung with ſweeteſt Harmony.
The Nightingale warbled his Throat,
With Delia's praiſe in every Note.
The hungry Flocks forgot to graze,
And on my charming Delia gaze.
The murmuring Streams forſook their way,
And puring round my Delia ſay;
"Come view your Face in this clear Glaſs,
"And bathe your Limbs, we long to Claſp
"That heav'nly Form, and make our Stream,
"Immortal with fair Delia's Name."
In thouſand dewey Drops ſhe lives,
Painted in different Attitudes,
Various as liv'lieſt fancy Views,
That Gem upon the Lilly ſtalk,
Portrays my Delia's Morning walk,
That Drop upon the waving Roſe,
Rocks my fair Delia to Repoſe;
Thoſe trembling Pearls on the Vi'let,
Which now receed, and now have met,
Picture the height of Strephon's Bliſs,
Meeting fair Delia with a Kiſs;
With coy repulſe, retir'ing now,
While Strephon ſighs the ſofteſt Vow.
See yonder more retir'd from Sight,
Juſt in the edges of the Night,
Around a Bow'r of Amaranth's,
Hang trembling Drops, a wat'ry Glaſs;
Which Paints through glim'ring Light & Shade,
Strephon with Delia, on a Bed,
Of Hyacinth, and Aſphodel;
Retire my Muſe, and ſay Farewell.
But envious Gods on Sun beams rode,
Exhal'd the Drops to their abode;
Raphael attempts the finiſh'd Form,
the Court of Heaven to adorn,
But e'er he'd done more than her Face,
He drops his Pencil to Embrace.

BY THE HONORABLE

RICHARD PENN, Esq;

Lieutenant Governor and Commander in Chief of the Province of Pennſylvania and Counties of New Caſtle, Kent and Suſſex, on Delaware.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS I have received information, that the Connecticut intruders, who have ſo often diſturbed the peace of this government, not content with having, in the moſt violent and hoſtile manner, diſpoſſeſſed a number of people lawfully ſettled at Wyoming on Suſquehanna under the Honorable Proprietaries of this province have lately extended their unlawful poſſeſſions to the lands of SHOHOLY and LACHAWAXIN and other parts within this Province, where they are now building forts and places of defence, and making warlike preparations to ſupport themſelves in their poſſeſſions unlawfully obtained: And WHEREAS divers people belonging to the ſaid colony, have alſo at different times endeavoured to perſuade and inveigle many of the inhabitants of this and the neighbouring provinces to confederate and join with them in ſuch their illegal deſigns, and to aſſiſt in ſeizing and holding the ſaid lands by a ſtrong hand; WHEREFORE, as well to aſſert the juſt rights of the Proprietaries to the ſaid lands, as to warn and prevent any of the inhabitants of this province from being unwarily drawn in to join the ſaid Intruders in proſecuting their illegal ſettlements, I HAVE judged it proper, by and with the advice of the Council, to iſſue this Proclamation, hereby ſtrictly enjoining & requiring, in his Majeſty's name, all and every perſon and perſons already ſettled, or reſiding on the lands of Wyoming, Shoholy and Lechawaxin & other parts of the Suſquehanna and Delaware, without the licence of the Proprietaries, or authority from this government, immediately to evacuate their ſettlements, and to depart and remove themſelves off & from the ſaid lands without delay: AND I DO hereby forbid all his Majeſty's ſubjects, of this or any other province or colony on any pretence whatſoever, to intrude upon, ſettle or poſſeſs any of the aforeſaid lands, or any other lands within the limits of this province, without the expreſs permiſſion of the Proprietaries, or this government, as they will anſwer the contrary at their peril, and on pain of being proſecuted with the utmoſt rigour of the law: AND I DO hereby alſo ſtrictly charge, enjoin and require, all Magiſtrates, Sheriffs, and other Officers as well as all other his Majeſty's liege ſubjects within this province, to exert themſelves, and uſe their utmoſt endeavours to proſecute & bring to juſtice, all offenders in the premiſes.

Given under my Hand, and the Great Seal of the ſaid Province, at Philadelphia, the twenty ſecond day of June in the twelfth year of his Majeſty's reign, and in the year of our LORD one thouſand ſeven hundred and ſeventy-two.

GOD Save the KING.

By ſeveral Veſſels arrived at Boſton from London ſince our laſt, we have the few following Paragraphs two or three Days later than thoſe contained in the Courant Extraordinary.

LONDON, April 29, 1772.

HIS Majeſty, in conſideration of the preſent high price of proviſions, has ordered one ſhilling per week to be added to the pay of each labourer employed at Richmond and Kew, and alſo a pot of beer per day, for the better ſupport of their wives and families.

May 2. By a gentleman juſt arrived from Paris we are informed the Pretender, from his being ſo many years devoted to his bottle, had no great devotion to the deed of matrimony, but was edged on by the French Court to preſerve the breed of Stuart, as a future convenience to their machinations. It is likewiſe ſaid, that the French King has added conſiderably to the Princeſs's fortune.

Yeſterday orders were given to ſeveral of his Majeſty's domeſtics, to be in readineſs to embark on the firſt notice for Copenhagen, to conduct Princeſs Carolina Matilda from that place to Zell, in the Electorate of Hanover, which is to be her place of reſidence.

The ſame day orders were ſent to Capt. Hamilton, who is appointed to have the command of one capital ſhip and two frigates, to ſail to Copenhagen on ſaid occaſion, the firſt opportunity.

There are in Newgate for trial at the Old Baily ſeſſion which begins on Wedneſday next, upwards of 160 priſoners.

Extract of a letter from Naples, April 20.

"This Country ſeems to give birth to crimes unequalled in any part of the world for their cruelty and guilt. Whether it is that this proceeds from the uncommon heat of the climate working upon the blood of the people, or from ſome other cauſe, is uncertain; but we have frequent inſtances here of crimes which are dreadful beyond credibility. A few days ago two Artiſans, who were drinking together, quarrelled in their cups; on which one of them immediately drew a ſtiletto, and laid his companion dead upon the ſpot. A ſoldier who was preſent, reſolving to be revenged of the aſſaſſin for the murder of the deceaſed, who was his friend, ſnatched up a knife from a table, and plunged it in his heart. The latter though the blood guſhed very faſt from his wound, purſued the ſoldier holding the ſtiletto in his hand; but deſpairing of overtaking him, he took the barbarous reſolution to ſtab every one that came in his way. He ſoon laid ſeven perſons dead upon the ſtreet, and wounded many more.—This monſter at laſt, exhauſted by loſs of blood, fell down; and a prieſt coming to give him aſſiſtance, he raiſed his arm to ſtab him, but expired before he could ſtrike the blow. This is the laſt of many accidents which happened lately in theſe parts."

We are aſſured that his Majeſty has ordered an annuity of 20l. per annum to be paid to the widow of the journeyman Slatter, that was killed by falling from Kew Houſe, as has been mentioned.

May 2. The Company at the Pantheon Maſquerade Ball, on Thurſday Evening were near 2000 in Number, among the Characters was a Sultan, Lady Villars, with an aſtoniſhing Quantity of Diamonds, to the Value of 30,000l. half of which was her own property.

May 4. It is now confidently ſaid that nothing but the cuſtomary ſupplies will be demanded from the Parliament; and that this advantage is owing to the prudent adminiſtration of Lord North, who beſides avoiding the impoſition of any new burdens upon the ſubject, has paid off 1,800,000l. of the national debt in the courſe of the paſt winter.

BOSTON, July 10.

Two Engliſh ſeamen arrived laſt week in a veſſel at Nantucket from the Havanna, where we learn they had been impriſoned ſix or ſeven year; one of them came to town this week, and informs that he was taken on the Spaniſh Main, and caried priſoner to the Havannah for being concerned in an illicit trade, (as it is phraſed by thoſe who do not chuſe to reſent the behaviour of the Dons.) During his impriſonment he ſuffered many hardſhips, and at length growing old and infirm was releaſed. He ſays, there were forty-ſix ſtout able-bodied Engliſh Seamen impriſoned at the Havannah when he left it.

New-York, 19th May, 1772.

ON HIS MAJESTY'S SERVICE.

To the Reverend Mr. Dewey, and the Inhabitants of Bennington, and the adjacent Country, on the Eaſt Side of Hudſon's River.

GENTLEMEN,

THE many violent and illegal acts you have lately committed againſt the peace and good order of this province, of which I have had frequent proofs and informations, at the ſame time that they are not only a reproach to yourſelves, but dangerous and injurious to your families and intereſts, cannot fail of being highly offenſive to your Sovereign. You may depend a perſeverance in your diſobedience to, and violation of the laws of your country, muſt ſoon draw forth againſt you the exertion of the powers of government. However, being ſincerely deſirous on my part, to avoid compulſive meaſures, while lenient methods may prove ſucceſsful, I eſteem it my duty to invite you to lay before this government the cauſes of your illegal proceedings; and it is with the concurrence and advice of his Majeſty's council that I ſend you this invitation, who, with me, are diſpoſed to examine into the grounds of your behaviour and diſcontent with deliberation and candor, and as far as in us lies, to give ſuch relief as the nature of your ſituation and circumſtances will juſtify. That there may be no obſtruction to your laying before me in council, as ſoon as poſſible, a fair repreſentation of your conduct, I do hereby engage full ſecurity and protection to any perſons whom you ſhall chooſe to ſend on this buſineſs to New-York, from the time they leave their homes to the time of their return, except Robert Cockran, as alſo Allen, Baker and Sevil, mentioned in my proclamation of the 9th December laſt, and Seth Warner, whoſe audacious behaviour to a civil magiſtrate, has ſubjected him to the penalties of the laws of his country. I am told Mr. William Dewey, a miniſter of the goſpel, James Brackridge and Mr. Fay, are perſons in whoſe judgment you have much confidence; I ſhould therefore think they would be your proper meſſengers on a buſineſs in which you are ſo deeply concerned, eſpecially Mr. Dewey, who has been favourably repreſented here ſince my appointment to this government. His Majeſty's ſecretary of ſtate has ſignified to me, that the King has finally fixed Connecticut river to be the eſtabliſhed juriſdiction between the governments of New-York and New Hampſhire. This circumſtance I mention, that you may not be miſled or deceived by a perſwaſion that that part of the country you now inhabit, will ever be annexed to the government of New Hampſhire. I have this farther motive for mentioning the King's final deciſion, that by your receiving this authority of your being in the government of New-York, I am hopeful your future conduct will juſtify me in aſſuring his Majeſty of your dutiful obedience to this his royal determination. I flatter myſelf you will chearfully improve this final offer of reconciling yourſelves to this government. I am your friend,

W. TRYON.

A true Copy of his Excellency's Letter.

Bennington, 5th June, 1772.

To His Excellency

WILLIAM TRYON, Eſq;

Captain General and Commander in Chief in and over the Province of New-York and its Dependencies, Chancellor and Vice Admiral of the ſame.

May it pleaſe your Excellency,

WE his Majeſty's liege and loyal ſubjects of the province of New York, having received your Excellency's particular favour of the 19th day of May laſt, requeſting the inhabitants of Bennington, and the adjacent country, on the eaſt ſide Hudſon's river, to lay before your Excellency and council, the cauſe of our diſcontent and behaviour, do now expreſs our ſatisfaction in having this very opportunity to acquaint your Excellency,

Firſt, That we hold the fee and property of the lands we are ſettled and in the poſſeſſion of, by virtue of grants from their Majeſties George the Second and Third, &c. which lands at the time of thus being granted, was reputed to be within the juriſdiction of the province of New Hampſhire, until the year 1764, when ſome of your Excellency's now ſubjects had by ſome meaſures obtained his Majeſty's pleaſure for alteration of juriſdiction-line between the province of New Hampſhire, and the province of New-York; ſince which ſundry grants have been made by thoſe in the adminiſtration of government, in the ſaid province of New York, on the very lands before granted by his Majeſty to us, as tho' the fee of the land and property was altered with juriſdiction, which we ſuppoſe was not. The meaſures taken to diſpoſſeſs us of thoſe lands, by repeated writs of ejectment, ſuits at law, rejectment of proof from authentic records, refuſing a ſuitable time and opportunity for collection of evidence to ſupport and vindicate our cauſe, contrary, (as we ſuppoſe) to the uſual cuſtoms of the law of the province, ſeem to be the grounds of our diſcontent, and that the illegal and unconſtitutional method of proceeding in indicting ſundry perſons who were bound by the law of ſelf and family preſervation to maintain their liberty and properties; the uſage of thoſe intriguers that, would monopolize our intereſt to themſelves by ſuch irregular ſteps.—Their methods of breaking by violence, houſes for poſſeſſion, and to obtain thoſe whom they are pleaſed to denominate riotous, tumultuous and diſorderly, their firing on thoſe people, and wounding innocent women and children, to compaſs their deſigns may have occaſioned ſome very diſagreeable and unhappy diſturbances among the friends of Mr. Remember Baker, reſiding on the New Hampſhire grants, which we ſuppoſe your Excellency has been pleaſed to mention illegal. The foregoing is an exact account of our hitherto ideas of the ſtate of the preſent caſe, and on this footing we muſt cloſely adhere to the maintaining our property with a due ſubmiſſion to your Excellency's juriſdiction, and if we ſhould through ignorance or inadvertency, have hitherto miſunderſtood either your Excellency, or the occaſion of your Excellency's requeſt, we beg the favour to be undeceiv'd. The perſons choſen to preſent theſe lines we hope may give your Excellency ſome further ſatisfaction. We flatter ourſelves from the candor of your Excellency's favourable letter, that you will be friendly diſpoſed towards us; and we moſt earneſtly pray and beſeech, your Excellency would aſſiſt to quiet us in our poſſeſſions, till his Majeſty in his royal wiſdom, ſhall be graciouſly pleaſed to ſettle the controverſy. Should your Excellency grant this our humble requeſt, our ſatiſfaction would be inexpreſſible. Therefore, confidently truſting in your Excellency's wiſdom and clemency, as members of your province, and loyal and ſubmiſſive ſubjects to his Majeſty, we beg leave to ſubſcribe ourſelves your Excellency's faithful, obedient, and very humble ſervants.

A true copy of the anſwer to his Excellency's letter of the 19th May laſt.

Bennington, 5th June, 1772.

To His Excellency

WILLIAM TRYON, Eſq;

Captain-General and Governor and Commander in Chief, in and over his Majeſty's Province of New-York, and its Dependencies, Chanceller and Vice-Admiral of the ſame.

May it pleaſe your Excellency,

WE his Majeſty's loyal ſubjects, whoſe names are to this piece affixed, inhabitants on that tract of land, your Excellency deſcribes by the name of Bennington, and the adjacent country, &c and who was by your Excellency's letter of the 19th of May laſt, prohibited the privilege of going to New-York, and perſonally vindicate either ourſelves or country, before your Excellency, and being drove to the extremity of informing your Excellency by writing the reaſon of our diſcontent, and alſo of our behaviour, which is more at large ſet forth, than in the foregoing general anſwer to your Excellency's letter—and alſo more arguments deduced from reaſon and nature of things, we hope your Excellency will be graciouſly pleaſed to view this our defence with that tenderneſs and candor a gentleman in ſo elevated a ſtation ſhould do, & therefore beg leave to obſerve, that as on the one hand, no conſideration whatever, ſhall induce us to remit in the leaſt, of our loyalty and gratitude to our moſt gracious Sovereign, nor of a reaſonable ſubmiſſion to your Excellency; ſo on the other hand, no tyrannical exertion of the powers of government, can deter us from aſcertaining and maintaing our undoubted rights and privileges as Engliſhmen. We expected an anſwer from your Excellency, to our humble petition to you delivered, ſoon after your Excellency's acceſſion to the adminiſtration of the government, but for reaſons to us unknown, your Excellency paſſed it by in ſilence. However, we chearfully embrace this opportunity of laying before your Excellency and Council, the true ſtate of our controverſy, which we can no otherways do, but by abſorbing our perſonal diſtinction, into the community, and general cauſe, to which we have obtained the character of faithful. We aſſure your Excellency, that we aſſent to your authority of juriſdiction, in as much as his Majeſty's proclamation aſſures us, it is his will and pleaſure we be under the juriſdiction of New York, and not only now aſſent to it, but have ever done the ſame, except in inſtances where ſuch perverſe uſe has been made thereof, as would diſpoſſeſs us of our property and country, we are truly deſirous, and petitioning his Majeſty to cede us back again to the province of New Hampſhire. But this is not the ground of our diſcontent, or at leaſt is far from being the principle ground of it, thought it was done exparte, and we apprehend there were more or leſs wrong repreſentations made to his Majeſty, to obtain the juriſdiction. However, it is the unreaſonable and unconſtitutional exerciſe of it, that is the preſent bone of contention—our properties are all at ſtake, this we contend for, as the following known facts will demonſtrate. A certain number of deſigning men in New-York and elſewhere, procured patents under the Great Seal of that province, of New Hampſhire, and the New-York grantees being non reſidents, brought ſundry writs of ejectment againſt the New Hampſhire grantees and actual ſettlers on the ſame land, coveted by both patents as aforeſaid, and obtained judgment againſt them, and proceeded further, and took out writs of poſſeſſion, and actually diſpoſſeſs'd ſeveral of them by order of law, of their houſes and farms, leaving them to ſuffer the inclemency of the weather, and bereaved of all the neceſſaries of life, their new maſters having monopolized their earthly all, to themſelves. Their indigent families having in the firſt place, expended their ſeveral fortunes in bringing their farms out of a wilderneſs ſtate, into that of fruitful fields, gardens and orchards, the whole country, conſiſting of more than fifteen hundred families, was greatly alarm'd at the event which had already began to take place, was in great conſternation, each individual reading their own intolerable and univerſal deſtruction from the inſtances aforeſaid—Still the writs of ejectment came thicker and faſter, and univerſal ſlavery, poverty and horror, emblamatically appeared in every countenance. Things having come to this paſs, the oppreſſion was too great for human nature, under Engliſh conſtitution to grope under, for the idea thereof was much more terrible than the idea of the exertion of the powers of government.

Laws and ſociety compacts, were made to protect and ſecure the ſubjects in their peacable poſſeſſions and properties, and not to ſubvert property. No perſon or community of perſons, can be ſuppoſed to be under any particular compact or law, except it preſuppoſed that that law will protect ſuch perſon or community of perſons, in his or their properties, for otherways the ſubject would by law be bound to be acceſſary to his own ruin and deſtruction, which is inconſiſtent with the law of ſelf preſervation; but this law being natural as well as eternal can never be abrogated by the laws of man.

We would acquaint your Excellency, that ſince our misfortune of being annexed to the province of New York, law has been rather uſed as a tool (than a rule of equity) to cheat us out of the country we have made vaſtly valuable by labour, and expence of our fortunes—We conclude things as yet are unknown, or in a great meaſure unknown to your Excellency, as your Excellency's commencement to the adminiſtration, hath not been long, and a ſet of artful and wicked men, concealing the truth from your Excellency, purpoſing to make a booty of us, characteriſing us, ſpeaking of our inhabitants in general, as ſo many rioters if not rebbels, and we being a poor people at a great diſtance from your Excellency's place of reſidence, fatigued in ſettling a wilderneſs country, have had little or no opportunity of acquainting your excellency of our grievances, except by one ſhort petition to your Excellency, deliver'd ſoon after your firſt taking the adminiſtration—and as our cauſe is repreſented before his Majeſty and council, we did not expect your Excellency to determine the controverſy, nor do we yet expect it. We are ſenſible thoſe men that ſeek our ruin, thereby to inrich themſelves, do by ſtratagems of every kind, repreſent us to your Excellency as breakers of the peace, and enemies to the government, and under this pretence, they hope to ketch a number of the boldeſt of our inhabitants, and puniſh them in the New York inquiſition, with that ſeverity that the reſidue of our inhabitants may be frighted out of both liberty and property, for otherways they would ſoon be indicted rioters, and thus under colour of puniſhing rioters, and a zeal of loyalty and ſubmiſſivement to government, rob the inhabitants of their country. If we do not oppoſe the ſheriff and his poſſy, he takes immediate poſſeſſion of our houſes and farms, if we do, we are immediately indicted rioters; and when others oppoſe officers in taking ſuch their friends ſo indicted, they are alſo indicted, and ſoon there being no end of indictments againſt us, ſo long as we act the bold and manly part, and ſtand by our liberty.——This is a ſhort ſketch of the diſingenuous conduing of Meſs Duane and Kemp, and their aſſociates; and it comes to this at laſt, that we muſt tamely be diſpoſſeſs'd, or oppoſe officers in taking poſſeſſion, and as a next neceſſary ſtep, oppoſe taking of rioters, ſo called, or run away like ſo many yankey cowards, and quit our country to a number of cringing, polite gentlemen, who have ideally poſſeſs'd themſelves of it already.

As to ſundry men who have eloped lately from our grants and fled to New York for protection, ſelf preſervation neceſſitated us to treat ſome of them roughly, and others, viz. Ebenezer Cowl and Jonathan Wheat of Shafſbury, fled to New York, on account of their own guilt, not being hurt or threatned, would time permit, we could give a rational account for moſt or all of our late conduct towards theſe men. The general reaſon is this, namely, they were a ſet of men that loved themſelves, and not their country, they buſied themſelves in planing and aſſiſting to take rioters, ſo called. In fine, they were the commiſſaries of that mercenary core of Yorkers, and did more in oppreſſing the people, than they without them could do.

The aſſault made upon Mr. Baker at day break, of the night of the 22d of March laſt, by a number of ruffians, under the command of the infamous John Munro, Eſq; was a notorious riot, and gave energy and motion, the ſubſequent acts your Excellency denominates illegal, this Monro and his bloody party, by cuting wounding and maiming Mr. Baker, his wife and children, in ſuch an inhuman and ſavage manner, was neither more or leſs than proclaiming himſelf in the moſt public manner, to be a malicious and bloody enemy, not only to Mr. Baker, but alſo to all thoſe men on our grants, who manfully adhere to maintaining liberty and property, and in as much as the murtherous villain is alive, he has no cauſe of complaint—for after his aſſault upon Mr. Baker, he made another aſſault upon Mr. Seth Warner, but not having ſo ſtrong a party of ruffians with him as in his other expedition, it was not attended with the like conſequences, for Mr. Warner ſtruck his head with a dull cutlaſs, and levelled him to the ground but the blow proved not to be mortal, and after this, for his ſatisfaction for the wound, threatned the lives of a number of the New Hampſhire ſettlers.—— ——Your Excellency will undoubtedly conſider as our opponents have had the manufactory of the civil law ſo much under their power, that this mercileſs man could not be brought to juſtice, nor could others among us be ſafe any other way, but by uſing him in his own play, he ſet the example, and inraged the people to mimick him from that natural principle of juſtice in every mans own breaſt.

As to the perfiduous and treacherous Bliſs Willoggby he always pretended to be a friend of the ſaid Baker, & Baker had ever been truly a friend of his——this hypocrite, two days before Baker was taken, made a frivilous excuſe of buſineſs, went to ſaid Bakers houſe, viewed the ſtrength of it, perceiv'd Baker was ſomewhat careleſs and ſecure, and made report to the ſaid Monro. In fine, Willoggby was the planner and inſtigator of that ſavage cruelty, exerciſed towards ſaid Baker, which was perpetrated and brought into action, by the deteſtable ſaid Monro. But to deſiſt, as to the hiſtory of our late tranſactions, whether they be all right or not, we on our part have a few arguments and conſiderations more, to lay before your Excellency, as to the cauſe of our diſcontent, as well as to the cauſe of our late actions, your Excellency denominates illegal.

The alteration of juriſdiction in 1764 could not affect private property: Surely his Majeſty by this alteration, did not propoſe to take away the perſonal property of a large number of his loyal ſubjects, and transfer it to other ſubjects; the Engliſh conſtitution will not admit of this, for the transferring, or alienation of property is a ſacred prerogative of the true owner—Kings and Governors cannot intermeddle with it. Furthermore, your Excellency and council muſt needs be acquainted, that we have a petition lying before his Majeſty and Council, for a redreſs of our grievances, This is an impartial board; pray why may it not be determined there? for the very identical matters in diſpute are now, and for ſeveral years paſt, have been lying before that court, except the accuſation of riotouſneſs, diſorderly, &c. which is improved as a handle to ſubvert private property, and that only.

Furthermore, in the time of Sir Henry Moor's adminiſtration, his Majeſty was pleaſed to lay the government of New York under abſolute prohibition not to grant or patent any of the lands antecedently granted under the great ſeal of the province of New Hampſhire, and furthermore forbid the government to diſturb or moleſt the ſettlers. This rightly underſtood, amounts to a ſupercedies over the authority of common law, and abſolutely controuls the cognizance thereof. As to the particular matters in the prohibition ſet forth, or matters lying before his Majeſty by petition, the import of the prohibition muſt need be thus, namely, that his Majeſty, by it informs the government of New York that he has taken the controverſy to him made known by petition, under his royal conſideration, and that after due information and evidence of the ſtate thereof, determines to ſettle the controverſy; conſequently forbids the government taking cognizance thereof; and common ſence aſſures us that under ſuch prohibition, if a judgment at common law be ſuppoſed to be valid, it would invalidate the authority of the crown, and ſubvert and overthrow the authority of the kingdom, as it would render the prohibitions of the crown perfectly impertinent. Therefore common law, in the caſe before us, is not cloathed with cognizance of this caſe, much leſs with authority to diſpoſſeſs us; conſequently every party of men that have, with officers or otherwiſe, come into theſe parts, to diſpoſſeſs us, came in defiance and direct oppoſition to his Majeſty's orders and authority: and tho they ſtile us rioters, for oppoſing them, and ſeek to ketch and puniſh us as ſuch, yet in reality, themſelves are the rioters,—the tumultuous, diſorderly, ſtimulating faction or in fine, the land robbers, and every violent act they have done to compaſs their deſign, tho' ever ſo much under pretence of law, is in reality a violation of law, and an inſult on the conſtitution, and authority of the crown, as well as to many of us in perſon, who have been great ſufferers by ſuch inhuman exertion of pretended legality of law. Right and wrong, are eternally the ſame to all periods of time, places and nations, and colouring a crime under a ſpecious pretence of law, only adds to the criminality of it, for it ſubverts the very deſign of law, proſtituting it to the vileſt purpoſes. Can any man, in the exerciſe of reaſon, make himſelf believe that a number of attornies, and other gentlemen, with all their tackle of ornaments, and compliments, and French fineſſe, together with their boaſted legality of law, that theſe gentlemen have juſt right to the lands, labours and fortunes of the New-Hampſhire ſettlers? Certainly he cannot. Yet this is the object in view by this mercenary fraternity.

We do not ſuppoſe, may it pleaſe your Excellency, we are making oppoſition to a government, as ſuch; it is nothing more than a party chiefly carried on by a number of gentlemen attornies (if it be not an abuſe to gentlemen of merit to call them ſo) who manifeſt a ſurprizing and enterpriſing thirſt of avarice after our country, but for a collection of ſuch intriguers, to plan matters by influence of a party, ſo as eventually to become judges in their own caſe, and thereby cheat us out of our country, appears to us ſo audaciouſly unreaſonable and tyrannical that we view it with the utmoſt deteſtation and indignation, and our breaſts glow with a martial fury to defend our perſons and fortunes from the ravages of thoſe that would deſtroy us; but not againſt your Excellency's perſon or government.

We are fully perſwaded your Excellency's ears have been much abuſed by ſubtle and deſigning men, for we are informed from credible authority, your Excellency has lately made application to your aſſembly to raiſe an armed force to ſubdue us, but that the motion was negatived. We apprehend your Excellency views us oppoſing your Excellency's juriſdiction and that the late violent acts by us done, was in rebellion to his Majeſty's authority, or your Excellency had never propoſed the ſubduing of us. We are morally ſure we can convince your Excellency, that it is not ſo; but that, on the other hand, Mr. Duane, Mr. Kemp, and their aſſociates, are the aggreſſors.

We have choſen two men from among us, viz. Capt. Stephen Fay and Mr. Jonas Fay, to treat with your Excellency in perſon, who we hope will anſwer ſuch queries, and give your Excellency the ſatisfaction you hope for.

We view your Excellency as our governor and political father, and hope and expect, from the ſincerity and candor of your Excellency's Letter, you will be friendly and favourably diſpoſed towards us, when your Excellency by theſe lines, perceives the grounds, of our diſcontent: for we are conſcious that our cauſe is good, and that it was oppreſſion which has been the ground of our diſcontent, and that ſelf preſervation hath hitherto urged us to the meaſures lately taken. And we now earneſtly intreat your Excellency's aid and aſſiſtance to quiet us in our poſſeſſions and properties till his Majeſty, in his royal wiſdom ſettle the controverſy. If your Excelly, ſhould do this, there would be an end of riots, ſo called, and our tongues unable to expreſs our gratitude to your Excelly for ſuch protection.

Therefore, relying on your Excellency's great wiſdom and goodneſs, as members of your government, his Majeſty's loyal and liege ſubjects, we ſubſcribe ourſelves your Excellency's ever faithful and humble ſervants.

PHILADELPHIA, July 2.

With Capt. Dyar, from North Carolina, came paſſenger Mr. Balthaſar Kip, late belonging to the ſloop Sally, Capt. Hunt, who was caſt away on Cape Look Out (as mentioned in this paper ſome time ſince) who informs, that a farmer looking for his cattle, found on the ſhore near Stump inlet, almoſt expiring, Mary Trigleghr, a young woman paſſenger on board the above ſloop, who was providentially caſt aſhore, after being ſeven days alone on part of the wreck, driving at the mercy of the ſea, without any thing to eat or drink. The farmer took her to his houſe, where by kind uſuage ſhe ſoon recovered.——There were alſo ſeveral hogſheads of rum and wine drove aſhore, belonging to the ſaid ſloop, which were ſold at Wilmington for the benefit of the concerned.

On Monday laſt a court of Oyer and Terminer was held at Burlington for the tryal of —— Smart, alias M'Cormick, for the Murder and robbery of Eliſabeth Knight; when he plead guilty of the Burglary, in hopes of being admitted an evidence againſt an innocent perſon, one Shreeve, whom he impeached as the murderer; but the Grand Jury did not find the bill. Upon which the Court pronounced Sentence of Death againſt Smart, who is to be hanged next Saturday.

BOSTON, July 6.

We hear from Oxford, that as one Mr. Joſeph Davis was digging a celler in a dry gravel, he dug up a buſhel or more of Frogs four feet under ground, in a cloudy day they would live to jump ſome rods from the cellar, but when the ſun ſhined upon them they died: they continued coming out of the ground till the cellar was flooded, and then there was a croaking ſome rods from the cellar under ground for ſome time. The cellar has been improved for a year and never has had any water in it.

PROVIDENCE, July 4.

Since our laſt Captain John Peck arrived here from the River Miſſiſippi, with whom came Paſſenger Joſeph Naſh, Eſq; of this Town. By him we learn, that ſince the Concluſion of the Peace the French and Spaniards had ſeduced ſeven Nations of Indians from the Engliſh by means of Medals, Colours, and other Preſents, and ſettled them on the weſtern Banks of the Miſſiſippi; but that John Thomas, Eſq; Deputy Superintendent of Indian affairs in that Department, has lately arrived there, and from his former Acquaintance with the Indians, and the ſurpriſing Influence he has over them, all the above Nations have determined to return and ſettle on the Engliſh Side of the River.——The warlike Nation of the Arkanſas have determined to join the Chickeſaws, Shawaneſe and Cherokees, in a War againſt the Dickspoos for killing ſome Engliſh Settlers on the Ohio and Miſſiſippi.

We further learn, that an unhappy Diſpute having lately ariſen between the Superintendent and Mr. Harris, a Merchants Clark at Fort Bute, on the River, they both drew their Swords, when Mr. Harris was killed on the Spot, and the Superintendent ſlightly wounded. He immediately delivered himſelf up, and was to take his Trial at Penſacola.

A few Days before Captain Peck ſailed from New Orleans, an Ordinance was publiſhed by the Governor of Louiſiana, by Order of his Catholic Majeſty, prohibiting the Introduction of all Sorts of foreign Cotton Stuffs, mixed with Cotton, under the Penalty of ſuch Goods being confiſcated, and of twenty Bitts for every Yard of ſuch Goods that ſhall be ſeized.—The like prohibition, we learn, will take Place throughout his Catholic Majeſty's Dominions.

NEW-LONDON, July 10.

As it is ſaid in ſeveral News-Papers, that the Small-Pox is very Rife in New-London, it may be proper to inform the Public, that at this Time not one Perſon has that Diſtemper, or the Symptoms of it, in the Town.

Laſt Saturday, about 4 o'Clock in the Afternoon, there was a violent Guſt of Wind over this Town, from the W. N. W. attended with Rain, Thunder and Lightning, when a great Number of Trees were blown up by the Roots, others broke off in the Middle, and a large Barn Two Miles from Town, was blown down.—A fine large Grove of Cheſtnut Trees, belonging to the Eſtate of Mr. George Dolbeare, in the North-Pariſh, was entirely blown down.

PROPOSALS,

For printing by SUBSCRIPTION,

An Eſſay on Moral Agency: Containing Remarks on a late anonymous Publication, entituled, "An examination of the late Reverend Preſident Edwards's Enquiry on Freedom of Will."

By STEPHEN WEST, A. M.
Paſtor of the Church in STOCKBRIDGE.

WHEREIN moral agency or liberty is particularly and carefully defined——the powers of human nature, critically examined, and a juſt and rational idea endeavoured to be given of the term power—the nature and influence of MOTIVES upon the human will, carefully conſidered—virtue and vice, ſhewn to conſiſt in the nature of the internal diſpoſitions and inclinations of men, in diſtinction from their cauſe; and, therefore, conſiſtent with a previous, infallible certainty of all events—the doctrine of an antecedent certainty of all events which ever take place, proved to be both rational and ſcriptural—the idea of a power of ſelf determination in men particularly, and critically examined, and ſhewn to be inconſiſtent and abſurd—the objection againſt a connexion of all human volitions with ſome antecedent, extrinſic cauſe, that ſuch an opinion makes men but mere machines, obviated and refuted—the examiner's reaſonings in various parts of his performance, ſhewn to be inconcluſive and unjuſt; and the great and popular objection againſt an infallible antecedent certainty of all events, as well moral as natural, that ſuch doctrine reflects reproach upon the moral character of GOD, and ſuppoſeth him to be the author of ſin, largely and very particularly conſidered; and a humble and careful enquiry made into the extent of the divine agency, with reſpect to the event of the taking place of ſin.

It is ſuppoſed the Eſſay will contain [illegible] ſheets. The price to the ſubſcribers will be two ſhillings, or in that proportion, as it ſhall be larger or ſmaller.

It is now in the preſs, and will be publiſhed at the enſuing Commencement, in New Haven.

Subſcriptions are taken in by the Printer hereof; and by the Author.
